SIR JOHN AND THE McCARTHY ACT.

Though a number of commissioners under the Dominion License Act have been notified of their appointment, no official notice has yet been given of such appointments, and there is said to be serious differences of opinion among Federal Ministers as to the propriety of attempting to enforce the Act. The Quebec section of the Cabinet openly assert that Sir John Macdonald has already brought discredit enough upon himself, his Ministry, and the Conservative party by his insane attacks upon the rights of the Provinces in order to vent his spleen against the Reform Government of Ontario. The late judgment of the Privy Council and the declaration of ex-Judge Loranger that the Dominion License Act is ultra vires has caused great confusion in Government circles and shaken the confidence of Sir John Macdonald's colleagues in his legal knowledge. The chairman of the Quebec Codifying Commission, acting no doubt with the approval of Premier Mousseau, has declared that the Quebec License Act is still law in that Province, so that Quebec will have to make common cause with Ontario in resisting Federal encroachments. Sir John will, no doubt, try his old game of procrastination, but even his most ardent admirers here admit that he has got himself into an ugly scrape.

Peterborough Markets.

PETERBOROUGH, Jan. 16, 1884.

There is a little more doing in grain. Price of wheat rather unsettled. There has been a heavy decline in the States, Chicago touching 97c. for May delivery. English markets still drooping. On the market here prices may be quoted as follows: Spring wheat $1.03 to $1.04. Fall wheat 90 to 98c. Goose 80 to 83c. Barley 50 to 65c. Rye 55 to 56c. Peas 73 to 74c. Oats are on the drop, selling from 30 to 31c. Hay has brought $9 to $10, but this quotation is not reliable, as there is a good deal offering; $9 may be quoted as the top price. On the market there is very little doing, fresh butter selling from 20 to 23. Eggs, few offering, 25c. asked. A good many dressed hogs have been offered for this season of the year, selling up to $8 per hundred for choice. Other commodities unchanged.

A MONTREAL SHYLOCK.

On Saturday a dry goods merchant of Montreal, caused the little household effects of a poor honest man to be sold by a bailiff for a debt of about $13, the defendant at the time being on his deathbed, aye, even dying from the effects of amputation of one of his legs. This relentless creditor was asked by the neighbors to have mercy but the merchant Shylock would not hear of mercy. The bailiff, a kind hearted man, begged his principal to allow him to put over the sale on the plea that the case was one of peculiar hardship, deserving the kindest consideration. The sale was proceeded with, however, and realised, all told, $35. But, thanks to a noble-hearted citizen, who learning that his dying neighbour was being sold out, rushed to the sale, purchased and paid cash down for every article, nothing was removed. Shylock, rubbing his hands, was rejoicing that he had succeeded so much better than his ancient brother, since his pound of flesh was actually in his bailiff's pocket, when lo! another Daniel come to judgment appeared in the person of bailiff No. 2, armed with a writ from Assistant City Attorney Coyle's office. This writ ranked first and seized the proceeds of the sale. Shylock's laugh is suspended pro tem; he commenced to figure up; there is yet, said he, enough for me. "Not quite, friend," said a gentlemanly looking young man stepping forward. "I seize the balance left for the landlord. Behold the writ!" The merchant, it is said, is urging his own creditors to give him an extension of time for the payment of his debts.

THE COLD WAVE.

Reports received from all parts of the continent show that the recent excessive arctic weather extended from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Nor was it confined to northern latitudes, for we read of frosts as far south as Orange County, Florida, while in Georgia much suffering was caused by extreme and unexpected winter temperature. Cincinnati, St. Louis, Chicago and other western cities were also visited by cold hardly less severe than was felt at Ottawa, with these additional discomforts that the people of those places were not prepared to meet it and the dampness of their atmosphere made it harder to bear. It is customary for those who depreciate our Canadian climate to point to what they call our arctic winters, but the meteorological records show that these periodical cold waves are by no means confined to northern latitudes. Here they are comparatively unfelt, owing to the dryness and clearness of our atmosphere, but they fall like a visitation of divine anger on more southern latitudes causing intense suffering, while here they only add a zest to winter sports and are a direct benefit to the settler and lumberman by furnishing them with good winter roads. Certainly when an arctic wave sweeps over the continent Canadians have a much pleasanter time than their fellow mortals in more southern regions.—Ottawa Free Press.

FAT WOMEN IN SIDE SHOWS.

"Fat women in side shows are notoriously shortlived," said an old showman. "I reckon you don't know how they are doctored. They start with a pretty fat woman to begin with. Then with a silver needle little holes are made through the adipose or fatty tissue, clear to the muscle. The tissues are then blown up as a butcher blows up meat, until an increase in bulk is obtained, which, in the arm, amounts to as much as half or three quarters of an inch. If when in the progress of the inflating process, a blood vessel be pierced, the air gets into the blood, death instantly ensues. The fat woman takes her risk on that. The business, if persisted in, will kill off a healthy fat woman in about six years, and they don't make a great deal of money either."

SONG OF THE SKATER.

Hear the [illegible] of the [illegible]!
Gleaming skates
What [illegible]
[illegible]
While [illegible]
[illegible]
How they jingle, jingle, jingle,
On the glassy ice we whirl,
While the youth and maidens mingle
With their sheets of wild delight,
As they go
To and fro,
Gliding here, dashing there,
Rosy cheeks, flying hair,
Sturdy lads and lassies fair!
Oh! Away with melancholy!
Let us frolic and be jolly!
On the ice,
Though the old folks think it's folly
Yet it's nice.
Let us skate, skate, skate,
Till our hearts become elate
With the merriment and jollity
That such a pleasure brings,
While the old Time with mirthful twinkle
Flies with laughter-laden wings.
How each shelter navigates,
Redskee, and gyrates,
As his speed accelerates,
And he circumambulates

The Shade of Merecombe Hall

A few days after this Bertie was comfortably settled on a couch near the low open window of their cottage sitting-room, her mother's easy chair close beside her, and Gyneth opposite, leaning on the sill of the open window, looking out into the June sunshine, and bringing in its freshness on her face as she talked to her sister.

Presently she drew in her head suddenly, her eyes full of fun.

"Surely in the far, far distance I can hear a sound at last,'" she hummed. "Down at the gate there is a little pantomime going on, which I am not supposed to see, Bertie. The Squire is making his dog lie down in a posture of abject humility, just out of sight of us as he supposes. Now he himself has opened the gate, and is coming to ask after you. I wish he would not walk as if this funny little garden were a park avenue. He is not a bit better dressed than——" But here the light talk broke off, and Gyneth rose as steps sounded on the gravel path under the window, and the bell rang at the door.

They never knew how he did it, but in less than half an hour he had established himself beside Bertie, and had given her such a bigography of Spring that she forgave him for the fright he had caused her, had carelessly found out many of her fancies—apparently to no purpose—and had won Mrs. Marshbrook's heart, surely and truly, by his gentle courtesy to her little girl. But with Gyneth he had made no advance at all. Every subject he started with her she threw back lightly; his grave speeches she turned gayly against himself, his gay ones she never heeded. At last, at Bertie's request, he stood at the window, and whistled to Spring to come for her inspection.

"Has he lain quietly all the time just where you left him?"

"Of course he has, and would do so until I called him, if I were to forget him all day and night."

And as he might have told them that on the day he had frightened her so seriously the dog had crouched where his master had left him until nightfall, when he had been suddenly remembered. But he did not tell this, for he did not care in any way to recall that day to her.

"What a handsome fellow!" said Bertie, on being propped up a little higher to get a better view. "And you know, Mr. Suttleton, I was the trespasser. He only did his duty."

"A little too well, though," he observed, "if that is not a paradox. Is it possible to do one's duty too well?" he asked, and he chanced to turn to Gyneth then.

"I should imagine so," she answered, quietly, "acting as Spring did, only on instinct."

"But whether on instinct or intellect, can one do one's duty too well, acting on the highest feeling we possess?"

"I suppose not," she said, throwing a biscuit into the mastiff's mouth. "Yet I think Spring a most objectionable animal for doing his so well."

"It is well for Spring that he does not understand your language as well as mine, Miss Marshbrook," said Mr. Suttleton, by a gesture sending Spring back to the gate, and following him with his eyes. "Evidently you do not understand what a friend a dog may be to one who has no other friend."

She glanced questioningly at the sunburned face, which was a riddle to her; and then she answered with carlessness:

"I must be an object of pity, for I have no such friend."

"You know I did not insinuate that," he rejoined, with a hasty sternness; "but—treat the idea with contempt, if you will—I shall still say I wish every man had as true a friend."

"And I could wish with old Percy, 'every distressed man a better friend at need,'"

"Your wish, Miss Marshbrook, is one among many doomed to be unfied; and for my own part I do not regret it. Should I find the world one whit better if I had a friend to jog my elbow and tell me so?"

"I have never looked at it in that light," said Gyneth, demurely. "Is a jog of one's elbow the characteristic action of a friend?"

Marmaduke Suttleton's eyes had no smile in them, and his voice was grave as before.

"What is your idea of the characteristic action of a friend, Mrs. Marshbrook?" he asked.

"Sympathizing with one, helping one, and amusing one."

"And yours, Miss Bertie?"

"Bringing one nice things, and reading and talking to one, and taking one to places."

Duke smiled pleasantly at this, and seemed so cogitate over it.

"And yours, Miss Marshbrook?" he asked then, turning rather suddenly to look into Gyneth's face.

"Staying a good way off, and—never expecting letters."

He smiled, but the smile was cold and cynical, and his lips tightened a little as he felt the girl's utter heedlessness of his opinion. When he answered, it was in her own tone:

"Then, in spite of your previous assertion, Spring would be just the kind of a friend to suit you; for he will stay at any distance, and he never attempts a letter."

With a smile in her eyes which she could not help, Gyneth's whole tone changed, as it had an odd habit of doing.

"A world without friends would be just like a garden without flowers—would it not?"

"Which is an Irishism, Miss Marshbrook; for what would you make it a garden then?"

"Vegetables."

"I see—but even that is better than a garden of withered flowers," said Duke, leaning forward on the window seat, and speaking in a low voice. "[illegible] flowers. Eden w[illegible] inherits; but [illegible] trail of the serpent over them all."

[illegible] flame of [illegible] [illegible] trail of the serpent to [illegible] Gyneth, quickly. "No sooner [illegible] than the trail of the serpent."

"If so, it is because we will not seek more," put in Mrs. Marshbrook, quietly.

"Still, if it were not there, no one could find it, could they, Miss Marshbrook?"

"Of course it is there," said Gyneth, quickly—"we all know it is there; but the other is there, too, and—and I'm sure, if you think this kind of thing, you are better without a friend."

"For many reasons I am better without a friend," he returned, seriously. "I shall live as we all die—alone; yet in saying so, I am treasonable to poor Spring there," he added, rising hurriedly. "Mrs. Marshbrook, I have encroached on your patience a long time. Will you pardon a lonely fellow who is unaccustomed to such an atmosphere as this? Miss Bertie, I must put a notice over that gap in the hedge, 'Trespassers will be prosecuted.'"

"Their recovery, too, I hope, Mr. Suttleton," said Bertie, merrily. "And you had really better have that notice put up at once, to keep Spring out. Is he as intelligent as Mr. Jingle's dog?"

"You don't mean to say that you have read 'Pickwick,' you little one?" interrogated Duke, touching very gently the long fair hair which lay on the pillows.

"I should think I had, indeed! Why, I am fourteen, Mr. Suttleton—only five years younger than Gyneth. She would not like me at all if I were not up to the funny bits in 'Pickwick.'"

"Not at all," echoed Gyneth.

"Then I suppose, Miss Marshbrook, you——"

"Oh! stop, Bertie!" she interrupted, with her pretty laugh. "You were going to ask me if I like Dickens, and I am tired of the question. I love his books as I love—holidays and sunshine. They are all blended together in my mind."

"I can understand that easily," said Duke.

"Then you know him, too, Mr. Suttleton?" inquired Bertie.

"A little," he laughed, "There are various old friends of mine among his characters."

"I thought Spring was your only friend?" hinted Gyneth, with eyebrows raised.

"They are all friends, according to your beau ideal, Miss Marshbrook," he answered lightly. "They always keep far enough away from me; they never break my loneliness."

When he was gone, Bertie took her mother's hand in hers and lay back wearily.

"You are tired, dear; he staid too long," said Mrs. Marshbrook.

"No, mother, he could not tire me," returned Bertie; and then, turning to her sister, she added, "What a pleasant voice he has, Gyneth!"

"A more excellent thing in woman than in man, I believe," observed Gyneth, lightly.

"I don't think he is gloomy, mamma, or reserved, as people said; and I cannot help looking at his face when he talks, it changes so perpetually—can you, Gyneth?"

"I did not try to help it dear, so I don't know," replied Gyneth.

"He looked very, very handsome sometimes," pursued Bertie.

"Bertie, dear," interposed Gyneth, "you must lie still now. I will read to you and mother. Stay, while I fetch the book from my room."

As Gyneth walked up to her dressing table, she caught sight of a figure passing along the road—a tall figure, in a worn but well-made suit of velveteen, at his heels an enormous dog, who, not quite understanding his master's unusual thoughtfulness, contented himself by following closely and quietly the firm slow step. And, while she stood absently, with the book in her hand, Gyneth's thoughts ran somewhat in this wayward fashion: "Shameful—even sinful—to talk so of his loneliness; he, a man with wealth and power, living among his people, where he ought to have dearer friends than the characters in books—or a dog"—and Gyneth's lips curled involuntarily in quiet scorn—"where he might do good, and win all hearts—win to himself—oh! such love. Cowardly to turn away from it all as he does, and live in himself—buried in the shadow that seems to have settled over him and Merecombe Hall. I wonder—I wonder," she added to herself, with her wonted variableness, what he thinks of us? He would know mother to be a lady in a moment; but, I mean, I wonder whether he imagines how I teach for my livelihood and for theirs, and that we have had to save for three years to come here for the holidays? And I wonder whether he was ever in such a small house at hours home? I mean, I don't care anything at all about it—only I am very sorry that dog was ever born, and I don't think his master leads a very happy life, and it is all is own fault."

And during this time Duke Suttleton walked along the hot highway, with only one thought in his bent head—the old, sad shouhht which had been his constant companion for years—the thought which fell now like a heavy cloud between him and the happy group he had left, and which rested ever upon his future.

CHAPTER II.

Ten out of the twenty days had passed, and Bertie was still confined to her couch; but—except the power of motion, so dear to childhood—she had no want unsatisfied. Every day there had come a present of fruit and flowers from the Hall, and now and then a new book, or a game, or picture. Duke's visits were not so frequent as his presents, but he certainly did pass through that narrow white gate very often.

Most of his care and attention during these visits was bestowed upon the little invalid; but there was something in his courteous frankness to Mrs. Marshbrook which was very winning to the gentle mother who had never known a son's strong, tender love. Contrasted to this, his manner to Gyneth seemed uncertain, and sometimes even hard. Day after day, as the intimacy increased, the two seemed trying to prove themseves at variance in every thought and taste and feeling; and when sometimes Duke found himself trying inadvertantly, as it were, to interest her in any subject of his own, he would suddenly correct himself. And day after day she would, so to speak, step farther away from herself, yet always laughingly, though with a lightness which was different from the old light-heartedness which her mother loved. Perhaps this variance made the intercourse, as Bertie said, all the greater fun; but certainly there was a continual though gentle warfare between Gyneth and Mr. Suttleton, from which only very rarely would Gyneth drop into that earnestness so usual with her.

It was Sunday afternoon, and Gyneth, who had sat at home with Bertie in the morning while her mother went to church, walked by herself across the fields to afternoon service, lingering happily by the way.

When the service was over—the sleepy, soothing country service—Gyneth found Dr. Denne waiting at the churchyard gate.

"When I left Bertie, doctor, she was wondering whether you would make your appearance to-day."

"I am coming," he said. "I delayed my visit because Mr. Settleton wishes me to gives permission for her to take a drive, and I want to see how she is at the end of an ordinary day. May I come to tea?"

"Do," she repeated, heartily.

"Thank you; then I will follow you, for I have a visit to make in the village first."

Just tthen Duke Suttleton came sauntering from the churchyard, nodding in answer to the greetings of the men who still lingered about; and for the moment that he stood opposite to Gyneth at the gate, bareheaded in the sunshine, she saw unmistakably upon his face what she had seen often before—deep down beneath the changing expressions—the shadow of some unutterable sorrow.

"I was betraying to Miss Marshbrook," said the doctor, "your proposal of a drive for her sister; and I am going to the cottage this afternoon that I may give my verdict."

"May I come, Miss Marshbrook?" Duke asked. The crimson rushed to his face during the few moments of her hesitation. "You will be sure to decide for the best, Denne," he said, turning to the doctor, "and any carriage you may choose is at Miss Bertie's service. Good-afternoon, Miss Marshbrook," he then added to Gyneth, and without offering her his hand.

With an apparent surprise in her beautiful face, and in her most gentle voice, Gyneth spoke again.

"I think, Mr. Suttleton, you might very well forego your ceremonious fate dinner just for this once, and come and help us to amuse Dr. Denne at tea. I have no idea what entertaining remarks to make, except upon the healthiness of Merecombe—and of course he would not like that idea.

The physician laughed as he turned away, and Duke, with a great gladness in his eyes, walked on beside her in the sunny fields above the bright and changing sea—walked very slowly, to take in the full beauty of the glorious summer afternoon. But they had not gone far, and had not said one word to each other, when the light faded from his eyes, and the shadows lay therein once again.

They kept to the fields in preference to the road, and as they entered the last down which a steep path led to the turnpike road—they caught sight of Dr. Denne coming towards them from the distance. Gyneth seated herself on the grass to wait for him, and Duke threw himself down beside her.

"We catch a pretty view of your home from here, Mr. Suttleton," she said, looking absently towards the tall gray turrets rising among the trees.

"A much prettier view you would have, Miss Marshbrook, without that huge stone edifice. It is a gloomy cavern for one solitary man."

"Within it may be cavernous, but without it certainly is not," returned Gyneth, coldly, but with the faintest possible quiver on her lips. "Look at the sunshine on it."

"I think you see sunshine everywhere, Miss Marshbrook," he said slowly, his eyes full of sorrowful incredulity. "I can not."

"Perhaps you can only see very short distances, Mr. Suttleton."

"Quite the opposite—entirely the opposite in this case."

"Here is Dr. Denne, she said, without turning her gaze from the flickering leaves below.

Duke Suttleton rose coolly and addressed the doctor.

"Here we are waiting for you, discussing the beauties of yonder mansion, and wishing it could mysteriously change hands."

You may make it over to me, squire, as soon as you like."

"But my good fellow you must take with it all its deadly—— Do you remember poor King Henry's discontent and longing?"—

"'Oh God! methinks it were a happy life,
To be no better than a homely swain—
To sit upon a hill as I do now.'

Miss Marshbrook," continued Duke, with a new earnestness, "You do not know what it is to have no motive in one's life—all a dead, cold, hopelessness—no power to make it sublime, because——"

Dr. Denne interrupted him hastily.

"Poor Bobbie Burns will tell you how to do that. Do you remember?—

"To make a happy fireside clime, to weans and wife—
That's the true pathos and sublime of human life."

"Some human lives," said Duke, a passionate light in his eyes. "In some it would be a selfish sin—in some it would be worse. Many do it, perhaps," he went on with a tremble in his voice, and the world does not see the sin."

"Bertie will think I am lost," said Gyneth, rising with sudden restlessness; "shall we go?"

"I wonder, Miss Marshbrook," said Duke, with the tremble still in his voice as he walked on beside her, "why so much the fuller promise is given to the repentant sinner than to the unsinning man?"

"I think," she answered, softly, "because we can all be repentant sinners, none of us unsinning men."

"But there have been just men," he remarked, "and will be to the end of time; and we never hear that there is joy in the presence of the angels of God over them. Perhaps it is best, after all, to be the sinner."

"It is best to be the pardoned sinner," she observed, quietly.

"I don't know about the orthodoxy of our views, Denne," said Duke, holding the gate open for Gyneth, and raising his hat as he caught sight of Bertie's face at the window. "The fact is," he added, in his low grave voice. "I wish things never could be explained in different ways, leaving us the pain of choosing our own explanation. I have shocked you, Miss Marshbrook, but—— Well, do you know I look upon those poor fellows who, after they were turned out of Jerusalem homeless, went and knelt to kiss the spot where the cross stood on Calvary as better men, after all, than the Christians who, with the embroidered cross upon their arms, and no backward look at Calvary, turned them out triumphantly."

"I prefer the Christians," said Gyneth, all the more determinately because her inclination was to agree with him.

What an evening it was! Many and many a Sunday did two of them look back upon that sweet calm evening as on a happy little resting spot, undisturbed by the passions and unrest that surged around it. Bright and cheerful as they all were, yet with an earnestness befitting the day—befitting the hour too, as they sat round the open window in the rich sunset light.

"I have grown very fond of this room," the child said, looking around it. "I wish only the music of home. Gyneth would play to me now if I were at home. Sunday is hardly Sunday without that. Sunday is [illegible] Gyneth!" [illegible] pleaded.

The shy color rose painfully in Gyneth's cheeks, but when they all pleaded she gave her quiet, low consent.

"What shall I sing?"

"'The Pilgrims of Night,' please," said Bertie, in delight.

Duke had heard the hymn many times before, yet it came to him on this night with a new beauty and a new meaning as, looking into the calm of the summer evening, he listened to the sweet, pure voice

"Singing to welcome the pilgrims of the night."

He could feel the welcome as if it stole into his heart—poor Duke!—and calmed the restless pulse that throbbed so passionately in that better struggle which went on within him always in the presence of the singer.

When the hymn was finished, Dr. Denne thanked Gyneth quietly, but Duke never attempted it. Quickly glancing at his face, Gyneth turned to her mother.

"Cannot we sing something all together?" she said, "Mr. Suttleton, will you join, and you, doctor? Here are books."

So they sang, sitting together in the fading of the golden light, until Bertie said:

"One more, please—'Jerusalem the Golden.'"

"What sort of a fight does it mean—that in which they 'conquer with the leader?'" asked Duke, when they had finished the hymn, his tone apparently indifferent.

"That one great fight in which we lose or win for all eternity," answered Mrs. Marshbrook.

"But how can we lose if He is our leader? And how much easier it would be if He would show Himself, and tell us which way to fight it out."

"Oh! hush, Mr. Suttleton," cried Bertie, "Don't say those things, please."

"I beg your pardon," he said, with an unwonted softening in look and tone, "but I have such a fight to fight that you would pardon me if you knew."

"Harder than ours?" asked Bertie, laying her hand on his, in childish sympathy.

"I hope so, indeed."

Then they rose to take leave, and Bertie looked up at the doctor.

"May I drive?" she asked.

"Yes, Miss Bertie, but not before Thursday. You must rest patiently for three days."

She sighed a little as she shook hands with Duke.

"Good-by, Mr. Suttleton. Then you will take me on Thursday?"

"Yes, and such a day we will have," he answered, quickly.

CHAPTER III.

Thursday dawned one of the brightest days of that bright summer, and the sleepy village roused itself into a brief astonishment at the appearance of its squire. Was that the great old britzka from the hall, which they did not remember to have seen out now for twenty years? and was that a mattress propped upon the seats, and covered and cushioned like a couch? It must be for the little lady, who was quite well known in Merecombe now, and very tenderly sympathized with.

On, in the shadow of the larch-trees that towered over the gray park walls, drove Duke, sitting high on the box of the carriage, and, with a careful, steady hand holding in the handsome, high-stepping grays. Very well he looked up there, his people thought, notwithstanding the curious look in the drawn eyebrows, as the horses rebelled at the unaccustomed harness.

Duke drew up at the garden gate, gave the reins to his groom, and walked into the cottage. He left his hat and driving-gloves in the little hall, and went on up-stairs.

"Come in, Mr. Suttleton," said Bertie's voice, gayly.

She was looking unusually well, pleased and expectant, and Gyneth, dressed and waiting, was fixing a little bunch of nemophila in her jacket.

"Isn't it a beautiful day for us?" Bertie asked, as she returned his greeting.

"Indeed it is. Everything is so full of welcome for you, Miss Bertie."

"You and I had better stay at home, mamma," said Gyneth. "There is no welcome for us anywhere."

"They are jealous," whispered Duke, calmly, but with such a passionate welcome in his own eyes that he did well to hide them.

"I am sorry you are wearing these," he observed, looking down at Gyneth's flowers; they will die before our day is over."

"They will last our drive, and when we come home they may die," Gyneth said, lightly.

"I want this to be an unfading day," he remarked. "Now, Miss Bertie, are you ready?" And when she nodded he he took her in his arms and carried her to her snug position in the carriage.

"Mrs. Marshbrook, I have had that lofty seat in front made as comfortable as possible for you to sit beside me. Is it right for you? Miss Marshbrook, you are destined for the solitary seat behind. Hold them steady, Will."

Gyneth sprang lightly to her seat, grateful for the care which had left the inside of the carriage for Bertie, and so enabled her to move and change her position.

"There, Miss Bertie, what do you say to having your sister's face so near your own? Now I think we are ready; you may go, Will?"

Once more Duke took the reins, the management of the restive horses looking very easy in his hands, and they went on, less and less slowly as they skirted the beautiful cliffs, turning off among golden fields, between the scented hedge-banks, and at last seemed to be returning, though they had not turned. Bertie's face was flushed with enjoyment, and when Duke turned round, as the sisters talked together, he began to feel, with a strange pang at his heart, that the face which bent over from the back seat was the whiter and more pained.

SANDERSON'S

FOR FINEST JEWELRY, WATCHES, CLOCKS, PLATED WARE AND MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.

A PETERBOROUGH POETESS.

The following pathetic lines, full of tender feeling, and of considerable literary merit, are from the pen of Miss Millie Sanderson, well known in Peterborough, but now in London, England, preparing herself at the parent institute for the duties of matron of the branch of Dr. Barnardo's homes to be established in Moira Hall, the splendid gift of Geo. A. Cox, Esq. The poem originally appeared in Night and Day, a monthly journal of Christian missions and practical philanthropy among the outcast population of London, edited by Dr. Barnardo:—

"A Peep in a Cottage.

A STORY OF OUR VILLAGE HOME.

A cosy fire burned cheerily and warm:
The little ones around me waiting tea,
So pleased to be allowed in "mother's" room
Were chatting merrily, when, looking up
With winsome baby grace, wee Emmie said:

"I love 'oo, muvver; does 'oo love me too?"
"Indeed I do," I said, and snatched her up
To sit in nestler corner on my knee.
And kissed her dear little face and curly head,
But then she sat and gazed so pensively
Her baby face so full of earnest thought,
That laughing Katie pinched her cheek, and said:

"You don't love mother, or you'd give her back
"Two kisses for each kiss she's given you."
The blue eyes filled with tears, and the soft lips
Grew tremulous, as lifting up her head
That rested lightly on my circling arm,
She said so gravely, "I did love her once,
"My wicked muvver, where I lived 'oo know.

And then the wee face grew so stern and hard,
I wonder'd what was coming;—presently,
"But I did hate my faver he did strike
"My muvver on her face, two times, he did."
Oh, it was pitiful to see the look
The little face took on at thought of it,
And hear the gasping of the baby breath
That seemed to hurt her as she drew it fast.
What would I not have given for power to blot
The mem'ry of that scene forever out!—
And so I told her pretty nursery tales,
And sweet old Bible stories till the smiles
Had chased the tears, as sunshine April showers.

But long, long after little Emmie slept,
The vision of that dark and gloomy scene,
So stamped upon her childish memory,
Kept rising up before me. I could see
The fiendish fierceness of the father's rage,
The cowering children crouched in terror dumb,
And then the blows upon the poor bruised face,
Of her, the mother of his little ones.

Oh think you, do the angels see such sights,
And know that men in God's own image made,
And but a little lower than themselves,
Can fall so far below the very brutes?
I think God's heart must ache as He looks down
Upon the misery that sin has made.

I crept upstairs to see if all my flock
Were safe and quiet in their pretty beds,
And knelt beside wee Emmie's dainty cot
To know if thoughts of sorrow tinged her dreams.

But no, the chubby face lay gently pressed
Against her soft warm pillow, with no trace
Of care or trouble to disturb her sleep.
And then my heart grew lighter as I thought
Of all these rescued children, these poor waifs,
That if not here, would be exposed to want,
And sin, and misery of every sort.

* * * * * *

Oh, friends of children through this sunny land,
Who fold your happy darlings to your hearts
And thank God for his sweetness in your lives,
Give out of your abundance, freely give,
And graciously, that back to you again,
In showers of golden gladness may be given
The Master's blessing and His precious words,
"Since done for these, tis even done to Me".

MILLIE SANDERSON."

FIRE DRILL.

FOUR HUNDRED CHILDREN MARCH OUT OF A BURNING BUILDING—HOW A PANIC WAS PREVENTED IN A TORONTO SCHOOL.

About 3.30 Monday afternoon, while 400 children in the Hope Street School, Toronto, were engaged at their lessons, fire broke out in the basement, and in a few minutes the whole building was filled with smoke. Mr. Gill, head master, was notified and immediately gave the usual fire drill alarm, when the scholars filed out thinking it was part of the drill. Some of the scholars tried to return for their books, but men stationed at each stairway drove them away. Fortunately there was no panic, and the infant class had been dismissed at 3 o'clock, otherwise lives might have been lost. The wraps and books of several of the scholars were burnt. The fire originated through pipes being placed too close to woodwork and setting fire to it.

A RAILWAY KING RUINED.

Henry Villard, the great railway magnate, and late President of the Northern Pacific Railway, who has suffered such a complete financial collapse, was at one time a newspaper reporter. By his own exertions he became one of the most prominent railway men in the States, and was an important factor in numerous corporate enterprises. He was the owner of millions, had a palatial mansion in New York, and practically had the world at his feet. Now his money is all gone, his mansion has been taken over by his creditors, and he has been deposed from his high position. The force of the blow will be broken by the fact that his creditors will hand the mansion over to his wife, and that the railway company, of which he was president, have made him an allowance of ten thousand dollars a year.

Tried in Toronto.

Mrs Mary Thompson, of Toronto, reports the removal of eight feet of tapeworm by the use of one bottle of Dr. Low's Pleasant Worm Syrup. This medicine is reliable for all kinds of worms that afflict children or adults. 3-2t

VARIETIES.

"Lost the cough I long did know,
Many years I felt its blow,
Without the use of pills or blister,
I cured the same with Downs' Elixir.

Thousands of affidavits prove,
That it doth man's life remove,
Coughs and colds, and whooping cough
By its power soon are off." 2-tf

Ex-attorney-general Palmer says the temperance question will be an issue in all future political campaigns and would ultimately triumph.

Dairyman Getting Rich.

Progressive dairymen who are only satisfied with the best results, are adding to their wealth and conferring a benefit on society, by the rapid improvements they are making in the art of butter making. This class use Wells, Richardson, & Co's. Improved Butter Color, and know by actual test that it fills every claim made for it.

At a meeting of Brooklyn fenians on Sunday night J. Knight, recently arrived from Ireland, deplored the dynamite and threatening talk, and claimed that the Parnell and Isaac Butt policy had gained more respect than the fenian claptrap.

Their Name is Legion.

Legions of people have had their lives made miserable by Piles. This painful difficulty is often induced and always aggravated by Constipation. Kidney-Wort is the greatest remedy for all affections of this kind. It acts as a gentle cathartic, promotes a healthy action of the bowels, and soothes and heals the inflamed surfaces. It has cured hundreds of cases where all other remedies and applications have failed. Sold by all druggists.

The director of the mint at Washington states that there are between five and six million trade dollars still outstanding. The remainder of the thirty-five million originally coined are thought to have been exported or remelted.

A Moral Power.

Stove-pipes are supposed to move the deepest and most profound desire to to swear that it is possible for man to experience. Be that as it may, we venture the opinion that corns produce as many startling exclamations, and the introduction of PUTNAM'S PAINLESS CORN EXTRACTOR, should be hailed as a moral influence in the world, independent of its power as a reliever of physical suffering. Sold everywhere. Take only Putnam's Extractor, N. C. POLSON & CO., Proprietors.

Seventeen vessels and two hundred and nine lives were lost in the Gloucester fisheries during the year just closed. Forty men are known to have left widows and a number of fatherless children, of which there is a record of sixty-eight.

LEAP YEAR LEVITY.

This year promises to be a very busy one. Everything will be jumping. It's leap year you know.

It is understood that the girls have adopted the following as their motto for leap year: "If you see what you want, ask for it."

Although women have the right to propose in leap year, there is no law to compel the men to say yes. This fact ought to encourage the young men to stand firm.

For several years past it has been customary for young men to shoot the girl who refuses to marry them. Of course the girl will be justified in turning the tables this year.

A Chicago man has applied for a divorce, alleging that his wife forced him to marry her. This statement, and the fact that leap year is so near, will make timid young men feel very nervous.

THE CZAR'S "ACCIDENT."

The "accident" to the czar of Russia recently, happened in this way. The czar was returning about 3 o'clock in the afternoon of Dec. 17th to Gatchina Palace from a shooting excursion accompanied by his suite in eight sledges with a number of servants. Although darkness was coming on the party noticed on the road ahead six men, apparently peasants. The Czar's aides drove forward and ordered the men to clear out of the way; the men saluted the officers and appeared to obey the orders, but when the Czar's sledge came on a level with them they suddenly wheeled around and fired at the czar thrice, and two of them ran toward him. The horses drawing the Imperial sledge became frightened and galloped some hundred paces, when the Czar was thrown out of the sledge. A bullet lodged in the Czar's shoulder. The Czar's followers immediately unharnessed their sledge horses mounted the animals and followed the would-be-assassins who escaped in the neighboring wood. Owning to the depth of the snow pursuit was fruitless. One of the pursuing officers ventured too far and has not returned. Nihilism is rapidly reviving in Russia.

THE SAGACITY OF A HORSE.

A writer in Nature relates a circumstances illustrative of the sagacity of a horse, and for the truth of which he says he can vouch. An old blind horse, turned out to graze, wound its way through lanes to the blacksmith's, where it had often been before. The entrance of the forge is difficult of access, on account of the ditches on either side; but the animal reached it safely, took its stand by the forge, and then neighed. The blacksmith being at work in his garden and hearing a horse neigh, looked for it, but could not see it, and returned to his gardening operations. In a short time he heard it again, but could not see a horse anywhere, until he went into his shop, when he saw it standing very quietly by the forge, as if waiting to be shod. Thinking some one must have brought it there, the blacksmith looked at its feet, and found one with the shoe pressing into the frog, causing great pain. He then put on another shoe and then sent the horse back to its owner.

ORANGE AND NATIONALIST ENCOUNTERS.

Meetings by both Orangemen and Nationalists were held on New Year's day at Dromore, county Cavan, Ireland, and great excitement prevailed. Twenty thousand Orangemen were present. Three Nationalist bandsmen were arrested for carrying revolvers. An encounter occurred between bodies of the two factions on the way to the meetings, but the troops interfered and cleared the streets. The rival meetings were held in close proximity to each other, but were kept apart by large bodies of troops and police. On the meetings dispersing several ineffectual attemtps were made to attack each other. A young man was wounded by a bayonet in dispersing the crowds, probably fatally. A battery of artillery has been sent to Dromore from Woolwich, to assist in preserving order.

Beware of Imitations.

Since Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil has become celebrated, a number of unprincipled persons have been endeavoring to palm off Electron and Electric Oil for the genuine DR. THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL. Beware of these similar named articles. If their originators had any faith in the healing properties of their own medicines they would, like honest men, give them a name of their own, and not try to sell them on the reputation of another; but as they know their preparations have no merit, they resort to the most unprincipled means of selling them by getting a name as near as possible to Eclectric. We therefore ask the public when purchasing to see that the name Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil is on the front of the wrapper, and the signature of NORTHROP & LYMAN, the proprietors for Canada on the back. 2-tf

PLASE READ THIS.

The writer is Mr. W. O. Lathen of Plympton, N. S. I commenced coughing and raising blood last spring and consulted two doctors and took their medicines, but obtained no relief. I was greatly alarmed; the more so because all my father's family died of consumption. I am now well. I was cured by Dr. Wilson's Pulmonary Cherry Balsam. Good testimony reply given. There are hundreds like it. In all cases of coughs, colds and throat diseases and lung diseases, including asthma, bonchitis and all their tribe, Dr. Wilson's Pulmonary Cherry Balsam is invaluabe.

THE BUSINESS OUTLOOK.

An exchange remarks that there are a number of leading questions the answer to which ought to enable one to arrive at a fair estimate of the immediate business prospect: 1. What have our farmers to sell, not only of grain, but of live stock and other farm produce? 2. In what condition is the lumber industry at present? 3. How are the manufacturers? 4. Are the railways busy? 5. Are there many men out of work? 6. Is there much foreign capital coming into the country?

A Great Source of Evil.

Every farmer will admit that one of the most destructive evils to good crops is that of worms or parasites that prey upon vegetable life; other species of worms infest the human system and are productive of much suffering and ill health. Freeman's Worm Powders will effectually rid the system of this trouble, are pleasant to take and contain their own cathartic. 3-2t

Baptist Church.

On Sunday last, Rev. A. H. Munro, recently called pastor of the church here, took permanent charge of the pulpit. His sermon in the morning was a thoughtful, practical and earnest discourse, his text being, "Ye have not chosen Me, but I have chosen you, and ordained you, that you should go and bring forth fruit and that your fruit should remain; that whatsoever ye shall ask of My Father, in My name, He may give you." He pointed out how God first chose His children, and that becoming a Christian was the divine way of our meeting God's advances. He showed how God's plans permeated all His works, and he believed he had done the will of God in accepting the call of the church here. His great desire was to do good, and it would be a great support to feel himself surrounded with earnest Christian hearts. Rev. Mr. Munro has created a most favorable impression, and his presence in town will be a valuable addition to its pulpit ability and its Christian zeal.

A Fire.

A fire broke out in the new brick terrace of T. Bradburn, Aylmer street, on Friday morning. It was soon discovered and put out, the engine being called out, and the town team showed what sterling stuff they were made of, by drawing the engine promptly through four feet of snow to the Charlotte street stand. Mr. Bradburn rewarded the brigade by a gift of $10.

After Many Years.

Mr. Andrew Finnie, a former resident of Lakefield, has returned home for a visit after an absence in California of fourteen years. He will remain here about a month. He notices a vast improvement in the whole county, especially in Peterborough. The climate in California is a great contrast to that of Ontario. When Mr. Finnie left there, at the end of December, the roses were in bloom in sight of the ocean. Mr. Finnie is engaged in fruit growing, and is steadily amassing wealth. He brought home to relations in Otonabee, a picture of the late Archibald McIntyre, murdered in California last March.

Separate School.

At the organization meeting of the new Separate School board, Mr. John McGrath was made chairman, Mr. John Corkery secretary, and Rev. Father Conway local superintendent. The receipts for the year from all sources were $4,270.31, and the expenditures $4,187.71 leaving a credit balance in the bank of $82.60. The statements of assets and liabilities showed a credit balance of assets of $100.75. From these it would appear that the business of the board has been carefully and economically managed, and the fact that the ability and integrity of Mr. McGrath as chairman, have been placed at the service of the board, is one guaranty that the deliberations of that body for the coming year will result to the benefit of the constituency it represents.

The Italian Problem.

The large number of Italians thrown loose on the town and county by the suspension of railway work is likely to lead to some inconvenience, to put it most mildly. A large number inhabit a doorless tenement on Aylmer street, and as the inmates are not the most cleanly in habits and housekeeping the near neighbors will have a sad experience when the spring thaw releases the effluvia of the accumulated winter's filth of all kinds. At Indian River the other day one of the 'natives' shot at a barmaid in a hotel because he was refused whisky on Sunday, and only the other evening an attempt was made to rob a young lady on Aylmer street, by what she says was an Italian. Most of these people are quiet and apparently harmless, yet they will not be the worse generally of a little looking after. For instance, a day or two after a gentleman had got contributions for a stove for the Aylmer street "ranch," some Italians sent away to a New York bank about $400. They have been regularly sending money to the same bank through the post office. Charity begins at home.

HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

Annual Meeting—Election of Officers—Adoption of Reports, &c.

The annual meeting of the Peterborough Horticultural Society was held on Monday evening, the 14th instant, in the offices of the Bank of Toronto.

The President of the Society, J. H. Roper, Esq., occupied the chair.

The minutes of the last annual meeting were read and confirmed.

ANNUAL REPORT.

The following report was read and on motion adopted :—

To the Members of the Peterborough Horticultural Society :

GENTLEMEN,—The Directors beg to submit the following report :—

The past season was on the whole favorable to horticulture, and we had every prospect of having a very large and successful exhibition; but, unfortunately, a sharp frost occurred a short time before the day appointed for our annual show, and great damage was done to plants, flowers, fruits and vegetables, thus materially affecting the number of our exhibits.

The exhibition was held on Thursday, the 12th day of September last, and, notwithstanding the havoc the frost had made among the gardens, we had a very fair show in the above classes, and in some instances the exhibits were above the average merit.

The number of entries was 260, being a slight falling off in the previous year, which is easily accounted for when we consider the quantities of garden products the frost had destroyed.

Your Directors desiring to make the exhibition as attractive as possible, arrangements were made to have music in the evening, which added greatly to the success of the exhibition.

The amount of $124.25 was paid in prizes by the Treasurer, on orders granted by the President and Secretary.

The Society's position, as regards the number of members on the roll, 6, and the balance of cash in the Treasurer's hands as shown by his report, $126.13, is, the Directors are glad to report, satisfactory.

At the last meeting of Directors a committee was appointed to confer with the committee of the County Council, and also to require the co-operation of the Town Council, in reference to beautifying the Court House Park. This matter will doubtless be taken into consideration and dealt with by the gentlemen composing the new Board of Directors.

In conclusion the Directors desire to express to the members their satisfaction with the position and prospects of the Society, and trust the members and general public will take a continued interest in its purposes and aims, for future advancement.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

J. H. ROPER, President.

J. IRVINE DAVIDSON, Secretary.

West Riding Agricultural Society.

Annual Meeting.

The annual meeting of the West Riding Agricultural Society was held at the Council Chamber on Wednesday afternoon. There was a fair attendance, Mr. Jos. Walton, President, in the chair. The report of the Directors was, in one sense, very gratifying. It showed that there was the largest balance on hand, $142.59, of any year, and the largest number of paid up members for the coming year—sixty-two.

They regretted the marked decay of the exhibition, and attributed it to the too great number of minor exhibitions. Of the Government grant of $1,400 to this county the two riding shows got only $560, while the rest was frittered away on smaller shows. They suggested that the Legislature abolish the present riding shows and adopt a system of county societies, within the municipal bounds, and have the larger share of the grant go to them. They also proposed the purchase of 15 or 20 acres of land, convenient to town, for exhibition grounds. They urged upon their successors to at once take steps to secure this, and also the erection of buildings, which would also be suitable, on occasion, for a Provincial exhibition.

The report also favored limiting the exhibitions to a show of stock.

The receipts of the society last year were $1,228.45, and the expenditure $1,085.86, leaving a balance on hand of $142.59.

WOMEN'S FOREIGN MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

THE ANNUAL PUBLIC MEETING OF THE ST. PAUL'S AUXILIARY.

The public annual meeting of St. Paul's Auxiliary of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society was held in the School Room of St. Paul's Church, on Friday, Jan. 11th. About seventy ladies were present, all, with one or two exceptions, being residents of Peterborough. Representatives from the Keene and Lakefield Auxiliaries had been expected, but the snow blockade rendered their presence impossible. Mrs. Fairbairn, President, of the St. Paul's Auxiliary, having taking the chair, the meeting was opened with devotional exercises. After leading in prayer, Mrs. Fairbairn read the 21st chap. of St. John's Gospel. The hymn "Revive us Again" was sung, and then the Secretary and Treasurer of the society were called upon for their reports.

The following is the first annual report of the St. Paul's Auxiliary of the W. F. M. S. :—

Though this Auxiliary has only existed in its present form since February last, it can scarcely be called a new society, its members being almost identical with those who formed the Peterborough Auxiliary, which flourished for six years, and was then dissolved, "St Paul's Auxiliary" rising immediately out of its ashes. On Friday, Feb. 9th, 1883, a meeting was held for the purpose of organizing this society (which is purely a congregational one), 37 ladies being present. At the first regular meeting held in March it was agreed to send at once, direct to the Central Board, all money then on hand; $39 were therefore sent to Toronto to be at once devoted to missionary purposes. During the summer the meetings were not very largely attended, but there has been an improvement in this respect visible in the Autumn meetings.

This Auxiliary comprises 79 members, 30 of whom are also members of the General Society. Funds during the past year amounted to $403.10. Disbursements, $42.10; leaving $361 to be used for the spread of the Gospel in heathen lands. We have to thank the friends who have kindly given lectures, Mite-Meetings, Parlour and Church Socials and Concerts, for part of the above mentioned sum, and we close our report, trusting that the Hand that has crowned our first year with success, will guide us for many years to come.

CLARA HAULTAIN, Secretary.

Mrs. Gilmour, President of the Baptist W. F. M. S., then led in prayer, and after the singing of another hymn,

Miss Roger addressed the meeting. The substance of her remarks was as follows:—It is upon such an occasion as this that we feel our weakness and inability to say what we would wish, with power. But we know that God sometimes speaks through the weakest instruments: without Him, eloquence is naught but with his divine assistance, stammering words carry power. The object of these meetings is to increase the interest felt in Mission work, and how can we better do it than by considering the state of the Heathen among whom our Missionaries work? Shall we allow 120,000,000 fellow subjects to perish, without putting forth a hand to save them? Surely this is a question that needs no answer. We all know, however, that there are many difficulties in the way, especially in the Zenanas of India, where as a society our interests lie. Prejudice, religion, custom and the expense of supporting missionaries are all obstacles in the path. The custom of child-marriages is one of the greatest hindrances to the spread of the Gospel, for as soon as she is married a child is generally removed from Christian influence. It has often been urged, why not leave them alone, as they are happy. So they are, just as a caged bird is happy for it knows nothing better. They are happy just as we who are Christians are happy as long as things go well with us, but when sickness, sorrow and bereavement come, where are they? "Without God and without hope in the world," in this world or in the next. Can we leave them so? Is there no one here who will go forth to save them? It is the young who are wanted to give themselves to this work. In a place the size of Peterborough, with its Missionary Societies and a Mission Band, is there not one girl who will give her life to save her heathen sisters? Let no one hold back because she thinks she is not fit. If she thought she was fit it would be a strong proof that she was not. When Christ gives the command "Go into all the world," He also gives the promise, "Lo I am with you alway." We must not rely on our own strength, or we shall surely fall. God will "perfect His strength" not ours. And we must work, "the love of Christ constraining us." Only as we are filled with His love can we do this work, and expect His blessing. The cry comes from over the sea "come over and help us." Shall that cry remain unanswered?

When Miss Roger had finished, the hymn "More love to Thee O! Christ" was sung.

Mrs. Wm. Reid, of Toronto, who followed, spoke of the encouragement we have in our work. Years ago such an assembly as this to-day, conducted by women, would have been considered highly improper, and we would have been summoned before the Presbytery. Just fifty years ago, Dr. Duff, on his first return from India, at the request of a few friends invited to meet him, gave an account of his work there, for which he was cited to appear before his brethren charged with holding a conventicle. After hearing the charges against him, he entered on his defence with such power, that one by one they slunk away till he was left alone with the convenor. Public opinion is so far advanced in regard to women speaking as well as working, that I have heard doubts expressed if ladies were qualified for missionaries who could not give an account of their work at a public meeting, even when worn out with years of seemingly unsuccessful labor in a most depressing and debilitating climate and surroundings. Of course, such ideas arise from want of thought, and forgetfulness of the fact that even in St. Paul's time there were diversities of gifts. The work in different countries was scanned showing that the fields are white unto the harvest, which is a call to us to work while it is called to-day.

The meeting then closed with the long metre doxology, and those present who wished to leave did so, many others, however, remaining to partake of refreshments.

A heavy ice shove on the St. Lawrence river, just below Cornwall, has caused the back water to raise to an almost unprecedented height, flooding the basements of the cotton and other mills here, and causing considerable damage to goods, &c., besides stopping the mills until the water subsides.

Swine for breeding purposes, it is ordered, that come into Canada from the western states through Canadian quarantine at Point Edward, shall remain in quarantine twenty-one days and be accompanied with a certificate that no diseases exists among swine in the locality from whence they started.

Nelson Shaw, an old man from the neighborhood of Chatham, visited London, Ont., on Wednesday last, for the purpose of securing a deposit of $1,400 he had left at the Mahon Savings Bank a couple of years ago. He was terribly surprised to hear that the institution had gone under early in the past year, and that his money had been "hypothecated."

PETERBOROUGH TALENT ABROAD

We clip the following paragraphs from the Hastings Star, in reference to the singing of two of Peterborough's residents at St. Mary's Church Concert in Hastings, which was no more than could be expected, and which speak for themselves.

Miss Lillie Begley, (of Peterborough) sang "Am I remembered in Erin" in a soprano voice, clear in intonation and under the most perfect control, but it was probably in her rendition of "Guess Who" that she displayed most perceptibly the finished ability of a songstress and wherein the assemblage awoke to the fact that a singer of very rare excellence was before them.

Referring to Mr. O'Donohue, Peterboro', we may simply state he "brought down the house", each appearance being vociferously encored. His rich brogue and quaint Irish phrases produced an effect which it would be difficult to analyse, and, we have no doubt, called up a vivid remembrance of "That little green Isle across the say" and we venture to say, that many of his hearers wished their fond thoughts could be realised by being "off to Tipperary in the morning."

PERSONAL.

Mr. H. H. Burnham, of Port Hope, was in town, and gave us a call on Wednesday.

Mr. H. H. Smith, late Mayor of Peterborough, arrived in town on Friday, from a prolonged sojourn in the Old Country.

We are pleased to observe that Messrs. J. A. Wright and Wm. Rutherford, Peterborough boys, passed the recent examinations of the Ontario College of Pharmacy, with honours.

We learn from the Messenger that Messrs. Porteous, Shaw and Lech, of this town, took a prominent part in the concert held in the Methodist church, Millbrook, on New Year's night.

It appears that "boss" butchering is in the blood of the Howdens'. A description, in a Michigan paper, of the Christmas display of meats made by Mr. John, brother of our Mr. Howden, leads one to think that the former had almost as fine a display as the latter had here last Christmas, and that is saying a good deal.

OUR INLAND NAVIGATION.

FORMATION OF A NAVAGATION COMPANY.

Mr. H. Calcutt has distributed the following circular letter :—

PETERBOROUGH, JANUARY 9TH, 1884.

SIR,—The favorable opportunity for establishing a steamboat and fuel company in Peterborough is so great that I wish to draw your attention to it.

On the completion of the Trent Valley Canal, a Peterborough Steamboat Company, with sufficient Tugs and Scows, could control the carrying trade from here to the Trent. The people of Lindsay and Bobcaygeon, seeing the advantage of having the control of the Upper Lakes, have already formed a company for that purpose. Why should Peterborough be behind in this matter? It must eventually be a benefit to the trade of the town.

The fuel question is one that requires your consideration. Beech and maple wood can be bought on the river and lake at a cost of $1.50 to $2.00, and will sell readily at $4.50 to $5.00 in town. There is sufficient to supply the demand for a few years—and on the opening of the canal the supply can be got on our back lakes. The cost of bringing wood by water will always be much less than by rail, which will practically give this company a monopoly.

By establishing an influential company, and providing a park on the banks of the Otonabee River, of easy access from the town, where a boat could make hourly trips, a large excursion business could be done.

I propose, if I receive sufficient support, to put my steamboats, scows and other plant into the hands of a company—the value of the boats, etc., to be left to a valuator—and I will take half the amount in paid up stock of the company.

I would suggest the formation of a Company with a capital stock of $50,000, in shares of $10 each, for in unity there is strength—and the larger the number of stockholders the more there will be to patronize excursions, the more customers for fuel.

I would like very much for you to give this matter your consideration. If you wish to join in an enterprise, that will not only benefit yourself, but the public as well, and increase the trade of the town—and if it has your favourable consideration—please let me know, for there is no time to lose if wood is to be secured for the next season.

An early answer will oblige.

Yours,

H. CALCUTT,

Proprietor Calcutt's Line of Steamers.

LITTLE LAKE CEMETERY.

Annual Meeting of the Shareholders of the Company—Various Reports Presented—Satisfactory Statement of the Finances—The New Directors and Officials.

The annual meeting of the shareholders of the Little Lake Cemetery Company was held in the Council Chamber on Monday, Jan. 21st.

There were present: Mr. J. J. Lundy in the chair, Rev. V. Clementi, Hon. R. Hamilton, Judge Dennistoun, Messrs. Jas. Stephenson, M. S. Dean, Bridgenorth, R. D. Rogers, C. D. McDonald, John McClelland, G. M. Roger, C. Stapleton, James Stratton, R. Ringan, John Carnegie and John Kelly, superintendant.

DIRECTORS' REPORT.

The directors' annual report was read, and on motion of Rev. V. Clementi, seconded by Mr. C. Stapleton, adopted as follows:—

On the 28th day of April, 1851 a few persons interested in the formation of a cemetery company in this town met in the small office of Messrs. Nicholls & Hall for the purpose of organizing and selecting, nine directors as required by the statute. Seven of the nine directors selected lie in their narrow cells to-day, and only two remain, namely, Judge Dennistoun and Mr. William Clarton, to see the thirty-third annual meeting now being held.

Up to June 21st, 1852, the whole number of stockholders amounted to thirty-five. Twenty-four of this number are dead, leaving only eleven. The early directors and stockholders were severely taxed to pay for the land, the necessary expenses for surveying, fencing and labour, some of them being long and heavily out of pocket.

At the annual meeting in 1852 the financial statement showed that $426 had been expended in 1851, whilst only $294 had been realized for stock. For a number of years it was difficult to make both ends meet. The treasurer often had quite a sum on the wrong side.

In 1874 a receiving vault was built, costing $1,000, and in 1878 a mortuary chapel was built, costing $2,000, and not to name minor improvements during the past year, the wind mill and superintendent's office have been completed at a cost of $771, leaving available assets on hand of over $1500 cash, and $2,000 in debentures, in all $3,500, and no liabilities.

The Directors may well congratulate the stockholders on the flourishing state of the company's finances. Improvements are being made and more are required. Fences especially, will want renovation, and lots improved.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

JOHN J. LUNDY,
President.

Peterborough, Dec. 31st, 1883.

SUPERINTENDENT'S REPORT.

The report of Mr. John Kelly, superintendent was read as follows:—

Mr. Kelly, after giving the receipts and expenditures, which will be found in the auditor's report, said:

In presenting my annual report for 1883, I feel much gratified that the amount of receipts and expenditures is much larger than in any previous year. I find that many persons, on seeing the improvements, buy lots, who do not at present require them, and others, who have lots, take pleasure in having them kept in order, a marked improvement, compared with years past.

I find, also, that the amount received for work and improvements is sufficient to pay for all the hired labor in the cemetery without encroaching on the proceeds from the sale of lots.

Since last report, there have been over two hundred lots cleared and graded, all in a finished state. These lots are in section E, and the roads and avenues around the same have been improved and prepared to receive the required gravel, which can be put on at some future time. This improvement adds much to the beauty of that portion of the cemetery, it being along the bank of the river.

There has been quite an item of expense entailed on us this past season, which will not occur again for some time, viz., the digging of a well and a channel to the river to supply water to the pump at the windmill; also the digging of 2,255 feet of a ditch to lay the water pipes throughout the cemetery, and the digging and making of two basins to receive the water at the fountains, all of which is included in the amount paid for labor in my report.

The water works have been a great boon, as it enables us to supply the required water to nearly all the plants in the different parts of the cemetery with less labor and without stint, and therefore give more uniform satisfaction.

Last spring the ice in the lake at its breaking up did a good deal of damage to the cribbing along the bank, which I repaired by replacing the timber and filling the parts that were washed away with stone.

I also bought and planted a number of ornamental trees and shrubs. They were planted on the different lawns and squares in the cemetery, and will in a few years be an improvement to the beauty of the grounds.

In conclusion, I beg to say that the building of an office for the caretaker has and will be a great convenience, as it enables him to keep all records, books and papers belonging to the Cemetery Company in a more secure and convenient place, for which I feel grateful.

And as I have spoken before of the condition of the roadway leading to the cemetery, which is continually wearing away by the action of the water, I would suggest to the directors that some steps be taken to urge upon the Town Council the necessity of having this street preserved.

All of which is respectfully submitted,

JOHN KELLY.

January 21, 1884.

The report was adopted.

SECRETARY-TREASURER'S REPORT.

This report was read and adopted as under:—

The year just closed shows an increase of the receipts and payments of the company, and notwithstanding the heavy outlay in connection with the newly erected wind mill and its requirements, there is still a very respectable balance on hand, as the balance sheet will show.

On the 1st of January, 1883, there was a balance of $3,022.33 on hand in favor of the company, and after some discussion it was decided that the Secretary-Treasurer be instructed to purchase a town debenture to the amount of $2,000, and the debenture is now deposited in Mr. Lundy's safe for safe keeping. The excess of money received and paid over by the Superintendent is nearly $400 in excess of 1882. The entire cost of the wind mill was $601.89. This outlay is supposed to effect a considerable saving of manual labor in the future. It will remain for the Directors to decide as to the future investments of the funds of the company.

Nothing has been done, nor has any offer been made, in reference to an addition to the real estate of the company.

A Committee of the Board of Directors was formed to consider the matter of abolishing the fees now exacted for taking care of the lots taken up in the cemetery, but, for whatever reason, it did not report.

The balance sheet gives the different items.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

J. EDWARDS.
Secretary-Treasurer.

CARE OF LOTS.

Mr. Stratton made enquiries in reference to keeping lots in order in the cemetery.

Judge Dennistoun explained in reference to the expenditure, and thought the funds would justify the following resolution on the subject:—

Moved by Judge Dennistoun that it is considered advisable for the directors to have all the lots mown and taken care of so as to preserve their beauty, etc.

Rev. Mr. Clementi said he was in full sympathy with Mr. Stratton's anxiety to have these improvements carried out, and he had great pleasure in seconding the motion.

Mr. Stratton supported the motion. He thought effect could be given to it without embarassing the funds of the company. He favored setting apart the proceeds of the sale of two acres, funding it and devoting the interest to this purpose. The notice was agreed to.

AVAILABLE LAND.

Mr. Kingan enquired how much of the land in the cemetery was unsold, and was told that about one half was yet for sale.

DIRECTORS.

The following gentlemen were appointed directors:—Jas. Stevenson, R. Dennistoun, Hon. R. Hamilton, J. J. Lundy, Rev. V. Clementi, Geo. M. Roger, C. Stapleton, J. Edwards, Geo. A. Cox.

OFFICERS.

At a subsequent meeting of the directors Mr. J. J. Lundy was re-elected president, Mr. J. Edwards secretary-treasurer at an advanced salary of $25, and Messrs. J. J. Hall and J. H. Roper, auditors.

Canada's Great Carnival.

The great Winter Carnival in Montreal 4th to 9th February, is attracting thousands upon thousands of sight-seers from all parts of the continent. The attack, defence and capture of the Ice Palace, the great skating carnival on a scale of unprecedented grandeur, the snow-shoe torchlight procession by thousands of snow-shoers, the tobogganing fete on Mount Royal, the great sleigh-drive turnout, embracing five thousand superb sleighing equipages, the living arch manned by the snow-shoers in club uniform, cheering their Excellencies the Govenor-General and Lady Lansdowne, as they are drawn through the triumphal arch, all these striking and startling features of the great fete; and many others, are to be splendidly illustrated in the Carnival number of the Montreal Star, printed on superior paper, with full and double-page colored illustrations. This special Carnival number of the Montreal Star will be of wonderful interest to all people in all lands. It is gotten up by the best artists in this country, and will take the place of the Canadian Illustrated News, suspended. Ten cents, in stamps, sent to the publishers, Graham & Co., will get a copy. Newsdealers will have them for sale.

TOWN COUNCIL OF 1884.

INAUGURAL SESSION.

Appointment of Auditors—Applications of Assessors—Standing Committees.

On Monday, January 21st, the members of the Council elect, met and took their seats.

The Clerk reported the result of the municipal elections, the members having been duly elected, and having taken the declaration of office as follows:—George A. Cox, Mayor; councillors for No. 1 ward, Cahill, Davidson, Allin; No. 2 ward, Kelly, Green, Millar; No. 3 ward, Yelland, Douglass, Rutherford; No. 4, Menzies, Hartley and Kendry.

A DIFFERENT STYLE THIS YEAR.

The Mayor called on the Clerk to read the minutes, when

Mr. Rutherford said it was usual for the Mayor to make a speech on the opening of the council. We should not depart from the custom of the past year.

The Mayor said that he proposed to depart in several ways from the way of procedure that governed the council last year. (Hear, hear and laughter.)

Mr. Millar said that this was only a formal meeting, and such matters could be deferred till to-night.

The minutes were read and confirmed.

COMMUNICATIONS

were received from C. McGrath, Joseph Lundy and D. Gamble applying for appointment as assessors.—Received.

Mr. Rutherford moved, seconded by Mr. Menzies, that Messrs. Davidson, Cahill, Kelly, Yelland and Menzies be a committee to strike the standing committees for the year, to report in the evening.

The Mayor declined the honor implied by Mr. Yelland's motion.

The amendment was lost and the original motion carried.

On motion of Mr. Cahill, seconded by Mr. Kendry, the Clerk was instructed to have a by-law prepared for the appointment of assessors for the evening.

STANDING COMMITTEES.

Mr. Rutherford, chairman of the special committee, presented the following report, recommending the following committees:

FINANCE.—Messrs. Davidson, Cahill, Kelly, Millar, Rutherford and Menzies.

FIRE, WATER AND GAS.—Messrs. Rutherford, Green, Yelland, Menzies and Douglass.

APPOINTMENTS TO OFFICE.—Messrs. Kelly, Allin, Millar, Rutherford and Kendry.

BUILDING AND HEALTH.—Messrs. Rutherford, Allin, Green, Kendry and Hartley.

The report was received and adopted.

Mr. Cahill, referring to the draft, of the License Committee, called attention to the fact that Mr. Douglass' name was omitted, and on Mr. Rutherford saying that the name was erased from the draft he had, Mr. Cahill said that it was on the copy he (Mr. C.) had, and if Mr. Rutherford had erased the name wilfully, he characterized the action as most extraordinary, and one he protested against in the strongest terms.

Mr. Rutherford explained that there had been a good many alterations and erasures, and he understood that Mr. Douglass' name had been dropped, and on motion Mr. Douglass' name was added to the Committee.

ASSESSORS.

The Council went into Committee of the Whole on the second reading of the by-law to appoint assessors, Mr. Cahill in the chair. After a great deal of squabbling and waste of time, the Committee rose and reported, and the by-law was read a third time and duly passed, appointing Messrs. Wm. Aldridge and Cornelius McGrath assessors, at a salary of $175 each.

SPEECH MAKING.

Mr. Rutherford suggested that Mr. Cox make a speech in reference to the future of the town, etc.

The Mayor said he must decline Mr. Rutherford's request. He would simply do his duty and attempt to expeditiously carry on the business of the Council.

Mr. Menzies moved, seconded by Mr. Kendry, that Mr. Rutherford be heard, and he proceeded to say that steps should be taken to supplement the decaying lumber industries, and insisted upon the appointment of a deputation to Ottawa to urge upon the Government the expediency of hastening the construction of the Trent Valley Canal. He hoped, the council would deal economically, with the general interests of the town.

After a good deal of more or less informal discussion, it was decided that the deputation consist of the Mayor and Council, and that the Clerk be requested to provide the deputation with return railway tickets.

SYSTEM.

Mr. Davidson moved, seconded by Mr. Hartley, that all goods and material required by the town officers be ordered through the Clerk, who will give his written order for the same, and the corporation will be responsible for no goods not so ordered. The motion was lost.

The Council adjourned for two weeks.

OTTAWA CORRESPONDENCE.

Parliamentary Points—Synopsis of Sessional Scenes, Sayings and Doings.

(From Our Correspondent.)

Parliament was opened here last Thursday with all the usual eclat by the Marquis of Lansdowne, our new Governor-General. The scene was brilliant. The Marquis and Marchioness—their suite in their splendid uniform—the members of the Senate, the Supreme Court Judges and the many ladies in exquisite costumes, formed a rich and royal spectacle.

The speech from the throne contained but few matters of interest, and, considering the crisis through which Canada is now passing, was wretchedly unstatesmanlike. The preamble referred to the appointment of Lord Lansdowne, and then went on to congratulate the Dominion on its prosperity. The splendid exhibit of our fisheries at London was mentioned in gratifying terms. The progress towards the consolidation of our statutes, and immigration into this country were also touched upon. The disputes in British Columbia, the Indian question in the North-West, the electoral franchise, the Pacific Intercolonial and Pictou Railway scheme came in for a short word of praise and commendation.

NEW AND OLD MEMBERS.

Several members were introduced. Among these, it is with pleasure I beheld Sir Richard Cartwright, gerrymandered out of his riding last session, and Mr. Allison, of Lennox, with whom Sir John A. was unwilling a second time to measure swords. Although Justice Galt has declared the Hon. David Mills to be the member for Bothwell, yet J. J. Hawkins, surnamed the Political Jackdaw, had the boldness and effrontery to take his seat. It is but a poor commentary on our election laws, and the purity and justice of our parliamentary system of Government when so flagrant a violation of law and representation is openly countenanced by a theoretically free and independent Parliament.

THE DOMINION LICENSE ACT.

The decision of the Privy Council in the Hodge case, which declared the constitutionality of the Crook's Act, has been a great matter of discussion among the members. A large number consider that the Dominion License Act should be dropped at once and allowed to sink into its natural insignificance without questioning its validity. It is hard to say what Sir John will do. He is getting old and feeble. His mind is losing its one-time clearness. He has always been dogmatic and will listen to no reasoning from his fellow ministers. His large majority makes him careless of consequences and boastful to madness. He may perhaps throw a sop to some of his lawyers by rashly bringing the matter before the Privy Council.

THE DEBATE ON THE ADDRESS.

The address in reply to the speech from the throne was moved by Mr. Macmaster (of Glengarry) and seconded by Mr. Billeau, of Levis, both Lower Canadians. The Hon. E. Blake in a masterly speech criticised the Government, and was followed by the Hon. Sir John Macdonald. The debate was uninteresting and only remarkable for the able remarks of Mr. Blake. It is predicted in parliamentary circles that the session will be short. The Government feels itself in an awkward position. The times are hard. There is a large amount of discontent. The North-West policy has turned out to be rotten. The License Act has been declared unconstitutional. It will therefore be the policy of the Government to shorten the session, and not invite attacks. I trust to good fortune, that before another election other issues will be raised and the present discontent allayed and forgotten.

PETERBOROUGH, JAN. 24, 1884.

NEW MEMBERS OF THE COUNCIL.

Brief Biographical Sketches.

It may be interesting to the public to have some few particulars presented respecting the past career of the new members that enter the Town Council for 1884. Let us begin with the head of the Council.

GEORGE ALBERTUS COX,

Mayor of Peterborough for the year 1884, was born in the Village of Colborne, in the County of Northumberland in the year 1840. He came to Peterborough in 1858, being at the time eighteen years of age, he having received the appointment as agent of the Montreal Telegraph Company, which agency he still retains. In 1862 he was made agent of the Express Company, which is still controlled by him. In 1865 he opened offices for a general insurance business, which though of modest proportions at that date, has so expanded its operations and patronage that it is now one of the largest and most important concerns of the kind in Canada, returning in premiums to the various companies represented by the agency, over $200,000 per year. His general agency for the Canada Life Assurance Company extends over all of Ontario, east of Toronto. Mr. Cox's influence in connection with this agency, coupled as it is with the position of director on the board of the Western Assurance Company, of Toronto, produces business connections which cannot otherwise result than to the advantage of the town in the position in which he has been placed. His first experience of municipal life was in 1866, when he was elected to the Council for "East" ward. From 1872 to 1874 inclusive he filled the position of Mayor, so that the duties of the office are not new to him. In 1873 he contested the West Riding with the late Mr. Scott, and was elected by a majority of 43. A protest having been entered, Mr. Cox was unseated for the act of an agent, at a time when the recently enacted election law produced an epidemic of unseated members all over the province. Both men were candidates at the following election, when Mr. Scott was returned by a majority of one, though Mr. Cox's claims to the seat were undoubted. The number of spoiled ballots, which though technically illegal, showed the choice of the electors, being for Mr. Cox seventeen and for Mr. Scott sixteen.

In August, 1878, Mr. Cox was elected President and General Manager of the Midland Railway, at that time a moribund concern, with only 128 miles of length and an annual revenue of $248,828.90, and which was "a mere trail reaching from nowhere to nowhere." Under the stimulus of his management new life was infused into the road, and it gradually absorbed its rivals till now it is a prosperous system 467 miles in length, and the revenue for 1883 amounted to one million two hundred thousand dollars. Mr. Cox resigned the position of general manager on the leasing of the road in the beginning of 1884 to the Grand Trunk Railway, though he still retains the position of President of the Midland Railway Company. The same phenomenal success that has attended Mr. Cox in his more public enterprises, has followed him in his private business. Most of his earnings have been invested in this town, and he is to-day the most extensive holder of real estate in Peterborough. He takes with him into the council a business ability, endorsed by twenty-five years of success, and an interest in the welfare and progress of the town, which amply justifies the wisdom of the electors in placing him in the position of mayor.

MELVILLE MILLAR,

one of the new members of number two ward, is a native of Dundee, Scotland, where he was born in 1840. In the year 1847 he came to Canada, settling in the City of Montreal, where he passed fourteen years of his life and where he also learned the hardware business. In 1862 he came to Peterborough and entered into the hardware business in partnership with Mr. John Bertram—Millar & Bertram. Mr. Millar in 1868 retired from the firm and went into the timber business in the neighborhood of Orillia with John Thompson. The firm built the well known Longford Mills. Mr. Millar retired from the business and devoted himself to municipal life. He was elected by acclamation the first mayor of Orillia on its incorporation as a town, a position he occupied for three terms, during which time he performed the duties of police magistrate, incident to the office. He also was incumbent of the reeveship for three years. In 1866 Mr. Millar represented what was then known as the "east ward" in the town council of Peterborough. He is one of Her Majesty's justice of the peace by commission. Mr. Millar has had an extensive and varied municipal experience, which is now placed at the service of the town. In the present election he, although a comparative stranger and not soliciting a single vote, was elected by a good figure, and it was only a requisition largely signed that drew him into the field.

SAMUEL PENHLEIGH ALLIN,

the new representative of No. one ward, is a native of Devonshire, England, where he was born thirty seven years ago. He came to Canada in 1873—eleven years ago, and entered into the business of manufacturing crockery, etc., which he has conducted with much success. He has had no municipal experience; but a good business training, coupled with good sense and judgment amply fit him for representing his ward with benefit to it, and with credit to himself. He was a candidate at the municipal elections of 1883, but was declined by a majority of twenty; this year he was more successful, and was elected by a good majority, standing third in a list of five candidates. Ward No. one has no occasion to regret having selected Mr. Allin as one of its councillors.

ROBERT HENRY GREEN,

an entirely new member of the council, was born in North Monaghan, in the year 1839. At the age of sixteen years he came to Peterborough and entered on the learning of the dry goods and general mercantile business, his sole capital being at the time ten cents. After seventeen years he entered into the grocery and provision business, which he has since followed with good success; he has occupied the present premises, corner of Aylmer and Hunter streets, for the past five years. This will be Mr. Green's first experience of municipal life, but there is no doubt that good common sense, sound judgment, and a good business training will make him a valuable member of the council board. His popularity in No. two ward is shown by the fact that, though he was the last candidate in the field, he headed the poll, and in fact, polled more votes than any candidate in any ward.

JAMES KENDRY,

The new member for number four ward, is a native of Oshawa, where he was born in the year 1845. He came to Peterborough first in the year 1868, and with the exception of temporary intervals of absence, has lived here ever since. He is a member of the Auburn Mills Woolen Company, and five years ago he was appointed superintendent. Under his management the business has met with gratifying success. During the past three years he has been a member (appointed by the Council) of the Board of Education, and at the recent elections he was elected a member of the Council. Mr. Kendry is a man of few words; when he does speak he speaks very briefly, and he promises to become a useful member of the Council and a good representative of his ward.

POLICE COURT RECORD.

Mr. Geo. Johnston, Chief of Police, presented his annual statement to the Council last Wednesday night. The statement points out that there has been a decrease of "drunks and disorderlies," and congratulates the town on the fact, that while there has been an epidemic of burglaries and robberies in other parts of the province, Peterborough has escaped. During the year 247 tramps were fed and lodged. The following is a catalogue of the charges disposed of by the Police Magistrate:—

HORRIBLE BUTCHERY IN RUSSIA.

A few weeks ago seven girls employed at a sugar factory in Belta, near Odessa, in Russia, left that town in the evening to return to their native village at some distance. The girls, belated on the way resolved to pass the night in the fields adjoining the highway, and having some slight fears of robbery placed their united week's earning in the hands of one of their number for greater safety. The unfortunate girls were all fast asleep when they were attacked by a number of young men. The girl who had secreted the money in her dress had taken the precaution to cover herself with hay. The miscreants, finding no money on the persons of the other six girls, murdered them in cold blood. They fired the stack, and in the conflagration and smoke the surviving and terrified girl affected her escape and reached the village in safety. An alarm was given, and the murderous band were all arrested. The survivor had recognized the murderers, who were all employed in the same factory as their victims.

That E. Pearce be paid the town's portion according to last arbitration.—Report adopted.

COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE TRUSTEES.

Mr. Paterson moved, seconded by Mr. Kelly, that Messrs. James Stevenson and George A. Cox be re-appointed high school trustees for 1884.—Carried.

SNOW ON STREETS.

Mr. Sawers moved, seconded by Mr. Douglass, that the Street Inspector be required to level the snow heaps on George Street.

Mr. Rutherford said that parties who deposited snow on the street should be made to remove it. It was a shame to ask the people to pay the expense of removal.

Mr. McNaughton said that Mr. Rutherford made his remarks with very poor grace, he having obstructed Hunter street all summer.

Mr. Rutherford raised a point of order and the motion fell to the ground.

TAX REMITTED.

Mr. Denne moved, seconded by Mr. Hartley, that Cornelius Halpin be returned $1.00 dog tax, he having no dog.—Carried.

MORE SNOW.

Mr. Yelland moved that the Street Inspector be instructed to level streets at crossings.

Mr. Rutherford said it was unnecessary expense; there had been a great deal of extravagant expenditure on streets, and it was time it was stopped.

Mr. Cahill said the object of taxes was to contribute to the ratepayers' convenience and comfort, and the crossings should be levelled.

Mr. Kelly moved, seconded by Mr. Paterson, that the Street Inspector be instructed to have the snow on George Street scattered and the crossings levelled from Brock to Charlotte street.—Lost.

Moved by Mr. Paterson, seconded by Mr. Kelly, that the Street Inspector have the street crossings levelled and made safe for pedestrians.

Mr. Denne said it should be done if it did cost a little, and would thus give employment when so many were out of employment. Better give them work than charity.

CARELESS CHARITY.

Mr. Rutherford called attention to the careless mode of distributing charity, whereby able-bodied, healthy persons received wood and assistance, and he instanced a case in point.

Mr. Kelly explained, showing that he had looked into the case and found the party well deserving of charity. He took the responsibility of giving the order.

Mr. McNaughton said he would bet Mr. Rutherford $10 to $5 that the man whom Mr. Rutherford said had wood in his yard when a load of charity wood was delivered, hadn't a stick.

THANKS.

Mr. Cahill moved, seconded by Mr. Denne, that the thanks of this Council be and are hereby tendered to Thomas Menzies, Esq., for his valuable services to this council as acting Mayor for the last six months; also for his affable and impartial conduct as chairman of this council.—Carried unanimously.

Mr. Menzies gave his thanks in return, remarking that he had done his best and he had received the best of treatment from the council. He had been in the council since 1862, off and on, and had generally received the best of treatment. He was glad to bear testimony to the good feeling that had characterized the council for 1883—no hard words had been spoken and no hard feelings aroused. (Great laughter.)

The council then adjourned.

Presbytery of Peterborough.

The Session in Port Hope—Ministers Stipends to be Increased—Arrangements for Pushing Missionary Work—A Call and Special Meeting of the Presbytery thereon—Next Meeting in Cobourg.

The Presbytery of Peterborough met in the Mill Street Church, Port Hope, on the 15th January presided over by Mr. Cooke, Moderator. There were 13 ministers and 6 elders present. Much business was done, not of interest to the public. Arrangements were made for completing the work of the visitation of all the congregations not yet visited. The report of the Committee on Augmentation of Stipends, was re-committed until the work assigned to them be completed. Mr. Cleland was authorized to moderate in a call, when requested, in the first Church, Port Hope.

Mr. Bennett, the Convener, read the report of the

with its recommendations. The report was received and its recommendations adopted. Its recommendations are the following:—

1. That congregations, owing to their numbers, not under the necessity of giving to the Stipend fund, to the extent that some others have to do, be exhorted to contribute largely to the fund for the Augmentation of Ministers' Stipends over the church.

2. That this Presbytery affectionately and earnestly urge the formation of Missionary Associations in all cases where they do not now exist; and that until this is done the collections on behalf of the schemes of the church be regularly taken up on the days appointed by the assembly.

3. That enquiry be made at each meeting of the Presbytery regarding associations formed, and collections taken up during the interval; and that a member of the Presbytery be appointed, whose duty it shall be to make said enquiry and to report at each meeting.

Upon motion of Mr. Bell, it was resolved that the statistics (in an abbreviated form) be printed and distributed among the congregations, and that the Clerk and Moderator be a committee, to arrange that the first and second recommendations be brought before the congregations referred to therein.

The Moderator was appointed to take charge of the matter referred to in the 3rd recommendation.

The next ordinary meeting of the Presbytery was appointed to be held in Cobourg on the 18th March at 10 o'clock a. m. It was agreed to hold a conference on the first evening of meeting, on the state of religion; on Sabbath school and temperance; and Messrs McCrea, Cleland and Duncan were appointed a committee to arrange for parties to introduce the subjects mentioned.

Mr. Bell was appointed Convener of the Committee on Temperance, to whom all reports on temperance are to be transmitted. Reports on the state of religion and on Sabbath schools, to be forwarded to Mr. Torrance and Mr. Carmichael respectively.

Mr. Clark was appointed a member of the Presbytery's H. M. Committee, in room of Mr. Beattie, late of Port Hope.

A call was sustained from Cartwright, and Ballyduff to the Rev. P. Fleming, of Warsaw and Dummer; and a was appointed to be held in St. Andrew's school room, Peterborough, on the 19th Febr'y, at 2 o'clock p. m., to dispose of the same.

The delegates attending the Presbyterial Society of the Womans' Foreign Missionary Association, met with the Presbytery in the evening and were addressed by Mr. Carmichael, of Norwood, on the subject of Foreign Missions. The second annual report of the society was read, showing that six auxiliaries had been formed during the year, and between $600 and $700 had been raised by the different auxiliaries. The report was received and adopted.

The Rev. P. McLeod, of Toronto, addressed the Presbytery and the representatives of the two congregations, who had been invited to attend the meeting, on the subject of the Augmentation of MINISTERS' STIPENDS.

On the motion of Mr. McCrea, seconded by Mr. Carmichael, a hearty vote of thanks was rendered to McLeod for the clear, able and comprehensive way in which he had presented the claims of the augmentation scheme, and the Presbytery pledged itself to give practical effect to the recommendations of the assembly Committee by raising the amounts required by it.

CLUXTON'S NEW BLOCK.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

Fifth Parliament—Second Session.

The second session of the fifth parliament of the Dominion of Canada was formally opened with the usual ceremonies by our new Governor-general, the Marquis of Lansdowne. The following is the

SPEECH FROM THE THRONE.

Honorable Gentlemen of the Senate:

Gentlemen of the House of Commons:

In fulfilment of the important trust committed to me by Her Majesty, I have recourse for the first time to your advice and assistance. It is a source of the deepest personal satisfaction to me that I have been called by Her Majesty to an office in which, as Her Representative, I am enabled to take a part in the public affairs of the Dominion, and to associate myself with you in the performance of the honorable duties which you are about to approach.

I rejoice to learn that although the last harvest has been less productive than its predecessors, and although there are indications that the rapid expansion of your commerce has to some extent been followed by over-trading, the general condition of the Dominion is such as to justify me in congratulating you upon its prosperity.

The marked success attained by Canada at the International Fishery Exhibition in London, must be very gratifying to you and has, I doubt not, been a great service in showing to the world the wealth of our fisheries and the extent of our marine industries and resources.

The Commissioners appointed by my predecessor for the purpose of consolidating the Statutes affecting the Dominion, have pursued their task with diligence, and I am enabled to lay before you for examination about sixty chapters of the proposed consolidation. The remainder of the work will be prepared, and the whole of it revised during the present year so that the final report will be ready at your next session for your approval.

The number of immigrants to Canada during the past season has, I am glad to say, been greater than in any previous year, and is a proof that the better Canada is known the more it is valued by those seeking a home in the new world.

Arrangements are in progress to diminish the costs of inland transport, and I have reason to believe that the result will be a steady increase of valuable settlers, in the future.

During the recess negotiations were resumed with British Columbia in regard to several matters upon which differences had for some time existed, between the two Governments. One of my ministers visited that Province last summer on a special mission with a view to the adjustment of all questions in controversy, and his efforts have happily been successful. Should your sanction be given to the arrangements then made all occasions of dispute will have been removed, and the most cordial relations established between the Dominion and Provincial governments. The papers will be laid before you and your consideration invited to measures enabling me to give effect to the agreement.

The rapid increase of population in the North West renders some amendments in the North West Territories Act expedient, and your attention will be called to this important matter.

The progress of the Indians in Manitoba and the North West during last year, has been on the whole satisfactory. The Bands included in the several Indian Treaties, have for the most part betaken themselves to their reserves. A Bill for the further promotion of their interest will be submitted to you, as well as a measure to the whole Dominion for the purpose of encouraging the more advanced Indian communities to resume the responsibilities of self-government.

The Bill laid before you last session for the representation of the people in Parliament and the assimilation of the electoral franchises existing in the several Provinces, has now been before the country for a year. The measure will be re-introduced and I commend it to your attention.

I would also urge upon you the expediency of providing for the regulation of factory labor and the protection of the workingman and his family. The measure submitted last session with some amendments will be laid before you.

The rapid progress of the Canadian Pacific Railway has been maintained throughout the past year. Of the two thousand eight hundred and thirty-three miles of the main line between Pembroke and Port Moody, one thousand seven hundred and thirty-eight miles are now constructed, rendering practicable the completion of that great work within the next two years. Although the time within which the Railway Company is bound to finish the road, will not expire until 1891, my government has thought it of the greatest importance for the settlement of the North West and the development of our trade that its completion from sea to sea should be hastened and the company enabled to open the line throughout by the spring of 1886. With this view and in order to aid the company in procuring sufficient capital for the purpose by the disposal of its unsold shares, the Government agreed to receive a deposit of money and securities sufficient to pay a minimum three per cent, dividend for ten years, on sixty-five million of the stock. That arrangement was made on the belief that it would give steadiness and increased value to the shares on the market. A combination of unfavorable circumstances has prevented the fulfilment of these expectations, and the company has not been able to obtain the capital by a sale of stock. The best means of preventing any delay in the great object of the early completion of the railway, demands your earnest consideration.

I am pleased to be able to state that the operation of that portion of the railway already opened, affords the most gratifying evidence of its soundness as a commercial enterprise and of its great value to Canada.

The large increase of the volume of traffic on the Intercolonial Railway over that of any previous year, without involving any burden upon the country, is a satisfactory proof of the continued development of trade between the eastern and western portions of the Dominion.

A provisional arrangement, made with the Government of Nova Scotia, for the retention of the Pictou Branch and the acquisition of the Eastern Extension Railway to the Strait of Canso will be submitted for your approval.

Gentlemen of the House of Commons:

The accounts of the past year will be laid before you. You will find that the expenditure has been considerably less and the receipts larger than the estimates, the surplus exceeding that of any previous year. The revenues of the first half of the current year, notwithstanding the large importations of last season, have been such that we may reasonably expect that the estimate for the year will be fairly maintained.

The estimates for the ensuing year will also be submitted to you. They will, I trust, be found to have been prepared with due regard to economy.

Honorable Gentlemen of the Senate:

Gentlemen of the House of Commons:

I feel assured that you will devote yourselves with earnestness and assiduity to the consideration of the subjects I have mentioned, and to all matters affecting the public interests, that may be brought before you.

HOW TO CURE A BALKY HORSE.

A farmer recently broke his horse of a "balky" freak in a very quiet and, as he claims, not a cruel manner. His horse is in excellent flesh and shows no signs of neglect on the part of its master. He drove him, attached to a rack-wagon, to the wood lot for a small load of wood. The animal would not pull a pound. He did not beat him with a club, but led him to a tree and "let him stand." He went to the lot at sunset and asked him to draw, but he would not straighten a tug. "I made up my mind," said the farmer, "that when that horse went to the barn he would take that load of wood. The night was not cold. I went to the barn, got blankets, and covered the horse warmly and he stood until morning. Then he refused to draw. At noon I went down, and he was probably hungry and lonesome. He drew that load of wood the first time I asked him. I returned and got another load before I fed him. I then rewarded him with a good dinner, which he eagerly devoured. I have drawn several loads since. Once he refused to draw, but as soon as he saw me start for the house he started after me with the load. A horse becomes lonesome and discontented when left alone, as much so as a person, and I claim that this method, if rightly used, is far less cruel, and is better for both horse and man, that to beat the animal with a club.

A CANADIAN HOP FARM.

Alfred J. Luce, a prominent New York hop dealer, is now well known in Canada as the proprietor of the largest Hop farm in the country. About two years ago Mr. Luce, to the surprise of all in the trade, started growing hops at Cazaville on the North Shore of the St. Lawrence, where next season he will have about 300 acres under cultivation. Last year he grew about 40,000 lbs., and this year he expects to double that yield. He states that by hop farming in Canada he has the advantage of cheaper land, poles, manure and labor, &c., than in the States. The enterprise is an extensive one and bids fair to become very remunerative. An American exchange, in referring to this farm, says that it is believed to be larger than any single farm in the United States, and expresses regret that Mr. Luce felt obliged to go into Canada. It admits, however, that he has undoubtedly done better than he could have done in the States. This is a flattering tribute paid the hop lands of Canada, which is all the more valuable coming from such a source.

PUBLICANS' BIOGRAPHY.

How would liquor dealers like their personal history written up? It is a new way of conducting a temperance crusade, but members of the Citizens' Reform association of Buffalo appear to think it is a good one. At any rate they are having prepared several large volumes which give the private history of the liquor sellers of that city. Already these volumes contain the biographies of five hundred men. They say the record is so bad that, on its publication, licenses should be either revoked or renewal refused. We are greatly afraid that if the same principle were carried out in every walk of life, there would be found so few good that not only would faith in humanity cease to exist but we should think it about time for the creation of a bran new world.—World.

Judge Cassault, of Quebec, has decided against the validity of the Quebec corporation by-law making it compulsory to publicly weigh coal sold within the city limits. HYDROPHOBIA.

RESULT OF A BITE BY A DOG EIGHTEEN YEARS AGO.

A Reading, Pa., telegram says: A very strange case of what is believed to be hydrophobia came to light here. Cyrus Grow, who is about 40 years of age, went home last night feeling unwell. He went to bed, and soon was thrown into violent spasms, and the united strength of four men was required to hold him. The spasms came at short intervals, and he began frothing at the mouth and barking like a dog. When given water, Grow remarked: "I know what's coming, its hydrophobia, as I was bitten by a dog eighteen years ago, and I want to be chained so I can do nobody any injury." This evening he became so violent as to overpower seven men, and jumped out of a second story window, cutting his throat and wrists badly. He was overpowered by policemen and conveyed to the almshouse.

A bill has been introduced in the house of Congress, Washington, by representative Nutting, providing for the construction of a ship canal around Niagara Falls, Niagara county, N. THE MONKEY HAD IT.

Just then a grand tableau occurred. A monkey had the watch trying to crack a walnut with it. The watch was rescued in a ruined condition. Mr. Cole had hung the watch on a pole while washing his hands, and the monkey had reached through the bars and taken it.

PETERBOROUGH, JAN. 24, 1884.

Ontario Legislature.

Wednesday, last, was set down as the day for the opening of the Ontario Legislature, but, owing to the non-arrival of members, due, we suppose, to the terrible and universal snow-blockade, the opening ceremonies were postponed till to-day (Thursday).

The Registrarship.

The appointment of Mr. Bernard Morrow, of this town, as Registrar of the county of Peterborough, has aroused considerable feeling and discussion amongst the electors of the two ridings. It is, perhaps, natural that the local feeling should be somewhat strong, but it is to be recollected that a man like Mr. Mowat, having the interests of the whole Province to consider, necessarily takes a more broad and liberal view of such an appointment than persons subjected to the influences of local, sectional and personal considerations. There does not seem to be any objection made on the score of fitness for the position, but it is hinted that the appointment is equivalent to giving the Roman Catholic proportion of our population an unduly large share of public patronage.

It would appear, on reflection, that in a country like Canada, where is enjoyed the widest degree of religious liberty—where no state church party can claim, an exclusive right to the enjoyment of the benefits of Government patronage, it is only simple justice and fairness that the rights and claims of no party should be ignored on the grounds of religious belief. This accepted, it can be made plain that Roman Catholics have not received any undue share of the patronage at the disposal of the Ontario Government.

Of the foreign-born population of Ontario, the last census returns show that the Irish comprise thirty per cent. A majority of these are Roman Catholics, and, when we add to these the native Roman Catholic population, it will be found that a very considerable proportion of the population of this Province is of that religious belief. Under our constitution, these are entitled to consideration by the Government in the distribution of public patronage.

The comparative amount of Provincial patronage enjoyed by Protestants and Catholics will be of interest. For instance: There are in Ontario forty sheriffs; of these, only three are Roman Catholics; there are SIXTY-TWO registrars, of whom only FOUR (including Mr. Morrow) are Roman Catholics. There are thirty-nine County Crown Attorneys, of whom four are Roman Catholics. Of the large number of Division Court Clerks and Bailiffs and Magistrates in the Province not one in ten is a Catholic. There are six Government departments, and there is not one Deputy Head of a department a Roman Catholic. In the Education Department, where there are about one hundred holding their appointments under the Government, only two are of the Roman Catholic faith. In the Attorney-General's Department there is only one—the messenger. Besides, during the term of the Mowat Administration, eight appointments have been made in Peterborough and of these only one office has been occupied by a Roman Catholic.

So far from the Mowat Government unduly favouring Roman Catholics in its appointments, the above facts show, if anything, the contrary, while the standing complaint of a certain section of Irish Canadians is, that it does not extend to them a fair proportion of patronage. In the "manifesto" of the Catholic Conservatives, issued at the last general election, it was pointed out that there were unjust inequalities in respect of the patronage extended to Irishmen; and it was asserted that Mr. Hardy and Mr. Pardee "had not appointed a Catholic "in their departments since they came "into office; that the asylum for the "insane costs in salaries $11,900 a year, "of which the Roman Catholics get only "$800; that the Agricultural College "costs in salaries $11,200, of which "Roman Catholics get only $300; that "in the Immigration Department there "is not one Catholic permanently em-"ployed."

In commenting upon the recent by-elections the Irish Canadian—most bitterly hostile to the Administration—indulges in the following denunciation of Mr. Mowat for his alleged unfair treatment of the Irish Catholic population of the Province. The Irish Canadian says:

"Mr. Mowat is the embodiment of "Whig treachery and duplicity; and it "is especially in his treatment of our "Irish Catholic fellow-countrymen that "his worst qualities have been made "manifest. He has broken every pledge "and promise made to the Irish Catho-"lics of Ontario. During his eleven "years of office there have been many "changes in his Cabinet; but among "them all he never found the opportunity "of filling a vacancy with an Irish col-"league, either Roman Catholic or Pro-"testant. Mowat's motto has been 'No "Irish need apply,' and he has acted up "to that motto with a vengeance. Even "in the most subordinate positions the "same rigid rule of exclusion has been "adhered to; and it is for the Irish "Catholics of Ontario, and more especial-"ly for the Irish Catholics of Cardwell, "West Simcoe and West Middlesex at "the present moment, to say by their "votes whether they will longer con-"tinue to assist in keeping in office "the bigoted little clique over whom "Mr. Mowat presides, and by whom "our Irish Catholic people have been de-"ceived and betrayed, their rights ig-"nored, their just demands denied, and "their most sacred feelings of religion "and nationality scoffed at and derided."

From the facts advanced it does seem plain that the charge of favoritism against Hon. Mr. Mowat fails to be sustained, it rather appears that he endeavors to mete out, as far as possible, even-handed justice in the ratio of distribution he employs, as between the two great distinctive bodies of religious belief; and that the appointment of Mr. Morrow is a fair recognition of a large proportion of our population.

In regard to the feeling of discontent amongst some members of the Liberal party, these latter should have had sufficient experience of Tory tactics not to lend themselves as tools, whereby their political enemies seek to achieve their own ends. If any man should feel inclined in the least to relax his loyalty and allegiance to his party, let him remember that that is precisely the object sought to be obtained by so much clap-trap and street gossip by Conservative wirepullers, and any such must on dispassionate consideration of this view and of the above adduced facts, feel that the circumstances do not excuse much less justify such a course.

The Parliamentary Programme.

The speech from the Throne, put into Lord Lansdowne's mouth by Sir John and his colleagues, is, as Mr. Blake said, remarkable chiefly for what it does not contain, and, it might be added, for suggesting more than its authors intended. With hypocritical effrontery the financial depression that reigns to-day is laid to the charge of bad harvests. In 1878 they pooh-poohed the idea that bad harvests had anything to do with hard times, and asserted that the people could only be made rich by taxing them. Taxation was laid on with a heavy hand, and the accompanying prosperity was not credited to the good harvests but to the N. P. Now hard times has come again and the bad harvest is to blame. With impudent irreverence they blame Providence for the evil effects of their own unwise policy. The speech dosen't say anything about, nor suggest a remedy for the low wages and lack of employment that are bringing want and privation to the home of many a workingman, who is such a fine fellow and so well looked after at election times. No, he is rather insulted with the suggestion by Her Majesty's Ministers, that he should be thankful because a paternal government has paid the passages of immigrant workmen to flood the Canadian labor market, and rob the Canadian mechanic of a job. No reference is made to soup kitchens, a wholesale pauper supply system—an industry that the N.P. has fostered better than any other. Amendments are promised to the North-West Territories Act, a promise extorted by the direful results of the iniquitous land regulations of the Government, which an indignant people would stand no longer. It is hinted that another slice in addition to the quarter of a million of dollars and quarter of a continent the C.P.R. company has received, is to be given, showing that the Government is the bound slave of the syndicate. The railway, all admit, must be built, but it must be so done that there will be some country left after it is completed. Giving the North-West for the building of the road, is something like a man selling his house to get money to furnish it. The Factory Act is promised, but the experience of last session shows that the Government is so much at the mercy of monopolist manufacturers, that any infringement on their rights—such as compelling them to treat their hands decently and humanely—will not be allowed; the bill will be, probably, introduced at the fag end of the session and then dropped, as was done last year. Other paragraphs of the speech will furnish subjects of remark in the future. The parliamentary programme might easily have been better, and could hardly have been much worse.

Mr. Warden Lang.

The County Council of 1884 has begun well, as shown by the judicious choice of Warden made. The election of Mr. Lang, Reeve of Otonabee, is in every way a good one. His ability and fitness for the position are unquestionable, while his prudence, and his extensive and accurate knowledge of municipal matters, give a guaranty that under his Wardenship the affairs of the county will be conducted with a due regard to both economy and effectiveness. Mr. Lang is exceedingly popular among his fellow members, and his record shows, that he is perhaps, the most popular man with his constituents in the county. He is 44 years of age, a native of Keene, and by profession a farmer—of more than ordinary success. At and since his entry into municipal life something like thirteen years since, he was and has been elected as Councillor at the head of the poll, till eight years ago he succeeded Mr. Thomas Blezard, M.P.P., as Deputy-reeve. On this occassion he was detained at home by family affliction, but, in spite of his absence, he was elected by acclamation, and was returned every year in the same manner, till the death of Mr. Jas. Miller, five years ago, when Mr. Lang was elected Reeve by acclamation, an event that has since followed as regularly as election day. Last election Mr. Lang was kept at home by grievous family affliction, yet he was again elected by acclamation. He never solicited a vote, nor asked anybody to nominate him. Few men can show a similar record. Our congratulations are cordially extended to Mr. Lang on his elevation to a position he is so well qualified to fill, and which will, we predict, result in a benefit to the county, as great at least, as the honor it confers on the worthy recipient.

U. E. Loyalist Centennial.

A movement is on foot to celebrate in a becoming manner the centennial year of the settlement of Upper Canada by the United Empire Loyalists, who, fleeing from the persecutions they suffered during the American revolution, for their loyalty to British institutions, sought shelter under the flag in Canada. The celebration is intended to be a "tribute to the heroism and fidelity of our U. E. Loyalist forefathers, without pronouncing on the political issues that divided the British American colonies a hundred years ago." Considerable progress has been made with the preliminary arrangements. A pro tempore committee has been appointed, of which Robert D. Rogers, Esq., of Asburnham, is a member. A meeting of all interested in the subject will be held in Toronto, in the City Hall, on Tuesday evening, Feb. 19th, and it is expected, and highly desirable, that local committees should be formed in as many places as possible, which should be represented by delegations at the proposed meeting. In such a praiseworthy movement, Peterborough should not be behind hand. Lieut.-Governor Robinson is chairmn of the pro tempore committee.

The Contrast.

The following indication of the way the Tory party's rule has resulted in almost the ruin of the Province of Quebec, will make the people of Ontario less anxious than the recent by-elections has shown them to be, to turn out Hon. Mr. Mowat and his colleagues and supply their places with Mr. Meredith and his friends. An Ottawa correspondent says:

"Some weeks ago a well-known lumbering firm, doing business here, presented a claim to the Quebec Government for $10,000 for losses sustained by them through granting of a license to them to cut timber upon land that had previously been leased to another party. The claim was admitted, but Mr. Mousseau's Government had no money to liquidate it. Messrs. Chapleau, Senecal & Co. had left the treasury empty. The claimants agreed to take the bonds of the Government in payment, and these they disposed of to Montreal brokers at a discount. Such is the condition to which Quebec Province has been brought by the party who are now seeking to get control of the Ontario Treasury."

This is slightly in contrast with the financial condition of Ontario, which has under twelve years of Reform rule, as a result of economical administration, a surplus of about five millions of dollars.

South Renfrew.

The result of the by-election in this riding is another great victory for the Reformers. Dr. Dowling was unseated for the act of an agent, and again entered the lists with Mr. Devine. Although the whole power of the Ontario Opposition and of Sir John's bribery brigade was thrown against Dr. Dowling, he was elected by 346 majority, three and a half times greater than that he received in the general election. Hon. Mr. Mowat instead of "going," has the pleasure of seeing his platform becoming every day more popular.

Not Appreciated.

Mr. John Carnegie, the brilliant member for West Peterborough, furnishes a shining example of the reversal of the application of the Scriptural motto, "A prophet is not without honor save in his own country." Fired with a burning missionary zeal, and an exalted idea of the indispensable nature of the exercise of his abilities on behalf of the Tory party, and longing for political communion of soul with such kindred spirits as Mr. Shields, Mr. Big Push, Mr. Roddy Pringle, etc., he rushed to the stump in the by-elections, closing his career with the fatal field of South Renfrew. The extent to which his abilities are appreciated abroad is shown by the fact that the candidates he championed were invariably defeated triumphantly. But in South Renfrew he met his Tel-el-Kebir—the one blow neces-"sarah" to give the quietus to his modest estimate of his abilities. He opposed Dr. Dowling with all the might of his eloquence, and the result was that the latter was elected by a majority three and a half times greater than he secured at his former election. Mr. Carnegie's by-election experience will perhaps arouse him to the fact that the outside world is fearfully lacking in that appreciation of his masterly abilities, which a little local clique of claquers and political toadies profess to entertain for "Sarah." A "village Hampden" is very small potatoes away from home.

Editorial Notes.

The friends of the measure assert that the Scott Act in Halton is a very gratifying success. There is said to be a great decrease in the amount of liquor consumed, the old topers being the only ones that manage in some dark way, to procure drink. It is asserted that crime under the Act has decreased seventy per cent.

Col. Clarke, the representative of Centre Wellington, was the Government candidate for the speakership of the new Ontario Legislature. During four sessions Col. Clark has been Speaker of the House, and in that capacity has given universal satisfaction to both sides of the House. He has striven successfully to uphold the dignity of the House, and to act with rigid impartiality.

In the Court of Appeal, Toronto, on Saturday, in the Prescott, South Victoria, East Northumberland and Lennox election appeal cases, judgment was given. In the first Mr. J. D. McIntyre retains his seat. In the East Northumberland case Mr. J. M. Ferris was declared sitting member, with leave however, to the petitioner to renew his motion for leave to tender additional evidence. In the Prescott case the appeal was dismissed, and Mr. Hagar confirmed in his seat. The appeal against Mr. Roe, of Lennox, was dismissed. Of the above the first three are Liberals, and the last, Mr. Roe, Tory.

Another attempt to unseat a supporter of Mr. Mowat has failed. Judgment has been given in the Welland protested election case, and Col. Morin, M.P.P., elect, has been confirmed in his seat after a most searching trial, in the course of which no means was left untried to secure the voiding of the seat. The peculiarity in the case is that the petitioner, who has been doing his best to harrass the Mowat administration, by a vexatious attempt, on the most frivolous grounds, to unseat one of its supporters, is an official of the Ontario Government. That he remains one still, is a strong proof that the Ontario Government is not influenced by political feelings in dealing with it officials.

That's "Sarah," Every Time!

How the Member for West Peterboro' was Re-named.

The report of the Globe of the operations of the bribery brigade and corruptionist confraternity in the recent election contest in South Renfrew, tells as follows how our local member got fastened on him the pseudonym, or rather sobriquet, of "Sarah":

"Wilkinson turned up at Arnprior but he did not venture to face the music again. Carnegie undertook to do all the Tory talking at Devine's meeting at Renfrew. He spoke twice for three-quarters of an hour and once for an hour and a quarter, allowing Messrs. Dowdall and Ross to be sandwiched in after his two first efforts. The Minister of Education followed Carnegie's second delivery. During the course of a most able address he criticised the right-about policy of Carnegie, who formerly opposed the Government because, he alleged, it would not refer the boundary award to the Privy Council, and now found fault because a reference to the Privy Council had been agreed upon. Concerning a man who had been induced to try the telephone for the first time, it is said that he approached the telephone, very doubtful as to its power to transmit conversation, and connection having been made with a neighboring store, where his wife was, placed the instrument to his ear and called: "Sarah, is that you?" But just at that moment the wires were struck by lightning, and the man was knocked over. As he rose, the doubt vanished from his countenance and he expressed his faith in telephonic communication by saying: "Yes, that's Sarah every time." Referring to Mr. Carnegie's determination to oppose the Government's policy on the Boundary Award, pointing his finger towards that gentleman, Mr. Ross said,

"THAT'S SARAH EVERY TIME."

The most uproarious laughter followed, mingled with loud cries of "Sarah, Sarah." When Mr. Ross had concluded, Mr. Carnegie was again greeted with shouts of "Sarah" from all parts of the hall, and before five minutes, an audience of about three hundred dwindled down to forty-two. Three consecutive doses of "Sarah" were too much in one evening. The member for West Peterborough is now referred to only as "Sarah," even by prominent Conservatives."

The missile missed the man for whom it was intended, and struck Wm. A. Hepburn behind the ear, knocking him senseless. McMathews is missing. Hepburn is badly hurt.

OMEMEE.

On Sunday morning at 7 o'clock, passed away the Rev. Geo. Norris at the residence of his son, Dr. Norris, one of the oldest citizens of Omemee, at the age of 88 years. Deceased was an active worker in the Methodist ministry for over forty years and was superannuated about eighteen years ago. He was buried in the Emily cemetery on Thursday afternoon by the Orangemen of the Omemee and Emily lodges in which order he held the high position of Grand Chaplain of British North America. The funeral cortege was very large.

OTONABEE.

A correspondent of the Hastings Star says that Mr. Peter Walker, an enterprising farmer living in the 1st con., of Otonabee, some time ago applied for a patent for a machine which he intended to expedite the unloading of hay and grain. The article in question which consists of a large wheel fastened on a revolving beam (said beam being somewhere up among the rafters) and a series of pulleys, enables one, with the aid of a team of horses, to draw load, rack (and wagon if necessary) up to any desired height, thus saving much high pitching.

BELLEVILLE.

At the annual meeting of the West Hastings Agricultural Society on Wednesday afternoon, the following officers and directors were elected:—President, Mr. John Henry; Vice-Presidents, Messrs. James Bird and John Graham.

Mining operations are being carried on in the famous "Galting" gold mine in Marmora with, we are informed, very favorable results. Our informant states that some of the ore yields as high as $40 per ton, and that the average yield is not far below $20 per ton, which ought to pay handsomely.

CAMPBELLFORD

Mr. Little is putting the rink into comfortable shape, and is being well repaid with a large attendance nightly. He is arranging for another carnival to take place soon.

A man who spends his summers in this village and his winters in the depths of the forest, writes to the Herald from Sherburne, a settlement 22 miles north of Minden, to say that the snow is three feet deep in that place, and two and a half feet deep in Minden. Wages paid bushmen are $14 to $20 per month; for man and team $1.25 to $1.50 per day.

HASTINGS.

While Miss Jennie Sedgewick was drawing a pail of water from the raceway in rear of Tracy's store on Saturday last, the ice gave way and a sudden immersion followed. She succeeded however in buoying herself until rescued by Mr. Henry Sharp.

A masquerade carnival in the rink is on the cards for Thursday of next week. A prominent feature in connection with the entertainment will be a large party in Chinese costumes, who will hold a festival on the ice.

COBOURG.

The ice crop is very good this year, and owners of ice houses are busily engaged in getting in their stock.

Mr. B. Muirennin, an old townsman, passed away on Friday night last. Being an old fireman, a member of the Hook and Ladder Company, the remains were escorted to their last resting place in St. Michael's cemetery, by the Fire Brigade, headed by the Fountain Hose Band.

The Cobourg Curling Club succeeded in capturing the tankard in the Bonspeil, Tuesday and Wednesday. They beat Lindsay by 18, on Tuesday, and Peterborough by 5, and Bowmanville by 10 on Wednesday. The Cobourg players were: Rink No. 1, Morrow, Jeffery, Henderson, MacNachtan. (skip). No. 2, Winn, P. McCallum, Greenwood, Sailsbury, (skip).

LINDSAY.

The cricket club are talking about placing "Gertude" or some other attractive comedy on the boards for the benefit of the funds of the club.

The St. Mary's church choir propose having a concert in the course of a couple of weeks. A very attractive programme is in course of preparation.

Mr. C. M. McCarthy, of St. Paul, some years ago a resident of Lindsay, has been appointed adjutant-general of Minnesota by Governor Hubbard.

The Lindsay high school commenced the new year with an attendance of 96. This is very good, considering the small number sent up from the Lindsay public schools at the last two examinations. Of the 96 on the roll 52 are from Lindsay; 32 from the county of Victoria outside the town; five from Durham county, and seven from Ontario county.

NORWOOD.

Norwood has a new snow plough.

Mr. Smith, of Galt, has purchased the Norwood House barber shop.

Work was commenced in the Norwood steam saw-mill on Thursday last.

The Council of 1883 had a surplus of $125.

Of the thirteen candidates who presented themselves for admission to the high school, only one passed and four were recommended.

The Register says that "our" tonsorial artist vamoosed, leaving sorrowing friends, in a financial sense.

The following resolution was passed at the last meeting of the Norwood Council:—Moved by Councillor Hutchinson, seconded by Councillor Reynolds, that the clerk notify Mr. T. M. Grover, solicitor for the Asphodel, Belmont and Dummer Agricultural Society re agricultural grounds, that this Council considers that the municipal council of the village of Norwood has fulfilled its agreement with said agricultural society, when they passed a by-lay for the purchase of land for a park and agricultural purposes, and to instruct Mr. Dumble, solicitor for the council, to demand a deposit from the agricultural society to cover expenses.

BOBCAYGEON.

The fall of snow has occasioned a demand for teams at the shanties, and some dozen or more have gone north, during the week, to the lumber operations.

Something must be radically wrong somewhere. A flock of ten wild ducks flew over the village on Tuesday. They were flying on a westerly course, and the thermometer was at zero

As we go to press, says the Independent, a wild report reaches us of a terrible calamity, right in our very midst. The report is—Twins! Every young married man is horror stricken, old ones look badly shaken up, and even bachelors are subdued and melancholy. The village is in a boil of excitement. Full particulars of the catastrophe next week.

On Monday evening a jolly party of some eighteen or twenty, assembled at the Forest House, on the invitation of Capt. Bottum. The occasion was a farewell to Mr. Ramley, a gentleman who came from Chicago for the hunting season, and prolonged his stay until Tuesday last. An oyster supper was made the medium of good fellowship, and wishes for the future.

STIRLING.

The Grand Junction passenger train going east on Saturday ran off the track about two miles from here, throwing the passengers and coaches from the track against a snow bank. The coaches landed about thirty yards apart. The engine uncoupled itself and stood upright, but off the track. Many of the passengers were injured, the most serious being a man from Westwood, who had his leg broken about six inches above the ankle. The report that one man was killed is untrue. The cause is supposed to have been a broken rail.

FRASERVILLE.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

MISSIONARY MEETING.

The annual missionary meetings for this circuit took place on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of last week. Owing to the heavy roads and the inclemency of the weather they were not largely attended. The deputation was excellent, consisting of Rev. T. Manning, B.A., and the Lakefield pastor (the young man). The rev. gentleman from Lakefield was first called on, and after listening to his very interesting address, we then had the pleasure of hearing Rev. T. Manning, who is beloved by all in this vicinity. His address on this occasion was acknowledged by many to be the best they ever heard; and frequently through his speech was he compelled to cease until the people applauded him, by the clapping of hands, for the excellent remarks made. His speech was based on "loyalty to God and loyalty to country," and contrasting the times of long ago with the present. Truly, a model speech, and one that will not be forgotten for some time. Receipts of Wednesday evening far ahead of last year.

The Rev. F. Johnston, pastor of Fraserville church, intends to preach, on the evening of February 3rd, a sermon especially for the benefit of the young. Undoubtedly it will be largely attended and, judging from the past, well worth hearing.

The pitch-holes on the gravel road are becoming deeper daily, and if the councils of the different townships do not attend to them, why, we shall have to call them, not pitch-holes, but caves. It is reported that a little south of here they are so deep that horses, sleigh and all are unseen while in one of them. If so, danger must be connected with them, therefore, to save expense in various ways, they ought to be attended to at once.

NORTH MONAGHAN

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

The first meeting of the Council elect for 1884, was held in the Town Hall, on Monday, the 21st instant. The members having subscribed to the necessary declarations, took their seats,—the Reeve, Henry Collins, Esq., in the chair. A By-law to appoint two auditors received its three readings, and was signed and sealed, the blanks being filled with the names of Frank Adams and Robert Eastland. A By-law to appoint certain Township officers received its first reading. On motion of Mr. Brealy, seconded by Mr. Dunlop, the following accounts were ordered to be paid:—John Armstrong for building culvert, $8.00; Toker and Co printing, etc, $19.80; Thos. Armstrong, postage and stationery, $1.00. Moved by Mr. Brealy, seconded by Mr. Brownscombe, that the Council do now adjourn to Monday the 28th instant at one o'clock, then to meet for the appointment of certain Township officers, and the transaction of other Township business.

ENNISMORE.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

At sunrise on Sunday, the 20th inst., the thermometer stood 24 degrees below zero. The other day a friend asked me what about Vennor's open winter; I replied that that problem was easily solved. For instance, if it is a dry, hard winter, with little snow, and using wheels instead of sleighs, it is an open one; if one with lots of rain and muddy roads and fields, it is an open one; and this year it is that open it will not hold the snow up, so, according to that theory, we would have eight open winters out of every ten.

RUST IN WHEAT.

From the Mechanical World.

Rust is one of the most formidable enemies the grain farmer has to contend with in wet and muggy seasons. Warmth and moisture favor its development. In seasons alike in their heat, rainfall and humidity, the rust is not equally damaging. It breaks out in what appears a capricious manner. A drenching rain is sometimes followed by less rust than that which appears after a slight shower or even a heavy dew. There are antecedent conditions which largely determine the degree of the fungus known as rust floating about in the air awaiting favorable opportunities for development, and when they meet circumstances of the proper kind they multiply with astonishing rapidity. During moist, hot weather the sap vessels of the plants become ruptured and fungoid germs attach themselves rapidly. If the plants, some scientists think, are healthy and vigorous, they resist the attempt of the parasite to establish itself, much as healthy animals refuse to become the abode of parasites which thrive on their weaker fellows. Anything therefore, which weakens the vitality of the wheat plant renders it liable to become the prey of rust. Exhaustion of food elements in the soil, the presence about the roots of sour, stagnant water, sowing too late in the fall for proper development to resist the winter, are among common and easily preventible causes that predispose to rust. Of non-preventible causes, hard waters and cold, backward springs, which prevent the healthy development of the wheat plant, are among the most prominent—next, of course, to warmth and moisture. These conditions have existed this year, as they did in 1879, when the damage from rust was widespread and very serious. Fortunately midge and weevil were not among the pests of last summer, as they were in that unfortunate season. "What cannot be cured must be endured," but the cause which can be reached should not be suffered to exist. Good farming in the broadest sense of the term, which includes proper selection of lands for different crops, proper preparation of the soil and proper culture, is the best preventive of serious damage from rust.

SHAMELESS HAWKINS.

The unblushing Hawkins assumes the seat in the House of Commons for Bothwell, under cover of an appeal which he has made from the decision of Judge Galt, who declared Hon. David Mills duly elected to represent the constituency. Truly this is a disgraceful piece of business. Mr. Mills was kept out of his seat one session by the act of a deputy returning officer, who was appointed by Hawkins. For this outrage Sir John is responsible, for he changed the election law, when he introduced his gerrymander bill, so as to permit the appointment of partizan returning officers. Then the courts dilly-dallied with the case, preventing the petition of Mr. Mills for the seat from coming to trial until 18 months after the election. Hawkins got in one session and pocketed Mr. Mills' $1,000. The lodging of the appeal lets Hawkins have another session and another $1,000. Law costs have no terror for Hawkins, who failed in business ten years ago, and who has had no other trade than that of a politician since. Sir John Macdonald, who was mean enough to try to gerrymander Messrs. Mackenzie, Cartwright, Mills, Ross, Cameron and Paterson out of Parliament altogether, is mean enough to use a creature like Hawkins to keep Mr. Mills out. But there ought to be some honor and decency left even in a Tory Parliament. Hawkins has no business to occupy the seat to which he was never elected.—Hamilton Times.

Peterborough Markets.

PETERBOROUGH, Jan. 23, 1884.

Receipts of grain continue light, owing to bad roads; there is no particular change in prices. Outside markets have been declining, Chicago going down to 88c., but has recovered some one or two cents. Spring sells on this market at $1.03 to $1.04; fall, 90c. to $1.02; goose, little offering, selling at 74c. to 76c. Barley, 50c. to 64c. Rye, 55c. to 56c. Peas, 70c. to 74c. Oats, 30c. to 31c. On the market, very little doing. Dressed hogs still offering, bringing $7.50 to $8.00. Fresh butter in good demand at 21c. to 23c. Eggs scarce, if fresh would bring 24c. to 25c. Other commodities unchanged.

WHAT SHALL I GIVE HIM?

Is a puzzling question. It is easy enough to find things for the "hers," in fact the variety is embarrassing; but the selection of a present for the male sex is more difficult. We have known Ladies to present their Husbands with useful Household Articles and it is not a bad idea, but if you wish to give the man something for personal use, the list to choose from is rather short. CLOTHES are Staple—always in demand. Why not a new OVERCOAT or SUIT? A SET OF SHIRTS, some fine HOSIERY, HANDKERCHIEFS, or NECKWEAR? or, if that is not appropriate, give the Domestic Man a HOUSE COAT OR WRAPPER. While to the Gay Young Man, SHIRT STUDS, SCARF PINS, SILK TIE or SCARF. Now that you have the hint what to get, we will modestly add that a good place to get everything of this sort is right here, where we are making a Special Holiday Display of Useful and Ornamental Wearin Apparel for Men and Boys.

Owing to the backwardness of the Season, OUR STOCK will be SOLD REGARDLESS OF COST prior to Stock-taking.

The Shade of Merecombe Hall

Bertie was too busy to see it—only once, when Gyneth stooped to arrange one of her pillows, something in the action struck her, and she asked suddenly:

"Aren't you enjoying it, Gyneth? Isn't it pleasant?"

"Too pleasant," answered Gyneth, almost below her breath.

"Isn't it different from walking about London?"

"Perhaps that is better, though," said Gyneth, "because it is what we have to do."

"That makes to-day all the pleasanter. O Mr. Suttleton! where are you taking us?" she asked, as they turned through the high gates open now—through which they had obtained their first glimpse of the park.

"I want to rest the horses a few minutes," he said, flushing a little.

"Then we have driven very far round these beautiful roads?" asked Mrs. Marshbrook.

"A good many miles," he answered, smiling; "and these grays are so lazy and such cormorants, they are tired and hungry already. Miss Bertie, please to be still just for one moment."

Neither of the girls asked why he brought them there, or spoke on the subject, until the carriage stopped before the pillared door, and Duke had taken their mother down.

"Miss Marshbrook, I thought you would kindly give your sister a little music," he said, assisting her, his eyes bright with excitement.

"I hope you will pardon me," Mrs. Marshbrook," he added, when he had carried her through the splendid rooms and settled her on a couch in one of the open bay windows of a pleasant library. "Let me have one hour of happiness in this lonely home of mine."

Then suddenly Gyneth shook off the strange new feeling of heaviness that was upon her, and moved about the rooms at her ease, as it was natural for her to be, the bright voice and sweet laugh giving them a wondrous sound of home, and the beautiful young face adding a beauty to them they had never known before.

She sat down to the piano readily and willingly, and played to them as they sat together; but when Duke asked her to sing she declined—"unless you sing first, Mr. Suttleton," she compromised as she left the instrument.

As she wandered on, gazing at the pictured walls, she was startled by hearing a few quiet chords struck.

Quite still she stood just where she was and listened. The playing was nothing—Gyneth's smallest pupil played as well—but, when the rich voice filled the room, she felt a strange gladness spring up within her. She had never heard the song sung just so, before this day, though she know it well:

"Twas odor fled
As soon as shed—
'Twas morning's winged dream;
'Twas a light that ne'er can shine again
On life's dull stream—
Oh! twas light that ne'er can shine again
On life's dull stream!"

What a pathos there was in the words! and yet—and yet—she was thankful when the beautiful song was over.

Duke joined her presently and pleaded for a song; but when she turned with her simple "Don't ask me please," he forbore to urge her.

"Are these all Suttletons," she asked nervously, pointing to the portraits.

"Most of them. These relatives make my home. Do you not envy me?"

"Why should I celebrate this day by breaking a commandment?" laughed Gyneth. But who is this boy with the big proud eyes?"

"A Suttleton," answered Duke, icily.

"Is there a sad story connected with him?" she asked.

"Yes."

They had strolled into another room as they talked, and when they returned to the one they had left there was a change. Close to Bertie's couch was a table on which tea was laid, with fruits and flowers, and, as it seemed to Bertie and Gyneth, every luxury beside.

"Mr. Suttleton, I wish you had not," began Mrs. Marshbrook. But Gyneth, seeing his face cloud at her words, hastened up to the table.

"How beautiful the flowers are!" she said. "And how refreshing tea will be after our drive! Mr. Suttleton you could not possibly have given us a greater treat; and look how my mother is smiling with satisfaction—only, of course, she must exclaim at the trouble you give yourself to entertain us, as well as drive us."

So with gay words and smiles they enjoyed to the full the palatable things before them. The table was so close to Bertie that she looked as if she were sitting at it; and Duke waited upon her, anticipating every wish.

Gyneth made the tea, and if Duke sometimes wandered a little in his talk through looking over at the bright, sweet little figure, he might surely be forgiven; for so sweet a face does not cross a man's path very often.

"I should like to tell him about myself and home, here, in this, very place—that the contrast may strike him all the more," thought Gyneth, as she wandered, after tea, out into the grand old hall. But a voice broke in, in careless, easy tones upon the forming of that resolution.

"I am afraid the organ ought to be on the sick-list, Miss Marshbrook; I wish you would tell me. It used to be quite a famous old fellow." And as Duke spoke he drew back the seat for her.

Here Gyneth was in her element, and as she played—remembering what she could, and gliding from one melody to another with a true musician's power, the slight figure bent over the keys, lost to the deep silence and the living figures round her—she lived only in the grand old echoes she awakened.

She had more listeners than she was aware of, but there was not one, even in the distant group of servants—who had not heard the house filled with this in all the years they had known it—but felt their thoughts unconsciously higher, while the sweet harmonies whispered around them.

There was a strange brightness in Gyneth's eyes when she arose and it deepened quickly when she looked round at Duke. He was sitting in the shadow, one elbow resting on the pedestal of a statue near, and his chin on his hand.

She had not seen the pain, and doubt, and weariness of his face before; she had not seen the agony which she had chased away. She saw only a face full of strength and tenderness—a face any woman might love to look upon, and, looking upon, must love.

He rose slowly, looking the thanks he did not speak.

"I am never so much at home as with an organ," Gyneth began nervously under his gaze; "I played the organ at my father's church from the time I was quite a child—that was St. John's, where my father was curate—all his life. Now I am organist of another church—regular paid organist, you know, Mr. Suttleton, so I ought to know how to play—ought I not?—especially as I have several pupils who learn of me, and I am obliged to practice a good deal to keep in advance of them. But certainly," she went on steadily, the beautiful eyes growing brighter and brighter, "it is only a few of my pupils who learn the organ—they are chiefly piano and singing pupils. I never can forget my music, you see, because I teach it all day long."

If she had expected him to look astonished or hurt as she told him what the low, earnest words made so clear, she was deceived.

"I am very glad to have played a little this evening she went on, speaking in her gentle, pleasant way, because he did not and feeling unspeakably relieved now that she has made this confession, "because I am going back to my work very soon now, and my fingers would have been stiff at their task."

"Hush!" he said in a low, passionate tone, his whole face changing. "Do not tell me anything about yourself; it is more than I can—"

"The organ is not out of order at all, Mr. Suttleton," she declared, ignoring his rapid words; "do you know what I suspect?"

He shook his head, not daring to trust his voice again.

"That you keep it in repair, and—play yourself."

And Gyneth, without waiting for a reply, without even glancing at his face, joined her mother and Bertie.

"If I might tell her!" moaned Duke to himself, an hour later, as he closed the organ with a tender touch. "It would almost—so, that can never be. Heaven helping me I will not be a coward! Yet, if I could tell her this very night—oh! I feel that I could tell her, even if my heart broke afterward—her words would comfort me and strengthen me in this lonely path of mine; and yet—ah! which is right? When a man has to choose for himself, it is so hard to choose the darkest path."

* * * * * * * *

"I shall go only to the post-office, and come back as quickly as possible. You will see that I shall be home before tea is ready, Bertie. I cannot afford to spend any time away from you now. Good-by. What a budget I have to carry to-day!"

As she opened the gate, Gyneth once more looked up at the cottage window with a smile, and then she began to walk quickly along the road. Gradually her pace grew slower and slower, in spite of her resolution—for it was such a calm afternoon and the pleasant walks were so nearly over now.

"One, two, three, four, five, six, seven. There the letters go! You were not much trouble to write, you seven little letters, and you are no trouble to post; but there is a great trouble in my heart, and I know you must be the cause. How funny this odd little post-office would look in the heart of London—where my letters will be to-morrow, and where I shall follow them in one day more! Will my pupils be glad or sorry to-morrow when the Devonshire mail comes in to-morrow—those, I mean, to whom I have written, and with whom I ought to be to-day? I think they like me, yet what is their love to—— I did not mean that; their love is worth as much to me as any other of Heaven's great gifts. Ah! Gyneth, Gyneth, why doubt this now?"

With this thought in her mind she went into the post-office, talked a little to the old woman who kept it, bought a parcel of sweetmeats, for any stray children she might meet, and started home at a brisker pace than ever, the pretty figure winning many a glance of admiration—winning a glance that was a mixture of admiration and something else presently, as Duke Suttleton rode slowly after her through the village.

Pulling in his horse when he reached her, he dismounted and held out his hand, passing the bridle over his arm.

His greeting was so frank that her nervous start must have passed unnoticed.

"This is an unexpected pleasure, Miss Marshbrook. I pictured you at tea now in the cottage-parlor.

"I had letters to post," explained Gyneth, "so many, too, that I have been at home all the afternoon writing them, and could not get them ready before; my mother and Bertie are waiting for me now?"

"Do you delay letter-writing until you have a good many on your conscience, and then write them all at once to relieve it?" asked Duke, as they walked on together. "You do not treat your friends as you said you would have them treat you."

She laughed at the remembrance, and then, with a rather remarkable suddenness, grew serious.

"These were all business letters, Mr. Suttleton, to my pupils, telling them I should be with them the day after to-morrow."

There was no remark, and she dared not look into his face.

"I am going back to-morrow," she said.

"But Denne says your sister——"

"Oh! she is not coming, Mr. Suttleton," Gyneth interposed, still looking away from the face at her side—looking away over the sparkling sea. "My mother and Bertie will stay until Bertie is able to travel. That will not be very long, I fancy; she has improved rapidly during the last fortnight, for which we have principally to thank the drives you have given her—and other things you have done for her. But I have to go to-morrow—indeed, I ought to have been in London to-day, but there were some of my pupils whom I felt I might put off, and of course I am glad of the two extra days."

While she said this she stood quite still, without knowing it, looking out upon the sea. But when she had waited a few minutes for some remark, and none had been given, she turned to walk on again; and for a little time there was silence between them.

Presently Gyneth turned suddenly, with an impatient toss of the head, as if she dismissed some thought that was painful to her.

"Is that Nora Creina, Mr. Suttleton?" she asked, with ill-feigned interest.

Bending his face a little, Duke stroked the neck of the beautiful mare, with almost a wistful touch.

"Is it Nora Creina?" she asked again, refusing to take the speechless assent he had given her.

"Yes, Miss Marshbrook."

"I am sure she rivals Spring in your affection, Mr. Suttleton," said Gyneth, only wishful to promote conversation.

In a moment the color which had so suddenly left his face rushed back to it, and there was no effort now to hide the flashing eyes he turned upon her as he spoke.

"And if it be so, is it kind or pitiful to show your scorn of it? May we not love those who are true and faithful to us—those who never hurt or pain us—without winning the contempt of those who do hurt and pain us—who wring our very souls with agony? May I love nothing Gyneth Marshbrook, in all this world, which is so full of love for you?"

The beautiful face was white to the very lips as in utter bewilderment she gazed up at Duke.

"O Mr. Suttleton! what can you mean?"

The question was asked in simple ignorance; for, in spite of her tender heart, in spite of her quick, womanly tact, Gyneth could not even faintly understand the passionate struggle of the face above her.

"I mean exactly what I say. If I choose to love these friends because I have no others, you have no right to treat such love with contempt. You, I say, have less right than any one else in the wide world."

"I could as easily treat it with contempt, Mr. Suttleton," said Gyneth drawing off her big leather gauntlet, and holding out her steady hand, "as I could treat you with contempt—and that would seem as impossible to you as to me, if you knew at all what a kind, tender friend you have been to us all through these pleasant summer holidays. You have made almost the whole pleasure of these holidays, Mr. Suttleton," she added, her pretty face still pale with earnestness, and with something more—some slight, faint knowledge that seemed to be breaking upon her very hopelessly.

He took her hand and held it in his firm grasp.

"Gyneth," he said, "in all the years to come—in all their bitterness—in all their hopelessness—I shall have this bright remembrance of my good angel."

It was a moment of doubt, and hope and trial which was hard to bear; yet, in the struggle between her fear and her trust in him, Gyneth looked calmly round over each shoulder.

"I am looking for my wings," she said, with a faint smile, and a tremble in her voice. "If I had them I would use them now. I intended to go home so quickly."

Try as they would they could not make that walk easy and natural, as their walks had been before, and when they stopped Duke said, half sadly:

"I will not come in and intrude on your last evening."

With quite a new earnestness in her eyes, which suited well the name he had given her, she answered:

"Please come in, Mr. Suttleton, and have tea with us just once again. Bertie will forgive my being late, if I bring her up a friend."

She went with him to put his horse in the little stable, standing at the door and watching him.

This was the first time he had ridden to the cottage, for, with a high-bred feeling of delicacy, he always came as quietly and as unlike the squire as possible—that same feeling prompting him now to put the mare in the stable himself, and cause no trouble.

"Is she very comfortable?" asked Gyneth, after watching the performance.

"Quite. Miss Marshbrook, come and give her one little caress."

She was less astonished at the quiet command than at her own ready obedience. She walked up to the manger, and laid her hand upon the animal's face, singing with a smile:

"'Beauty lies
In many eyes,
But love in thine, my Nora Creina!'

No, I have forgotten—I ought to alter that one word:

'Beauty lies
In many eyes
But love in thine, O Nora Creina!'"

"She might be yours," began Duke, "if I thought you would accept her——"

Gyneth's laugh rang out lightly.

"Mr. Suttleton, you may as well offer me half a dozen of your servants at the same time."

"I wish you had all—I——"

"Give me something I value more," she put in quite lightly, as it seemed.

He looked up suddenly, flushing to the roots of his hair, but she went on calmly:

"Give me, please, a few flowers to take with me to-morrow."

"Is that all?" he asked, heavily.

"That is all, but I think that a great deal. You would do so too, if you could see our one square yard of garden at home."

Where you will be alone," he muttered, thoughtfully.

"If so, I shall never feel it, for I shall be out nearly all day. Besides, I shall have plenty of companions in my pleasant memories of Merecombe."

"May I have a place among them?" asked Duke.

"Indeed you will."

"And, Miss Marshbrook, when you remember me, remember me as trying to do more among my people, to be more to them, and turn my selfish thoughts from growing always inwardly—as you told me they did on the day we took our first drive, when I was speaking so gloomily and selfishly to you before we separated. I remember all your words, for they sank into my heart as they were spoken, and, with Heaven's help, no one shall have cause to say the same again."

"O, Mr. Suttleton! this is the happiest thing I can ever remember," said Gyneth, her large, bright eyes growing dim as she looked at him. "And do you forgive me all the careless, thoughtless things that I have said to you?"

"Not the smallest word you have ever uttered would I have unuttered," he answered, with grave earnestness; "not the smallest shall I ever forget, Gyneth—we are alone together for the last time—tell me if I have brought you any sorrow."

"Never!" she answered, frankly, her eyes full of surprise.

"Thank Heaven! Then I can never do so now, my good little angel."

"Now, Mr. Suttleton," said Gyneth, in a different tone, "we ought to go in." And she went on with him, singing quietly, "O my Nora Creina, dear; my gentle, bashful, Nora Creina!" while he could never have guessed what thoughts lay beneath.

Later in the evening Dr. Denne called, and he gave such a good account of Bertie that—as he told Gyneth—she might leave her without the slightest anxiety.

"I hope you have not any one at home who intrudes at all hours as I do, Miss Marshbrook?" he asked, and Duke gave a quick glance into her face as she answered:

"We have no one whose visits are more welcome, doctor."

"Nor who does us such good," chimed in Bertie.

"You do not suppose mine are doctor's visits, do you, Miss Bertie?" he asked, hastily. "No, indeed; and that is why I look upon myself as such a cool fellow, paying visits of friendship at such unreasonable hours. Do you know, Mr. Suttleton, I was here yesterday before breakfast? Miss Marshbrook, will you escort me to the gate and take my commands for London?"

INSANITY IN CANADA.

Dr Clark of the Toronto lunatic asylum attributes the prevalence of insanity in Canada, to the high tension under which so many people live. "If you try to get 25 horse-power out of a 15 horse-power engine," he says, "the engine is likely to break down." There are at present about 2,850 insane patients in the asylums of this Province, and if you add to these the number confined in gaols and those living with their friends, you have not less than about 3,000 as the insane population of the Province, excluaive, of course, of idiots, who are not, properly speaking, insane. This gives us one insane person for every 640. The proportion in the United States, according to the last census, is about one person in every 522. As to the causes, about 65 per cent. are hereditry—the sins of the fathers visited upon the children—about 10 per cent. are due to alcoholic intemperance." He says he went carefully into the history of 5,600 patients three years ago, and found that the proportion of insane cases due to intemperance was a fraction over 9 per cent. Worry of one kind or other, business troubles, and religious excitement are responsible for about 10 per cent., sexual excesses 10 per cent., while the remainder are due to a variety of other causes.

A STRANGE DEATH.

A FARMER FOUND DEAD WITH THE RUNNER OF A SLEIGH ON HIS NECK.

A young farmer named Wilson, living near Minesing, about twelve miles north of Barrie, was killed last week in an almost unaccountable manner. He went out into the bush with a team of horses for a load of wood, and after an unusual absence search was made, when the poor fellow was found dead, the body being underneath the loaded sleigh with a runner resting across the neck, which must have caused instant death. He must have called out to the team to stop as he fell, as the horses were found standing with the sleigh on the body.

CANTON RIVER BLOCKADED.

THE WAR PARTY IN THE ASCENDANT IN CHINA.

The Chinese have blockaded the Canton river, between the Canton and Borgue forts, leaving only a navigable passage of ninety feet. Calls have been issued for recruits for the Chinese army. The Marquis of Tseng declares that the capture of Sontay by the French had strengthened the war party in China, and it was questionable whether China would now accept mediation for a settlement of the Tonquin difficulty. He also says that China would perhaps double the tax on foreign goods to cover the war expenses.

It is a secret known but to few, yet of no small use in the conduct of life, that when you fall into a man's conversation, the first thing you should consider is, whether he has a greater inclination to hear you, or that you should hear him.

WHY HE WAS IN A HURRY.

"Hey, old man, what's the matter with you? Somebody dead?"

"For goodness sake don't detain me. I'm in an awful hurry. I've got to get home."

"Is your wife or children sick! Why, man alive, you are as pale as a ghost."

"I know I am. I've reason to be; but let me go," and he rushed up the street like a maniac.

Presently he returned with his hands in his pockets, his hat arranged jauntily on one side of his head, a peaceful and happy look on his face, and from his lips came the tuneful strains of "Oh, I'm a Daisy.

"I beg your pardon, old man, for my abruptness a few moments ago, but I had no time to lose; let's smile."

And over a glass of beer he confided to his friend that he had given the coat he had been wearing for several months to his wife to sew on a button and had forgotten to first look through the pockets.

"But I was just in time he said with a heartfelt sigh, and his friend, who was a benedict himself, pressed his hand earnestly and they parted.

ONLY ONE ARM.

THE DISADVANTAGE OF DRIVING WITH A PRETTY GIRL.

"I've got some good news," said a city maiden to her companion, who was visiting her from out of town.

"What is it?" she asked breathlessly.

"Why, George and his friend, Mr. Smith, from New York—that delightful gentleman we met last evening, you know—have invited us to take a sleigh-ride tonight."

"Am I to ride with Mr. Smith?

"Yes."

"But he has only one arm."

"That doesn't make any difference. George says he is accustomed to horses and can drive with one arm just as well as he can with two"

"It makes a great deal of difference," said the young lady from out of town.

"One cannot find any pleasure sleighriding with a one-arm gentleman unless ——"and here her face lighted up hopefully—"she drives herself."

MADE UP HIS MIND.

"Poots," said Mrs. Poots to her husband the day before New Year's, "you remember how that last year and year before last, and for ever so many years back about this time, you resolved to quit smoking and chewing, and you know how mean you felt about it when you took up the habit again?"

"Yes, my dear," responded Poots; I do remember, and I've made up my mind this time to"—

"Hold out faithful to the end; that's a dear, good man," interposed Mrs. Poots.

"Yes," continued Poots; "I have the fullest confidence in my ability to hold out faithful, not only to the end of this year but until the end of time."

"Nobly spoken," cried Mrs. Poots. "But why are you so sure, dear?"

"Because," said Poots, "my resolution this year is to keep right along with my smoking and chewing, and I feel that I have the manhood to adhere to that resolution unflinchingly at any cost"

Twenty-five Per Cent. Stronger than any Other Butter Color.

Burlington, Vt., May 3d, 1882.

I hereby certify that I have examined the Butter Color prepared by Wells Richardson & Co., and that the same is free from alkali or any other substance injurious to health; that I have compared it with some of the best of the other Butter Colors in the market and find it to be more than twenty-five per cent. stronger in color than the best of the others.

I am satisfied that it is not liable to become rancid, or in any way to injure the butter. I have examined it after two months free exposure to the air in a place liable to large changes of temperature, and found no trace of rancidity, while other kinds similarly exposed became rancid. A. H. SABIN,

DIPHTHERIA AND COUGH.

Mr. E. R. Russell, of St. Therese, P. Q., had an attack of diptheria which was succeeded by a cough. This cough, described as "dreadful," settled on his lungs. For months his suffering from it was intense, in fact, until he began using Dr. Wilson's Pulmonary Cherry Balsam. The Balsam calmed his nerves; put an end to his cough, and restored him to perfect health. The action of Dr. Wilson's Pulmonary Cherry Balsam on the nerve's is very remarkable. The comsumptive is calmed and strengthened by it and put on a fair way to recovery.

Needy Tramp—"The burden of the whisky tax."

Dr. Wheeler's Compound Elixir of Phosphates and Calisaya.

SANDY CREEK, AUGUST 31st 1882.

The Compound Elixir of Phosphates and Calisaya prepared by you I have been for two years using LARGELY in my practice, and I assure you that in my judgment there is no preparation of its kind that can compare with it where it is applicable. With feeble, anæmic women, of whom we have so many, and in cases convalescing from prostrating diseases I should hardly know how to get along without it. In Dyspepsia it acts like a charm—in fact in any of the long list of exhaustive diseases it is the remedy. I am, yours truly,

MANHOOD
HOW LOST, HOW RESTORED

We have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.
☞Price in a sealed envelope, 6c. or two postage stamps.
The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicines or the use of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

The Land for the Taxes.

The late sale of lands for taxes at the Court House went slowly. A series of slow bids resulted in the sale of only some thirty-five lots.

Money.

Mr. John A. Bennett, of Otonabee, is prepared to make loans on real estate and to purchase mortgages. Loans will be made at the lowest rates of interest, payable when the borrower deems the most convenient time, the principal being payable at such times as may be agreed upon. Expenses are very light. 4-4t

A Future Politician.

There is a lad in Peterborough who has in him the making of a Tory politician—the art of coming it over people by false pretenses. He has been successfully operating by representing himself as the son of some responsible citizen, and thus obtaining goods at different times, of different shopkeepers.

Peterborough's Morality.

The people of this county are a very virtuous people. The return of convictions made by Her Majesty's Justices of the Peace, for the three months, from the second Tuesday in September to the second Tuesday in December, tells us that the number of convictions was only eighteen, all for trifling offences.

A Former Citizen Suddenly Dies.

Mr. Wm. G. Thomson, formerly a merchant of Peterborough, removed to Lindsay about a year ago. On Thursday morning he was stricken with paralysis and lived only till the following morning. During the holidays Mr. Thomson visited Peterborough. He was in good spirits, and his sudden death is a blow to his many friends. The body was brought to town on Saturday and placed in the vault at the Little Lake Cemetery.

All Hardened Married Men.

At the last meeting of the old Council Jessie McEwan, president of the Woman's Suffrage Association, made a touching appeal to the Council to assist her and her disfranchised sisters in obtaining from the Legislature the right to neglect their household duties and mark their ballots at the polls. But the members of the council, being all hardened married men, completely ignored the matter, and virtually declined signing the moving petition that had been forwarded for their signatures. If the "Boy's Council" of 1866 had been in power, every gallant bachelor would have signed the petition twice. It seems that a few years of experience of married life considerably modifies men's opinions regrading the extension of the privileges and powers of the fair sex.

A Contemptible Creature.

The most contemptible form into which a man can degenerate is that of a sponge on the hard labor of his wife. At the Police Court on Friday, Alfred Huff, a stout, healthy man, was arraigned by his wife, for neglecting to support her and two children. It was proven that not only did he not work, but that he "sponged" upon the hard-earned food procured by his wife by washing and other such work. To add insult to injury, he managed to "sponge" enough whiskey to get drunk, when he would come home and abuse his wife. It may easily be supposed that such a man would take the scathing rebuke of the Police Magistrate without winking. His case was dismissed with the judgment of the Court hanging over him, ready to fall on his first relapse into his evil habits.

Railway Travelling.

This mode of moving about these days is heavily handicapped by the weight and depth of the snow. For the last fortnight the Midland has been waging perpetual warfare against drifts—often coming out second best. In deep cuttings the narrow trench furrowed out for the passing of trains, fills in with snow again on very slight provocation. On Thursday night, early in the evening, the Toronto express became "stuck" in the cutting on the Link, and the passengers were compelled to bivouac there during the night, and did not arrive in town, here, till about six o'clock in the morning. On Friday it was decided to atttempt the voyage "round the horn"—via Millbrook,—but a freight train, stuck in a drift near Bethany, claimed right of way so long that it was five o'clock before we got the Toronto mails, due by the morning express at 11.50.

Poultry Exhibition.

The Midland Central Poultry Association will hold its exhibition in the old Music Hall, Peterborough, on January 29th; 30th and 31st. The copy of the prize list before us, contains a good array of prizes, and it will no doubt attract many exhibitors. We are informed, that the successful arrangement for the exhibition is largely due to the indefatigable exertions of the secretary, Mr. Joseph McClelland. The business men of the town have contributed thirty valuable and beautiful special prizes.

Ashburnham Justice.

On Monday morning, Wm. Mills, Esq., J. P., fined an Italian $20 for carrying a revolver, and $2 for being drunk and disorderly on Saturday night. The man was obstructing the sidewalk near the Albion Hotel, when Constable Craig ordered him to "move on." He refused and was arrested, and a revolver, loaded, found on his person. A foreman on the O. & Q. informed our reporter recently, that every Italian navvy carried a revolver, in which case, an altercation with one of them is attended with some danger.

Culpable Negligence.

It is something wondrously lucky that the hitches in the operations of our fire department do not result in disastrous loss. The steamer works as well as her somewhat worn condition will allow, and the firemen are always on hand and always effective. But there is invariably something wrong. The last fire it was the post office tank. The snow and ice had accumulated over it to such a depth that the opening to it could not be found. If that tank had been depended on alone, the fire might have burned half a dozen houses without molestation. The authorities should recollect that fire is just as willing to burn with the ice and snow a yard thick on top the tanks, as when they are available for use. Such carelessness is culpable, and would be called criminal if some house is burned on account of it over the heads of its inmates.

A Stir in Oil.

Every one will remember the commotion the advent of "China Hall" caused some two years ago in the crockery trade, the wonderful reduction that followed on nearly every commodity dealt by them. The benefits derived from them are even eclipsed now by a complete revolution (caused by China Hall too) in the oil trade, a necessary that every family in the country consumes gallons of annually. On Monday last they began the sale of coal oil and reduced the price at once fully 50 per cent, and are now offering 5 gallons best Canadian oil, large measure for 90 cents, and the same quantity of American for $1.40, a reduction that should go to the hearts, and pockets too, of the head of every family. In receiving the benefits of the above reduction consumers should remember to whom they are indebted for the low prices and place their order with China Hall. 4-1t

According to Request.

Those who have been grumbling and trying to make political capital out of the alleged delay of the Ontario Government in filling the vacancy in the Registry Office here, will find a satisfactory explanation in the following resolution, passed at the June session of the County Council:

"Moved by Mr. Burnham, seconded by Mr. Strickland, that whereas it appears by the books of the County Treasurer, that the moneys received by the County, under the statute, from the Registry Office for the past ten years amounts to the sum of $1,551.36; and whereas no sum would be payable to the County for the current year if an appointment should be made of a Registrar before the first day of January next: Therefore, it is resolved that this Council request the Government to defer making the appointment till after the first day of January next."

The request was accordingly made, and, it will be observed, that it has been literally complied with, Mr. Bernard Morrow having been gazetted, on Saturday last, Registrar of Peterborough.

A Nocturnal Fire.

On Saturday morning about half past one a fire broke out in the wood shed of Mr. W. H. Wrighton's residence, Brock street. Adjoining the shed was a frame kitchen, off which slept the servant girl who first saw the fire and aroused Mr. Wrighton. The girl supplied him with water and he worked heroically and kept the flames well under till the arrival of neighbors resulted in getting the flames under control, while others removed the furniture from the house. It was fifteen minutes before the alarm was rung, and the deep snow delayed the arrival of the steamer. When she did come she was useless; the post-office tank was hermetically sealed with ice and snow. Mr. Stapleton, managing director of the Water Works Company, was sent for, and he gave permission to attach the hose to the hydrant at Craig's grocery store, and though there was only the ordinary pressure at the pump house, the water was driven through about 1200 feet of hose with sufficient force to put out the fire. Mr. Wrighton lost several cords of wood in the shed and the contents of the kitchen—in all about $200, covered by insurance. The building, belonging to the Burnham estate, was damaged about $200 and was also insured. The origin of the fire is not known.

A Footpad's Exploit.

On Saturday night a daring and brutal highway robbery was committed in the northern part of the town. Mrs. Wm. Rogers, who lives on the river road, near Hall's Mills, was returning from town with a small hand-bag containing her purchases, to the value of a dollar or two. At Smith Street she came up to a man walking in front of her. When near Mr. Richard Hall's residence, he turned and asked her the way to Hastings. She was proceeding to tell him, when he suddenly knocked her down by a blow on the mouth, which was left cut and bleeding, and leaping on her he held her down and filled her mouth with snow to stifle her screams. He then began to search for her purse, and feeling the hand-bag, evidently thought that contained the money, for he seized it and ran away. When sufficiently recovered, Mrs. Rogers gave the alarm, but the villain was out of sight. Mrs. Rogers had her purse concealed on her person, so the robber was disappointed. No arrest has been made, though Mrs. Rogers recognized her assailant. Something should be done to make our streets safe from crime of this kind. Only a night or two before a man in the centre of the town was met with a demand for his money, but he responded by knocking the robber down and saving his purse. But a girl or woman cannot thus defend herself.

Great Remnant Sale.

Messrs. Fair, VanEvery & Co., of the Golden Lion, present remarkable inducements in the way of bargains in Dry Goods. This great Remnant Sale is still going on, and their remnants of all kinds of goods, present wonderful chances for saving money. Give them a call.

Personal.

Michael Sanderson, Esq., the veteran reeve of Smith, put in his appearance at the County Council for his fifteenth term, as representative of that township. He was first elected in 1869, and has been returned at every succeeding election. If ever the term "green old age," involving vigor of intellect, a well stored municipal memory and sound judgment, was applicable, it belongs to Mr. Sanderson.

Peterborough Poultry Prizes.

At the recent Poultry Exhibition in Toronto, Peterborough and vicinity secured a good share of the prizes awarded. Mr. John McClelland took third prize for light brahma cockerel and pullet, and third prize for buff Cochins; James Baptie, Springville, took second prize for golden spangled Hamburg hen, two firsts for silver spangled Hamburgs, and a minor prize for Toulouse geese; Mr. N. Lush, took first and second prizes for Langshans.

St. Luke's Ashburnham.

The concert in connection with St. Luke's Church Temperance Society, on Monday evening last, was well attended, and the programme was most entertaining; it was contributed by Mrs. Bowman, Misses Minore, Dunn, Scott Butcher, Millar and McGarrity, and Messrs Gardiner, Sanderson, Best, Lech, Sherwood, F. Millar and the Incumbent. Miss Lech presided at the organ. The next entertainment will be given on February 4th. There will be only two more concerts this winter under the auspices of the Society.

the country is talking of the Great Clearing Sale at W. They are selling the Cheapest Dress Silks ever heard tell of. Ladies' and Misses' Cloth Mantles very cheap. Carpets and House Furnishings cheaper than ever was heard of before. This Firm, when they do advertise a Clearing Sale do astonish the folks and make the country talk all over, of the bargains.

The Stones and the Tee.

On Tuesday evening three rinks of the Peterborough Curling Club started for Toronto to play with the Granites for the Caledonia medal. The game was to have been played on Tuesday afternoon, but the snow blockade prevented the keeping of the engagement. This is the composition of the rinks: No. 1, R. Hall, A. McNeil, Dr. Boucher, E. Philp, skip. No. 2, Adam Hall, R. S. Davidson, W. G. Ferguson, M. Millar, skip. No. 3, Hon. R. Hamilton, C. McGill, W. H. Budden, Geo. Dunsford, skip. They also enter the bonspeil between eastern and western clubs, the prize to be losers' brooms.

Peterborough's the Spot.

The Herald, Campbellford, says that there is not much hope that the office and warehouse of Messrs. Rathbun & Son, Deseronto, recently destroyed at Campbellford, will be rebuilt at that place. The Herald believes that the firm is now looking for a site further north, more suitable for their operations, and that Peterborough may be the place. The selection of Peterborough by Messrs. Rathbun & Son would be so eminently advantageous to their business, that it would justify their character as one of the most far-seeing and enterprising firms in Canada, and make it only natural that they should in the present case, look to the most thriving and go-ahead town in Ontario. We will make them welcome if they come.

Oddfellow Reminiscences.

The following extract from a letter in the Dominion Oddfellow by Bro. Thomas Hardie, of Dubuque, Iowa, will interest the brethren of this district, especially the pioneers of Otonabee Lodge:—

"Writing to you at Belleville, calls to mind the good old days in the spring of 1846, when Bro. Past Grand G. P. Dixon and your correspondent left Montreal, commissioned by the Grand Lodge of Canada as missionaries to Canada West to open new lodges. Of that journey of 800 miles, going and coming, Bro. Campbell gives a graphic account in his early history, and I have a lively recollection of the important aid and assistance given to us at Picton, Cobourg and Peterborough by Hon. Ed. Murney, and other brothers of Victoria Lodge No. 6, Belleville. You of the present time can have no conception of the difficulties which beset travellers then in going west during the breaking up of a Canada winter. There were no palace and dining-room cars on trunk railroads to make comfortable the weary pilgrim. It was indeed a rough and weary road and travellers were often in want of food as well as rest. But, knowing no better, it was enjoyable withal. Peterborough was not out of the woods then, but we found it, and in the old Court House established Otonabee Lodge No. 13. I wonder if Bro. William Cluxton, its first Secretary, remembers the work of that evening. I am glad to know that old Otonabee, after a Rip Van Winkle sleep, is again wide awake and pushing to the front, and it is very pleasant to see the name of Bro. Wm. Cluxton at its head as N. G. Well, he has got ahead of me, for, after many years of rest he now stands as presiding officer of his lodge, whilst I, who have been in harness all the time, occupy only the humble position of R. S. to the N. G. How many workers during the old regime, save and except Bro. Cluxton, are now tenting on the old camp ground?

COUNTY COUNCIL.

INAUGURAL SESSION.

John Lang, Esq., Reeve of Otonabee, Elected Warden—The Standing Committees.

First Day—Tuesday.

The statutory session of the new County Council should have been begun at two o'clock on Tuesday. At the appointed hour there were only some half-dozen members present, but others continued arriving, and at three o'clock, there were, twelve, out of the eighteen members present. The missing members had a valid excuse, for they were storm-stayed and snow-bound at various stages on their way to town. Messrs. Mansfield, Galway; Brown, Belmont; Walsh, Asphodel; and Fraser, Norwood; were the unfortunates; while Messrs. Elmhirst, Burleigh; and Stevenson, Asphodel; were "out in the cold," in another sense—they were without their certificates of qualification, these documents having failed to reach them in time for Tuesday's session. However, about three o'clock, thirteen members assembled in the Council Chamber. The Clerk, Mr. Pearse, took the chair, and, on motion of Mr. Burnham, seconded by Mr. Kidd, the meeting adjourned till the

There being no other nominations, Mr. Lang was declared elected Warden fo the ensuing year, and was conducted tr the chair—having assumed the robe oo office—by his mover and seconder. f

The Warden appointed Mr. F. J. Bell, on his behalf.

A $20 Biblical Prize.

The publishers of Rutledge's Monthly offer twelve valuable rewards in their Monthly for Febuary, among which is the following; We will give $20.00 to the person telling us which is the longest verse in the Old Testament Scriptures by Febuary 10th, 1884. Should two or more correct answers be received, the reward will be divided. The money will be forwarded to the winner, Febuary 15th, 1884. Persons trying for the reward must send 20cts. in silver (no postage stamps taken) with their answer, for which they will receive the March Monthly, in which the name and address of the winner of the reward and the correct answer will be published, and in which several more valuable rewards will be offered. Address Rutledge Publishing Company, Easton, Penna.

St. Andrew's Church.

The annual missionary meeting was held in the church on Monday night. Rev. Mr. Bell, pastor, occupied the chair, and addresses were delivered by Rev. Messrs. D. J. Macdonnel, of Toronto, and J. Cameron, Millbrook. The attendance was good, and good financial success followed the exercises.

Parish Magazine.

A copy of St. Luke's Parish Magazine has been laid on our table. On a perusal of it, we find the contents far superior in all respects to what the appearance of the cover would indicate. If the latter had been produced in some backwoods settlement, where the printing establishment might be carried in a grip-sack, its appearance would excite no unfavorable remark, but to be issued from the office of the Church Guardian, Halifax, it is simply a caricature of design and engraving. One would expect such a magazine to be more esthetic.

Boston Opera Company.

Lovers of good music and of English Opera, will be delighted to know that the Boston English Opera Company, consisting of artists of well earned reputation, will appear in Bradburn's Opera House, on Saturday evening, January 26. They will present Flotow's beautiful English Opera, "Martha," with its delightful music, and with splendid costumes; also the charming comic operetta, "Sir Marmaduke," with its bright witty text, set to the sparkling music of "Iolanthe," "Patience," "Olivette," "Fatinitza," "Pirates of Penzance," and other popular operas. Seats now on sale, and can be secured at Hartley's music store, Hunter street.

Turnbull's Grey Cottons are known North, South, East and West of Peterborough for their good value. See what he is offering during January, by the piece.

CONSISTENT COUNCILLORS.

To the Editor of the EXAMINER:

DEAR SIR,—The present Town Council was elected on an election cry of economy, and, at the first session on Monday night, some members, with the applause of their fellow-Councillors, renewed their professions of intense desire to economize. But, before the sitting was over, the prospect of a pleasure jaunt to Ottawa at the expense of the ratepayers, drove all ideas of economy out of their minds. It was decided that the Council as a body form a deputation to go to Ottawa and urge upon the Government the importance of pushing on the completion of the Trent Valley Canal. Now, the Canal is extremely desirable; but, even so great a boon as it is, may be paid for too dear. Conservative as I am, I recall with shame the fact that at the general election of 1882, the Government practically asserted that it existed for no other purpose than to build this canal; that it was a great public work, involving the interests of the whole country and that the country should build it. But the elections over, we hear the last of it, and it becomes necessary to send deputations to stir up the Government to do what they have solemnly promised to do. If I have promised to pay a man $10, and postpone the payment till the bailiff is sent as a deputation to urge me to pay what I would, if an honest man, pay without urging, can I be called honest? Of course the building and working of the canal will greatly benefit Peterborough, but the Government has promised to build it (and thanks to the N. P. there is no scarcity of funds as an excuse). And there is no excuse either for the town funds, to the extent of $300 or $400, being spent to pay the expense of a junketting expedition to Ottawa, especially when many a poor taxpayer has had to deprive himself and his family of necessary food and comforts to pay the taxes that furnish the funds. If the Government mean to build the canal, they will build it; if they don't, a hundred deputations wont make them do it. The very fact that these deputations are thought necessary, shows me that the best way to get the canal built within this century, is to have an election in this district every year; for there is sure to be some money granted it on the eve of an election.

Yours truly,
ECONOMY.

DUMMER.

In 1882 Mr. John Parker, of Dummer, purchased three pounds of White Russian oats. He sowed them the same year and had a yield of six bushels and a half. The following year he sowed six bushels on four acres, and had a yield of three hundred and three bushels—nearly eighty bushels per acre. Mr. Parker, says the Register, has still a few bushels of these oats left, and will sell them at 60c. per bushel.

This accommodation will enable him to handle barley next season, and the local market will thus be greatly increased.

Early Monday morning a fire broke out in Barber & Leslie's furnishing store, Front street, which was completely gutted and all its contents destroyed. The flames extended to John Grant's boot and shoe store, and Allan McFee's jewelry store, the stocks in which sustained considerable damage. The losses and insurances are as follows: Angus McFee, owner of buildings, $2000; insured for $2000 in the London Insurance association. Barber & Leslie, $7000, insured in the Norwich Union for $4000; John Grant, loss covered by insurance of $4000 in the North British and Mercantile; Allan McFee, loss covered by insurance of $3000 in Royal.

OMEMEE.

One day last week Mr. Wm. Cottingham met with a very painful accident, while threshing. He had taken hold of a sheaf, just as the band cutter was drawing his knife across the band, and had the back of the fingers on the right hand badly cut, one in fact being nearly off.

On Saturday evening last, Mrs. Anderson, mother of Mrs. T. A. McPherson, met with a very painful accident. She was going from one room to another, and, not having a light to see by, she made a mistake and turned to the stairway, which is a very long one, and fell from the top to the bottom; fortunately no bones were broken, but the old lady had a bad shaking up.

TRENTON.

The County Council of Hastings, by a large majority, refused to continue the grant to Trenton High School. The reason assigned was that Trenton has no better claim than Belleville, and that the poor sections of the back part of the county are more in need of assistance. Evidently the County Council intend, says the Courier, sponging the higher education of some of their children out of Trenton, as they have done out of Belleville for years. Both Belleville and Trenton would be treating the county rightly if they refused admission to pupils from the county without a fee. We do not advise this; for although it may be necessary sometimes "to fight the devil with fire," we do not wish to put ourselves on a level with such niggardly people, who evidently want Trenton to tax themselves to educate their sons and daughters.

CAMPBELLFORD

The Warkworth cheese factory made 222,822 pounds of cheese last season, from 2,258,548 pounds of milk. The amount realized in sales was $22,959, and the standard was $30.49.

One night recently during the late storm, a certain individual was found floundering in the snow, and while trying to reach home he fell upon a barbed-wire fence and cut himself badly. He was not under the influence of the sun at that hour.

There is a wife-beater residing somewhere on Rear street, and one evening last week he laid hold of his life partner and gave her a "drubbing." The unfortunate woman resented the attack of her lord and master, and fought also, and for some minutes the spectators witnessed a sharp battle. Whiskey was at the bottom of the trouble.

The amount of milk delivered at the Menie cheese factory in 1883 was 1,332,813 pounds, from which there was a product of 137,941 pounds of cheese. About nine and three-fifths pounds of milk were necessary in the manufacture of one pound of cheese. The total receipts from the sale of cheese were $14,408.21, the average price being about 10¼ cents per pound. The standard of 3,000 pounds realised $32.43, but with manufacturing and other expenses deducted it was $28.45.

LINDSAY.

Lindsay is agitating the subject of a winter race meeting.

Victoria County Council elected Mr. Thos. Smithson, Deputy Reeve of Fenelon, Warden for 1884. It is not often that such a distinction falls to the lot of a deputy reeve.

Lindsay Town Council decided against appointing a Trent Valley Canal deputation to Ottawa on Feb. 5th.

Victoria County Council memorialized the Government at Ottawa to make an appropriation for public buildings in Lindsay, during the present session. Too late—or, perhaps, too early—wait till just before an election.

Mr. F. C. Taylor has purchased, for $2,700, the commodious residence of Mr. Edward Flood, Mill street, and will move into it in the spring.

One of the heaviest hogs of the season was delivered at the market on Thursday by Mr. G. Carr. Cleaned and dressed it scaled 648 lbs.

What with the new English church, an extended Methodist sanctuary, the new Salvation Army barracks, and a sure-to come new Presbyterian church, with young and active and talented ministers, Lindsay will be very well off for church accommodation and teaching.

As stories of clever dogs and horses are all the go, Mr. R. H. Abercrombie, of Manvers, is to the fore with one about an intelligent pig which he purchased from Mr. John Kearns, of the same township, last fall. The pig was taken from the 14th to the 12th con., and about a week after, found its way across the two concessions to its old home, swimming Pigeon river and working its way through a swamp and vacant fields. Mr. Abercrombie would like to know if any farmer round has a pig to beat that?

During the snow storm of Wednesday morning, says the Post, a man, wrapped in a coon-skin coat and seated in a cutter half-filled with snow, drove up to the Express Office door. "Say, mister," he shouted, "tell the fellow with that seal-skin cap to come out here." The party addressed looked into the office and translated the message, and the Chesterfield of the establishment at once stepped out. Leaning over the side of the rig the traveller enquired: "I'm here—whoa there—the minister's in Beaverton—stand still, you brute—my girl's in Haliburton. Can you marry us by telephone over the wires, and do you—stand around, whoa—think the bargain will be binding?" The responsibility of the situation flashed upon the Chesterfieldian mind, and giving an evasive answer, the express man retired. He is still wrestling with the problem.

Farmers will save money by calling at Turnbull's for Cottonades, Ducks, Shirtings, Towellings, Ticks, and all Canadian Manufacturers' Goods. he keeps the best makes and is satisfied with a small profit.

SKATING CARNIVAL.

The skating carnival which took place on Wednesday evening of last week was quite a success. It was no doubt the severe storm in the evening that prevented many from attending. There was quite a sprinkling of ladies present among the spectators. As will be seen by the list of those in costume, by far the greater number were ladies. The Victoria Brass Band of this place played some lively airs, which added very much to the pleasure of those present. We might mention that the costumes of Miss M. Gallon and Mr. John Campbell, representing the King and Queen of Diamonds, looked very fine. The costume of Miss Harrison, as a Russian lady, was very rich in appearance, and those of several others were splendid. The names and number of those in costume were as follows:

ENTERTAINMENT.

A public entertainment under the auspices of the Canada Methodist Church, in aid of the parsonage fund, was held in the P. C. A. Hall on Thursday evening, the 24th inst. Considering the stormy weather and the bad roads it proved an entire success. The programme consisted of glees, solos, readings, recitations, club swinging, etc., etc., and was ably sustained throughout. Mrs. Chambers and Miss Stephens, of Peterborough, who contributed much to the success of the entertainment, were well received and heartily applauded. Prof. McNaughton in his club swinging (which was quite a novelty) by the great variety of difficult movements which he performed with so much grace and ease, was the recipient of repeated and hearty applause. In the second part of the programme the hall was darkened, and the clubs were to have been illuminated, but owing to some defect in the lamps the audience were deprived of what would have been a rare treat. Our local talent acquitted themselves, as they always do, most creditably.

PETEBBOROUGH, JAN. 31, 1884.

AMONG THE LAKES OF NORTHERN PETERBOROUGH.

Racy Records of a Rambling Writer.

[In the issue of Jan. 10th, we gave the first of a series of letters from a correspondent, in reference to the "Lakes of Northern Peterborough," but owing to irregularity of the mails, another instalment had failed to arrive. Below will be found the second of the series:

YOUNG'S POINT.

At present it contains two hotels, two churches (Roman Catholic and Bible Christian), school house, one store (kept by James Stewart, who does a large business), post-office, saw and grist mills, and about a dozen private residences. The place is beautifully situated on the west bank of Katchewanake Lake.

Bidding adieu to our old friend Young, we were soon on our way over the Government road for Burleigh Falls, six miles distant. For the greater portion of the way the country is quite level, of a heavy clay soil, underlaid by limestone formation. The fall wheat looked well in some fields. I noticed great pine stumps lying upon the surface, drawn out by the assistance of a powerful stump machine. The buildings are substantial, old-fashioned log structures, in which the mud chimneys have been replaced by brick, with here and there an occasional stove-pipe projecting above the roof.

THE OLD WELL SWEEP

and iron-bound bucket have been supplanted by the modern pump. On nearing Burleigh Falls enormous red granite boulders meet the eye, many of them from thirty to fifty feet high, and from seventy to one hundred feet in diameter, with perpendicular sides; they appear to have been hewn out by a master builder, and no doubt were dropped during the "Drift Period," in great profusion as well as confusion.

"BIDDY MCMANUS."

When within two miles of Burleigh Falls, attention was attracted to a small, one-story log building, on the right-hand side of the road, which is kept by Biddy McManus, as a stopping place for the Burleigh stage, as it makes its daily trips of forty miles with Her Majesty's mails. The little cottage is neat and tidy, and only a few minutes are required to broil a steak, chicken or partridge, in fine style. The house has a wide reputation among the residents of northern Peterborough, as well as among travellers in this section. Our departing salute was, as we turned our faces northwards, "Long life to Biddy McManus."

On approaching the bridge (which crosses the neck of Stony Lake) at the Falls—a wooden structure about 400 feet long—we noticed on the opposite side a large three-story hotel, facing the road, with spacious verandah along the front and each side, known as the kept by John Holmes. On the left of the road stands large barns and out-buildings. The snow storm was increasing, and it being near noon, I appropriated them to my use, and started for the house, hoping to procure something for the "inner man." The proprietor being away deer-hunting, I related to "mine hostess" a pitiful story of hunger and cold, hoping thereby to induce her to prepare a lunch. I was informed "it was out of hours for meals, dinner only being served at one o'clock." Thinking I might have lost my way, and was approaching some great metropolis, where the rules of formality were to be strictly observed, I went out to survey the scene. No church spires, street railways, or brown stone fronts met the eye. Nothing but in every direction; the house stood upon a rock nearly a fourth of mile long, which, no doubt, had the effect to dampen the ardour of "mine hostess" for the "rocks" in my pocket, which I was anxious to exchange for a good, square meal, being nearly famished with cold and hunger. The snow came down in great flakes. I thought what a contrast waiting there two hours for dinner, or waiting two hours to be hanged. There being a hotel eight miles north, and wishing to complete fifty miles of my journey that day, burying myself in my robes and braving the storm, I drove on. The country, for eleven miles east and six miles west, is lined by the same red granite rock formation which was observed farther south, and from which Stony Lake derives its name. Along the road, for the first mile north, my buggy rolled and rattled over nothing but rock after rock, as they laid in ridges extending north and south, in some places reaching a height of fifty to one hundred feet, with a few patches of green moss growing thereon, for a covering. Their white and red upturned faces shone like snow banks, having been polished by the storms and suns of many centuries. The next five miles I passed over a fine undulating tract of well-timbered country, sparsely settled. The soil here is of a clay loam, the timber being hardwood. A large opening was soon reached, where on the left hand of the road, nestles a beautiful sheet of water about one mile long and three-fourths of a mile in width, upon the south bank of which lives Giles Stone, farmer, and postmaster of Haultain post-office. His residence, a substantial log structure, was erected in 1861. His hair has been whitened by nearly seventy winters, and although he had battled hard in the life struggle for an inheritance, he seemed remarkably well preserved. His grandfather, Giles, an old U. E. Loyalist, was of English extraction, born in New Haven, Connecticut. During the American War he was employed carrying despatches and mails for the British Government. After the acknowledgement of Independance he emigrated to Canada with his family of seven children, and settled in the township of Percy, county of Northumberland, where he died 1846, at the ripe age of 91 years.

ROCKS, ROCKS, ROCKS,

"CEDAR LAKE,"

Percy was the birth-place of a numerous progeny of children and grandchildren, one of whom was Giles, he being third in order of birth, which occurred in 1818. He emigrated to the township of South Burleigh in 1861, with his father, who since died at the age of 84. Mr. Stone is that located north of Stony Lake, there being no road except a surveyor's trail, and no bridge at the Falls. He constructed a rude scow and crossed Stony Lake, with the first wagon, in the spring of 1861. He assisted in clearing the right of way for the Government road a distance of five miles north.

John Martin erected the bridges at Burleigh Falls in 1862, and, after completing them, while standing on a boom above the bridge, a raft of square timber was passing, and he was struck with an oar, went over the falls and was drowned, it being the first death in the township. Mr Stone sat in the first municipal council north of Stony Lake, 1865, and has been postmaster since 1862, the office being located at his residence.

Soon after leaving his place, on entering a piece of woods, game appeared to be very plentiful. I met the ever-present small boy, standing by the roadside in a thicket of bushes, thinly clad, shivering in the cold storm. He appeared to have a gritty look about him. Thinking he might accept a ride, I hailed him: "My boy, where are you going?" Nowhere, Sir, I am waiting for Hugh"—the mail carrier from the north. Plying him with questions, I soon learned that he had stowed away behind a log, being the result of his day's hunt. He was waiting the arrival of Her Majesty's mail carrier, to send them to market.

My long, tedious journey of twenty miles, over a rough road, had sharpened my appetite for dinner. I conceived the idea of purchasing the entire lot, and carrying them along and having them cooked at the next stopping place. I struck a bargain at twenty-five cents a brace, a total of $1.50. I tendered him a $5.00 bill, he lacking the necessary change, I offered him one dollar, promising to send the balance by the next day's mail; but, it was no use. He snatched his birds off the wagon and said: "See here, mister, are you a scribe?" "I sometimes write short squibs for the papers!" "I thought so, you fellows ride on railroads and steamboats at half price; if you attend a circus you go in free, or crawl under the tent. You can't get my game at half-price; I sell for cash." My sumptuous repast vanished in a moment. I thought of the old maxim, "A bird in hand, is worth two in a bush." After parting with the "coming man," as I drove away, I heard the musical echo of his whistle:

"Down in a coal mine, underneath the ground, Digging dusky diamonds all the season round."

How many an honest heart has been wrapped up beneath a ragged coat. How many a millionaire began life's journey to fortune in an humble way. Vanderbilt, the railroad king, who left fifty millions at his death, began in life plying a small row-boat between New York and Brooklyn, carrying passengers at 25 cents each. Jay Gould peddled tinware. The Astors, who died leaving two hundred millions, travelled through swamps, spearing muskrats through a hole in the ice, skinned the game, backed the hides hundreds of miles and traded them for whiskey and salt pork. Perhaps that boy may become the leader in some future parliament, and introduce a new game law to protect the deer, which are rapidly being slaughtered to gratify the ambitious hunter of this northern country. Passing on, a fine buck darted across the road and disappeared in the wood, and a flock of twenty partridges flew up in a tree by the roadside.

WHAT A COUNTRY FOR GAME,

thought I—a hunter's luck—"no gun, plenty of game."

McCauley's hotel was reached late in the afternoon, and after digging myself out from under the snow, seeing the team cared for, we sat down to a sumptuous meal of venison steak, with all the delicacies of the season. The house, situated half-way between Burleigh Falls and Apsley, is a log structure, one and a half stories high, with numerous log barns and sheds attached, and is a model of comfort under its present management. The building was erected in 1863 by Edward Sanderson, better known as "Britannia Ned," who accidentally dropped in while we were at dinner, and from him it was learned that the house was the birthplace of his daughter, Sarah Jane, who was the

FIRST WHITE CHILD

born in the township of Burleigh. She was then christened by the Rev. W. Sheridan, of Peterborough. Mr. Sanderson states, that during the early days of settlement, as many as sixty persons were stowed away in a single night in that log house, 24x30 feet on the ground; which must have been like packing herrings in a box. This hotel is situated on the Government road, about half way between the rear townships and Peterborough, the county seat, 50 miles distant. Hence it is constantly thronged, during the long winter evenings, with travellers. The proprietor has to sit up nights to keep a fire to warm his guests, who sometimes leave at break of day, and he, not having a license, often fails to receive any compensation for his trouble. Rev. Father O'Connell, of Douro, was once travelling north, on his spiritual mission, and, after being warmed and refreshed at this place, generously tendered the proprietor half-a-dollar, who nearly lost his reason in consequence of this extreme generosity. This hostelrie is one of the best we have met with. The License Commissioners would confer a great favor upon the travelling public by granting this house a license. Eight miles west and six miles east of the Government road at this point the country is entirely uninhabited, and is a so called on account of the numerous bands of wolves that roam over the country, making night hideous by their howlings; while along the road to the north, for several miles, the land is rough and mountainous, sparsely covered with dry pines, towering away up into the heavens, like so many ship masts. Thousands of these dry trees meet the eye, reminding one of approaching the harbors of Portsmouth and Liverpool.

"WOLF RANGE,"

"BROWN'S FALLS,"

a short distance north, situated upon "Eels' Creek," is crossed by a bridge about one hundred feet in length. The spot is pointed out as being the place where Henry Brown went over the falls (many years since), while breaking a jam of logs, and miraculously came out alive. After crossing the bridge the road follows the creek for some distance, and not unfrequently when leaving, it ascends the most lofty pinnacles. It is impossible to say what induced the Government to select such a route for a roadway. Perhaps the contract was let by the mile, and some one was anxious to make the job last as long as possible. After ascending one of the highest hills, one can count fifty smaller ones, varying in size from one acre to three, with great rocks peeping out in every direction. North of the falls, while descending a steep hill, my attention was attracted to several log buildings by the roadside in the valley, upon the bank of Eels' Creek, owned by Ullyott & Saddler, lumbermen, and used as a storehouse and supply camp. Two men were at the door, sawing wood. The elder one had a venerable appearance. The snows of three-score or more winters had whitened his locks. He cheerfully granted the privilege of warming by his fire, and we soon fell into conversation regarding by-gone days. The old gentleman speaks two languages, French and English, and, as I knew nothing of the former, I addressed him in my native tongue. He proved to be the largest stock owner in the county. After hearing the story of his early life; the misfortunes he had encountered; I was forcibly impressed with the striking contrast between his circumstances and many others, who began life's journey upon the same road to fortune with him. He was born in the county Sligo, Ireland, 1823. His father, John, and mother immigrated to Canada when he was but nine months old. The day they landed at Quebec his father's wealth consisted of twenty sovereigns, which he carried in his pocket. While assisting some passengers with their children over the side of the ship, he lost his balance and fell into the water and was drowned. His body was never recovered. This circumstance left his mother a widow, in a strange country, without the necessary means to purchase for herself and offspring a meal or night's lodging. Grieved at the loss of her husband she sought the assistance of kind, Christian friends; through their intercessions a home was secured for her, and she soon found employment as a domestic. In the meantime her child was entrusted to the kind care of a nurse; from her meagre earnings she maintained herself, and, as her son advanced in years, he was sent to school. In 1834 she moved to Montreal, and died with the cholera, leaving James, 11 years of age, an orphan without a relative to exercise for him parental care. For a short time he secured employment as a messenger, or errand boy, and was subsequently bound out by his guardian as an apprentice, for a term of four years, to John Converse, a rope-maker of that city. At the expiration of his term of service he shipped on board of a trading schooner, commanded by Capt. Lesperance, who was engaged in the fish trade at Fortune Bay, Cape Cod, St. George, Big River, and other ports, in which service he remained three years. He returned to Quebec, and was engaged at Hinchinbrooke for some time, lumbering; and subsequently moved to the State of New York, to a place called Ellenburg, where he remained until the spring of 1862, during which time he realized the necessity of a better knowledge of the English language. He devoted his entire leisure hours to the rudiments of a common school education, and studiously attended night schools, and soon laid the foundation of his success in after years. In March, 1862, he came to the county of Peterborough, and assisted in the construction of the Burleigh Government road, the contractor being James Walsh. He was employed in chopping and clearing the way from Burleigh Falls to the twenty-first mile post, situated about half a mile north of Apsley. He soon entered the services of Campbell & Hughson, lumbermen, and was stationed at their supply camp, as chief clerk, it being situated on the Burleigh road, lot 14, con. 6, in Burleigh township. Four years later the firm transferred their interests to

JAMES LICKLEY,

ULLYOTT & SADDLER,

of Peterborough, in whose employ he has ever since been, receiving and disbursing annually thousands of dollars worth of supplies, used in their lumber camp. Mr. Lickley laid by his hard earnings, and soon accumulated a few hundred dollars. In 1863, many of the settlers of northern Peterborough not having the means of purchasing stock, induced him to buy them a cow. In accordance with their wishes he organized a system of

LOANING A COW

to each applicant, for the term of three years, when she was to be returned to him with the first birth. If by any accident she was killed by lightning or the falling of a green tree, the loss was to be borne by himself. His first applicant was Billings Kilborne, the present postmaster—and farmer—of Chandos township, who settled in March, 1863. Since that date Mr. Lickley's flocks and herds have increased to such an extent that he is at the present time the largest owner in the county, notwithstanding he has annually sold a large number. His herd numbers 160 head, besides a large flock of sheep, scattered over an area from Young's Point to the provisional county of Haliburton, the value of which would exceed several thousand dollars. If by chance he meets a stray cow in the road, he never throws a stone at her, for fear she may belong to his herd. He is strictly temperate, honest, accurate in all his dealings, and shares the confidence of his employers to the greatest degree. During the long sixteen years of his residence in Northern Peterborough he has indulged in that life-long cherished sport, hunting the wild partridge, duck and doe. He is often seen, with his gun and dog, scaling the rocky heights, or by the water's edge of some lake or pebbled brook, in quest of fish or game. When the shades of evening gather around, he retires to his humble log cabin, laden with the proceeds of the day's hunt, and after placing his trusty rifle in its accustomed place, over the door, prepares, with his own hands, his repast of partridge, venison, or other game, while his faithful dog, his only companion, sits by his side and patiently waits his share of the spoils. After it is over, Mr. Lickley sits by the bright fire during the long winter evenings, perusing the public journals of the day, or some modern scientific work, or Shakspere, Dickens, Byron or Burns, until the "wee sma' hours," when he retires for the night, and the sweet music of the rushing brook that glides by his door sings him to sleep. Many years ago the object of his love and admiration, when just budding into lovely womanhood, obeyed the inevitable summons of that dread messenger—who treads alike the wigwam of the redman, the log cabin of the whites, and the palaces of kings—and passed beyond this life to join his sainted mother in the great unknown. In obedience to the love he bore her,

HE NEVER MARRIED.

He is the last of his race. In a few short years he will have reached the autumn of his existence, when the rose-hued memories of the past wither like the fallen leaves," and pass down to the Great Inn, where all are welcome guests, and the only salutation by his many friends will be, "Good night." His flocks and herds may live to pluck the June daisies and sweet May clover from off his grass covered mound, and then pass away. But the many kind and generous deeds in the life of James Lickley will live in the minds of the decendents of the early settlers of Northern Peterborough and Haliburton for generations to come.

Parting from my old friend with regret, I was soon jogging along, at about five miles an hour, over mountain and dale—not a visible settler in the next four miles. Upon nearing the brook again, at a crossing, there was plainly visible the remains of a log structure, 10x12 feet, one story high, erected by Christopher White, 1862, among the rocks on the south bank of Eels' Creek. It contained only one door, in which were bored several auger holes for windows. Here he spent several years, with a family of seven children. Only three or four half decayed logs now remain, while the former occupant moved many years since to the provisional county of Haliburton, where he is now an independent farmer.

Higher Prices for Butter.

All dairymen who use Wells, Richardson & Co's. Improved Butter Color, agree that it increases the value of butter several cents a pound. It is pure and harmless, convenient for instant use, has no taste or odor, and gives a clear, golden richness to the butter. It is the very best butter color obtainable, and is not expensive. In every state in the Union the demand for it is increasing.

Northumberland and Durham Division Grange.

ANNUAL MEETING.

Pursuant to the call of the M. W., Northumberland and Durham Division Grange, No. 14, met at Campbellford on Thursday January 10th.

The Worthy Master, after a few preliminary remarks, regretting that on account of the great snow-storm, which blockaded the several railways, and prevented quite a number of delegates from attending, a number of the delegates were snow-bound on the Grand Junction Division R. R. cars, where they were exposed to a fast, not being able to get a supply of provisions for over 24 hours. The W. M. then opened the Grange in due form.

The roll of Officers being called, the following responded to their names: Levi VanCamp, Master; J. E. Gould, Secretary; B. J. Rogers, Jr., Treasurer; Sister L. VanCamp, Lecturer; Sister J. Trull, Stewart; Platt Hinman, Gate Keeper.

The following were appointed to fill the places of the absent Officers until their arrival: Bro. Andrew Young, Overseer; Bro. J. Trull, Chaplain; Bro. James Tindle, Assistant-Steward; Mrs. P. Hinman, Ceres; Sister Trull, Pomona; Sister J. Tindle, Flora; Sister Rogers, L. A. Steward.

Auditors; Bros. Platt Hinman and Jas. Tindle.

Minutes of previous meeting read and adopted.

A committee on Credentials was appointed.

STANDING COMMITTEES.

The Worthy Master appointed Bros. Platt Hinman and Andrew Young a Committee to appoint standing Committees, whose report was adopted as follows:

ON MILEAGE.—Bros. T. B. Carlow, Jas. Tindle and J. F. Mallory.

ON CLAIMS AND GRIEVANCES.—Bros. J. Trull, L. VanCamp, M. Winters, and T. Spears.

ON AGRICULTURAL IMPROVEMENTS.—Bros. N. Peters, Jas, Tindle, A. Young, J. Garbutt, and W. T. Wiggins.

ON EDUCATION.—Bros B. J. Rogers, jr., J. E. Gould, D. Ewing, Exra Hall, Ira Brisbin. Sisters Trull and Tindle.

ON PRINTING.—Bros. J. E. Gould, D. J. Rogers, Levi VanCamp, and Jesse Trull.

ON SOCIABILITY.—Bros. A. Young, T. B. Carlow, D. D. Henderson. Sisters J. Trull, L. VanCamp, and J. Tindle.

GOOD OF THE ORDER.—Bros. Jesse Trull, Levi VanCamp, P. Hinman, G. M Clark, Jas. Moore, T. B. Carlow, and E. Honey.

ON INSURANCE.—Bros. J. E. Gould, M. Winters, D. Kennedy, L. VanCamp, Ira Brisbin, and W. W. Farley.

After some work of minor interest, the

REPORT ON EDUCATION

was submitted and adopted as follows:

We, your Committee on Education, beg leave to report that, in our opinion, the branches taught in our rural Schools are too numerous, and that the too frequent examinations now held, we think, tend to the injurious system of examining. That, in our opinion, the very best Teachers are in the end the most efficient for the younger pupils, as well as, finally, the cheapest.

We regret that farmers too frequently pay too much attention to the accumulation of property, and leave it to their children, forgetting that property laid up in the intellect, through Education is a sure investment, as it cannot be taken away by the failure of banks or the knavery of deceitful individuals.

AUDITORS' REPORT.

The Auditors' Report was adopted as follows:—

The Secretary's financial statements of the receipts and expenditures of the Northumberland and Durham Division Grange, for year ending December 31st, 1883.

Total receipts, $567.23. Disbursements, $600.82.

We, the undersigned auditors, have examined Secretary's books, and find his receipts amount to $567.32 and that his disbursements are $600.82, showing that he paid out the sum of $13.50 of his own money more than he has received. We find vouchers for all except 3rd quarter's dues to Provincial Grange, (since been received). We would recommend that an order be drawn on the Treasurer, in favor of Secretary, for the amount, all of which is respectfully submitted.

PLATT HINMAN. } Auditors.
JAMES TINDLE. }

We, the undersigned, have examined the Treasurer's books, and find that he has received during the year $209.19, and has paid out $93.19, leaving a balance, this day, on hand of $116.00.

PLATT HINMAN. } Auditors.
JAMES TINDLE. }

Campbellford, January 10th, 1884.

The mileage committee reported recommending the expenses of delegates, to the amount of $66.75, and their report was concurred in.

THE COMMITTEE ON INSURANCE

reported and their report was adopted.

We, your Committee on Insurance, beg leave to present the following report.

We have great pleasure in reporting the continued success of the Dominion Grange Fire Insurance Association.

Since it was organized, seven years ago, it has steadily increased, and is now established among the most reliable Insurance Associations in the Province.

Through careful and efficient management it has proved its ability to insure farm property at a cost of slightly over half what other reliable companies are charging.

We have many testimonials from members whose policies have expired certifying that their insurance has only cost about half what other companies are charging.

The success which our Company has had in the past, we hope, will encourage members of the Order everywhere to use their influence to make their own Company the leading and most popular in the Province.

Respectfully submitted,

D. KENNEDY
JESSE TRULL,
JAMES MOORE,
J. E. GOULD.

The report was adopted.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE'S REPORT.

Moved by D. D. Henderson, seconded by J. Garbutt, that the Secretary's remuneration for the past year's services be the sum of $50,00. Carried.

Moved by J. Garbutt, seconded by D. D. Henderson, that Mr. Jones be heard in reference to the matter of dispute between himself and the Grange. Carried.

Mr. Jones said if the Grange would accept it he was willing to pay over, as settlement in full, the sum of $50.

Moved by John Garbutt, seconded by W. Brisbin, that Mr. Jones' proposal to pay $50.00, in full of all claims against him, be accepted, and that we give him a receipt in full on payment of the above amount. Carried.

Resolved, that the Secretary and Master be authorized to make the best settlement possible with Mr. Wright, attorney in the suit N. & D. D. Grange vs. Jones.

Moved and seconded that an order be drawn on the Treasurer, in favor of Bro. L. VanCamp, for the sum of $10.00, being refundment for first call on stock, paid by him for this Division Grange, in the Wholesale Supply Company. Carried.

Moved by Bro. W. Brisbin, seconded by D. D. Henderson, that, after ascertaining the probable expense of conferring the fifth degree, we think it advisable to defer the conferring of said degree for the present. Carried.

The sum of $29.40, was paid as expenses of attending the meeting of the executive committee, and the report was adopted.

The committee on the GOOD OF THE ORDER

reported, recommending that our Delegates to the Provincial Grange be instructed to ask the Prov. Grange to send out lecturers to advocate our principles more fully before the agriculturists of our country and that a reduction of dues be made from Provincial to Dominion Grange. Adopted.

The report of the committee

ON LEGISLATION

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

Fifth Parliament—First Session.

On Wednesday the House met and elected Colonel Clark, member for Centre Wellington, Speaker of the House.

SPEECH FROM THE THRONE.

The Legislature was formally opened on Thursday by His Honor Lieutenant-Governor Robinson, with the following speech:—

Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the Legislative Assembly:

It gives me great pleasure to welcome you to your legislative duties as members of a new Parliament, convened for the first time since the general election of the past year. The occasion is rendered more auspicious by the advent of a new Governor General, who, by his public appearances and addresses, has already created a favorable impression on the minds of all classes in the Dominion. The fact that his Excellency is a trained and experienced statesman is a guaranty that the high and honorable position to which he has been called by Her Majesty will be wisely filled.

It is satisfactory to know during the past year that the Bureau of Statistics has continued to do good service by collecting and disseminating trustworthy information respecting the agricultural and manufacturing industries of the Province also that the highly practical experiments which have done so much to justify the establishment of the model farm in connection with the Agricultural College have been continued with conspicuous advantage.

The newly instituted agricultural examinations are also likely to prove of much service. I have much pleasure in anticipating that the means adopted for the diffusion of agricultural knowledge will in a constantly increasing degree, make the farmer's calling more intellectual, attractive and remunerative.

It was my agreeable duty last year to congratulate your predecessors upon the work done by the Provincial Board of Health. The report of this body shows that trial and further experience have produced increased efficiency. As well directed efforts to improve the sanitary condition of the people's houses, promote longevity and increase the sum of general happiness, commend to your thoughtful consideration the subject of rendering the services of the Board still more effective and valuable. It is with special satisfaction that I congratulate you on the early and successful application of the Free Libraries Act; following the example promptly set by the Provincial Capital, other municipalities have availed themselves of the provisions of the Act and taken steps to tax themselves for the establishment of free public libraries. I hope that this is but the beginning of a beneficent movement which will have far reaching effects.

You will be pleased to know that by a recent decision of the Judical Committee of Her Majesty's Privy Council the right of Provincial Legislatures to regulate the traffic in intoxicating drinks is placed beyond controversy. The judgments in this case, and the insurance case, and the decision that lands escheating to the Crown for want of heirs, are the property of the Province, taken in connection with the observations made by the learned judges in disposing of these cases have had a reassuring effect on the public mind by showing that the federal principle embodied in the British North American Act, and the autonomy it was intended to secure for the individual Provinces, are likely to be safe in the hands of the Court of final resort for constitutional questions.

At the last Session of the Federal Parliament an Act was passed declaring that the main lines of railways in the Province, and all railways now or hereafter connecting with them or crossing them shall be subject to the Legislative authority of the Parliament of Canada. It will be for you to consider to what extent this enactment removes from the control of the Provincial Legislature, roads which have been constructed under its authority and subsidized out of the Provincial treasuries, and also to consider whether the British North American Act was intended to enable the Federal Parliament to interfere in this manner with the Legislative authority of the provinces.

I am glad to have it in my power to state, as the result of negotations between my Government and that of Manitoba that a case has been agreed upon for a reference of the dispute respecting the inter-provincial boundary, to the Judicial Committee of Her Majesty's Privy Council. The first question to be decided under that reference is the validity of the award made by the arbitrators in 1878, and a controlling condition of the reference is, that the hearing before the Privy Council shall take place at a fixed date in the present year. The agreement includes interim arrangements in regard to all matters of Provincial jurisdiction.

A bill will be submitted to you for the purpose of giving full effect to those parts of the agreement which require legislative sanction.

Among the other measures to be submitted for your consideration will be a bill to render the services of the Board of Health more effective and valuable, a bill to authorise second locations by settlers who have obtained free grants and have parted with them, a bill to provide voters' lists for the unorganized parts of the Province, and a bill for the further improvement of the election law, and for the prevention and punishment of corrupt practices at elections.

In this connection I invite your attention to the expediency of further extending the already liberal franchise which prevails in this Province.

The subject of protecting the public interest in streams used for the purpose of floating timber will no doubt again receive your earnest attention.

The reports of the various departments of the public service for the past year will be laid before you. Among these are, for the first time, reports on the important subject of forest preservation, and the report of the Inspector appointed under the Judicature Act to inspect the county officers connected with the administration of justice in the Province.

The report of the Inspectors of Asylums show that further accommodation is needed for idiots, and I commend the subject to your humane attention.

The public accounts of the Province, showing the receipts and expenditures of the past year and the estimated expenditures for the current year will be promptly laid before you. The estimates have been prepared with a view of keeping the expenditure as low as possible, consistently with regard for the public interest.

I trust that the Legislative labors of this first session of a new Parliament may be characterized by as high a degree of prudence, moderation, and intelligence as those of any previous Parliament.

Peterborough Examiner.

PETERBOROUGH, JAN. 31, 1884.

A Hint to the Delegates.

We may be indulged in hinting to the members of the Trent Valley Canal deputation to Ottawa, who represent the Town and County Councils, that, while they are stirring up the Government, and incidentally rebuking their disgraceful delay in carrying out their promises in reference to the canal, they gently jog the memory of the powers that be, in respect to our promised post-office. This is the second session since an appropriation was made, and even the site itself is not yet selected; indeed, the annual report of the Chief Engineer of the Public Works Department, Mr. Thos. Fuller, who looked over the sites in town, last summer, contains not the slightest reference to the Peterborough post-office. In such a case, the deputation should remind the Government that Peterborough doesn't want to wait till another election for her post-office, and then, perhaps, as has been, and is now, the case, be put off with promises not intended to be carried out. Let the delegation stir them up.

Explicit Contradiction.

We have been requested to state that his Lordship, Bishop Jamot, gives an unqualified and explicit denial of the truth of the charges expressed or implied in the communication of a certain individual, which appeared in the Mail newspaper of Monday, January, 28th. He denies that he has ever uttered a word that could be construed into an appeal to his people not to live on friendly terms with their Protestant fellow-citizens—to not even deal with them. He pronounces the latter a bare-faced falsehood. He has on the contrary, he asserts, always endeavored to live on friendly terms with all members of the community, and he considers it most unchristian to raise hard feeling by making an appeal to religious prejudice. It is true, he admits, that he opposes mixed Catholic and Protestant marriages, as most Protestants likewise do, and that he enjoins Catholic parents to send their children to Catholic schools, a preference that is practised in a corresponding manner by Protestant parents in their choice of a school for their children. In regard to the other false statements made in the letter in question, they are so preposterous that they require no notice.

Dominion Parliament.

Work is progressing slowly, the Government not showing any inclination to push it. Sir John's Franchise Bill has been introduced, but no steps have been taken to advance it. The chief result of the session has been the unearthing of Government scandals, more fully alluded to elsewhere. Mr. Blake and the Opposition are doing yeoman service in exposing the past acts of a reckless Government. The estimates will be brought down on Friday next.

Ontario Legislature.

The debate on the address, which is given in another column, still continues, and, so far, that and motions for returns and presentations of petitions, comprise the business of the Legislature.

"What Will He Do With It?"

It is apparent that Sir John's McCarthy License Act is a troublesome incumbrance. It is possible that he will allow it to be killed. In more ways than one this vexatious enactment is doomed. There are strong Provincial objections all round to the rights of the Provinces being usurped as this Act usurps them. Then, Mr. Cameron, of Huron, has introduced a bill for its repeal, and Mr. Houde, of Maskinonge, has introduced a similar one. Now, the bill of Mr. Houde indicates one of two things: He is a strong supporter of the Tory Government, and if the measure he has brought in is a reflex of Quebec opposition to the McCarthy Act, Sir John will "cave"; for when Quebec kicks, the kick is solid. It is not at all unlikely that Sir John has instructed Mr. Houde to bring in his repeal bill, which would be a characteristic way of the Premier escaping from the corner into which his vindictiveness and his desire to humiliate and injure Ontario has forced him. He has put the country to thousands of dollars of expense in passing the McCarthy License Act,—quite willing to play the bluff game while others supplied the funds. But he has been beaten by the decision of the Privy Council, on points on which he assumed such a cocky attitude.

He must let himself down lightly in some way, and it is probable that Mr. Houde's bill to repeal the McCarthy Act is the way selected.

The Parrot Out of Tune.

The parrot cry that has been kept up with nauseating iteration so long—"Mowat must go"—begins to pall even on the tongues of those whose wishes have led to their hope that circumstances might give it effect. The opening days of the Ontario Legislature show that there is a solid and sufficiently strong phalanx of unwavering supporters at Mr. Mowat's back to enable him to carry out the programme of reform which he has laid down for the present session. As the House is now constituted, Mr. Mowat has a clear majority of fourteen, with the, at present, unrepresented ridings of Muskoka and South Oxford to hear from, which will, without doubt, especially in the case of the latter, increase his majority to sixteen. Mr. Mowat's straightforward course in the past, and the line he has marked out for the present session, will have a tendency to add a cohesion to the character of his following, that no sophistry or temptations of his opponents can weaken. On the other hand, Mr. Meredith, by his vacillating, inconsistent and tortuous course, has failed to infuse his followers with a strong enthusiasm. The battle in the country at the by-elections has gone sorely against him, and it is not likely that he will be able to retrieve his fortunes on the floor of the House.

Invertebrate Journalism.

It is a little remarkable that the organ of the Conservative party of this town should possess so little backbone, and shrink with such cowardly caution from taking a position on great local questions. In the Mayoralty contest, the Review took no position, preferring, on a matter of such vital importance to the town, to drift along in the sediment of slanderous correspondence, with which it permitted irresponsible scribblers to deluge its columns. On the Registry question, our contemporary was loud and blatant enough till the time came for it to range itself on one side or other, when, lo, it is discreetly silent. Yet, even then, it did not hesitate to admit letters to its columns, when it could shirk the responsibility, while incidentally endorsing the opinions expressed therein. The position of the Review is a most pitiable exhibition of lack of stamina, and shows that a time-serving policy, and not principle, is the controlling element in its management. The Review has no more back-bone than a "fish-worm."

Editorial Notes.

The Ottawa Free Press has solved the problem what to do with the surplus: Give it to the Canadian Pacific Railway Company.

Sir Leonard Tilley has allowed the bankrupt province of Quebec to run in debt to the Dominion $900,000. This is likely given as a quid pro quo for endorsing the extravagant proposal to grant the Syndicate additional assistance.

There is no danger of the present Government allowing the surplus in the treasury to lie unused. They have always shown a sufficient willingness to spend it. For instance, the expenses incurred by the several members of the Government and others, sent to England and elsewhere on Government business, between Dec. 16th, '80, and April 1st, '83, was the neat little total of $11,833.

The County Council of Huron, at its recent session, passed the following resolution:—"That the thanks of this council be tendered to the Hon. A. M. Ross, for the able and satisfactory manner in which he has discharged the duties of treasurer during his long term of office, and also that we extend our congratulations to him on the new and higher office which he is now called to fill as Provincial Treasurer." It will thus be seen that our new Provincial Treasurer is highly appreciated at home where he is best known.

As a protective nation, the United States is pointed out with great gusto by the national policy politicians, as a monument to the success of a taxation policy. But the force of this example is somewhat broken when it is known that miners in that country are working for sixty-five cents per day. In protected France idle workmen are besieging the Government for employment, and in Canada, work is so scarce that soup kitchens have to be established, to keep life in unemployed workmen and their families, and in this very town, work is so scarce that persons take to highway robbery "and sneak-thievery to keep soul and body together. And all these, in countries where a protective policy was to give perpetual employment to labour at the highest wages.

Messrs. Hay & Co., Toronto, and Hess Bros., of Listowell, were in 1878 and 1882 ardent admirers of the N. P., and warm friends of the workingmen they employed—professedly. "Put on the taxes and we will get rich and workmen will have high wages and unending employment." What is the case now? Messrs. Hay have discharged a large number of workmen, and reduced the wages of those they retained. Hess Bros. have followed their example. Herein is the beauty of protection. When a manufacturing monopolist finds he is losing money by dullness of trade, he can cut down his expenses and discharge his workmen, and thus keep up the profits, while the workman is at liberty to starve or beg. Workingmen are beginning to see the sincerity of the interest Tory politicians take in them at election times.

Is it too much to hope that the present government can condescend to consider the matter of reducing the present rates of letter postage? All other advanced civilizations are conferring the boon of cheap letter postage on the people, and there is no reason why Canada should be last in the race of progress. The United States Government reduced the rate from three to two cents, with a decrease of revenue so slight as to be comparatively unworthy of consideration. The reduction of the postal rate in England years ago, did not result in any loss to the revenue. Therefore, there is no reason why the Canadian Postal rate should not be reduced from three to two cents for letters. Increased correspondence would soon restore any loss of equilibrium between expenditure and income that might be temporarily consequent on the change.

The Ottawa Free Press contained a mild paragraph on the growing cost of the vice-regal establishment in Canada, which objected to the increasing nature of the expenditure. The Belleville Intelligencer, commenting, says the paragraph will be read "with disgust," and characterizes the remarks, "a sample of the editorial utterances of the disreputable sheet that champions the Grit cause at the capital." That's true Toryism for you. So long as the people submit to be taxed without a murmur, it's all right; but the moment they object to seeing public money, ground out of long suffering taxpayers, wasted, then there is a howl. Our Tory contemporary should understand that in Canada the people are not quite serfs, and that they will not submit at the same time to burdensome taxation, and unnecessary squandering of the public funds. The objection is not to the Governor-General, personally or representatively, but to the immense cost. There can be no good reason why a country like Canada, with five millions of people, should be compelled to pay for its figure-head twice as much as the United States, with fifty millions, pay for their's. The subject who is truly loyal will not submit to arbitrary measures, or wasteful expenditure of the money which he contributes.

Not Content With Being the Best.

Whatever may be said in regard to the propensity of the management of great railway lines to provide for the public only what is actually demanded in the way of accommodations and comfort, can in no way apply to the management of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway, or as it is more familiary known, "The Great Rock Island Route." This line has for years been recognized as the best and most comfortable route between Chicago and Kansas City and the South-west, and has been abundantly able on this account to successfully cope with its competitors. But not satisfied with this success and its already elegant equipment, its managers have caused to be turned out of its shops at Chicago, a magnificent line of Dining Cars which go into immediate service on the Kansas City Line. These cars contain all the convenience of well furnished dining rooms, are elegant in design and finish, and models of the advanced railway art of the day. Within them meals are furnished equal to those of any first-class hotels in the land at the low rate of seventy-five cents. Travelers on this line now find on its trains all the comfort and conveniences of first-class hotels. Besides the best of first and second-class coaches there are Parlor Chair Cars, (which are free to all passengers holding through first-class tickets), Pullman Palace Sleeping Cars and Dining Cars.

This Company's lines—all of which are equally well equipped—also extend to Council Bluffs and the West, and Minneapolis and St. Paul and the Northwest; and the deserved praises bestowed upon it by returned travelers who speak from experience, make it noted throughout the land.

We bespeak for the owners and managers of this magnificent Railway ample returns for their provisions for the wants of the public, which is, as already been proven by the patronage extended to this line, quick to appreciate and patronize those who prove their deeds and generous treatment that they are devoted to its comfort and welfare.

A Suffocating Cold.

For several months J. B. Des Brissay suffered greatly from a severe cold. It was distinguished by a harsh cough and great hoarseness. His breathing was so labored that he feared suffocation, and he was watched continually lest being alone and without assistance he might choke. This was several years ago. Now what gave him relief after several remedies had been tried? Dr. Wilson's Cherry Balsam cured him completely, and he grew perfectly well. It cures all throat and lung diseases.

FESTIVAL OF THE FOWLS.

Exhibition of the Midland Central Poultry Society.

The seventh annual exhibition of the Midland Central Poultry Society opened in the Old Music Hall on Tuesday last. Although some first-class fowl were present, the number of entries was small. This was chiefly caused by the snow blockade, which caused the absence of such well known exhibitors as J. L. Clapp, Belleville; — Cowie, R. Large and C. Bonnick, Toronto; W. McNeil, London; D. C. Trew, Lindsay; James Fullerton, Strathroy; L. Thorn, Seaforth; William Hall, Newcastle, who are large exhibitors, and would, if they had been able to be present, have nearly trebled the entries, which were only 75, as against 189 in '82.

In Light Brahmas there were some very fine birds shown by Isaac Dormer. John McClelland was close at hand with chicks of the same varieties, and J. E. Murray had some fine birds. Mr. John McClelland's breeding pen of light Brahmas, for excellence of match and breeding conditions, were worthy of praise. Mr. N. Lush showed some splendid Langshans, Mr. Baptie, of Springville, some fine Partridge Cochins and Silver Spangled Hamburgs. The severe weather told on the tender Leghorns, which did not look their best. Mr. D. Mason's pair of Pile Bantams were beauties, and R. Meade showed fine coops of Golden Seabrights. M. O'Brien and Joseph McClelland showed coops of Game Fowls, the former deservedly taking first prize. Joseph McClelland and Harry Winch had some fine Plymouth Rocks, the latter beautiful birds, taking the red ticket. Dorkings were fairly represented, the best being hens shown by Joseph McClelland. The other classes were weak in number and only fair in quality. Below is the

OTHERS THINK, TALK AND ACT!

Will you be one? We'll certainly make it to your benefit to be so. In what way?

That's the question we like to answer. It comes nicely within our province. We'll give you information on that basis without stint.

We're making a clearance of stock. We anticipated just such a winter as we're having, and yet to come. We know that you havn't bought quite all you need of Winter Clothing Goods, and we'll help you to make up what's wanting.

We've put the sickle to prices in all lines. Dress Goods, Mantle Cloths, Overcoats and Ready-made Clothing. All "must go."

We advise all who can,to come this week. Before coming to us go around and note prices elsewhere. We ask you to do this, because if you find out how high others are asking, we can sell to you quicker.

Our prices are so low that they proclaim themselves bargains, and if those who come will just price elsewhere, persuasives to buy will be entirely unnecessary.

We leave the facts in the hands of intelligent buyers.

which was on motion of Mr. Walsh, seconded by Mr. Brown, adopted as follows:

The Committee on schools beg leave to report as follows:—

All of which is respectfully submitted.

JOHN WALSH, Chairman.

County Council Chamber. January 23, 1884.

Mr. Moloney, chairman, read the report of the committee on

ROADS AND BRIDGES

as follows:

With regard to the petition of John McKee and other residents of the northern part of the township of Chandos and Wollaston, for a grant of money to be expended on the road on the eastern boundary of the county of Peterborough, from the fourteenth concession of the township of Chandos, to the northern boundary of the said township, your committee recommend that the sum of $50 be granted for the above purpose to the said municipality of Chandos, provided the adjoining county of Hastings for the same purpose grant a like sum, and the Ontario Government a sum equal in amount to both the said counties.

That the sum of fifty dollars be granted to the municipalities of Burleigh, Harvey, Belmont and Galway for expenditure on the roads and bridges in these municipalities, and that the reeves thereof be the commissioners for the expenditure of the same, and that a certified statement in detail of the manner in which the money is spent be furnished to the council.

With regard to the application of the reeve of Belmont, for a special grant of one hundred dollars towards the repairs of Preston's bridge, over Deer River, in the said municipality, your committee recommend that it be not entertained.

Your committee recommend that the report of J. E. Belcher, county engineer, be received.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

JOHN MOLONEY, Chairman.

County Council Chamber, Peterborough, Jan. 24th, 1884

On motion to adopt the report,

Mr. Brown moved in amendment, seconded by Mr. Burnham, that the report be referred back to the committee to amend it by giving a grant of $50 to Preston's bridge.

Mr. Brown said he had applied to the committee for $100, but having been refused, he was willing to reduce his request to $50.

The amendment was agreed to on the following division:

YEAS.—Messrs. Brown, Strickland, Kidd, Burnham, Collins, Stewart, Fitzgerald, Sanderson and Lang.—9.

NAYS.—Messrs. Moloney, Walsh, McClygott, Stephenson, Crough, Oliver, Mansfield and Elmhirst.—8.

The report, as amended, was adopted.

AID TO BACK TOWNSHIPS.

Mr. Strickland moved, seconded by Mr. Kidd, that having observed that the Ontario Government have aided several old and well settled townships in the neighboring county of Victoria, in making and improving the leading roads in these townships, and for which these townships had no greater claims on the Provincial Treasury than a large majority of the townships in this county, especially Belmont, Dummer, North Smith and Harvey, and the roads between Young's Point and Lakefield in Douro; and whereas grants have been made to Galway and Burleigh, new townships in this county, this council is of opinion that similar aid should be granted to the municipalities mentioned, and that to this end, a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the Commissioner Crown Lands and local members.

Mr. Strickland said that grants had been made to other townships, and he thought this council would not be doing its duty to the townships mentioned in his motion, if it did not urge the matter upon the Government.

Mr. Mansfield suggested that the townships of Galway and Burleigh be included in the motion.

Mr. Strickland agreed, and the motion as changed was agreed to.

MAGISTRATES' FORMS.

Mr. Walsh moved, seconded by Mr. Elmhirst, that the necessary blank forms for magistrates be procured to the amount of $20.—Carried.

LOANS AUTHORIZED.

Mr. Moloney introduced a by-law, which was duly passed, authorizing the Warden and Treasurer to borrow upon the credit of the county, sums not to exceed $15,000, for the current expenses of the county.

DEPUTATION TO OTTAWA.

Mr. Strickland moved, seconded by Mr. Moloney, that a deputation, consisting of three members of the council, be selected to go to Ottawa on Feb. 5th, to co-operate with other deputations from the district, to urge upon the Government the pushing on of the building of the Trent Valley canal.

An amendment moved by Mr. Kidd, seconded by Mr. Sanderson that the deputation consist of five members of the council, on being submitted to a vote, resulted in a tie, and the warden decided in favor of the amendment.

Informal conversation in reference to the matter was engaged in, and it was finally moved that the question be reconsidered, and the matter was further talked over till the motion for the deputation took the form of proposing the latter, to consist of the Warden of the County, the reeves of the municipalities, the Clerk and County Engineer, and that the railway fares of the deputation be paid, and that $5 be allowed for expenses.

Mr. Collins moved, seconded by Mr. Stewart, that the proposed deputation consist of the Warden, Clerk and County Engineer, and that the municipalities which wish to send delegates, pay the expenses of any delegates they may wish to send.

The amendment was put and declared lost on the following division:—

YEAS.—Messrs. Walsh, Crough, Oliver, Collins, Stewart, Fitzgerald and Sanderson.—7.

NAYS.—Messrs. Moloney, McCliggott, Strickland, Stephenson, Burnham, Kidd, Brown, Mansfield and Elmhirst.—9.

The original motion was carried on the same division.

The council then adjourned till ten o'clock on Saturday.

FIFTH DAY—SATURDAY.

Council met at ten o'clock, all the members present, except Mr. Fraser, of Norwood. The Warden in the chair.

After routine,

A. R. KIDD, Chairman.

Council Chamber, Peterborough, January 26th, 1884.

On motion to adopt the report,

Mr. Walsh moved, seconded by Mr. Crough, that the report be referred back to the Committee, with instructions to amend the same by making the salary of the jail surgeon $100 instead of $150, the jail surgeon to furnish all medicine required.

The amendment was lost on the following division:

The report was declared adopted on the same division.

BY LAWS

to confirm the reports of the Finance Committee and of the Committee on Appointments were duly passed.

REGISTRY OFFICE CHANGES.

Mr. Strickland moved, seconded by Mr. Collins, that, whereas rumours are afloat that the Government are considering the matter of dividing the county for registration purposes, and that it is very undesirable that any such division should be made, as it would necessitate a very large expenditure by this Council (several thousand dollars), besides entailing the loss of the annual income now derived from the Registry Office under provision of section 114 of the Registry Act, Chap. iii., Revised Statutes, which last year amounted to one hundred and thirty dollars; Be it therefore resolved that this Council ask the local members to oppose any such action, and also memorialize the Government to the same effect.

[NOTE—The above resolution was in the handwriting of Mr. John Carnegie, now in Toronto, a fact which shows whence the "rumours afloat" originated.

Mr. Strickland said he had heard a rumor of such an intention on the part of the Government, and, if this were so, the resolution was proper, and, if it were not so, it could do no harm.

Mr. Kidd said there was no such proposal in contemplation; we had no official intimation of the fact alluded to by Mr. Strickland; and a majority of the Councillors said the "rumours afloat" were news to them.

Mr. Strickland said he had a letter from Mr. John Carnegie, stating that such a proposal was mooted, and he suggested that the County Council ask the local members to oppose the proposal.

Mr. Burnham thought it was well to give the Warden authority to send a memorial to the Government, stating the opposition of the Council to such a division.

Mr. Strickland said that there were disappointed aspirants for the late vacant registrarship, and that the Government would allay the disappointment by dividing the county as indicated.

Mr. Burnham moved, in amendment, seconded by Mr. Walsh, that in the event of any legislation being introduced into the Local Legislature, to divide this county into registration divisions different than at present constituted, the Warden of the county be authorized to oppose any such legislation, and memorialize the Legislature against the same, and that a copy of this resolution be sent to the local members.

The amendment was carried.

TAXING TIMBER LIMITS.

Mr. Mansfield moved, seconded by Mr. Kidd, that the Warden communicate with the Attorney-General in reference to the question of the rights of the municipalities to assess the rights and interests of lumbermen in timber limits, and ask that all doubt should be removed, as this Council is of opinion that such property should be placed on the same footing as other property now liable to assessment.

Mr. Strickland said the resolution was absurd.

Mr. Mansfield pointed out the difference between the position of owners of timber lands and owners of timber limits, who were merely lessees. He was sure that if the limits in the county of Peterborough were assessed it would add $200,000 to the assessment of the county. He thought investments in timber limits, as well as those invested in bank stock, should be subject to taxation.

Mr. Strickland said that taxes were laid on manufactured timber.

Mr. Burnham suggested that the Council was not in possession of sufficient information, and on motion the resolution was laid over till the June session.

GRAND JUNCTION SUIT.

Mr. E. B. Edwards was, on motion, heard in reference to the Grand Junction suit. He detailed the progress of legal proceedings down to the recent decision of the Court of Queen's Bench, to the effect that the Grand Junction be restrained from instituting further legal proceedings till the costs of a former suit had been paid. Until costs were paid there could, according to this, be no new suit instituted.

SESSIONAL ALLOWANCE.

Moved by Mr. Kidd, seconded by Mr. Burnham, that all members of the Council that were detained by the storm, receive their full sessional allowance.

The Council adjourned.

The Grand Trunk railway has given its men in Point St Charles workshops notice of a temporary reduction of ten per cent in their wages until the opening of spring. This is said to be necessitated by the block in traffic by snow and consequent great falling off in reciepts.

AGRICULTURAL EDUCATION

Prizes for Local Competitors.

The council of the Agricultural and Arts Association, with a view of promoting the study of the science of farming, have, with the concurrence of the Minister of Education, inaugurated a series of annual examinations on subjects bearing directly on the work of the farm, accompanied with the granting of certificates of merit to all whose papers come up to a specified standard. The first examinations are to take place next July at the same time as the Intermediate Examinations. To encourage candidates in this county, the County Council at its last session appropriated fifty dollars for prizes to those "engaged in the actual work of the farm, who have not attended any Agricultural College, and who may obtain certificates of merit at examinations to be held next July." In addition to this sum, the local members, Messrs. Blezard and Carnegie, have each donated $25 for a similar purpose. At the first examination only third class certificates will be issued. The course of reading required for these, will be given in our next issue.

Messrs. Churchill & Co. Dear Sirs,—I have been troubled with Piles for the last five years, and during that time I have taken medicine from five doctors, which failed to effect a cure. I have used only one box of your Climax Eye Salve, which I purchased from W. F. Ritchie of Osgoode Station, and can recommend it a safe cure to all afflicted with the same disease. I consider your Fountain of Health an excellent tonic to build up the system. yours truly,

THE VERE DE VERE TO TENNYSON.

It is not generally known outside of the selectest London circles that when Lady Clara Vere de Vere learned that Tennyson had been made a Baron she hastened to write and send him the following verses:

Baron Alfred T. de T.,
Are we at last in sweet accord?
I learn—excuse the girlish glee—
That you've become a noble Lord;
So now that time to think you've had
Of what it is makes charming girls,
Perhaps you find they're not so bad,—
These daughters of a hundred earls.

Baron Alfred T. de T.,
When last your face I chanced to see,
You had the passion of your kind.
You said some horrid things to me:
And then "we parted," you to sail
For Oshkosh, in the simple steerage,
But now, excuse my girlish glee,
You've reappeared in the peerage!

Baron Alfred T. de T.,
Were you indeed misunderstood
That other day I heard you say,
"'Tis only noble to be good"?
I really thought that you affirmed,
"Tis so the words come back to me,
"Kind hearts are more than coronets',—
My Lord, excuse my girlish glee.

Baron Alfred T. de T.,
There stand twin spectres in your hall,
Soon as they found you were a Lord
Two wholesome hearts were changed to gall;
The two, an humble couple they,
I think I see them on my life.
The while they read of "Baron" T.,
That gardener Adam and his wife!—

Baron Alfred T. de T.,
You've treated them, it seems to me,
In quite a shabby sort of style;
You have—excuse my girlish glee;
You praised their garden-sass, you did;
You flirted with them—don't deny,
And now, you fix a vacant stare,
And never speak as they pass by.

Trust me, Baron T. de T.,
From you blue heaven above us bent,
This simple granger and his spouse
Smile as you read your title clear;
How'e'er it, is it seems to me,
Nor you must call my language cruel,
It seems, excuse my girlish glee,
Consistency's a lovely jewel.

Baron Alfred T. de T.,
I know you're proud your name to own
Your pride is yet no mate for mine,
My blood is bluer than your own;
You'll bid me break your heart again
For pastime o'er to town I go,
I'll not do that, my noble Lord,
But give you something that I owe.

Baron Alfred T. D. T.,
When you were in that angry fit
You turned to me and thundered out,
"Go teach the orphan girl to knit;"
I am an orphan girl myself,
And that my knitting you may see,
Here is a mitten that I've knit—
Excuse my gushing, girlish glee.

The Shade of Merecombe Hall

He knew he could make her home more comfortable there with his assurances of Bertie's rapid improvement, and as they stood some time at the wicket in the fading light—he cheering her, she glad and eager as she listened, yet with that paleness in her face which he—like the others—could not understand, and which pained even him.

"You will not forget us all at Merecombe?" he interrogated, looking intently at her.

"Never!" she said, her swimming eyes saying a great deal more than the words.

"Neither my poor self nor the squire?" he went on, still looking at her steadily.

"Neither," she said, but no color rose into her cheeks as she answered.

The slender figure, with the white face raised in the gloaming to the grave old gentleman opposite, made a pretty picture out there among the flowers at the garden-gate, some one thought who watched them from the window.

"What shall we do without Gyneth?" asked Bertie suddenly, addressing no one in particular, but her eyes falling upon Duke's face, because no one else was in the room.

"You will miss her sadly," he said, in a low tone.

"Who could help it? Now mamma has left the room I can speak out, as I have been tempted to do all evening. I think Gyneth works too hard, Mr. Suttleton. Do you know she has never taken a real holiday for three years until this summer? And now I am sure this has done her no good. Dosen't she look to-night as if she were utterly weary, though she laughs? I can understand Gyneth very well," the child went on, complacently; "and I am sure she is not well, though she says she does not know what it is like to feel ill. You see, Mr. Suttleton, she teaches all day long when we are at home; and she really wanted this holiday, and there I went and spoiled it entirely for her. Oh! I wish I were well enough to go back with her!"

"You will soon follow her," said Duke, in a low, constrained voice.

"And I wish—I do wish," added the child, "that I were a few years older, that I might help her."

"She is helped by abler hands than ours," observed Duke, thoughtfully.

"Indeed she is, Mr. Suttleton; but to-night I feel it more than ever, and so does mamma. I am sure that is why she has gone away. Mr. Suttleton," continued Bertie, in a whisper, "do you think Dr. Denne will send a very long bill?"

A smile stole over Duke's face. He cogitated awhile, for he had very little notion what would be called a long bill, and then he said, with decision:

"Denne makes out smaller bills than any doctor in the world. Some people think they are not worth paying."

"If it does not make him poor," said Bertie, conscienciously, "I am very glad indeed. I could hear mamma and Gyneth talking most anxiously about it last night when they thought I could not hear."

Duke's eyes clouded as he looked out into the twilight and saw the girlish figure coming in from the gate so smiling. That she, of all others should have this anxiety to bear, and he be saved it! He thought of the thousands of doctor's fees that lay idly at his bank, and he turned to Bertie with a nervous good-by.

"And, Miss Bertie," he added, "do not think about the doctor. He is as rich as he can be; and the thing he enjoys most is sending in small bills when large ones are expected." Which good prospect Bertie was left to meditate upon, while Duke went to say good-by to Gyneth.

CHAPTER IV.

It was in the twilight of an August evening that Gyneth Marshbrook, with a glad expectancy on her face, put various finishing touches to the little sitting-room at home—arranged a vase of flowers on the tea-table, lighted the gas, closed the shutters, drew the curtains—and then, after turning to give one approving glance around, went out into the fire-lit kitchen.

"Margaret," she said, to the gentle middle-aged woman who was their only servant, and whom Gyneth remembered all her life, "if you will start now you will be just in time. I would rather go myself, if you would let me."

"Nonsense, Miss Gyneth. I've met fifty trains where you've met one. I'm an old hand at it. I'm only afraid you'll forget this bit of cooking while I'm away."

Gyneth laughed her musical laugh.

"No, I will neither forget nor fail," she said.

In the bright little kitchen of the empty house Gyneth stood dreamily before the fire, the lids drooping over her eyes, the firelight dancing caressingly round her, brightening her hair, lingering in the folds of her plain white dress, and kissing daintily the little crimson rose at her neck. Ah! if the fire-light could have gone deeper yet, and brightened, too, the long, long thought which came up into the beautiful dreaming eyes and blotted out the empty room!

Half an hour afterwards Gyneth—who had listened attentively while her fingers were employed—heard a cab stop. She threw open the door and ran down the steps, flitting like a little ghost into the lighted street.

"Mother darling! Bertie, how are you, dear?" But as she turned with them, another figure emerged from the cab.

Before Gyneth knew anything except that it was another figure, her very heart seemed to stand still as she did. By the time she saw it was a gentleman's figure she found out how glad she was. By the time she had recognized Dr. Denne, she had blushed for shame at what her one first glad thought had been.

"May I come in for an hour, Miss Marshbrook, before I go on to my hotel? I have brought them home to you so well that you ought to be very gracious to me."

"You won't allow me to be gracious, doctor," she said, laughing, and trying to regain her ease. "You would not even give me time to ask you in to tea."

"Please go in out of the cold," he said, and let me see to this formidable collection of luggage."

He helped Margaret and the cabman with it into the little hall where they stood; and then Gyneth exclaimed in real astonishment, as she looked round on as incongruous a mass of luggage as was ever gathered in such close quarters.

"It's chiefly mine," observed Bertie, engrossed as she watched its arrival from the cab. "Oh! take care! That's my Æolian harp. Mr. Suttleton gave it me. That's my musical-box. You shall hear it presently; it plays twelve tunes. And, Gyneth dear, look here at my canary in its beautiful cage. Do be careful!"

"O Bertie!" ejaculated her sister.

"Yes, isn't it pretty?" said the child, joyously. "And it is so tame, and sings so delightfully. O Gyneth! didn't he give me a lot of presents?"

"All these?" whispered Gyneth, seeming to understand the "he" sufficiently well.

"Yes, every one," answered Bertie "He thought I missed your music, so he got me the harp; and then he said it had a sad tone, and he bought me the musical-box. Then when he used to to listen, he said it wanted life in its voice, and he brought me the bird. Then he said no music could make up for——"

"He was very, very good to you, dear," Gyneth interrupted, very low, but very quickly, as she kissed her sister.

In all the city and all its suburbs there was not on that night a gayer little tea-party than this one. Bertie was well, Mrs. Marshbrook and Gyneth were delighted at seeing her so, and all were glad to be together again. The old physician, too, was so determined to make his stay pleasant—especially as he had invited himself, as he constantly reminded Gyneth—that it was impossible to resist the merriment; and Margaret, from the kitchen, listened with an unusual smile.

"I never knew them so long at tea before in my life," she said, apostrophizing the door.

They had been talking of Duke Suttleton—talking a good deal of him naturally, as of their best friend at Merecombe, about which place Gyneth had asked a hundred questions—and Dr. Denne, in answer to a remark of Bertie's, had said:

"Yes, he is much changed."

"How?" asked Gyneth, from her end of the table.

"I do not think I can explain it, Miss Marshbrook," returned the doctor; "but he seems to have more power of understanding what real kindness can be from a man like himself. He is generous in thought and word, as well as in deed; he is never careless or indifferent to the least among his people now. He even looks different, does he not, Mrs. Marshbrook?"

"He looks a good, true-hearted gentleman," she answered heartily, "and he is."

"You used to call him proud, you know," said the doctor, somewhat quizzically.

"I know I used; and I see the look now at times, but it is different. I think that his nature——" She hesitated.

"Is one of the noblest it has been my fortune to know, Mrs. Marshbrook," put in the doctor, conclusively.

"I wish he wouldn't be so sad, sometimes," observed Bertie. "I never can understand why he should."

With a swift questioning glance Dr. Denne looked for one moment into each face, and then he answered Bertie.

"I will make it clear to you, Miss Bertie. I will tell you why Mr. Suttleton's pride and sadness may be excused a little more than those of other men. I will show you the shadow of Merecombe Hall." As he spoke, perhaps unconsciously, he turned from Bertie and Gyneth, and addressed himself solely to their mother, looking down every now and then upon his plate, but never at either of the girls.

"I need not tell it in many words," he said; "the story is long only in its miserable consequence, and it is so old that our ears may well be weary of it. Marmaduke Suttleton's father was as honorable a gentleman as ever lived. An only son himself, he—as his son does now—lived a lonely life, but for many years longer, caring for nothing but his books and his pen, until his hair was white with years; then all the passion and love of his heart centered themselves upon a beautiful gay child—she was little more—who married him, and made him very happy—for a time.

"No wonder indeed that he was happy; no wonder that he, the grave, tender-hearted man, loved her so madly—for any one so charming I have never seen in all my life. I said she made him very happy for a time; and for a time Merecombe was the gayest house in Devonshire, and its master's heart full to overflowing of content and gratitude, The wealth of love and tenderness which had lain dormant through all his youth and middle age was showered profusely upon this beautiful, shallow girl, who, while accepting it, and when you would have thought her life must have been in its fullest enjoyment—for a little voice called mother in the grand old house which has never heard the sound of the word since—gave her fickle, wayward heart—if heart she had at all—into the keeping of a cruel, clever, handsome gambler.

"One evening her husband, holding their little boy by the hand, stood in the lighted hall at Merecombe, waiting for the carriage to bring her from Exeter, where she had been spending a few days. Those few days without her would seem to have taught the old man how inexpressibly dear she was to him; and it was almost hard to tell which was the more childlike in his expectancy that night, the father of sixty or the child of six. They played together in the hall, seeming unwilling to leave it for fear they should miss the first sound of the wheels; they rushed to the door pretending to hear them; they called 'Mamma,' 'Mamma,' out into the darkness, and then ran back to see that the fires were burning brightly, and her chair in its accustomed place. And as time wore on, and the little one grew tired, his father laid him in his mother's chair, softly kissing the merry lips. As he did so, the village doctor entered unperceived.

"'Hush!' said Mr. Suttleton, pointing to the sleeping boy. 'Come into the hall.'

"The carriage-wheels dashed at that moment up the avenue, and he rushed to the door like a school-boy.

"Here she is! I beg your pardon doctor, but Mrs. Suttleton is coming home.'

"A simple, stately, honest-hearted gentleman, he stood against a pillar of the door in the lamplight, his whole face full of happiness and content, while the carriage dashed on—up to the yard.

"'Are the men mad?' he asked, turning to the doctor unconsciously in his surprise.

"Ah! that that should be the last word he uttered before the terrible blow fell.

"'I have just left Exeter, and am come straight to tell you so,' the doctor said. 'Mrs. Suttleton has never been there, where they expected her.' As he spoke he moved to the room they had just left, but Mr. Suttleton motioned him quickly to another; and, when the doctor, awed by the old squire's bewildered gaze, had repeated the same words, a servant brought in a letter which had been sent on by the empty carriage.

"I need not tell you what the letter said. Mrs. Suttleton had left her husband—had lowered his proud and honorable name to the dust, and repaid his pure and upright love, his constant devotion, in the worst way that it is in human power to do.

"A full hour the gray and haggard face, from which all happiness had fled, bent over the letter, while I sat waiting, really afraid to break the silence. At last I heard little feet cross the hall, and mechanically I rose and opened the door. The child, who had wakened in the excitement, ran to meet his mother, as he thought; and through all my life I shall never forget the cry of the broken-hearted man. Not long after, the boy had to be taken away by force; his father never knew him again—never knew any one through the long years that he lived. He died—mad—when little Duke was only ten years old; and I cannot help feeling that there is always about Duke some faint remembrance of the horror of that night.

"Now you can understand, Mrs. Marshbrook, the double agony of all this to a proud, sensitive, imaginative man like Marmaduke Suttleton. He looks upon his name as dishonored, and means it to die with him. He thinks—though every power I possess has been used for years to disabuse him of the absurd fancy—that, because his father went mad, there must now needs be insanity in the family so long as the family lasts, and it would be a real sin on his part not to let it die with him. A sin for him to marry and send down insanity to his children. Of course the notion is ridiculous; if the sudden shock had this effect upon his father—just as it might have killed another man, or driven another to crime—there is no reason why even a shock such as that—if it could come to him too—should have the same effect upon his son. There is not a sounder constitution or clearer intellect in all England than Duke Suttleton's; and, if he persists in this foolish notion, he will just be the destroyer of his own happiness in the very face of sense and reason.

"I have told you a long story, Mrs. Marshbrook, to account for his solitude and depression. Poor fellow, we blunt, rough-edged men can but feebly understand the agony of this shame to him, even though it lives only in his own mind. As for the pride you spoke of when you knew him first, I think it was but an intense reserve, and the consequence of his lonely life. We who know him do not mind that; for, in spite of any blot there may be upon his escutcheon, he 'wears the white flower of a blameless life.'

"A few years ago I heard of Mrs. Suttleton's death in Germany," resumed Dr. Denne, after a pause; "she had married the man with whom she left home. But I am afraid I have destroyed our pleasant evening with my sad story. Mrs. Mrshbrood, forgive me."

But it was at Gyneth that he looked as he rose, and the look he saw upon her face haunted him during his walk to his hotel, and it was before him still as he laid his head upon his pillow, muttering to himself:

"It must have been a struggle indeed. Poor foolish fellow!"

And now that Dr. Denne was gone, Gyneth had to hear a hundred things that could not be discussed before him; and, though her heart was full of pained excitement, no one was allowed to see it, as she unpacked for her mother, and helped Bertie to arrange her new possessions. But at last all was over for the night, and Gyneth waited only for her mother's kiss. "You have never told me yet," she said, with a smile, "about our old anxiety—the doctor's bill."

"We thought it would ruin us," observed her mother, lengthening the uncertainty as much as she could, "and we opened it so tremblingly, and there——"

"Yes?" said Gyneth, with a blush which she did not understand even herself. "Tell me quickly mother; shall we have to pawn our tinkets and give up our house?"

"It was just one fee, dear; and he told us he had never visited us as a physician except once, and seemed quite hurt that we had not recognized him as a friend. Are you not surprised, love?"

"No," said Gyneth, drawing a long breath, "not at all. I think the world is just a great round mass of goodness, and kindness, and love. O mother!"

CHAPTER V.

The months passed on monotonously after this, each bringing its daily work. But Bertie grew strong and well, and there were daily joys and pleasures, too. So evenly once more the current of home life flowed that somehow they grew to speak of their bright summer excursion as if it had been another life, and never could be dimmed or disturbed by this.

"And now once more the holidays are here," said Gyneth to herself as she left her last pupil in the early twlight of Christmas eve. "How rich I am to-day! Of course, I must not forget that this money has to cover a multitude of expenses, but still I must buy a few presents."

Passing a bookseller's window just then she lingered to admire the Christmas cards exhibited therein so temptingly.

"Not that I need any," she thought; "but they are very pretty, and it is just as well to choose the one I should have bought, if I had had any one to send it to."

Admiring critically, she made her choice of one.

"I would have that if I wanted one," she decided, and then walked on. She had scarcely walked a hundred yards when she suddenly stood still; then she walked on again—very slowly—then turned back, and, stopping at the same shop, looked again at the card she had selected. Then she glanced down the street in cogitation, then walked away once more—more slowly than ever; then turned again, suddenly and hurriedly took out her purse, walked straight into the shop, and bought the card.

When she reached home an hour afterwards, with her little presents in her satchel, and the pretty little card among them, she greeted Bertie almost shyly.

"I suppose you were out all the morning, little maiden; and you have bought me a Christmas-box?"

"A far lovelier one than any you ever gave me," said Bertie, saucily.

"How nice! I do like lovely presents. O dear! I should like a good many for particular purposes."

"For a good many particular persons, I expect you mean," said Bertie, "among whom Gyneth Marshbrook is nowhere. Tell me for what or whom it is wanted particularly now."

Gyneth turned away, saying, laughingly:

"'Not for to hide in a hedge,
Not for a train attendant,
But for the glorious privilege
Of being independent.'"

"I think you are quite independent enough as it is," returned Bertie; "we really could not stand——"

"Did you," asked Gyneth, looking quite away from her sister's face, "buy any Christmas cards?"

"No; why should I?"

"I thought—mother, if you had one just ready to your hand, would you like to send it to any one in particular?" Gyneth asked, leaning over her mother's chair, where her face could not be seen.

"I don't know, dear. Why?"

"I thought as you were writing, you might be wishing for one. The fact is, mother, I saw one that I was obliged to buy; so now I do not want to send it to any one, but you might."

"Let me!" exclaimed Bertie.

"Won't mother?" pleaded Gyneth, softly.

"Then do you mean it to go to some certain person?" asked Mrs. Marshbrook, simply.

"Whomsoever Bertie chooses," said Gyneth with a wistful smile at her sister.

"Mr. Suttleton," cried Bertie, promptly.

Gyneth waited for he mother's speech.

"Perhaps he may be astoniahed, Gyneth."

"Perhaps not," said Gyneth, with a noticeable alteration in her voice; "perhaps he might like it, as he is alone so much. You choose Mr. Suttleton then, Bertie?"

"Yes," answered the child, decisively.

"Then here it is, mother," and Gyneth, who had kept on her hat on purpose, took it out and posted it herself.

On that evening came an unusual arrival to the little London house—a hamper which could never have been constructed for such limited space, and the size alone made Margaret hold her breath in bewilderment and leave Gyneth to tuck up her sleeves and unpack it herself. Only a Londoner, perhaps, could appreciate the wonderful country dainties which it contained; but only one, perhaps, even among all the Londoners, quite appreciated the courteous friendly letter—half playful, half earnest—in which Duke Suttleton begged them to forgive him for resorting to such means for winning one thought from them on Christmas day.

Gyneth laying her hand softly upon the letter, said, with the old brightness in her eyes:

"I am glad you choose to send the card to him, Bertie—so glad, dear."

Again the months went on, until, one day, Gyneth Marshbrook, going to give a lesson quite out in the country, woke to the conviction that spring was in the air and looked round to see that there were buds even now bright and green upon the hedges. It seemed an unusually cheerful lesson to Gyneth after the discovery; and yet how impossible it would have been to describe the glad feeling which the advent of the newly-returning spring brought with it!

LAND LEAGUE FUNDS.

O'DONOVAN ROSSA CHARGES THAT THEY HAVE BEEN MISAPPROPRIATED.

A recent New York telegram says: Some excitement has been caused in Irish circles by the accusations made by Jeremiah O'Donovan (Rossa) that Patrick Egan, lately Treasurer of the Land League Fund, was aware of the misuse of the funds sent to Ireland to aid the no-rent movement.

"There are more rouges in the world than honest men," said Mr. O'Donovan to a World reporter who called on him to learn the basis of his accusation. "I charge that $100,000 sent to Ireland to aid the no-rent movement was not used for that purpose, but for the welfare of outsiders. Egan was fully aware of the disposition of the funds. He has denied my statements, to which I reply that my statements are more worthy of belief than his. I said in Chicago that money sent to Ireland from America to support the no-rent movement was followed over by some one who got $100,000 of it, which was not used for any work in Ireland. I challenge Patrick Egan to meet me in the presence of John Finnerty and Denis O'Connor, or in the presence of Patrick Ford, or Major Horgan in New York, both of us answering questions under oath."

"How were you informed that the money, was misused?" the reporter inquired.

"I am satisfied in my own mind that the money was misused," replied Mr. O'Donovan. "Mr. Egan was associated with a gang of tricksters. I don't say that he appropriated the money, and I don't know for what purpose the money was misused. Remember I don't accuse him of dishonesty, but want of judgment."

"Have you any facts to prove your charge?"

"Certainly, I can prove it if it comes to that. I don't care to mention names. But I will say that the whole crowd around Parnell are a lot of tricksters."

"Will you say whether or not Mr. Breslin or Mr. Devoy figure in the crowd you mention?"

"No, I won't. I don't care to mention names."

"When was this money sent over?" the reporter asked.

"I don't know; but I do know that it was not used for the object it was subscribed for."

"You will certainly publish the facts?" queried the reporter.

"No," replied Mr. O'Donovan, "I will not publish them. I have stated them; I know them to be true, and the public can believe whom it pleases?"

At the office of the Irish National t was said that Mr. O'Donovan's charges had no foundation, and that the accusations hurt no one.

Mr. Stephen J. Meany, a member of the Executive Committee of the Irish National League, said:

"I really have nothing to say in regard to these charges; there is nothing in them. Everyone who knows Patrick Egan knows that his honesty is not to be impugned."

SEALING WAX.

RESUMING ITS DUTY AS THE PROTECTOR OF A WRITER'S SECRETS—SEALS ALSO RETURNING.

"Sealing wax," a stationer said, "is quietly resuming its place for the sealing of letters. The use of gum in the place of sealing wax was a seductive appeal to the laziness of persons who eagerly adopted that method because it was quick and handy. It is much easier to run your tongue along the flap of an envelope and press the surfaces together than it is to heat the wax and close the letter effectually.

"But it has now come to be slowly appreciated that a letter easily sealed is nearly as easily opened. It only requires a little dampness to open any letter sealed with gum, and it may be done so skilfully that it baffles detection. It is about as much protection now to put a letter in a gum-sealed envelope as to put the contents on a postal card. Sealing wax is a protection against the prying curiosity of persons not dishonest enough to steal your letter out and out, yet willing to possess themselves of your secrets by peering into your letters after steaming open a gum sealed flap.

"A pretty feature of the use of sealing wax is the opportunity to use seals. Seal rings are plenty enough, and, if you have not a seal ring, you may use a coin or a bangle or any rough surface, the breaking of which might be an indication that a letter had been tampered with. The express companies will not receive a valuable package for transmission unless it is carefully sealed. Seal your letters by all means with sealing wax if you wish to keep their contents free from inspection."

A VALUABLE FIND.

Last spring James Griffin, a young farmer in the southern part of Bellaire county, tore down the old log cabin that had once been his home, and piled the logs up for use. Saturday was butchering day, and, after the neighbors had gathered, the fire was started with the old logs in the barnyard. From one of them, a hollow log, something dropped into the fire that looked like gold. It was fished out, and found to be a $20 gold piece. The logs were at once pulled off the fire and an investigation was started. The result was that over $1,000 in gold is now in possession of the young farmer. Nothing is known of who hid it away.

VARIETIES.

Many years I felt its blow,
Without the use of pills or blister,
I cured the same with Downs' Elixir.

Coughs and colds, and whooping cough
By its power soon are off."

"I'm going to board," was what the log remarked on entering a saw mill.

A St. Louis father, who has a bad heart, arranged matters that he could hear what was said without being observed. He tells us that he listened for two hours last Sunday night, while his daughter and her "regular company" occupied one corner of the sofa, and this was the sole conversation: He—"If lovie die, what ud dovie do?" She—Dovie die, too."

Narrow Chance of Escape.

A person exposed to the sudden changes of our northern climate has little chance of escaping from colds, sore throat, rheumatism, frost bites, and other troubles incident to change of temperature, to say nothing of accidents and emergencies. The best external and internal ready remedy is Hagyard's Yellow Oil.

"Won't you go up, dear, and get my goats off the bureau?" "Your goats?" queried Jones; "what new-fangled thing's that?" "I'll show you, "remarked the wife, as she sailed up stairs and down again with a pair of well-worn kids on her hands. "There they are," she said. "Why, I call those kids," said the surprised husband. Oh, do you?" snapped the wife. "So did I once, but they're so old now I'm ashamed to call them anything but goats." Jones took the hint.

TRADE AND NAVIGATION.

CANADA'S RECORD FOR 1882-3.

The trade and navigation returns for the fiscal year 1882-83, laid before parliament on Monday, show that the total value of imports into Canada last year was $132,254,022, and the total exports $98,085,804. The balance of trade against Canada for the year is $34,168,218. This is by far the largest adverse balance since 1876. The total value of goods entered for consumption was $123,137,019, and the total duty collected $23,172,308. As compared with 1881-82, imports show an increase of $12,834,522, while there has been a decline of $4,051,399, of exports. The N.P. has utterly failed to keep the "balance of trade" right. The returns of goods entered for consumption show an increase of $10,489,092. Amount of customs duty collected has increased $463,571. The average annual excess of imports over exports since confederation is $19,815,382, so that last year the adverse balance of trade was greatly above the average.

LENGTHENING SHORT WOMEN.

The London World tell of a new contrivance for making ladies taller. The woman who is to undergo this process is encased in a very tight corset, and her feet are placed in shoes weighted with fifty pounds of lead each. She is then placed in a machine consisting of a ring, which encircles her waist, and is suspended from the ceiling at such a height as to prevent her feet from touching the ground. The pressure of the corset forces the upper part of her body upward, and the weight of the shoes stretches her from the waist downward. It is estimated that the extreme length to which the spine can be stretched by the process thus described is two inches, and that the knee and hip joints can be stretched an inch and half more. Thus three inches and a half can be added to the height of almost any woman who has the courage to undergo the trouble and pain necessarily connected with a stretching process lasting, with brief intervals, during five or six months.

A LITTLE OF THE JUICE PLEASE.

It was at Mrs. Simpson Hendrick's table, and Dumley was evidently mad about something.

"There they are," he whispered to young Brown, "the same old canned peaches that we have had every night for six months."

Presently the landlady asked. "Will you have some of the peaches, Mr. Dumley?"

"No," he replied, as shortly as he dared, being two weeks in arrears; "I never eat peaches except in the natural state."

"But these are brandied peaches," said Mrs. Hendrick's: "some that I have just put down."

Dumley saw his mistake and faltered. "No," he finally decided, "I won't take any peaches, but you might give me a little of the juice."

METHODIST CENTENNIAL.

The Methodist church of the United States will celebrate this year the centennial anniversary of its establishment on this continent. Although the first American Methodist society was not organized until 1776 it was in December, 1784, that the first general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church was instituted at Baltimore. In those days the church had little but enthusiasm to help it along. To-day the Methodist church has 3,500,000 adherents in the United States and owns property valued at $70,000,000. Canadian Methodists will no doubt join hand in hand with their brethren across the border in the celebration.

A distinguished physiologist has said that Neuralgia is the cry of the hungry nerves for their special food, which is the Phosphorous contained in the blood. This painful disease is usually followed by general prostration on account of the great waste of nerve tissue and and insufficent supply of nerve force to mantain the functions of the vital organs. The common cause of Neuralgic and Rheumatic Pains is depraved Nutrition arising from Derangements of the Stomach Malassimilation of Food, and Poor Blood. Dr Wheeler's Compound Elixir of Phosphates and Calisaya supplies Phosphorous for the nervous system, Lime as an excitant of nutrition, Iron for the blood, and Calisaya for promoting strength. No preparation in existence is so reliable to mantain the vital forces and energize all the organs and tissues of the body.

MANHOOD
HOW LOST, HOW RESTORED

We have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediment to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.
☞Price in a sealed envelope, only 6c. or two postage stamps.
The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the use of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

A Wide Awake Collector.

Mr. Thos. Armstrong the alert and wide-awake collector of taxes of the township of North Monaghan for the year 1883, has discharged his duties with unusual promptitude and success. Last Saturday he returned his roll with every cent collected. This is not only a feather in his cap, but shows that the tax payers of the township are thriving and honest.

A Public Benefactor.

Mr. H. J Beemer, who is well known here as the contractor of the Missing Link, has imposed a debt of gratitude on the town. On Thursday he had shipped to him in Quebec, where he has a large contract, about three score and ten of the Italian navvies, whose idleness in Peterborough was hardly appreciated by our citizens.

Captain Sanderson, the popular commanding officer of the Durham Field Battery, without deserting the ranks of the volunteers, has enlisted in the home service for life. The Coldest Occasion.

Rev. Mr. Clementi is, and has been for years, a sharp observer of the moods of the weather, and possessing a most accurate and reliable self-registering thermometer he is able to supply some interesting weather lore. According to his glass, the temperature on Thursday night last was 34 degrees below zero. This is the lowest dip since 1854, when the discouraged thermometer sank down to 42 degrees below zero.

Band Serenade.

Captain Sanderson's popularity is attested by the fact that it attracted the "City Band" to his new residence in Smith, in celebration of his recent entrance into matrimonial life. The boys were most hospitably entertained and their kindness substantially recognized.

Winter Sports.

The skating rink furnishes the bulk of the winter delights of Peterborough, and the place is freely patronized. Friday nights are a sort of field night—a band then being in attendance. Another carnival is in course of preparation to be held in the first part of February.

Real Estate Change.

Mr. D. McIlmoyl, of Selwyn, has sold his farm in Smith, consisting of fifty acres, to Mr. Wm. Greer, of South Monaghan, for $3100, and has bought the east half of lot 3 in the 6th concession of the latter township—the Archibald Goodfellow property—paying $4200 fo. the 100 acres.

Baptist Social.

A very pleasant entertainment to welcome Rev. A. H. Munro, pastor of the Baptist Church, was given on Thursday evening. There was a large attendance. The following ministers were present: Rev. Mr. Shaw, Rev. Mr. Joliffe, Rev. Mr. Torrance, Rev. Mr. St. Dalmas, and Rev. Mr. Ratcliffe, and delivered short addresses of welcome. The choir rendered several pieces of excellent music, and a most pleasant evening was spent.

Snow Shoeing.

This invigorating exercise has taken such a hold on the public that a club has been organized of devotees of the rather—to any but youthful legs—exhausting pastime. The club, which consists of about thirty members, was organised on Thursday night, with the following list of officers:—President, W. A. Stratton; secretary-treasurer, Frank Kingan; captain, Andrew Mercer; committee, Messrs. Kent, May, and Read.

Church Social.

A most successful social, in aid of the organ fund of St. Paul's Church, was held on Thursday night last at the residence of Mrs. Dixon. A large number was present and a fine musical programme was carried out by Misses Bertram, Walsh, Cameron, Dixon, A. Johnston, Jessie Logan, E. Johnston, A. Errett, and Hattie Johnston; and Messrs. Best, Sanderson, Galletly and Lech. Dr. Clark and Mr. A. Clegg gave readings, and Mr. W. Dixon an exhibition of ventriloquism, The cash proceeds were most satisfactory.

Ice Blockade.

A. Clegg's flour mill, and the other manufacturing establishments on Dickson's race, were completely blocked with ice last week. Toward the end of the week, however, they succeeded in getting a channel open, and this week Mr. Clegg's mill is running night and day. The mill has just been refitted, and some of the latest improvements in mill machinery added, so that they can now turn out a family flour very much superior to many of the boasted patent flours existing; and chopping receives special attention, as the mill is fitted throughout for this branch of the trade.

Springless Trusses and Supporters.

Inhospitable Port Hope.

The Port Hope Times does not take kindly to the athletic boxing and sparring "entertainment," given in Port Hope on Wednesday of last week, in which "Paddy Bain" and other Peterborough gentlemen participated as performers. The Times, rather inhospitably characterises the efforts of the gentlemen who were temporarily guests of the town for the purpose of amusing its citizens, as "barefaced swindle," "disgrace to the town" and a "disgraceful fizzle." Nearly half a column is devoted to a denunciation of the "show." The "swindle" must have been a big one to require so much powder to blow it up.

The Grand Central.

This hotel has improved immensely in every respect under the new management. Therefore, it is no surprise to have the Commercial Traveller and Mercantile Journal speak of it in these terms:—

"The numerous commercial men who visit Peterborough will no doubt be glad to learn that Daly Bros., of Lindsay, have leased the "Caisse House" for a number of years, with the intention of making it a first-class hotel. It has been thoroughly renovated, and commodious sample-rooms are now in course of erection, also water closets inside, which, when completed, will be second to none in the Province. The proprietors are experienced men in hotel business, who know the wants of the travelling public, and their proverbial courtesy and affability will be a welcome contrast to the cold and heartless receptions which some hotel proprietors treat their guests to. The popular and well-known Mr. Alex. Graham is clerk, and one who is a host in himself. We bespeak for this hotel unbounded success."

A good heavy Winsey only 10 cents a yard at Turnbull's.

LADIES GO "A-COURTING."

Taking Advantage of Leap Year Privileges.

The progressive spirit of Peterborough stamps itself even on our citizens of the gentler sex. Peterborough ladies are the first to put on record a practical attempt to do the "courting." No little amusement was afforded to those present at the sittings of the Peterborough Division Court on Friday last by the trial of a regular woman's case. The plaintiff, defendant, and four witnesses examined, were all women, and the subject of controversy was a dress, which the plaintiff had given to the defendant, a dressmaker, to make for her, and which she claimed the defendant had destroyed. The dress was produced, examined, explained, and re-explained to both the Judge and lawyers, the latter of whom seemed, or affected to be, particularly stupid and ignorant and unable to comprehend the mysteries of "box-pleating," plain "draping with box-pleating around the bottom," "skirt," "basques," "puffs," &c., &c. Considerable misunderstanding existed between the witnesses and lawyers, owing to the inability of the latter to comprehend which was the front and rear of the dress, they generally getting it sideways, until the defendant's lawyer, in fitting it on himself, discovered that the opening, which he had always been placing at the back, belonged to the side. The evidence was given with such spice and vigour as to create considerable interest and amusement in Court. The ladies, though in some cases subjected to a pretty severe cross-examination, were quite able to take care of themselves, and a little more so. Unfortunately, however, they proved no better than men, in the matter of contradictory swearing, as the three ladies examined on each side, swore about as point blank opposite to each other as it was possible to do. The Judge explained that as there was no preponderance of evidence either way, the case would have to be dismissed, and gave a verdict for the defendant accordingly. The remarks of the respective parties in the suit were, on hearing the judgment of the Court, characteristic of the sex. On one side the sotto voce remark was that the Judge was "a darling old gentleman," and on the other that he was "a nasty, mean old thing; there!"

OUR CONQUERING CURLERS.

They Capture the Caledonian Medal.

After a terrible journey, through recurring avalanches of snow, our rinks reached Toronto. Their late arrival disturbed previous arrangements. In the bonspiel, between East and West, played on Wednesday, the East was successful, Peterborough putting in some good work.

THE CONTEST FOR THE MEDAL,

between the Peterboroughs and Granites, of Toronto, took place on Thursday, and resulted in a splendid victory for the Peterborough curlers. The result, tabulated, is as follows:

At the conclusion of the match the Peterborough club was handsomely entertained by the Granites, with a dinner at their rooms. Dr. Boucher, President of the Peterborough club, thanked their hosts for the warm reception given them, and hoped that they would soon have the honor of giving them their revenge in Peterborough.

OUR CONQUERED CURLERS.

A continuation of victory, indefinitely, would become monotonous, so that the defeat of the Peterborough club here on Monday, by the Lindsay club, was a diversion that gave interest to the sport. The following is the score:

An Old Settler Gone to His Rest.

On Monday morning P. Maguire, Esq., formerly of the township of Cavan, quietly passed away to his reward at the advanced age of 87 years. Mr. Maguire was a native of the County of Meath, Ireland. He came with his father and family to Canada in the year 1812, and settled first at Port Hope, in connection with the business of the late John Brown, so well known in the early history of that town. His father settled in Cavan in 1818, before the survey of it was fully completed. Deceased married a Miss Choate, sister of Thos. Choate, Esq., of Warsaw, and shortly after commenced farming life in Cavan, also, where he resided till a few years ago, when he went to reside with his daughter, Mrs. Sidney Payne. Mr. Maguire was one of the first magistrates in the counties of Northumberland and Durham. He was an intelligent, well educated, and excellent citizen, and very much respected by all who knew him. Although the only active Justice of the Peace in that township for many years, he did not make a single enemy even among the then notorious "Cavan Blazers," so troublesome to their neighbors, and differing so widely from him in their religious proclivities. His remains were taken to Port Hope for interment on Tuesday last.

A Bruce Mines, Algoma, telegram says; Four years ago the daughter of Mr. James Mills was lost in the woods. Mr. Mills was living in the Township of Kirkwood, newly opened out for settlement, and far away from any neighbor. Early in the afternoon his daughter, aged 14, started with a pail and dipper to fetch some water from a small creek a few hundred yards from their house. As time passed and she did not return her father became alarmed for her safety, and having obtained assistance, a search was instituted, and continued for many days without discovering anything more than the track of her feet in the soft mud at the creek. A force of forty lumbermen joined in the fruitless search for the missing girl. A few days ago some men working in the woods came upon a human skeleton and lying near by it were a tin pail and dipper, all plainly indicating the remains to be those of the poor lost girl.

An End to Bone Scraping.

Edward Shepherd, of Harrisburg, Ill., says: "Having received so much benefit from Electric Bitters, I feel it my duty to let suffering humanity know it. Have had a running sore on my leg for eight years; my doctors told me I would have to have the bone scraped or leg amputated. I used, instead, three bottles of Electric Bitters and seven boxes of Bucklen's Arnica Salve, and my leg is now sound and well." Electric Bitters are sold at fifty cents a bottle, and Bucklen's Arnica Salve at 25c. per box, by Taylor & Macdonald.

WEST RIDING AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY.

A Correspondent Speaks his Mind on the Subject of their Annual Report.

To the Editor of the EXAMINER:

DEAR SIR.—I notice in your issue of the 17th inst., a condensed report of the West Riding Agricultural Society, in which the directors regret the marked decay of their annual exhibition. This they attribute to the minor exhibitions in this electoral district.

The remedy they suggest may be very good, but according to my idea it is from beginning to end, the most selfish and absurd report I ever saw published. They wish to get the bigger share of the Government grant, offer better prizes, and limit the exhibition to a show of stock only. This, they imagine, would draw a big crowd, who would leave a few dollars with the business men of the town as well as considerably augmenting the society's receipts.

This would be all very well, but would the townships generally receive any benefit from such a course? I say, no! The prizes would go into the pockets of a few big wealthy stock raisers, with whom the average farmer is not in a position to compete. Again, I say, unless Peterborough can procure more energetic officers, or the business men of the town become more liberal, the County Exhibition would soon collapse, as did the Central, then we should have to go back to the township shows, or chime in with Lindsay where they are able to get up an exhibition worth attending, which Peterborough has not done for years. It is also very amusing to hear Peterborough speak of preparing for the Provincial Exhibition, when they have not given proper accommodation for people that attend on ordinary market days. I think we had better go on as we are going, and get the $1400 grant distributed through the township in smaller prizes, and let any one who has a little ambition go in and try to get a share of it. If the prize is small it only takes one day to win it, whereas by attending Peterborough it would spoil three days. As we are well aware, there are in each township, men who make a hobby of some particular branch of their business. Some fancy horses, some cattle, sheep or pigs as their taste may be, and others, whose farms are not adapted to stock raising, turn their attention to something else. The latter class must be barred from receiving any of the money grant simply because they could not raise stock to advantage. I would ask, where does this money come from? From ratepayers, I suppose; if so, why should not every ratepayer have a chance to win some of it. I suppose it is some few wealthy stock raisers near Peterborough who want to get all in their own hands. I for one hope their plans will be frustrated. By limiting the exhibition to live stock the ladies would also be excluded from competition. It is the ladies' department in township shows that causes the most attraction and makes the most money for the society. In Peterborough, if the directors are allowed to have their own way, the ladies will have nothing but a few horses prancing around, which are often sights to be admired, or go around to the side shows and admire the bulls, cows, sheep, or it might be like it was last year, two pigs.

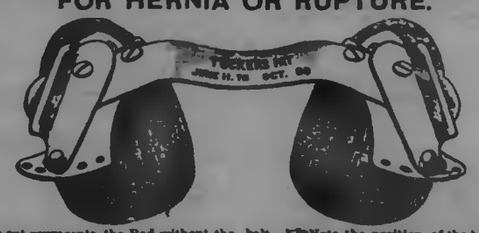
The Tucker Spring Pad Truss

FOR HERNIA OR RUPTURE.



(This cut represents the Pad without the belt. ☞Note the position of the ▷ shaped spring situated in the pad by which a CONSTANT but easy INWARD and UPWARD pressure is conveyed to the Hernia when the Pad is adjusted.)

This Truss, which is placed before your notice and consideration, is wholly unlike any other appliance in principle. It dispenses with the ever uncomfortable Body Spring, having the means to convey a proper pressure just where it is required, that is in the Pad. The Tucker Truss is very light, single one weighing about 4 ozs., and the double one not 8 ozs., it completely and comfortably retains the Hernia under all positions and exertions of the body. A swivel attachment to the belt prevents displacement by locomotion or stooping, and its ready and complete adjustability by which each Pad is made either RIGHT or LEFT at once or fixed at any desired angle commends it, and also, it is more durable than any other, as there is nothing to rust or break, all the metal work being nickel plated.

WHAT SHALL I GIVE HIM?

Is a puzzling question. It is easy enough to find things for the "hers," in fact the variety is embarrassing; but the selection of a present for the male sex is more difficult. We have known Ladies to present their Husbands with useful Household Articles and it is not a bad idea, but if you wish to give the man something for personal use, the list to choose from is rather short. CLOTHES are Staple—always in demand. Why not a new OVERCOAT or SUIT? A SET OF SHIRTS, some fine HOSIERY, HANDKERCHIEFS, or NECKWEAR? or, if that is not appropriate, give the Domestic Man a HOUSE COAT OR WRAPPER. While to the Gay Young Man, SHIRT STUDS, SCARF PINS, SILK TIE or SCARF. Now that you have the hint what to get, we will modestly add that a good place to get everything of this sort is right here, where we are making a Special Holiday Display of Useful and Ornamental Wearin Apparel for Men and Boys.

The Ottawa Deputation.

Their Reception and Success.

By Tell-tale-graph from Our Own Correspondent.

The Trent Valley Canal deputation arrived here in sections—on different trains. Freeing themselves from the stains of travel and the smell of smoking cars, they broke their fasts and quenched their several thirsts as their several tastes varied—from coffee to John Collins. Having, by a series of masterly manoeuvres got rid of the Pacific syndicate cash-grabbers for a few minutes, who, thinking nobody had any right to the public money but themselves looked very glum, the deputation was admitted to audience with the following ministers: Sir John, of course, whose "bonhommie" couldn't miss the chance of bamboozling the enthusiastic members of a deputation from your district; Sir Tupper, the Stretcher, whom the deputation hoped to convert into a water-stretcher; Sir Tilley the Teetotaller, who took to water naturally; and Sir Hector Langevin, who was present on behalf of the Quebecers, to demand a Trent Valley Canal for Quebec, if the Midland District were allowed one.

The deputation was introduced formally by the members for the East and West Ridings, and the former was informed that the audience was strictly private and confidential, and the utmost unreserve in speech and sentiment could be indulged in.

"Sarah" had the honor, as concoctor of the deputation, of being first heard—in this case by an able proxy. He said he was most deeply interested in the canal, as it was a work of the vastest national importance. The permanency of the present government was essential to the progress of the Dominion, and as the Trent Valley Canal had done so much in the past to secure the government an unwavering support from the Midland District (Sir John—Hear, hear), it could yet do much service in that respect. The lemon wasn't squeezed dry yet, and it still might render the government great aid at the elections—

"Lemon-aid, as it were," broke in Sir John At this magnificently original joke of the Premier, the Tory members of the deputation doubled themselves up with laughter to such an extent that some of them "saw double" hours after, and even a sardonic grin stole over the swarth features of the staid "Sarah."

Order being restored, "Sarah" dived into the depths of his carpet-bag, for he had it with him, loaded to the muzzle, and for half an hour hurled the hardest of "facts and figures" at the heads of the members of the government, till they dodged again, and he kept up the fusilade so long that Sir John sang out:

"O let up, John! Cheese it! Give us something fresh; your 'facts and figures' smell musty."

"Must-I?" answered "Sarah," attempting a joke himself, but after Sir John's it fell as flat as—one of his speeches—but this speech was no joke, so he plunged into his subject and his carpet-bag again, and began firing his facts and figures, till Sir Tilley, dodging a particularly hard-"cooked" figure, came up smiling with:

"I beg your pardon, John, but if you have much more to say you really must excuse me. I shall have to retire and arrange for the payment of the interest on the public debt that has accrued since you began speaking."

"Sarah," taking this as a hint that he had said enough, subsided, but he could not avoid adding that the booming of the deputation by him—for he deserved all the credit—was a labor of love—for himself. He expected to make a good deal of capital out of it for himself. He shut down with the remark that as he had covered the whole ground, it was not necessary for the other members of the deputation to bother the hon. gentlemen with further remarks. He hoped they would see their way clear to making a substantial grant to the canal, especially the section between Hillard's and Nassau Mills.

But discussion was not thus choked off. A delegate from the "side lines" (see Mail re Reform convention), who arrived in the morning, cold and hungry, and had put whisky in his coffee, both before and after drinking it, and, therefore, felt enthusiastic, jumped up and delivered himself thus:

"Excuse me, Minter Proxy, but I've got suthin to say. I've got a p'int or two s'offer. I'm interested in this here canawl. I've heerd it talked about afore you was bornd—when I was out with the milishy in '37—and hev always looked forr'd to seein' it dug; I expect to make suthin out of it. I've worked hard fur and agin the guverment, accordin' as it was Tory or Grit, and I naterally expect my reecompense. I expect to see barges floatin' down it loaded to the binnacle with wheat an' barley an' things. I know the guverment means to dig it, and I'm prepared to help 'em and sheer the sp'ils. I wish't I was only as sure of Heaven as I am of the canawl. Why, I believe in it so much that next spring I'm goin' to plant an acre of land with acorn nuts to grow oak to make timber for the locks. (Applause.) I reckon the oaks 'll be ready by the time the guverment is ready with their sheer of the job. (Silence.)

Other gentlemen urged the matter of making a grant, but "Sarah" told me with a grin that they were not worth reporting, and I took no notes. One of them, however, blurted out his belief that if the money spent on delegations were devoted to building the canal, more progress would be made than was likely to be done with government assistance.

Sir Tupper then, addressing the delegates, said he must really be excused from knowing anything about the subject, his duties as High Commissioner had taken up his term so fully that he had lost the run of his department, but, as Sir Tilley handled all the money, he would have to refer them to him.

Sir Tilley felt the honor of receiving so large a delegation, but he feared that, at the present, money was a little tight. The Pacific Railway syndicate must have their thirty millions, and that would take all the surplus, and more. He would take the matter into consideration, but he was afraid he couldn't hold out much hope. However—

"Stow that gammon, Tilley," broke in Sir John. "Is that all you've learned after being so long with me? Why, of course they can have an appropriation (aside to Tupper)—on paper. In '82, before the elections, you know, we made a grant, and simply revoted it next session. Now we can make a small appropriation—just enough to keep the Government grip on the Midland District—and we can revote it in '85 and spend it in '86. That will bring us just to the general election. Don't you see how easy it is? Of course, gentlemen, you may rely on a grant." (Cheers.)

The deputation was preparing to withdraw, highly pleased, when a Peterborough delegate asked:

"What about the Peterborough post-office, Sir Hector?"

"O, ze post-office. Zat will be all right, nevair fear; but sere are raisons vy zat matter shall not be push. I shall have to say sere are difficulties. I nevair saw a town like your town of Peterborough wis so many cornair lots owned by se good Tories. So I tell Mr. Fuller, our engineer, zat he moost make no report, for he couldn't have se heart to offend some good Tory by choosing a site. But have patience. I can assure you on the honor of a ministair zat you shall hear something about se post-office before se next election. Bon jour, messieurs, bon voyage!"

As the deputation was retiring Sir John said to Sir Tilley:

"Now, Tilley, they're after money; that's in your line, and you must go out and set 'em up for the boys—"

"But, Sir John—"

"O pshaw! Tilley, drop your —— cant now, as you've often done before. You weren't so —— particular when you tried to elect a liquor merchant in Lennox, and travelled on Sunday to boot, or when you tried to defeat a temperance man—bah!—in West Middlesex. Go along with you! Set 'em up for the boys, and hang the expense. If you want to recoup the —— country put on cases tax on cotton or calico. Mind, Tilley, Green Seal and Partagas, and charge the bill to capital (political capital) account."

MONTREAL MAKES MERRY.

INAUGURATION OF THE WINTER CARNIVAL.

The great carnival has been opened by the governor-general and Lady Lansdowne in presence of an immense ocean of people mad with enthusiasm. His excellency and her lady-ship on their arrival were driven up St. James' street in a magnificently equipped sleigh drawn by 4 superb horses. On reaching Victoria square they were startled by a view of a mammoth living arch spanning the street and manned by hundreds of snowshoers in costume. The decorations consisted of beautiful devices in snowshoes and tobogans, presenting the most unique spectacle ever witnessed in Canada. The carnival number of the Star has a beautiful picture of it. The week's festivities are on a grand scale and embrace many sights worth travelling hundreds of miles to see. The mild weather has clarified the ice palace, and it now glitters in the sun as if were built of precious gems. The reception of the governor-general and the Marchioness of Lansdowne was remarkably enthusiastic. Their arrival at the Windsor hotel where the civic address was presented, was productive of the most magnificent ovation ever recorded in the history of Canada. Th excitement was simply intense. There are immense numbers of strangers and the city already appears abandoned to gaiety. Mrs. Vanderbilt and party arrived Monday morning.

The carnival has developed a new feature in newspapering. The publishers of the Montreal Star have published a magnificent carnival number most superbly illustrated. It is the finest thing, by all odds, ever published in this country. The Star office is crammed with people struggling to secure copies of the paper. Although the publishers made provision for an enormous sale they are overwhelmed with orders. How such a paper can be produced and retailed at ten cents is a mystery to everybody.

LEGISLATIVE CORRESPONDENCE.

Political Topics in Toronto.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

TORONTO, Feb. 5.

THE SESSION, SO FAR,

has been a very dreary one. It was not the desire of the Government to have any debate on the address, but the Opposition wished to indulge in speech-making, and as this is a free country they had to have their way. The debate lasted from Monday till Friday last week, and may last throughout the whole of the present one, so far as present appearances go. There has been no real discussion of any of the many topics touched upon except the boundary dispute, the Streams Act disallowance, and the electoral corruption. The other subjects have been touched upon now and then by those who take an interest in them, but they have elicited no spirited speeches and evoked no bad feeling. The extension of the franchise, which has been virtually promised in the speech from the throne, is already a plank in the Opposition platform, and any measure, brought in by the Government, dealing with the matter, must be supported by the other side, provided it only goes far enough. As Mr. Gibson, of Hamilton, put it yesterday, there is no use now in stopping short of manhood suffrage, for we are almost there, and by going the whole way we will be in a position to simplify our voters' lists, and put an effective check on repeating votes. As Mr. Meredith once voted for manhood suffrage, he cannot take exception to any such a measure now, and it is not likely that any one on either side will do so.

THE BOUNDARY AGREEMENT

with the Manitoba Government makes it up-hill work for the Opposition to discuss the question. All they can do is to charge the Government with agreeing to a compromise after holding out for the award. Even if this were a true account of the agreement, there is little in it on which to maintain a successful opposition to the general policy of the Government. It frequently happens that two private individuals, after disputing for a time, each urging his claims to the full extent, agree to refer the dispute to some tribunal for an opinion, and this is no more than Ontario and Manitoba have done in the matter of the award. The terms of the reference to the Privy Council are much more favorable to Ontario than those on which the Opposition, two years ago, asked to have a reference based, and when this is clearly the case, it is the merest folly to waste time in talking about a question which is already virtually out of the arena of party strife. The first question to be settled by the Privy Council is whether the award of the arbitrators is valid and binding on the parties to it, and if this is decided in the affirmative, the dispute will come to an end with the decision. There is the strongest probability that the terms of the award will be approved by the Privy Council, and that, without taking any more evidence, or going into the question again from the beginning, the disputed territory will be handed over to Ontario. But, if the matter must be re-opened, there is again the strongest probability that the same evidence which weighed with the arbitrators will suffice to convince their Lordships of the Privy Council.

THE VETO POWER.

A much more serious question for the future is that of the power possessed by the Dominion Government to disallow Provincial statutes. The exercise of that power in the case of the Streams Act has been more than once declared by this Legislature to be utterly unjustifiable, and in all likelihood the disallowed measure will be re-enacted this session. Whether it will be introduced in an amended form has not yet been intimated, either in the speech from the throne or in any of the speeches made during the debate by members or supporters of the Government. What is of more consequence, is the outspoken opinion by Mr. Mowat and Mr. Pardee, in their speeches, that the veto power has done more harm than good, that it is not needed as a part of the constitution, that the people of each Province may safely be entrusted with the power to manage, without interference, their own affairs, that if the Provincial Legislatures even exceed their powers, they can, and will, be checked by the courts; that the veto power has been, and is likely to be, abused, and that it is time for it to go. The heartiness with which this position was cheered by their followers shows clearly that on this question, at all events, the Government can count upon the support of all their supporters. The speakers on the Opposition side, on the other hand, maintain strongly the expediency of the power of disallowance, and this question, therefore, bids fair to become one of the prominent lines of demarcation between political parties in the near future.

ELECTORAL CORRUPTION.

Mr. Pardee, in the course of an excellent speech, took occasion to repudiate in the most vigorous way the charges made against him in the press and on the stump in connection with the late campaign in Algoma. He retorted on his accusers by references to Algoma and West Middlesex, and boldly challenged Mr. Meredith to formulate his charges and take an early opportunity of endeavoring to prove them. Mr. Meredith has since given notice of motions for papers relating to the occupation of Rat Portage and the appointment of commissioners and police there, and Mr. Pardee has been served with a writ for $2,000 damages for acting illegally in trying to elect Mr. Lyon for Algoma. The latter step will probably be found a mistaken one in the estimation of Mr. Meredith's own friends. It is a kind of warfare that always evokes sympathy for the person assailed, and not a single supporter of Mr. Pardee, in or out of Parliament, will be induced to believe that he was the aider or abettor of a single corrupt act. If the purpose is to alienate Government supporters it will fail; if it is to mulct Mr. Pardee in personal damages—supposing a conviction possible—it will do very little to shake his well-earned popularity. What it will do is to import a feeling of bitterness into party politics, which is foreign to contests here, and to keep alive the excitements and animosities of the campaign, which should be left to die a natural death as soon as possible. The conviction of Apjohn, the deputy returning officer at Rat Portage, will be appealed, so that, whoever makes or loses, the lawyers are sure of a good time.

THE STRENGTH OF PARTIES

in the House is still a matter of discussion, but the report last night, after the adjournment, was that it would be tested to-day by the Opposition. Pending the first party division, a little speculation may be of sufficient interest to merit some attention. There are 88 constituencies in the Province. Excluding the Speaker, and the constituencies of South Oxford and Muskoka, the only two that are now vacant, the members actually in their seats number 85. Of these, 49 are supporters of the Government, if it is safe to include Messrs. Neelon and Hart, leaving 36 on the other side, and giving the Government a clear majority of 13 on a division. The Opposition will have to be very expert at framing amendments in order to catch any of the 49 referred to, and even if they do induce Messrs. Neelon and Hart to vote against the Government on some catch motion, the Ministry will still have a majority of nine. Usually, however, they will have no better supporters than the members from Lincoln and Prince Edward, and they will probably soon increase their normal majority to fifteen, by adding the Muskoka and South Oxford members to their following. Any attempt to steal a march on a Government so strong is the merest folly, and the persecution of Mr. Pardee, personally, will not convert that policy into one of wisdom. The Opposition would have stood better at the close of the session if they had good-humoredly admitted defeat, allowed the address to pass, and made use of their increased strength in forcing the Government in the work of legislation. For the present delay they, and they alone, are responsible, and, unless they change their tactics, they will have to get the credit of a good deal more of wasted time before the session comes to a close.

"SARAH" SPEAKS.

Mr. Carnegie, more familiarly known throughout the Province as "Sarah," addressed the House on Tuesday night. His remarks were very tame, and fell flat upon the House. He disappointed his friends. The fact is, that "Sarah's" speech was so weak that it was not considered worthy of a reply by the Government supporters.

Missionary Services.

Rev. Mr. Meacham's Address.

The annual missionary meetings of the Methodist Church were held on Sunday last. In the morning the services were conducted in the

CHARLOTTE STREET CHURCH.

There was a fair attendance of the congregation. The choir rendered in excellent manner an appropriate anthem, and Rev. Dr. Meacham, Japanese missionary, read applicable lessons from the old and new testaments. Rev. Mr. Manning, pastor, read statements from the annual report, showing that the total amount collected for missionary purposes by the Methodist church last year was $1[illegible],500, [illegible] buted $209.

Dr. Meacham then delivered a most practical and interesting address concerning the work of missions in Japan, interspersed with personal relations of several intensely touching incidents. His style is exceedingly simple and unaffected, yet effective. His zeal and earnestness shine forth in every sentence he utters. After briefly sketching the circumstances leading to the opening of Japan as a mission field, he stated that many had been saved in that country by the gospel, and inquired why were not all saved. In answer he recited the various causes that opposed the introduction of Christianity to the hearts of the people. The first was the influence of bad example—the action of foreign governments which, professedly Christian, did not regulate their dealings with Japan according to the doctrines of Christ, and thus created a prejudice against the gospel. The pride of the Japanese was another obstacle. Those of high rank believed themselves descendants of the gods, and had been trained to think that the dictates of their own hearts were the true rule of right. The debased condition of the women was another great hindrance. No woman, as a woman, expected to reach Heaven, and it was a common sight to see deluded creatures grovelling in the heathen temples, and praying the gods to change them into men. The divorce system, based on the caprice of the husband, who could put away his wife at will and take another, was something terrible, and the social evil was frightfully prevalent—beyond the power of description to a mixed audience. He earnestly appealed to the women in his audience to make efforts for the help of their benighted Japanese sisters. The spread of infidel literature was another great obstacle. It was asserted that more infidel literature was read in Japan than in Canada. The religions of the Japanese, that recognized nothing as sin except a crime against the state, were hard to combat. People that recognized no sins, felt no need of a Saviour. An interesting sketch of the work done already was given, and Dr. Meacham paid an eloquent tribute to the labors of such missionaries as Dr. Cochran, Miss Cartmell, and other zealous workers. There were at present 5,000 converts in Japan. The present was the golden opportunity for missionary work in Japan, which the speaker characterized as the vulnerable point in Satan's kingdom.

The collections and subscriptions amounted to about $270.

GEORGE STREET CHURCH.

In the evening Dr. Meecham addressed a large audience in the George Street church on the same subject, which was listened to with the unflagging attention that attended his morning discourse. The collections and subscriptions amounted to nearly $280.

NOT TRUE TO THEIR TRUST.

To the Editor of the EXAMINER:

I have a few remarks to make about the school matters of school section number five, in the township of Smith, which, through the culpable neglect of the trustees, is without a teacher this year. This bungling is a serious affair. No. 5 is the largest section in the township, with some 70 or 80 pupils, and that the school should be closed in the winter season, when a large number of pupils can only attend, shows that our trustees are not true to their trust, and unfit for the positions they so conspicuously fail to fill. It's a downright shame.

Report adopted.

MECHANICS' INSTITUTE.

A by-law to give effect to the report of the Finance Committee, recommending a grant of $100 to the Peterborough Mechanics' Institute was duly passed.

SPECIAL COMMITTEE.

Mr. Rutherford moved, seconded by Mr. Menzies, that the report of the Special Committee to strike the standing committees be amended by adding : "the first-named member of each committee be the chairman of that committee."

The motion was carried.

WATERING CARTS.

Mr. Kelly moved, seconded by Mr. Allin, that the Clerk be instructed to invite tenders for two new single watering carts, on the barrel system, for the town, according to plans to be supplied by Wm. English.

Mr Kelly said the town would need new watering carts and it was well to be in time.

The motion was lost.

Mr. Hartley moved, seconded by Mr. Menzies, that tenders be asked for, to water the streets, attend to the fire alarm, and do other work for the town, tenders to state whether parties propose furnishing their own carts, etc., or otherwise. Contract to date from the first of April.

Mr. Rutherford suggested that the matter be referred to the Committee on Fire, Water and Gas, to report at the next meeting of the Council; and he made a motion to that effect, which was agreed to.

WM. HAMILTON MANUFACTURING COMPANY.

Mr Rutherford moved, seconded by Mr. Douglass, that the report of the special committee in reference to the application of the Wm. Hamilton Manufacturing Company, to procure a portion of Murray street, be received, and that the clerk be instructed to prepare a by-law to give effect to the report.

Mr. Rutherford explained that it required legislation to perfect the title, and Mr. Hamilton was anxious to secure such legislation at the present session of the Legislature.

[The report recommended going forty-six feet on the north side of Murray street, between Reid and Downey streets, the Company to grade the remaining portion of the street and put it in a good order for use.]

The Mayor said that as he happened to be a stock-holder in the Company, if there was to be any discussion, he would leave the chair, as he did not wish to vote or take any part.

The motion was then agreed to.

CHARITY COMMITTE.

Mr. Green moved, seconded by Mr. Cahill, that the name of Mr. Kelly be added to the Charity Committee.

The motion was lost.

M'DONALD STREET CULVERT.

Mr. Rutherford moved, seconded by Mr. Yelland, that the Street Inspector be instructed to attend to the culvert on McDonald street, as the same was backing up water in private cellars, the cost not to exceed $20.

Mr. Cahill raised a point of order, for the reason that he had resolved, on Mr. Rutherford charging him with expending too much money on removing ice and snow, to avoid such expense in the future; and, now, Mr. Rutherford consistently moved that the avenue of expense be re-opened.

The Mayor held that Mr. Cahill's point of order was well taken, and Mr. Rutherford appealed to the Council, and the ruling of the Mayor was sustained, only Mr. Rutherford and Mr. Yelland voting nay.

Mr. Rutherford demanded the yeas and nays, which were taken as follows :

YEAS—Messrs. Cahill, Davidson, Allin, Kelly, Green, Douglass, Menzies and Kendry—8.

NAYS—Messrs. Rutherford, Yelland and Hartley—3.

PITCH HOLES.

Mr. Hartley moved, seconded by Mr. Kendry, that the Street Inspector be instructed to have the pitch holes on Communication road, opposite Mrs. Dixon's property, levelled, cost not to exceed $5.00

Mr. Cahill moved, in amendment, seconded by Mr. Rutherford, that the Street Inspector be instructed to have the pitch holes levelled by the town team.

Mr. Hartley consented and the amendment was carried.

RAILWAY FARES.

On Mr. Cahill's suggestion, the Mayor said he would try and get the railway fares of the Ottawa deputation reduced to $6.00.

THE TOWN BABY.

Mr. Menzies said that Mr. Green, feeling a little delicate on the subject of the town baby (laughter), had requested him to move a resolution, and he moved, seconded by Mr. Green, that the Treasurer be instructed to pay Mrs. Tyler $2 weekly for keeping the town baby till other arrangements can be made.

PAYING TOWN BILLS.

Mr. Cahill moved, seconded by Mr. Davidson, that the Treasurer be authorized to pay the street pay lists on the order of the Street Inspector, and also the orders of the Charity Committee, the lists to be subsequently submitted to the Finance Committee. The motion was carried.

THE WHISKEY-HEAD "MUST GO."

Mr. Yelland moved, seconded by Mr. Menzies, that the Street Inspector do not allow liquor to be used by men working on the streets, in working hours.—Carried.

BANK OF TORONTO BUILDINGS.

The Mayor called attention to the fact that the purchase of the Bank of Toronto buildings should be dealt with—completed or abandoned.

The Clerk said that he would have a by-law prepared for the purpose of settling the matter, against the next meeting of the Council.

OTTAWA DELEGATION.

The Mayor called attention to the desirability of naming some other names outside the Town Council on the delegation to Ottawa. Some large ratepayers would add to the influence and promote the success of the deputation.

Mr. Menzies said the canal was most desirable, but he thought the Government should construct it without so much urging.

Mr. Cahill said that the matter was of such vital importance that the town would be justified in spending $1,000 on the chance of securing an appropriation.

Mr. Cahill moved, seconded by Mr. Davidson, that the Mayor name from six to ten citizens to accompany the delegation to Ottawa (at the expense of the corporation).

Mr. Rutherford raised a point of order, and, on appeal being made to the Council, the point of order was sustained.

Mr. Douglass gave notice of motion to have the McDonald street culvert cleared if needed.

The Council adjourned till Friday night next.

TRENT VALLEY NAVIGATION.

PROPOSED NEW WORK.

The Mail of Saturday informs us that the new works for the improvement of the Trent Valley navagation, for the construction of which appropriations have been voted by Parliament, are at the following places :— Burleigh rapids, Buckhorn rapids, and Fenelon Falls. Their completion will give communication between Lakefield, 9½ miles from Peterboro', and Balsam lake, the headwaters of the system, opening up a total of about 150 miles of direct and lateral navigation.

At Lakefield, 9½ miles from Peterboro', the existing dam, a private one, which maintains navagation on Lake Katchiwanic up to Young's Point, has been expropriated under the authority of an order-in-Council of the 7th October, 1882, and the constrution of a new work is in contemplation, the existing dam having been seriously damaged and rendered dangerous during the prevalence of the spring freshets in 1883.

At Young's Point, 5 miles from Lakefield, the dam between Lake Katchiwanic and Clear lake has fallen into disrepair, and is now in too dilapidated a state to admit of restoration. The construction of a new dam has been authorized.

At Burleigh rapids, 10 miles from Young's Point, a canal will be constructed about 2½ miles in length, passing at Burleigh and Lovesick Rapids, and giving communication between Stoney lake and Deer bay. The work, comprising the construction of three lift-locks and certain dams, has been placed under contract.

At Backhorn rapids, seven miles from Burleigh rapids, a canal about one-fourth of a mile long is to be constructed, having one lift-lock. The works have been placed under contract. The rock excavation is well advanced.

At Fenelon Falls, 32 miles from Buckhorn rapids, it will be necessary to construct a canal about one third of a mile in length, connecting Sturgeon lake with Cameron lake. This canal will have two lift-locks. The works are under contract; the greater part of the excavation has been completed, and the masonry work is commenced.

In all the above named works the locks will be of the following dimensions—Length, 134 feet; breadth, 33 feet; depth on sill, 5 feet.

Turnbull's last large shipment of Prints are highly appreciated, by the way they are selling now, they are sure to disappear quickly when the warm weather comes, the cloth designs and colors are right.

CARD OF THANKS.

To the Editor of the EXAMINER :

As President of the Midland Poultry Association, I would express my sincere thanks to the "City Band" for their excellent music on the second night of the exhibition, free; also to the secretary and directors, on whom devolved the arrangements for the show. I think there was nothing left undone that could be done to make it a success, as far as they were concerned—except I think they might have raised the funds a little higher; but, as it turned out, we expect something left through the liberality of the merchants and others in town. Therefore, there is no blame to be attached, as we could not control the snow blockade or the cold which kept our friends away from us.

Locally, it was the best show we ever had. I fear your reporter must have overlooked a number of good fowls or taken the word of some faultfinder, when he says, after giving the names of exhibitors and their birds, the rest were "weak in number and only fair in quality. I think he must be pretty hard to suit, while we had a pair of bronze turkeys, exhibited by Mr. Kidd, not to be surpassed in Canada, also a pair of my Pekin ducks, said to be the best in the county of Hastings, where they were raised, the male bird weighing forty pounds; also a pair of Pekin ducks which I sold for eight dollars, and a black Spanish, which, two years ago, Mr. Butterfield gave first prize to before all that was there, and Mr. Buck carried it out by giving them first prize again; again, a pair of white Leghorns not to be beaten in the county, and first prize Plymouth Rocks credited to another party, together with other omissions which the prize list will indicate.

Thanking you for space in your valuable paper, and hoping we shall have better success another year, I remain,

Yours truly,
THOS. E. BELL.

CLUXTON'S NEW BLOCK.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

Fifth Parliament—Second Session.

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 30.

In the House of Commons to-day Mr. Houde Tory M. P., Maskinonge introduced a Bill to repeal the Dominion License Act. Mr. Mulock introduced a Bill to prevent fraud in connection with patent rights.

Mr. Blake endeavoured to obtain further information respecting the position of the Canada Pacific Railway. In reply to Mr. Blake, Sir L. Tilly stated under what Statutes the Government had entered into the guarantee arrangement with the Canada Pacific Railway.

Mr. Jackson made inquiry respecting the sale to an American company of certain timber limits in the North West.

Mr. Charlton moved for several returns respecting North West timber lands.

Mr. Coursol asked for correspondence between the Dominion and Quebec Governments on the subsidy question.

Mr. Blake obtained orders of the House for papers relating to British Columbia dry-dock, accounts between the Dominion and Ontario and Quebec, North West liquor permits, and proceedings before the Privy Council in the Mercer case.

Mr. Gigault's motion for a select committee to report upon the condition of the agricultural industries of the country was passed.

Mr. Cameron, of Huron, moved for papers relating to the withdrawal from settlement of North West reserves, and also for a copy of the memorial of the North West Council protesting against the Government's land policy.

Mr. Casey asked for documents connected with the settlement with the Section B contractors; and Mr. Weldon moved for statements concerning the running of Pullman cars on the Intercolonial Railway.

THURSDAY, JAN. 31.

The House sat a trifle over an hour to-day and accomplished but little.

Replying to Mr. Blake, Sir Hector Langevin, said no tariff of rates had been proposed by the Canadian Pacific company since that laid before the house last session.

Dr. Fortin moved for copies of report on the Loudon Fisheries Exhibitions.

Mr. Royal asked for a select committee to consider the matter of Hudson Bay navigation. No action taken.

Mr. Blake moved for copies of all documents on the subject of the proposed factory bill. Agreed to.

Mr. Blake also moved for the general correspondence in reference to duties on freight charges.

Mr. Blake asked for a statement of the lump sum, expended since the change of system, for sessional returns; also of the cost of heating public buildings.

Mr. Paterson (Brant) moved for copies of correspondence and agreements between the Government and the Pacific Railway Company on the subject of immigration.

Among the petitions presented to-day was one asking for aid to a proposed railway from some point within the Province of Ontario to the shores of James' Bay, for the purpose of opening up what the petition describes as an immense extent of fertile lands, by a way north of the Ottawa River and thence to the northern boundary of the Province of Quebec and James' Bay. Peter McLaren is one of the petitioners.

CANADIAN PACIFIC RESOLUTIONS.

The Canadian Pacific resolutions which appeared in the votes and proceedings to-day has produced at the capital a sensation akin to consternation. The announcement of the Government was a surprise to the House. In spite of the iniquitous manner in which the Government has squandered the public cash and domain in pandering to the insatiable demands of the syndicate, the House did not expect that the government would be so recklessly extravagant. But it is stated on all hands that such consideration will be offered the different provinces in view of the members supporting the resolutions, as will be satisfactory. In other words the members will be bought up wholesale to endorse these astounding resolutions. New Brunswick and Nova Scotia will be pacified with having Halifax made the winter terminus of the Canadian Pacific railway. Quebec will push for an increased subsidy and speedy relief from her present financial extremity, in the shape of the assumption of the public debt by the Dominion Government, a condition that will impose a burden of about $800,000 a year on Ontario. Some tangible consideration will be given Ontario and thus the great interests of the country will be sacrificed and the Dominion subjected to what is spoken of at Ottawa, as the largest steal ever perpetrated in the country. The fact that the company gives only security which practically belongs to the government is severely commented on. Among certain followers of the government, and indeed a great many followers, there is a strong feeling of demoralization. The opposition say that the country must collapse, sooner or later, under such a regime. They say with truth, it is now a game of grab all round, and the country cannot keep up under it.

FRIDAY, FEB. 1.

In the Commons to-day a statement of the facts on which the request of the Canadian Pacific for a new loans and other concessions is based, was presented.

Bill, of incorporation were read a first time as follows:—Halifax Mutual Marine Insurance Company, Temperance and General Life Insurance Co., Bank of Winnipeg, Lake Nipissing & Hudson Bay Railway, North-Western Coal and Navigation, Alberta Railway & Coal Company, Provincial Bank, Pictou Mutual Marine Insurance Co., also a Bill to confirm the lease of the Ontario & Quebec Railway to the C. P. R.

A motion for a committee of the Whole on Tuesday to consider the new C. P. R. resolutions was carried.

A Bill to advance school money to Manitoba was read a first time, also a Bill to give salary to the judge in Cariboo, B. C. Questions were answered by Sir John Macdonald regarding the tenders for the Island Railway, and the appointment of Chaplean to the shrievalty; by Costigan, respecting the Indian Revenue Act; by McLelan, respecting the non-enforcements of certificates to masters of vessels; by Tupper, respecting Quebec City's connection with the Intercolonial.

A discussion took place with respect to deserters from the United States Army captured on Canadian soil; lease of some of the thousand Islands; reduction of the rate of letter postage; frauds in the sale of agricultural fertilizers; and Dominion Health Officers. The South Saskatchewen Railway Bill was read the second time.

SESSIONAL NOTES.

THE C. P. R. AND THE SYNDICATE.

It is rumored in Ottawa in connection with the visits of Messrs Hickson, and Wainwright, of the Grand Trunk Railway, that this company have made an informal offer to the Government to take over the Canadian Pacific Railway and complete the same without further aid, and are willing to relinquish some of the monopoly privileges enjoyed by the Canadian Pacific Company, and carry on the work without any modification by the Government of the terms of the original contract as to time of completion of line, etc.

THE BALANCE OF TRADE.

Last year the value of Canadian exports was $98,085,804. The imports for the same year amounted to $132,254,022. That is the adverse balance of trade against Canada last year, was $32,168-218! An increase of imports over exports was once regarded by Tory politicians as an indisputable evidence of impending national ruin. We presume that with the collapse of the N. P., this uncertain principle in political economy may also be considered as discarded. It served its purpose with uncrupulous politicians bent, if not on deception, at least on bewilderment.

ASSISTED PASSAGES.

A gentleman lately returned from England, assures the Free Press that from personal observation, he is convinced that systematic fraud is practised under the policy of "assisted passages" to Canada. Men who are sent to England from Canada in charge of cattle and other things regularly return on assisted passage tickets as immigrants. It is also a common thing for persons who go to the old country to see their friends and who are abundantly able to pay their way back, to make use of the same dodge, and by paying a little extra aboard ship, secure a cheap and comfortable home trip. The whole system is an outrage on Canadian taxpayers and should be abolished at once and forever.

When Doctors Disagree

it will be time enough to doubt the reliability of Kidney-Wort. Doctors all agree that it is a most valuable medicine in all disorders of the Liver, Kidneys and Bowels, and frequently prescribe it. Dr. P. C. Ballou of Monkton says: "The past year I have used it more than ever, and with the best results. It is the most successful remedy I have ever used." Such a recommendation speaks for itself. Sold by all druggists. See advt.

Taken at the Right End.

P. A. McArthur, of Alton, Ont., had a cold which he didn't like. It wasn't so very bad, but it hung on him a long time and was getting seated. The usual medical remedies did no good. He tried Dr. Wilson's Pulmonary Cherry Balsam. The first dose benefitted him, and in a short time he was perfectly well. It is not necessary for any cold to obtain a foot-hold in any constitution as long as Dr. Wilson's Pulmonary Cherry Balsam is at hand. What Quinine is to fever, Dr. Wilson's Pulmonary Cherry Balsam is to throat and lung diseases.

The Record of the Fairs.

The superiority of Wells, Richardson & Co's Improved Butter Color over all others made, is again demonstrated by its record at the Autumnal Fairs. The test of practical use is what tells the story, and the great vaule of the premiums given by the Agricultural Fairs, lies in the fact, that the Judges in these cases are regular farmers, who know what their needs are and what will supply them. Wells, Richardson & Co's Improved Butter Color, which has taken first premium at all fairs where shown is put in a vegetable oil so prepared that it cannot become rancid, a most important property, the lack of which is fatal to so many of the Butter-Colors offered for sale. It does not color the buttermilk; it imparts a bright natural color, which is unattained by many others; and being the strongest is the cheapest color in the market.

For Corsets that are sure to fit any figure go to Turnbull's. Special orders taken for extra sizes.

UNITED STATES NEWS NOTES.

An oil report from Titusville, Pa., says that 223 wells were completed during January, with a production of 3149 barrels daily.

Within the last three years thirty-five telegraph companies, with capital amounting to $225,000,000 have been incorporated in New York state.

The village of Laurel Hill, L. I. is greatly excited over some suspected poisoning cases. Two people have died and a third is not expected to recover.

The terrible accident to an Indianapolis train on Tuesday by which seven persons were killed, was caused by the removal of the permanent rods, the place of which was supplied by temporary rods.

A man murdered a boy at South Hero, Vt., and then went to the boy's home and demanded the lad's property, saying his victim had sent him. The murderer escaped.

Agents have been appointed by the colored emigration association at Washington to secure homes for colored people in the Mexican state of Souara and Lower California.

The New York police have been advised that an iron chest containing 120,000 guilders was stolen from the platform in front of the postoffice in Buda-Pesth on Jan. 5. It surmised is that the thieves have fled to America.

The report in current in New York that the cotton mills in New England, representing nearly 700,000 spindles, have issued orders to stop a large number of looms in order to reduce production because of the present unprofitable prices.

Nina Peddy, the daughter of a clergyman at Atlanta, Ga., was to be married to a prominent business man of the town Tuesday, but a deacon of the church suited her better and she eloped with him, leaving the expectant bridegroom and his friends to wonder at her non-arrival.

President Norvin Green of the Western Union opposed the acquiring of the telegraphic system of the country by the government. He depicts all kinds of evils that would result from such a step, and says the ten thousand operators now employed by the company under the government would speedily increase to 100,000.

A VERDANT YOUNG FARMER.

A young farmer not many miles from the village of Harrietsville gave a note last winter for some sawing which he did not want to pay for at the time. When the note fell due a few days ago he went to the mill to pay it. The mill owner got the note, laid it on the edging table and began to figure up the interest, when the young man thought, "Now is my time to make an easy payment, and forthwith snatched up the note tore off the name, and started for home. The mill owner started after him demanding either note or money, but the young man kept on his course shouting back, "Now, I have the whip row on you." He then went over to a neighboring house and tore the note in pieces, thinking that would be an end of it and the debt was now paid. The mill man took the thing quite coolly, consulted some of his friends as to the best course to pursue and concluded that rather than institute legal proceedings at once, which would most likely land his neighbor in the penitentiary, he would stay proceedings for a few days and see if he would not come back and settle. In the meantime our young farmer, not feeling easy during the night, started for Ingersoll next morning to consult a lawyer as to the probable result. The consequence was that the next morning after he returned from Ingersoll, he went to the mill to settle for the note.

A NEW TELEGRAPH LINE TO WINNIPEG

In an interview, Mr Jenkins, superintendent of the Canadian Pacific railway, confirmed the report that the company were going to build a telegraph line through to eastern Canada. He said the work would be commenced as soon as possible and the line would probably be working by the middle of summer, when it is expected the through rail and water route of the Canadian Pacific railway will be opened. It has to be done on account of the difficulty in maintaining the land line around the lake shore. A submarine telegraph cable is to be laid between Michipicoten bay, Lake Superior, to which point construction has already been completed, and Algoma bay.

Consumption, Scrofula, Enlargement of the Glands of the Neck, Eurptions of the Skin, Spinal Disease, Torpid Liver with constipation and head aches, Irritation of the Kidneys and Bladder, Nervous Prostration and General Debility, all depend upon depraved nutrition and impoverished blood arising from indigestion. Dr. Wheeler's Compound Elixir of Phosphates and Calisaya immediately reaches the primary cause of these diseases, Dyspepsia, and enables the stomach to completely digest and assimilate a sufficient quantity of nourishment to build up the tissues.

W. G. Livingston writes to the Winnipeg Sun as follows: "I see in your issue of to-day that Sir John Macdonald, in the debate on the address, denies that any bona fide settler has ever been dispossessed. This I am in a position to contradict for after residing on and cultivating my homestead for nearly nine years, and having improvements to the amount of twenty thousand dollars, my land was sold by the Government, and I have been dispossessed.

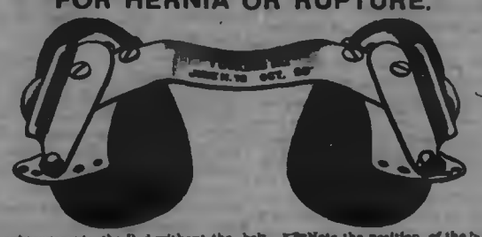
The Tucker Spring Pad Truss

FOR HERNIA OR RUPTURE.



(This cut represents the Pad without the belt. ☞Note the position of the ▷ shaped spring situated in the pad by which a CONSTANT but easy INWARD and UPWARD pressure is conveyed to the Hernia when the Pad is adjusted.)

This Truss, which is placed before your notice and consideration, is wholly unlike any other appliance in construction or principle. It dispenses with the ever uncomfortable Body Spring, having the means to convey a proper pressure just where it is required, that is in the Pad. The Tucker Truss is very light, single one weighing about 4 ozs., and the double one not 8 ozs., it completely and comfortably retains the Hernia under all positions and exertions of the body. A swivel attachment to the belt prevents displacement by locomotion or stooping, and its ready and complete adjustability by which each Pad is made either RIGHT or LEFT at once or fixed at any desired angle commends it, and also, it is more durable than any other, as there is nothing to rust or break, all the metal work being nickel plated.

WHAT SHALL I GIVE HIM?

Is a puzzling question. It is easy enough to find things for the "hers," in fact the variety is embarrassing; but the selection of a present for the male sex is more difficult. We have known Ladies to present their Husbands with useful Household Articles and it is not a bad idea, but if you wish to give the man something for personal use, the list to choose from is rather short. CLOTHES are Staple—always in demand. Why not a new OVERCOAT or SUIT? A SET OF SHIRTS, some fine HOSIERY, HANDKERCHIEFS, or NECKWEAR? or, if that is not appropriate, give the Domestic Man a HOUSE COAT OR WRAPPER. While to the Gay Young Man, SHIRT STUDS, SCARF PINS, SILK TIE or SCARF. Now that you have the hint what to get, we will modestly add that a good place to get everything of this sort is right here, where we are making a Special Holiday Display of Useful and Ornamental Wearin Apparel for Men and Boys.

Carping Criticism.

Our Opposition neighbor would have done much better this year to leave the speech from the throne severely alone. In it some questions of great importance were broached, and the positions of the Mowat Administration were laid down with uncompromising boldness. How are their views met by the member for West Peterborough through his own paper?

After admitting that the Bureau of Statistics, the Agricultural College, the Provincial Board of Health, and the Free Libraries Act are all doing good work, the critic goes on to misrepresent the speech by saying that it describes the decision in the Hodge case as "deciding beyond controversy the whole liquor question in favor of Provincial legislation." The words put in the mouth of the Lieutenant-Governor say nothing of the sort. Those who are responsible for it knew perfectly well, as the whole country knows, that in the Russell case the right of the Dominion Parliament to pass the Scott Act was unreservedly affirmed. What the speech does say—and we challenge Mr. Carnegie and his organ to deny it—is that by the judgment in the Hodge case "the right of Provincial Legislatures to regulate the traffic in intoxicating drinks is placed beyond controversy" The Crooks Act is at least as valid as the Scott Act; whether the McCarthy Act is valid or, not can make no possible difference in the correctness of the above official assertion.

It is quite true, as stated in the speech from the throne, that the decisions in the insurance and escheat cases, with the decision in the Hodge case, furnish good assurance that the interests of the provinces, constitutionally viewed, are safe in the hands of the highest court of colonial jurisdiction. The Supreme Court at Ottawa is not to be trusted in matters of this kind, but after a few more such decisions as the three referred to in the speech, the power of the Supreme Court for constitutional mischief will be greatly lowered. If the members of the latter body are wise they will take the hints given them and learn to regard the British North America Act as Lord Carnarvon in his Montreal speech described it—not a mere municipal statute, but a compact between the provinces.

The next great topic in the speech is shirked by the critic in the most cowardly fashion. The Lieutenant-Governor was made to remind the Assembly that the Dominion Parliament last session passed a railway act, one section of which took from under Provincial control, not merely all trunk lines, such as the Grand Trunk, Canada Southern, and Credit Valley roads, but also all lines now or hereafter to be constructed, either connecting with or crossing them. All the roads chartered in past years by the Ontario Legislature, and all the roads aided as well as chartered, are at one stroke of the pen, removed from our legislative jurisdiction, and made for all practical purposes, Dominion instead of Provincial roads. Nay more. The Ontario Legislature is virtually deprived of all power of railway legislation, for this "drag-net" clause affects all railways hereafter to be chartered, as well as those now in existence. And yet in the face of this most uncalled-for humiliation of the Provincial Legislatures by his friends at Ottawa, Mr. Carnegie has not a word of condemnation for them, or of approval for the very mild remarks on the subject contained in the speech from the throne. All that the Legislature is asked to do is "to consider whether the British North America Act was intended to enable the Federal Parliament to interfere in this manner with the legislative authority of the Provinces." We now renew the invitation to Mr. Carnegie to consider this important matter, and express at the same time the hope that Mr. Mowat will, during the present session, give members on both sides an opportunity of putting on record an expression of their opinion on this important point. A Province that will not contend strenuously for its rights is unworthy of its franchises, and deserves to be trodden under the foot of the tyrant.

The next point taken up by the critic is the boundary reference. There is no word of condemnation for the Government's proposal to refer the dispute to the Privy Council for adjudication. All that is alleged is, that the Government should have done this sooner, and that in doing it now they are only adopting the policy of the Opposition. Even if this were strictly true, the public would not be disposed to pay much attention to the claims of Mr. Carnegie and his associates. What they want is to get the quarrel settled, and they are much more anxious to get this than they are to see public men maintain their position unchanged. With the vast majority it is better to be right than to be consistent. But the Review's contention is unfounded. Mr. Mowat never had before an opportunity of making the reference to the Privy Council on terms which the Province could accept, and he never refused to agree to a reference on such terms. He has succeeded in getting a provisional agreement on a case the very first article of which is the submission of the award of 1878 to the judgment of the court, and he has secured also that the reference shall be made within a certain specified time.

The Review's next remark of any moment is that the Government have stolen the Opposition's franchise policy, as well as their boundary policy. As "Squeers" says, "Here is richness." Every extension of the franchise that has ever taken place has been brought about by the efforts of Liberals, and has been carried in the face of the strenuous opposition of Conservatives. We have arrived at such a point now that it is of little use to attempt another extension unless manhood suffrage is granted at once, and we sincerely hope that this, under proper restrictions and conditions is what the speech contemplates. If the Government's proposal falls short of a measure to dissociate the political suffrage altogether from property and income, and base it entirely on residence, with the usual limitations as to age, sanity, crime, and pauperism, we shall be greatly surprised. To such a scheme the Opposition can make no objection, and if the Government are wise they will take them at their word.

Free Railway Passes.

We agree with other Reform papers in their desire to see the law, as declared by the Court of Appeal in the East Northumberland and South Victoria cases, amended. It is at present in such a shape that a railway corporation might, without infringing it, virtually control an election in a close constituency through which it passes. No great harm has resulted from this state of affairs in the past, for in neither of the above cases was the result affected by the giving of passes. Now that it has been shown that a railway may lawfully give free passes to voters, the election law should be so amended as to make the giving of passes per se a corrupt practice.

It is useless to say that the giving of a free pass by a railway is analogous to the gift of a ride to the polls by the owner of a carriage. As the law at present stands the cases are technically parallel, but practically they are very different. The owner of a carriage cannot convey many voters in a day, and the owners of carriages on the other side can offset his efforts by their own. But let a railway company throw its carrying capacity gratis on one side or the other, and it becomes for all practical purposes master of the situation. It is not safe to leave any such power in the hands of a powerful corporation, and we hope that Mr. Mowat will see that by his new bill the law is amended in this as well as in other respects.

Hon. Mr. Pardee.

Hon. Mr. Pardee's speech in the Ontario Legislature on the address, emphasized his claims, long since conceded by those who know him best, to be considered one of the best and most effective speakers in the Legislature. He is fluent, fervid, and argumentative, and imbued with an earnestness and honesty that carry conviction to his hearers. As a statesman of which Ontario may be proud. His speech alluded to above, has seldom been surpassed on the floor of that house. The manner in which he cornered Mr. Meredith and tumbled about that gentleman's ears his clumsily-built structures of illogical assertions; his brave defiance of the threats made against him by Mr. Meredith in reference to political corruption; his defense of the Rat Portage action in relation to the boundary dispute; his scathing exposure of the pitable position of the Opposition on the license question; his indignant denunciation of the ruinous usurpations attempted under cover of the disallowance power; in fine, his whole speech, showed the Hon. Commissioner of Crown Lands, to be a cultured speaker and a clear-headed logician, as his efficient career has shown him to be a faithful and capable administrator of the affairs of his department.

The First Division.

The debate on the address in the Ontario Legislature closed on Tuesday night, or rather on Wednesday morning, the House sitting till 2 o'clock a. m. The first division took place on the amendment of Mr. Meredith to the sixth paragraph of the address. The amendment was practically a call to the Ontario Legislature to commit itself to taking steps to ascertain the validity of that insolent and usurping outrage, the McCarthy License Act. The division on the amendment, a straight want-of-confidence motion, resulted in a Government majority of twelve, with one Government supporter absent at the time, from the house. The figures are: Ministerial 45, Opposition 33. This is a good majority—indeed, a magnificent one, when it is remembered that it was taken while the members were warm under the thrilling spell of Mr. Carnegie's eloquence, who was the last speaker before the division. Everybody who has heard his campaign harangues knows what his speech contained—it was simply a rehash of what the electors of the West Riding are already familiar with. It was Peck and the Boundary Award, Colonization Roads, and a justification of Dominion interference in local elections. Mr. Carnegie badly forgot himself. He seemed to fancy he could bulldoze the House as he and his clique try to bulldoze the party in the West Riding, and he was called to order by the Speaker for a breach of the rules of parliamentary debate. One would think that Mr. Carnegie, with his former experience, would have learned enough not to outrage decency, and not have to be called to order on his first appearance in a debate. He was hailed by his admirers as a great addition to Opposition talent. His first attempt does not certainly bear out these predictions. The Globe has the following reference to the new Opposition star:

"Mr. Carnegie has been heralded with a flourish of trumpets as one of the ablest additions made to the Opposition side of the House as the result of the late elections. But Mr. Carnegie has proved a disappointment to his friends. His speech last night was extremely tiresome."

Tory Government Corruption.

The session at Ottawa is still young; yet, there has been unearthed, by the means at the command of the Opposition, a nice little nest of corrupt facts and acts on the part of the Government.

Light has been thrown on the scandalous fact that Sir Charles Tupper, while drawing his salary as Minister of railways and Canals, has, at the same time, been drawing his salary as High Commissioner in London, at the rate of an aggregate of $18,000 per year. In effect, as a member of the Cabinet, he appointed himself to the former office, and reported to himself upon the way he had performed his duties, and, practically, was master and servant at one and the same time.

Sir John has been shown how he can over-ride the public interests to reward a political friend. He admitted on the floor of Parliament, in effect, that he sold one Robitaille a thousand acres of public lands, the improvements on which, as made by the Government, cost $7,500, for the paltry figure of $3 an acre, while the land is worth at least $10 an acre. The sale was made without competition or public notice.

Sir John has shown that he can even fleece the defenceless Indian to serve a political friend. The former, in the Northwest, were induced, in the absence of their chiefs, to assent to licenses being given to cut timber on their reserves; when the chiefs returned, they objected, but still the licenses were issued and poor Lo deprived of his rights, to serve political factotums. As the session advances other revelations will be forthcoming to show that political support, at whatever cost, is the object of the present Tory Government. Regardless of the public interests, reckless in the expenditure of public funds, the present Dominion Government show themselves dead to every appeal on behalf of economy or a consideration of the public welfare. With even their intense thirst for office and its spoils, under their rule the time is fast coming when they will lose their desire for place; the country will soon be so far ruined that there will be nothing left for political sharks.

Trent Valley Canal.

Everything goes to show that, as we have urged heretofore, the Government is using this undertaking as a political engine. This course of action is a deliberate insult to the people of this district, to whom the building of the canal would be an untold benefit, but the interests of the people must be made the cats-paw of political intriguers. If the Government, as they proposed at the last selection, were determined to build the canal, they would have shown some such inclination to do so. All they have done is to grant sums to serve political ends and keep the hopes of the people alive, which are ultimately doomed to disappointment, if they depend on the present government. The surplus is being frittered away in a thousand extravagant undertakings, and the credit of the country is about to be pledged to an additional burden of $25,000,000 at one stroke; and lack of funds will be the next excuse. So long as the Trent Valley Canal can be made of political use, so long will little dabs of money be voted, but not a moment longer—especially by the present Government.

Mr. Meredith says that electoral corruption must be suppressed by "elevating the people." It was in execution of Mr. Meredith's plan, we suppose, that Shields tried to "elevate" the electors of Muskoka with frozen whiskey.

The Syndicate's Latest Grab.

Ever since the bargain was made with the Canadian Pacific Railway syndicate, the Government has been the bond slaves of that corporation, they made themselves when they signed the ruinously extravagant contract. When that contract was first discussed the country was assured that it was final; the road would be built rapidly, and the country would be called on to do nothing but reap the advantage derivable from its working. The company were men of ability and abundant capital, and there was no fear of their failing in the great undertaking. They went on and built the easiest portion of the road—the prairie section—and now, before half their work is done, they are financially embarrassed. Relying on the favor of the Government, the company frittered away its funds in side speculations, buying up railroads to extend the gigantic powers of monopoly the Government had conferred on it. In spite of the lavish assistance received, the syndicate now comes before Parliament demanding another twenty-five millions in cash before it can finish the road. The monstrous nature of this demand is shown by the fact that this sum, if granted, will make the total cost of the road to the country over a hundred million dollars! The only plea of the Government is that without this further grant the road cannot be built. If this be true, then the Government stands convicted of a huge blunder in giving the contract to such a syndicate. But it is also claimed that it is only a "loan"—a loan that never will be repaid, if even the interest is provided for. The security offered is already pledged to the Government for the performance of the original contract, so that it only amounts to a second mortgage. If the company could not build the road on the terms first granted, there is no guarantee that they can do it with the new gift. In view of the fact that the monopoly clauses are all retained, this new steal is the most gigantic ever perpetrated in Canada. It seems to be throwing good money after bad. Parliament entered on the consideration of the subject on Tuesday, but there is no doubt that the Government voting-machines will push the matter through. The people will await the decision of its representatives with breathless interest.

Motions for Information.

Several of the Conservative organs have taken occasion to taunt Mr. Blake with asking for a great deal of information, to be brought down in the form of Parliamentary returns. The preparation of these returns, they say, occupies time and provides work for extra clerks. Perhaps it does; but this is a matter of little importance compared with getting authentic information on great public questions before the people's representatives.

A great deal of the information asked for by Mr. Blake relates to the Canadian Pacific Railway. Surely at a time when Parliament is to be asked to vote another thirty millions to aid in the construction of that road it is not too much to require ample information for the formation of an intelligent opinion as to the necessities of the company. What have they done with all the money paid to them in cash, and all they have made by selling land, bonds and stock? Until the expenditure of the large amounts handed over to them is explained, it is useless to ask any independent member of Parliament to vote them more.

But Mr. Blake is quite right for another reason in asking for the information referred to. Two years ago, after moving for certain returns, he submitted to the House of Commons a general resolution requesting the Government to bring down similar returns in future sessions without waiting to be asked for them. Sir Charles Tupper consented to do so, and the resolution was allowed to pass. Its terms have not, however, been complied with. Last year the information given to Parliament of the good will of the Government was not at all sufficient, and instead of volunteering similar information this year they have again to be asked for it. If the facts wanted by Parliament were prepared before the session begins and laid on the table at once there would be no need of such motions as those moved by Mr. Blake, which are really a reflection on the Government for their unwillingness to let the facts of the case become fully known.

Editorial Notes.

The evidence in the trial of the North Victoria election petition closed on Friday last, and their Lordships reserved their decision.

The householder can appreciate the beauties of the coal tax thoroughly, with the thermometer almost out of sight, below zero.

Mr. D. D. Hay, ex-M.P.P., who has served his country in a public capacity a quarter of a century, has been appointed registrar of North Perth.

A pointer for legislators: Ottawa municipality loses $15,000 of taxes yearly by the exemption of the salaries of civil service employes from taxation.

A special sitting of the Supreme Court, for the hearing of the Bothwell election appeal will be held on Tuesday, February 12th. Mr. Hawkins' counsel used his best efforts to stave off the hearing.

Hard times are hard enough to bear, but hard times and high taxation are a terrible conjunction of misfortunes to the poor workingman. But why should we have hard times? The Protection party told the people that the Mackenzie Government could legislate away hard times, and because they did not do so the people dismissed them and gave Sir Leonard a chance. Now let Sir Leonard see what he can do at restoring prosperity by act of Parliament.

Lord Lansdowne, our Governor-General, has reduced the rents of thirty leaseholds in the county of Kerry, Ireland. By so doing he has reduced his income to the extent of £184, or about $895.

The net debt of Canada has more than doubled since Confederation. In 1867 the gross liabilities were $93,046,051, and the total assets $17,317,410, leaving the net liability $75,728,641. Now the gross liabilities of Canada are $202,159,104, and the assets are $43,692,389, leaving the net liabilities $158,466,715.

The Ottawa Citizen, the local organ of the Government, is anxious about the multiplicity of returns asked for by members of Parliament. When the Citizen endorses and defends the Pacific Railway contract, and the thousand and one other corrupt extravagancies of the Government, its objections can not be made on the grounds of economy. The Citizen objects to the returns because they furnish materials for exposing the jobbery and corruption of the Government.

How the N. P. raises wages! Ten of the builders and manufacturers of Peterborough have issued a card, agreeing not to pay more than fifteen cents an hour to skilled mechanics. The protective tariff was to raise and keep up wages. Whatever harm the N. P. brings about, the masters are in a position to avoid loss, or at least to mitigate such an evil. They can cut down expenses so as to leave a fair margin of profit, but the poor workingman has to suffer. This shows, as we have always contended, that the working man, as compared to the manufacturer, has to be the loser, and yet he is the person the blatant advocates of high taxation claimed would be the most benefitted.

The usefulness of that political sewing circle at Ottawa, the Senate, is shown by the fact that Senator McKay moved on Wednesday for two weeks' adjournment, and, on a Senator, with some sense of shame, hinting that the adjournment would degrade the old ladies in the eyes of the country, Sir Alex. Campbell assured him that "the public business would not suffer in consequence of the adjournment." This affords grounds for the suggestion that the country would manage to rub along if the Senate should adjourn forever. Considering that this collosal congress of incapacity costs the country something like $150,000 per year, it would certainly be the most useful act they ever did.

The civil service employes at Ottawa have a "soft-thing"—their heads not now alluded to. They are exempt from municipal taxation, and the country pays their washing bills. Last year there was paid $819.58 for washing towels in the different Departments. This, at sixty cents a dozen, means 16,391 towels. The large number of towels soiled gives rise to the suspicion that some of the members of the Government must use them to produce the "clean hands" of which a certain minister is wont to boast. If the members of the Government take generally to making their "hands clean" on Departmental towels, they had better think twice before giving another twenty-five millions to the Canadian Pacific horse-leech—there wont be enough money left to pay the washing bills, let alone build the Trent Valley Canal or the Peterborough post-office.

NORWOOD.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

MAGISTRATE'S COURT.

On Wednesday afternoon of last week Wm. Johnson was arraigned before John Brockenridge, J.P., and Thos. Rork, J. P., by Daniel McInerney, both of Belmont, for assaulting and beating him at Provencens' Hotel, on the 7th January. The squabble occurred after the close of the poll on election day, when a number of the "free and independent" were at the hotel discussing the pros and cons of the election. The complainant used some offensive language to Johnson, when the latter floored the former by a blow from his "right bower." Johnson admitted the charge, but produced many witnesses to show that he struck the blow under great provocation. This the magistrates gave due consideration to, and fined defendant only $1, the costs amounting to $7.60—rather an expensive blow after all.

FIRE.

On Friday last, while the weather was so intensely cold, a building on Peterborough street, belonging to Mrs. Widow Carr, used by her as a shop and residence, was discovered to be on fire. Quickly our townspeople gathered to fight the fiery element, and by hard work aided chiefly by the depth of snow which covered the roof, the fire was quenched, but not before the roof and the interior walls of the building were considerably damaged, as well as a quantity of goods contained therein. The fire originated from a defective chimney. With very commendable promptness, a number of our village carpenters, nobly aided by all the carpenters now engaged in the construction of the station buildings here, went to work gratuitously to repair the damaged building, while a subscription was at once circulated, when a number of our citizens subscribed more than sufficient cash to purchase materials to make the necessary repairs; so that, beyond the loss of a couple of days' occupancy of her premises, Mrs. Carr will not be at any loss by the unfortunate fire.

THE WEATHER.

The only subject now being seriously discussed is the weather, and is being seriously felt, too. "The "oldest inhabitant" says he has never experienced the like of the cold wave—if it can be called a wave—and the continued snow storms to which we are now being treated. Snow three feet deep, and more falling; the cold continues, and almost unendurable; and when the thermometer, on Thursday morning last, fell to forty degrees below zero, we thought we had the bitter end; and despite Vennor's predictions to the contrary, we have not the end yet.

DETAINED.

Our Reeve, Mr. Thos. Fraser, was unfortunately detained from attending the meeting of the County Council, through a severe attack of illness. We are glad to be able to state he is now much improved, and will soon be again attending to business, with his usual health and strength. Mr. Fraser felt keenly his absence, as he is anxious to discharge faithfully and zealously all the duties appertaining to his official position.

DULL TIMES.

Business for some time past has not been very brisk, owing to the terrible state of the weather. The principal stir now is the drawing of wood, of which there is a very large quantity coming into this village. There will be no wood famine in this direction, at any rate.

SETTLED.

It is very gratifying to learn that the matter in dispute between the village of Norwood and the Asphodel, Belmont and Dummer Agricultural Society will be amicably settled. It was a little misapprehension about the wording of the by-law which really brought the difficulty between these two corporations. At a recent meeting of the directors of the society held in Norwood a resolution was unanimously passed requesting the Norwood Council to pass a supplementary by-law granting the use of the new park grounds for agricultural purposes, so that the Asphodel, Belmont and Dummer Agricultural Society will be distinctly named as having the power to use the grounds for Agricultural exhibitions. As this was not clearly defined in the old by-law, the Council will readily comply with this reasonable request, and then matters will go on as smoothly as formerly between the village and the agricultural societies interested.

Miss Stewart, of Cobourg, who had applied for the vacant department, was engaged at a salary of $200.

The board then adjourned.

CURLING.

Our curlers, who went down to Peterborough on Wednesday, came home feeling that they had made considerable improvement since last season, being beaten only by five points. They are not only pleased with their game, but with the hospitable manner in which they were entertained by the Peterborough players.

CARNIVAL.

The carnival takes place to-night. A large attendance is expected.

KEENE NEWS.

(From an Occasional Correspondent.)

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

At a congregational meeting in the Presbyterian church here on Friday last, it was decided to proceed with the erection of the new church on plans somewhat different from those originally proposed. The church, which is to be built on the lot lately owned by Mr. George Read, across the street, west of the present site of the Presbyterian church, will, when completed, according to the present plans, be something neat, reflecting credit on the congregation and members of the denomination here. Couldn't we get a new school house, too?

CARNIVAL.

Owing to the recent snow storms, which so much detracted from the success of his last, Mr. McIntyre intends, we believe, to hold another skating carnival soon, which will be duly advertised by posters. Our Band—the Victoria Brass Band, of Keene—has been engaged for the evening, and will render, in their usual finished style, several selections of new music. Come one! come all! as a good time is assured if we can engage the favorable opinion and services of the weather prophet.

SCHOOL REPORT.

Mr. Campbell has kindly furnished us with the standing of his senior class, such standing being adjudged to them on the marks obtained at his recent January examinations, and is as follows:—1st, Robt. Armstrong; 2nd, Walter Bryce; 3rd, Dennis Kennaley; 4th, Eliza Launderville; 5th, Maggie Kennaley; 6th, Aggie Miller; 7th, Nellie Dickson; 8th, Annie M. Kirby. The names of those entering and not completing their examinations has not been included in the list.

DICKSON'S MILL.

The above mill has been for some time undergoing repairs, but is now in good running order, and John says she's in "boss" shape. If you don't believe it come and try her.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Business is more active.

There is very little traffic across Rice Lake this season, owing to large quantities of snow and water upon the ice.

We believe that the building of the new Presbyterian church is to be proceeded with at once. A quantity of brick has been delivered already.

The Band, under the leadership of Mr. A. Freeman, of Peterborough, played a number of pieces in the Skating Rink on Tuesday evening. The Band is improving rapidly.

Look out for the next carnival, to take place in the Keene Skating Rink on Wednesday, 13th Feb. The Band will be present, and a good time is expected.

The Burnham flouring mills have undergone a thorough repair. A large quantity of new machinery has been put in, and we understand that the proprietor, Mr. John Dickson, guarantees a better quality of flour than at any time heretofore. The farmers of this vicinity will do well to give him a call, and test it for themselves.

Turnbull has just placed on his counter a nice range of Spring Dress Goods, at the Low Price of 12½ Cents a Yard.

BELMONT.

(From our own Correspondent.)

We feel very much pleased to inform our Norwood neighbors that, instead of a watering tank, blacksmith shop, with two fires and five men at Mathison's, as they they reported through the Norwood Register, we are to have a round-house capable of holding forty locomotives, with tank house and repair shops, station and refreshment rooms, which will employ one hundred men. Our Norwood friends, we have no doubt feel disappointed at not having a station two hundred and fifty feet long as they expected. They appear to have to be satisfied with one eighteen by twenty-four, after the trouble they went to in giving the navvies an oyster dinner, besides a great deal more pains they went to in trying to make Norwood a place of great importance, on the O. & Q. railway. We hope the next time the chief leads his little band out, it will be to pay us a visit at Mathison's, instead of going out to meet the railroad navvies, as he did when the iron horse reached Norwood.

SMITH.

Junior Second Class—1st, Walter Davidson; 2nd, Charlie McDonnell; 3rd, W. Gill. First Book Part II—1st, Stephen McDonnell; 2nd, Chattie Hall; 3rd, Ida Hicks and Emily Croft. THE LOWEST TEMPERATURE.

To the Editor of the EXAMINER:

I see it stated in the Review that the temperature in 1884 has been lower than any year since 1854. The information is not correct. In 1872, the night the first iron bridge fell into the river, I caused it to be registered 40 degrees below zero. In 1883 I registered 36 degrees, and in 1884 I have been as low as 34 degrees. Since 1854 there have been two colder snaps than any yet registered here in 1884.

I am, yours, etc.,

FENELON.

A writ of quo warranto has been taken out at the instance of Mr. Knight against Mr. T. Smithson, deputy-reeve of Fenelon recently elected warden of Victoria, on the ground of insufficient property qualification. Mr. Knight ran against Mr. Smithson and now claims the seat. The Post understands Mr. Smithson has thrown up the sponge. This will involve the election of a new warden by a special session of the county council.

PORT HOPE.

On Saturday morning, a freight train, No. 16, was standing on the the viaduct awaiting orders. Suddenly another freight train came crashing into the caboose. The engineer and fireman of the standing train, jumped for life, and the latter, Martin Sheehan, cleared the the viaduct and dropped forty feet to the ground. The snow, and striking the telegraph wires saved his life. Nobody else was hurt. Sheehan received internal injuries.

COLBORNE.

Rutherford the jeweller here, had a set of jewellery stolen from him worth $23. A lady highly connected in the village, and a prominent member of the church, had, been examining his stock, but suspicion did not attach to her. Others were suspected, but a chain of circumstantial evidence led to the certain conclusion that the lady in question was the guilty party. Mr. Rutherford refused to prosecute, preferring to believe it a case of kleptomania.

BOBCAYGEON.

The new Reeve, J.L. Read, Esq., with an admirable appreciation of the duties of his honorable position, oystered the Council and a few friends, at the Forest House, on Tuesday.

Mr. Benjamin Ventress, having determined upon removing to Peterborough a number of his friends called upon him on Wednesday evening, and having a full supply of oysters, a splendid evening was spent.

LINDSAY.

The Sylvester works are to be considerably enlarged during the coming summer if the crops and general business are as good throughout the country as they have been in the past.

The officials of the Methodist and Bible Christian churches had decided a short time ago to place the children attending the B. C. Sabbath school in the Methodist school. The proposed change will not take place for some time yet—possibly not until the 1st July—at which date the churches are expected to unite.

COBOURG.

The costs in the East Northumberland protested election trial, are estimated to be all the way from $4000 to $8000.

The roads leading into the country were never before in a more frightful condition, the pitch-holes and snow banks being terrible.

Last year the Haldimand, Eddystone, and Colborne cheese manufactories, turned out two hundred and sixty-four thousand pounds of cheese, valued at $27,825, as follows: Colborne factory 43,000 lbs, $4.515; Eddystone, 86,000 lbs, $9,030: Haldimand, 136,000 lbs, $14,280.

HASTINGS.

One of our most prominent citizens and an old landmark has passed away, in the person of James S. Fowlds, Esq., His energy had been flagging for some time and the loss of bodily vigor finally culminated in paralysis about six weeks ago and under which he cucombed on Sunday 27th inst. Deceased was born in Glasgow in the year 1819. For the past 35 years he has been a resident of this village, and has identified himself as an important factor in those years. He has represented Percy and Hastings in the Beeveship for a long time; his death will cause a void which will be long felt.

CAMPBELLFORD

Dry corwood is selling at $3,50 to $4.00 per cord, and green wood at $3.00 per cord.

Last Friday morning's mail contained 300 letters, but then they were the accumulation of four day's delay by the snow blockade.

The next carnival is to be a Dickens' masquerade, one in which every costume must represent a character in Dickens. Mr. Little is going to make this the best carnival ever held in Campbellford.

BELLEVILLE.

Barley is being shipped west from Belleville at the rate of twelve cars daily.

In the Police Court here on Friday, David Beatty, of Hungerford, was fined $40 and costs, $74 in all, for biting off a piece of the ear of Robert Rutledge, of the same township.

Several lengths of new hose lately purchased by the Corporation burst at the fire on Monday morning. The agent of the company who furnished it, claims that it was cut with a sharp instrument, and offers a reward of $300 for the conviction of the perpetrator of the outrage. An investigation was begun this afternoon before the Fire Committee, and it was shown that the hose had been tampered with.

NORWOOD.

Mr. Mathers, division engineer on the O. & Q. R'y here, left on Saturday last for Peterborough, where he will reside until the road is completed. Mr. Mathers, during his short stay here won many friends, who all join with us in wishing him prosperity. Mr. Barber, C. E., spent a few days here last week superintending the location of the round house, etc.

The Norwood, Warkworth & Brighton Railway scheme will, in all probability be taken up by American capitalists before long. Mr. Roxborough has been requested to procure maps of the townships of Haldimand and Percy to lay before a company of capitalists who contemplate building the road.

The present year promises to be one of the most prosperous that Norwood has ever been favored with. Take the buildings in course of construction and likely to be erected. In course of construction, —the High School, equal if not superior to the Peterborough Collegiate Institute; the O. & Q. Station Buildings, as large as those to be built at Bowmanville—a town; Roxburgh's block, a large three story and a half brick block with mansard roof and cupola—which would be a credit to towns of greater pretensions than Norwood; Mr. T. Hendren's large and commodious carriage factory; Mr. D. Mahoney's two story and a half brick residence on Belmont Street—a credit to any town; Mr. Stacey's pump factory, just completed, having been thoroughly overhauled and enlarged; Mr. Hugh Drain's roomy brick residence, north of the line of the O. & Q. Railway; Mr. T. Grover's brick basement, south of Queen Street; and others. To be constructed—another brick block by Mr. Roxburgh, just south of the one now in course of erection; a block by Mr. J. B. Pearce; block by Mr. D. Mahoney—to replace frame block on Colborne Street; Mr. S. J. Clysdale's $4,000 elevator and store houses; store houses by other parties; refreshment rooms at the O. & Q. R'y station; dwelling house by Mr. H. Harper, jr.; and cheese factory by Mr. H. Spence. As the season advances it will be found that this is but a small part of the work to be done here during the present year.

THE MISSING.

Missing—so many are missing.
The old as well as the young.
The poor and the rich together,
The weak alike with the strong.

Missing—our loved ones wander,
We never know how or where,
And passed from our sight as surely,
As the smoke fades into the air.

Missing—a toddling baby,
Is lost in the whirl of the street,
And never devotion can follow,
The tracks of the infant feet.

Missing—a bright young maiden
Has wandered, and where is the clue?
Where are the last year's roses?
Where is the morning dew?

Missing—the wild-eyed woman
Is lost in the heart of town;
Oh, is it the icy river,
Or worse that is holding her down?

Missing—a man; it may be
A citizen famed and well known,
Who sinks in the human ocean
As sinks in a pool a stone.

Missing—our care and riches
So vainly are used or spent;
We know that the loved one left us,
But know not whither they went.

Missing—at day time or night time,
And under the stars or the sun:
They vanish out of our knowledge
As sands from an hour glass run.

The Shade of Merecombe Hall

Humming softly to herself, Gyneth entered the sitting-room at home, with a spray of budding hedge-thorn in her hand, as a testimony to the real and visible approach of summer, but her words were drowned in Bertie's eager reception of her.

"O Gyneth! What do you think? Who do you think has been here? Mr. Suttleton!"

The little green buds dropped from Gyneth's hand, and very slowly she stooped to pick them up.

"He said he could not wait to see you, Gyneth; wasn't it a pity?" Bertie went on, heedlessly, unconsciously cruel. "He is going abroad for the summer."

Gyneth put the thorn down upon the table, and went to the fire to warm her hands. They must have been very cold indeed, they took her so long a time to warm—all the time that it took them to tell of his visit.

"He begs us to go to Merecombe again next holidays," said her mother, "and he brought us as a message from the cottage the first offer of our old lodgings. I told him that Bertie wished it greatly, and so did I, but that you seemed disinclined for Merecombe this year. He said Bertie looked just pale enough to need Merecombe air; and I felt so glad to think that we were able to afford it this summer that I am sure he thought I was delighted at the prospect. He asked whether you had any aversion to Merecombe, and Bertie told him confidentially—and as if she had been forty years old herself—that she thought it was a 'girlish whim,' and that you would soon come to reason.' He seemed to think it was very natural to prefer other places, and then hastened to tell us that he was himself going abroad. Then he told us a great deal of the old place, and, quite taking it for granted from that moment that we should go, he begged Bertie to roam where she chose over his place, and said he only wished he could be there himself to drive us and have tea with us. He spoke a great deal about those evenings we used to spend together."

"But, Gyneth," put in Bertie, "he left something else for you, besides his love, or kind regards, or whatever would be the right thing. Here it is—the key of his organ; and he hoped you would play sometimes, if only for our sakes. Take it, please, for fear I should lose it."

She took it without turning.

"Thank you, dear. Mother, let us make up our minds at once to go to Merecombe as soon as the holidays begin; we have money enough."

"How easily that key turned you!" laughed Bertie.

"I am a woman, and so turned by trifles, Bertie," said Gyneth, sententiously, feeling her hands warm enough by this time, and going to take off her walking things

"He might have stayed to see me—only—why should he?" she said to herself in her wayward thoughts. "What should hurry him away, though? Going abroad! And the old house will be empty, and I may play the organ to the desolate rooms—a glorious exchange! I shall like it, though," she argued to her own white face in the glass; "what should I be without my organ? I will fill the beautiful, sorrowful place with living voices, and they shall tell me of something better for my fancies to live upon. I wonder whether it is more lonely there or here. Ah me—

"If loving hearts were never lonely,
If all they wish might always be!"

And Gyneth gave one little glance, with very full eyes, at a large bunch of faded flowers that lay in one of her drawers.

"How unromantic," she said, with her low, pretty laugh. "How unlike those little bits we girls generally press and preserve as remembrances! I do believe I am the most senseless girl in London; but I cannot help it this time—they shall stay as he gave them to me. He said he cut and arranged them himself, so no other hands but his and mine have touched them yet. You are a foolish girl, Gyneth Marshbrook, decidedly; but it does not inconvenience anybody else."

CHAPTER VI.

Bertie Marshbrook, with all her old activity and restlessness, was enjoying to the full the summer holidays at Merecombe, and her mother and sister rejoiced to see the little pale face recovering the roses which had made such a short stay during the summer before. This was a very happy time indeed for Bertie. There had been orders left at the Hall to send her flowers and fruit continually when she came from Merecombe, and that the whole place should be open to her. Mrs. Marshbrook's enjoyment of the country now was delightful to see, and Gyneth was happy.

"I want to get very much sunburned," said Bertie, taking off her hat as they walked up one of the avenues of Merecombe park. "I want to look like a bit of country life after I go back to London."

"You will succeed admirably," said Gyneth, looking into the delicate face with a longing wish that she could give it her own bright health. "Yours is a very effectual means to try under a blazing July sun."

"If there were less shade it might be better," argued Bertie; for me, at least. I doubt whether Mr. Suttleton would care to lose his elms. Gyneth, just fancy. He has never even yet married and brought his wife's relatives to fill the place and put some life into it. Do you remember?"

"I wonder you can joke about it, after hearing the story Dr. Denne told us."

"Indeed I can, mamma, because I dare say it will turn out all happily at last," said the child, with simple confidence. "He will not always live lonely like this. How the people love him now, don't they? There is no one we speak to now who has not cause to love him. I think Merecombe is a very happy place altogether; the people are worth being cared for. What a contrast to the poor we visit in London, mother!"

"Yes, dear; but not all the country poor even are like these, you know. The place has a great deal to do with it—the squire has more. You have heard now of what he has done for them, and do you know what it reminds me of, Bertie?"

"No, mamma; tell me."

"Of a man who lived many hundreds of years ago, and who could say, even in all simplicity, 'When the ear heard me, then it blessed me; and when the eye saw me, it gave witness to me; because I delivered the poor that cried, and the fatherless, and him that had none to help him. The blessing of Him that was ready to perish came upon me, and I caused the widow's heart to sing for joy.'"

As she spoke they entered the entrance hall at Merecombe, and Gyneth opened the organ, while a servant brought chairs for her mother and Bertie to the terrace outside the open windows, where they could sit and listen while she played—as they had done many times during the holidays, but were doing now for the last time.

"It will be a gorgeous sunset," cried Bertie, presently. "O mamma! come to the cliffs to see it. Mr. Suttleton showed me a short way; we shall be on the shore directly. Come, Gyneth!"

"You and mother go, she returned, looking up, dreamily, to answer; "I want to play a little more. This is my last practice here—I will follow you."

She turned to watch them go away among the trees, and then her eyes wandered to the pictures, as she played on, until they fixed themselves upon the portrait about which Mr. Suttleton had spoken so sadly to her. He had never told her the story after all—never would now. Looking intently at it she caught a likeness which had not struck her before. It was Duke himself when a boy. Now she could recognize every feature. How stupid she must have been, she thought, not to have done so then, when the original stood beside her! She gazed at it a long time, thinking of the sad story which she knew now, although he had never told it to her; and, as she gazed, still playing dreamily, she peopled the old house with unreal forms and strange, vague, changing scenes.

And then quite suddenly into their midst came the one form and face that had haunted every vision Could it be real, there in the deepening gloom? She rose slowly, and stood quite calm and quiet, opposite to Duke himself, offering her hand timidly, while she looked into the face in which she saw on this evening something which she knew to be born of the fancies of her music—of all which fancies that face itself was the very heart and life.

"Mr. Suttleton, you are come home," Gyneth faltered at last, and with a laugh he answered:

"Yes, I am come home."

He had taken her hand then, and she felt how his trembled.

"You allowed me to come and practice," Gyneth said; "my mother and Bertie have just gone to the shore—at least not very long ago."

"I know," he answered, quietly; "why did you play so sadly after they left?"

"Did I? I did not know it. I was looking at one of the pictures."

"Which, Miss Marshbrook."

"Must I tell you?" she asked, striving in vain to recover her old defiant spirit.

"If you please," he answered, very gravely.

"That portrait of a boy, whose mournful story you promised you would some day tell me."

"And I never did," he added, in a quiet voice that betrayed nothing.

"No," she said, simply. "Will you now?"

"It will be for the first time in my life, then, and certainly the last. But, after all, what good will it do? Miss Marshbrook, that boy bears about with him a double curse; and every earthly happiness is as far out of his reach as if he had been born blind and deaf and dumb—more so, indeed. You shudder already, here in this ghostly, empty place. Come out into the air. Now shall I finish?"

"No," answered Gyneth, very softly, standing beside him in the twilight, bright and brave, "I will tell you instead. His life had no more a double curse upon it than the lives of any of us have; for it must be that some one belonging to every one of us had sinned in times long gone. Do you think our Father in Heaven likes to hear such words spoken by a man upon whom he has lavished great blessings? Do you think, if He chose to blot with oblivion a husband's agony of shame and sorrow, when a blow fell upon him, that He must needs wish also to blot out with the same oblivion the hundreds of joys and gifts that He has showered upon the soul? Would He look for this return that you are making Him?"

"Gyneth, what are you saying?" asked Duke, breathlessly.

"The truth," she answered, slowly. "I could not let you tell me this story, because I knew it myself—better even than you did."

"You knew it, and—and yet you tell me this?" he began, in the same low tone. "You say—that my life——"

"That your life is just what you make it, Mr. Suttleton, as you know. Your mother's sin, you may not judge; your father's illness was an illness only—as Dr. Denne says, and as you yourself must know."

"But even if I thought it," said Duke, very quiet and very earnest—"even if I thought it, others would not, others would still have the fear——"

"I think," interposed Gyneth, with her sweet, low laugh, "others would have more sense. Why have you let this fear grow so deeply rooted in your heart, Mr. Suttleton?"

"It has always been there," whispered Duke. "I have never forgotten it for one hour—except with you; and then the remembrance came back with twofold bitterness. O Gyneth! are you going to bring light upon this gloomy way of mine?"

She looked round with a face he could not read.

"I am bringing darkness now, I think. Look how quickly the light is fading. Mother will wonder where I am."

"Must you go?" he asked, his eyes full of deep and passionate tenderness. "Gyneth, Gyneth, will you never come back to me?"

"We may come back some day," she said, as lightly as she could, while she passed him, and hastened on toward the cliffs.

"I ought to ask your permission to come," he said, in a swift, strained voice, as he kept beside her, "but I cannot let you go alone."

"These are your own grounds," she rejoined; "it is for you to send me back if you will, not for me to send you."

"There it is again!" he cried passionately. "You speak to me always so—as the owner of the place—as your sister's friend—as anything but what I would be. Stop, Gyneth, and speak to me once straight from your heart—one word, if it may be but one."

"It is so cold to stand," she urged.

He could not see her face; if he had he would have been silenced, perhaps. Not seeing it, he spoke as if she had hurt him.

"Gyneth, do not torture me. Stay and hear me for one moment only."

She looked up at him then, her face beautiful in its shy wistfulness.

"Let us hasten, Mr. Suttleton, please. Please let me go home—now."

Then, keeping back the pleading words that rose to his lips, he walked on beside her, gentle and courteous, and touching no more on any subject that could pain her. So they reached the house together, to find Mrs. Marshbrook and Bertie looking anxiously from the window, and very much astonished indeed when they found that Mr. Suttleton had returned—very much pleased, too, to have him with them again, though both were pained and puzzled by his troubled face.

Later on that night they walked with him down the little garden, lingering unnecessarily over the last good-by; but, when he asked Gyneth to give him a few flowers in return for those he had given her in their other farewell, Mrs. Marshbrook, laughing at the contrast the bouquets would make, tempted Bertie in out of the cold night air, and left Gyneth to gather and give them.

Then the girl's fingers suddenly grew nervous as she found herself alone with him; and as she tried to tie together the pretty little sprays of common flowers, she bent her head low over them, because she felt the pleading eyes waited to read her face. Shyly she held the flowers up when they were ready, but no hand was raised to take them.

"Here, Mr. Suttleton," she said, at last.

"Where?"

"Here are your flowers."

"And nothing else?" he questioned, softly.

"What else?" asked Gyneth, trying to call back a little of her old spirit, but trembling very much.

"What else?" he repeated, taking, not the flowers, but the hand which held them, and bending to look more closely still into her drooping face. "Give me what I would have 'else,' and I shall be content. Give me my good angel, to be with me always."

"Where is she?" asked Gyneth, with a little pause between each word. "How can I give her to you?"

"She is here," said Duke, bending lower. "Gyneth, will you come?"

* * * * *

Duke Suttleton sits, on this summer evening, on the terrace at Merecombe, playing with a bright-haired little fellow who just reaches to his knee—playing rather absently, too, notwithstanding the loving tenderness in his dark eyes; for there came floating out to him, on the still evening air, the tones of an organ.

"Listen," Duke says, to the beautiful things mamma is thinking about!" As he speaks he takes the child upon his knee, and the little face, fondly resting on his own, bears a great resemblance to it; for the wonderful change that has come to the father's face has given it that pure, bright gladness of the child's.

So they sit listening, until Duke suddenly rises, tosses the little one upon his shoulder—where he plays "at horses," to his intense delight, with the curly hair as reins—and carries him in through the open window.

He stands behind Gyneth, and she looks up at them with a smile, still playing on. Then he kneels, that the child's arms may be folded round her neck, and he whispers:

And she rises in a moment, and runs out into the summer sunshine, they following her; and, when they all stop, breathless and laughing, Bertie at length saunters up from feeding the swans.

"Duke," she begins, demurely, "one thing puzzles me a good deal. Do you consider that that morsel of a boy is peculiarly your wife's relative?"

"I do," says Duke, with a hearty laugh—which he has practiced enough the last few years to make up for all the years before—"also a distant connection of my own. Why?"

"Because," replies Bertie, without any appearance of a smile, as she shakes her head ominously at the merry baby-face, "Gyneth said once that none of your wife's relatives could ever bring any life to this place. You know you said it, Gyneth."

"And I know she said it," declares Duke, enjoying his wife's blush, and tossing his little boy into the air. "We have laughed many a time over that conversation, Bertie. Was it not prophetic, too? Are not my wife's relatives bringing a particularly pleasant life about the place just now? Here comes the mother to prove it."

"You are two incomprehensibles," Bertie remarks, passing on to meet Mrs. Marshbrook; "you tell each other everything."

"Can we help it, loving as we do?" asks Duke, tenderly laying one hand on Gyneth's shoulder.

"But, remember," she says, looking up at him with merry eyes, "that you once tried to keep a secret."

"If the keeping of all such secrets could fail as the keeping of mine failed, Duke answers, very gravely, "it were a better and a brighter world, dear little wife, and there would be fewer shadows such as the bright sunshine of your life has lifted from Merecombe Hall."

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

Fifth Parliament—First Session.

WEDNESDAY.

The debate on the address was continued. After Mr. Blythe's string of platitudes,

Hon. Mr. Pardee took the floor and made one of the ablest of the many able speeches he has delivered. Replying to Mr. Meredith's clap-trap assertion (to cover the sins of his own party) that the Election Courts had showed that "no considerable corruption had been practised in the elections by either party," Mr. Pardee held up to the guilty gaze of the mutable Meredith, a vivid picture of the bribery brigade's infamous record in Muskoka and West Middlesex. He contrasted the deep-laid and wide-spread Tory corruption of the electorate in these ridings with the venal offenses in ridings where Reformers had been unseated, on the slightest grounds, by the inconsiderate acts of agents.

Mr. Pardee gave a flat denial to, and challenged proof of Mr. Meredith's charges of corruption in Algoma. In answer to Mr. Meredith's declaration that electoral corruption cannot be stopped by Act of Parliament, but by "elevating the people," Mr. Pardee delivered one of the most withering exposures of sham ever made. When the leader of the Opposition denied that he had justified the interference of the Dominion Government in Provincial matters, backed by "Sarah's" endorsation, Hon. Mr. Pardee covered both with confusion and shame by reading from the Mail's report of Mr. Meredith's Barrie speech, a refutation of his own and "Sarah's" reckless denial. Taken all in all, Hon. Mr. Pardee made the speech of the session, so far, and administered a castigation to Mr. Meredith he will not soon forget.

Mr Roe, the agnostic hand-shaker from Lennox, owes much to the self-denial of the House that he was not greeted with "oat" calls. Forgetful of the respect due his leader—for a man who ignores his Maker, can't be expected to respect Mr. Meredith—Mr. Roe admitted that there was great bribery in the elections, and frankly avowed that the "Tory party wasn't pure, and didn't pretend to be."

Mr. Laidlaw, South Wellington, ably defended the Model Farm, and showed that, contrary to the reckless statements of Opposition members, only eight students had left Canada in five years and gone to the States.

Mr. Wilmot, of Frontenac, a Tory member, said he would support the Government in regard to the Model Farm, which other Tory members had so loudly decried; so it would appear that Mr. Meredith's following is not altogether "solid."

THURSDAY.

In continuation of the debate on the address, Col. Morin, of Welland, who is a fluent, able and concise speaker, dealt with Opposition tactics in elections, and with the License question and Educational matters.

Mr. Metcalfe, Kingston, made a rattling, rambling speech, the most important point of which was his endorsation of the Government's policy against "cramming" in schools.

Mr. Badgerow made a careful and well considered speech, cornering Mr. Morris closely on the validity of the Boundary Award.

Hon. Mr. Fraser has been absent from his seat on account of illness, and, when he rose in his place to-day to present a petition, his popularity was proved by the loud applause that greeted him from both sides of the House.

Mr. Lauder made a speech full of wild statements and inaccuracies, so characteristic of his orations.

Mr. Mackenzie, East Middlesex, closed the debate for the day. He made an excellent speech on Colonization Roads, Model Farm, Election cases, etc.

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY FIRST.

Mr. Phelps continued the debate on the address. Replying to Mr. Lauder's statement, that the Division Court bailiffs interfered in elections, Mr. Phelps admitted they might have done so, and added, that in his riding they had been active, and, as they were nearly all Conservatives, they had worked tooth and nail against him and the Government, which appointed them. Thus was a pet grievance demolished. Mr. Phelps showed how the Dominion Government interfered in elections. In his first election a plan of a new post office was hung up to serve as an electioneering influence. The election over, the plan was taken down. The by-election came on, and up went the plan again.

Mr. Neelon's speech was chiefly occupied with the boundary question, the National Policy, the Rivers and Streams Bill, educational affairs, and the veto power. On the Boundary Award he held a position differing both from the Government and the Opposition; he held that the Award should have been ratified without any further reference. He emphatically endorsed the stand of the Government on the the Rivers and Streams Bill.

Mr. Rayside, of Glengarry, closed the debate in a neat speech, in which he showed that the influence of the Dominion Government was thrown against his election in the interests of Sir John, and that Tory Division Court bailiffs had done their best to defeat him.

IN MEMORIAM

of James Beckett, Esq., one of the early settlers of Otonabee, who died Dec. 13th, 1883, aged 90 years and 8 months.

Three British sovereigns have borne sway,
Three generations passed away,
Since he cast's mead drew first his breath,
Till closed his mortal eyes in death.
One of the pioneers was he,
Who settled in Otonabee,
Where he had lived with frugal aim
Since e'er he to the country came;
Of pioneers, it's strange to say,
Who bore each hardships in their day,
They are the oldest 'mongst us seen,
Who have 'mongst our first settlers been.
When first he came he used to tell
It cheered him every tree he fell,
To see the opening he had made
Showing the clouds above his head,
Right glad when the long day was spent,
To weed his way and rest content
In the wee cot that he had made
To cook his meals in, rest his head;
Thus wrought he on from year to year
Until his farm from debt was clear;
In single life his time was spent
Appearing happy and content
Till thoughts came to him, altho' late,
To seek himself a good help-mate.
He sought around, 'midst hopes and fears,
Until he got one young in years,
Who to him sons and daughters had
To cheer his heart and make him glad.
Enjoyments like the sun's rays clear
Oft' brightest when a change is near.
For death came with a sudden call
And took his wife from 'mongst them all.
Throughout keen trials and hardships rife
He lived a quiet, peaceful life.
And very few, indeed, you'll find
With such a full and well stored mind:
In history, either old or new,
Much better read than he there's few;
His taste for poetry was strong,
The author he, of many a song.
In days gone by, when he was young.
In after years, with memory bright,
He sungs divine loved to recite.
His lineage he could back ward trace
To the old Cameronian race;
He ever loved to tell how they
Did fight and how they gained the day,
Who for the Truth the sword did seize—God's Word made Scotland what it is—
With feeling we do truly say,
We wish like him to end our day—
Lay down our head in peaceful rest
In hope to rise among the blest.

☞Price in a sealed envelope, only 6c. Two postage stamps.
The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicines or the use of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

The Depth of the Frost.

A labourer employed in digging for the Water works Company, says the frost has penetrated four feet into the earth, and in favourable places for its operation, further even than that. Hard on the "Sports."

The Campbellford Herald is hard on some Peterborough cock-fighters, who, it says, held a cocking main in the country eastward of that village on Monday of last week. They "regaled their whiskey-laden stomachs with fresh draughts," and then went forth and "satisfied themselves in the cruel cock-pit." "There were upwards of two hundred present, men of little principle, less interest, rough, obscene and drunken, gloating over the sight of two poor birds worrying the life out of each other."

The Salvation Army.

Our reporter while on a visit to Lindsay recently, attended the drill of the Salvation Army, in the music hall. The building was packed like a herring cask. In an interview with Mrs. Captain Freer, he was informed that the detachment now bombarding the stiff-necked and rebellious citizens of Lindsay, will make a descent on Peterborough in the spring, when it is hoped the skating rink may be secured as barracks. The army would have invaded Peterborough before, having been solicited by many letters, but they were unable to procure a suitable building. The tall chimney, the Romaine brick works, was available, but they were required to agree to leave on a day's notice, and they could accept no such conditions. A good deal of good has been accomplished in Lindsay, but the newspaper men are as "unsaved" and impenitent as ever.

Annual Business Meeting.

The congregation of St. Paul's Presbyterian church held their annual business meeting on Wednesday night of last week. There was a good representation of the congregation present. The reports read, showed a very satisfactory state of affairs, especially financially. There was a credit balance on hand of $502.69, the receipts having been $3,824.28, and the expenditures, $3,321.59. The building committee's report stated that Mr. A. Rutherford had been awarded the contract for enlarging the church, at $24,960, exclusive of seating and lighting. The north end of the church, corresponding to the school room, will be completed first—Sept 1st is the date fixed in the contract. The devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. Mr. Torrance, pastor, and the ladies supplied refreshments.

Trent Valley Canal Deputation.

On Monday some forty delegates, from the town and this district, left the station here—some going in the morning and some in the evening—for Ottawa, to urge upon the Government the fulfilment of their promises of the completion of the Trent Valley Canal system. There were about eight or nine members of the Town Council amongst the deputation, together with a large number of our leading citizens, the Ashburnham deputation, and most of the members of the County Council. The members of the latter body who did not join the main company here, took passage at other stations. Altogether the deputation, whether considered as representing the district or this town, was the most influential and representative in character that ever left the town. If the Government needed any argument to show them how important the canal is to the commercial interests of the whole Dominion, and how specially important it is to the Midland District, the personnel and commercial standing of the deputation would supply it. But they need no such argument. If the deputation is fortunate enough to get a new money grant, they have little to boast of; but they may indeed consider their mission crowned with success if they are able to persuade the Government to cease to regard the Trent Valley Canal as a political machine, and to consider it as a great public enterprise which they are bound to encourage, not only at election times, but continuously and systematically, till its completion is accomplished. That would be success. Anything short of that would be comparative failure.

Candlemas Day.

According to the old superstition, the indications offered by Candlemas day, Feb. 2nd, tell us that the big end of the winter is past. When the hybernating bear came out to stretch his legs, he didn't see his shadow and didn't go back to his den; the rest of the winter would be so short it wasn't worth his while.

Fancy Dress Carnival.

Arrangements have been completed for holding a splendid fancy-dress carnival in the skating rink on Friday evening next, February 8th. A large number of beautiful and valuable prizes will be offered for competition. The Fire Brigade Band, in full strength, will be present to furnish music. Admission twenty-five cents; tickets for sale at the door. Remember the night—Friday.

Sudden Death.

Mr. Daniel Ryan, a resident of London street, died suddenly on Friday evening last. He had been down town and was attacked with a terrible pain about the heart, so that he was compelled to rest at Mr. Fee's grocery; a doctor was summoned and Mr. Ryan apparently got better. He went into Mr. Fee's residence, and while sitting, was again attacked and fell to the floor dead. Mr. Ryan was 62 years of age, and leaves three daughters to deplore his sudden demise.

The Valentine Season.

The shop windows give evidence that the "silly season" is at hand. They are hideous, with the comic valentine, chiefly—libellous and grotesque—fit vehicles for surreptitiously expressing malevolence or mischief. The love and dove amatory article is scarce in comparison. The custom is evidently growing into disfavour. Geese and other birds manage to make the selection of their mates during February without the help of the vapid valentine, and human geese are beginning to perceive that such articles are not necessary to their love-making.

The Pitch Hole Problem.

At the last meeting of the Town Council, a resolution was passed directing the street inspector to fill in pitch holes with the town team and scraper, but on George and Charlotte streets men have been employed to grubb off the "brows" of the pitch holes and shovel in the broken snow. The consequence has been that the sleighs have renewed the pitch holes about as fast as they were unmade. Some better way should be tried; the present is rather expensive. In Kingston the streets are ploughed and leveled uniformly, and the pitch holes are discouraged from forming.

Curliana.

The local club did not send rinks to the Montreal carnival. Most of our curlers are business men, and Peterborough business men have something to do, and cannot, as the same class in such towns as Lindsay, Port Hope and Cobourg can do, leave their establishments with the feeling that they will not be bothered by customers in their absence. A meeting of the local club was held on Wednesday night, to consider the business relations of the of the club to the Skating and Curling Rink Company, with a view of securing better fulfilment of the terms of the existing agreement, etc. There is pretty strong talk of a curling rink being built at no distant day.

A Leap Year Lament.

The handsome bachelor newsfinder of our local contemporary, laments that the young ladies take advantage of leap year privileges to pester him with love-making persecutions. He needn't feel flattered. No truly good girl can see anything attractive in the moral character of a newspaper man—especially a Tory newspaper; it must be worldly, avaricious and ambitious girls that pursue our seductive scribe with matrimonial menaces, in the hope of realizing their dream of seal skin sacques, diamonds, carriages, etc. They woo you for your wealth, young man, not for your intrinsic worth. "Trust her not, she is fooling thee." It's your money they're after.

The Town Baby.

This helpless fragment of flesh and blood, forced on the adoption of the town, is in a desperate condition. It is as bad as the heathen. True, it gets plenty of food—if not, as Mr. Micawber would say from nature's fount—and is well clad and cared for. But its social standing and moral position are appalling. First the legal doubts of his—it's a boy—right to exist at all; then it is without a christian or surname; it has never been baptised, and is, therefore, in a state of original sin. Some childless and charitable person should adopt the corporation foundling, give him a local habitation and a name, and the benefit of the rites of the church. At present it has the ominous number of thirteen fathers.

St. Luke's Parochial Association.

This society held its regular monthly concert on Monday evening last. The attendance was very good, and the programme, as usual, most interesting, meeting with the hearty applause of the audience. Among the performers were Mrs. Meade, Mrs. Bowman, Miss Errett, Miss A. Lech, Dr. Clarke, and Messrs. Butcher, Peck, Gallelly and Beatty. Mrs. Orde and Miss A. Lech played the accompaniments. On Monday evening next, Feb. 11th, a social is to be held at the parsonage, Ashburnham. The congregation of St. Luke's and the public generally, are cordially invited to attend. An excellent programme will be presented and a pleasant evening is anticipated. Admission twenty-five cents. Proceeds for church purposes. Refreshments served at nine o'clock.

One hundred and seventy-five thousand copies of the carnival edition of the Montreal Star have been sold and the presses are still running. A singular feature of the publication is that it contains no advertisements.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

Inaugural Meeting.

The Peterborough Board of Education for the year 1884 met on Friday night for organization, the Secretary in the chair.

The Secretary announced the appointment, by the Town Council, of Messrs. Geo. A. Cox and James Stevenson as Collegiate Institute Trustees.

CHAIRMAN.

Mr. James Stevenson was unanimously re-elected chairman.

Upon taking his seat, Mr. Stevenson thanked the Board for his re-election. It was, he believed, the sixteenth time he had been elected to the position. He would endeavour to act impartially, and he hoped the present year would be one of progress. He hoped the members would pay more attention to the working of the schools, by personal visiting.

STANDING COMMITTEES.

Mr. Stratton moved, seconded by Mr. Errett, that Messrs. Cox, Errett, Denne, Rutherford, Millar and Sproule be a committee to strike the standing committees for the year.

The Committe met, the Board temporarily adjourning, and reported, recommending the following as the constitution of the standing committees:

APPOINTMENTS.

Messrs. Cox, Dumble, Rutherford, Denne, Millar, Errett, Sproule, Stratton and Wrighton.

FINANCE.

Messrs. Burnham, Kendry, Wrighton, Sawers, Weir and Denne.

PROPERTY.

Messrs. Wrighton, Errett, Sawers, Weir, Burnham and Kendry.

SCHOOL SUPERVISION.

Messrs. Millar, Rutherford, Sproule, Sawers, Burnham and Dumble.

On motion to adopt the report, Mr. Rutherford moved, seconded by Mr. Errett, that the report be referred back to the Committee to amend.

The amendment was lost and the report adopted.

INSPECTOR.

On motion of Mr. Dumble, seconded by Mr. Millar, Mr. James Stratton was re-appointed Inspector, at the same salary as last year—$100.

Mr. Sawers gave notice that he refused to act on the Finance Committee.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed.

INQUIRIES.

Mr. Sawers inquired if it were so that Mr. Campbell, in the Institute, did not teach any class during the first hour of the day.

Mr. Dumble stated that he taught a class in prose composition from 8.30 to 9.30.

Mr. Sawers said that was not satisfactory, and he called on the headmaster, who explained that there was a class preparing for the University, and Mr. Campbell thought they should have extra instruction, and he devoted an hour to them before school. The first hour Mr. Campbell had no classes, because he (Mr. O'Connor) was not able to fill in the hour. He said that he was also unable to find work for Mr. James from 1.30 to 2.20, for similar reasons.

In answer to Mr. Sawers, Mr. O'Connor said that Mr. Campbell had not refused to teach a class.

ACCOUNTS

were presented from

COMMUNICATIONS,

From Misses Errett, Butcher and Keele, applying for position of teacher in place of Miss Johnston, during her absence, were referred to the Committee on Appointments, with power to act.

ATTENDANCE.

The report of Mr. H. Kay Coleman, headmaster of the Public Schools, was submitted, showing the following attendance:

West Ward	No Report.
Total	763	604

From A. W. Gibson, in reference to patent fire escape ladder.—Property Committee.

From H. Kay Coleman, calling attention to the report of the Inspector, and suggesting reasons, and showing why too much is required of him in the way of supervision.

Mr. Dumble thought this was a most important matter, and he thought too much was required of the headmaster.

Referred to the Committee on School Supervision.

OUTSIDE PUPILS.

Mr. Errett moved, seconded by Mr. Denne, that the Inspector be instructed to obtain a list of all children attending the Public Schools, whose parents live outside the town, and present the same to the Board at its next meeting.—Agreed to.

AUTHORITY TO BORROW.

A by-law was introduced, authorizing the Chairman and Treasurer to borrow sums not exceeding $9,000, to meet current expenses of the schools.

CONGRATULATORY.

Mr. Dumble moved, seconded by Mr. Stratton, that this Board desires to express its gratification at the eminent success of the pupils of the Peterborough Public Schools in the recent Entrance Examinations—eighty per cent. of the candidates having successfully passed.—Carried unanimously.

WRITTEN AGREEMENTS.

Mr. Dumble moved, seconded by Mr. Millar, that all teachers in the service of this Board are employed subject to rule 53 of the by-laws for the guideance of this Board, and that the Secretary is hereby directed to cause all teachers entering the service of the Board, to sign a memorandum of service in terms of the above resolution. That the Secretary procure a book, which all teachers shall sign after the words, "We the undersigned hereby accept service under the Board of the United High and Public Schools of Peterborough on the terms above set out.—Carried.

Mr. Stratton moved, seconded by Mr. Millar, that the Special Committee, appointed last year to consider re-arrangement of classes in the Collegiate Institute, be allowed to sit again, and that Mr. Errett's name be added in place of Mr. McClelland, and that Mr. Wrighton's name be added.—Carried.

The Board adjourned.

Our New Watchmaker, Mr. Hughan, comes well recommended, and we are sure any work entrusted to him will be done in good style. Office lately occupied by Elias Burnham, Simcoe Steet. 18-tf

Episcopal Presentation.

The Ladies of St. Peter's Altar Society Remember Their Beloved Bishop.

His Lordship Bishop Jamot is exceedingly popular with all classes, but he has recently been the recipient of tangible and specially demonstrative tokens of respect and veneration from the members of his flock. A short time ago, through the Sisters of the Congregation de Notre Dame, he was presented with a costly crozier, of the value of $150. On Monday last the ladies of the Altar Society of St. Peter's Cathedral made him a handsome and suitable present of a fur-lined mantle and sealskin cap and gauntlets. The presentation was made by Mrs. E. Phelan, and the accompanying address read by Mrs. Thomas Dolan:

To the Right-Rev. Dr. J. F. Jamot:

MY LORD—Having received, in the short time since your Lordship's accession to the diocese of Peterborough, so many marks of kindness from your hands, we, the Catholic mothers of this town, and particularly the ladies of the Altar Society, wish to take this occasion to express our recognition of the debt of gratitude we owe you, and of our total inability to ever repay you.

It is now about a year since you organized our Altar Society, established chiefly for the benefit of the mothers, and in this space of time the amount of assistance we have received in the duties peculiar to our station, and the good that emanated from the sterling qualities of your counsels, is greater far than even we are sensible of.

But it is not alone for the eminent manner in which you fulfil the duties characteristic of your station that we have cause to be grateful. It is because, while administering to our spiritual welfare in the two-fold capacity of Bishop and pastor, your Lordship has given such frequent evidence of the charity and generosity of your disposition; your sympathy and bounty have ever been extended to mitigate the sorrows and alleviate the distress of the poor, and we take the liberty this morning of presenting you with this mantle as a token of our gratitude, and hope that your Lordship will appreciate it, not for its intrinsic merit, for we know by experience how slight a place mere pecuniary value occupies in your estimation, but as an offering from those who desire it to be considered emblematical of the manner in which your Lordship's generosity has so frequently sheltered the afflicted from the blasts of severity.

We trust that it may be consistent with the all-wise plan of the Almighty to long spare you for our Bishop, that we may have the benefit of your advice and the support of your assistance in fulfilling the duties of this life, and in ensuring our salvation in the next.

Signed on behalf of the ladies of the Altar Society,

MRS. N. T. LAPLANTE.
MRS. E. PHELAN,
MRS. J. HENRY,
MRS. T. KELLY.

His Lordship, in reply, heartily thanked the ladies for the tangible manner in which they had expressed the warmth of the feelings they entertained for him. Referring to the ladies of the Sewing Society, he asserted that through their assistance he had been able to accomplish more during the sixteen months he had been in Peterborough than he would have been able to do in as many years without that help. These circumstances certainly afford pleasing indications of the success of his Lordship's episcopal ministrations, and of the devotion and piety of his people.

Leg Broken.

On Friday evening last, Mr. P. J. Quinn, manager of Mr. J. Garvey's grocery store, Ashburnham, met with a severe accident. After closing business, he was going home, and when near Giroux's hotel, he slipped and fell on the walk, breaking the right leg, between the knee and ankle. He was assisted home by the lamp-lighter, and Dr. O'Sullivan attended to his injuries. It will be a month or two before he is able to be about again.

Some People Think

OTHERS THINK AND TALK!

OTHERS THINK, TALK AND ACT!

Will you be one? We'll certainly make it to your benefit to be so. In what way?

That's the question we like to answer. It comes nicely within our province. We'll give you information on that basis without stint.

We're making a clearance of stock. We anticipated just such a winter as we're having, and yet to come. We know that you havn't bought quite all you need of Winter Clothing Goods, and we'll help you to make up what's wanting.

We've put the sickle to prices in all lines. Dress Goods, Mantle Cloths, Overcoats and Ready-made Clothing. All "must go."

We advise all who can, to come this week. Before coming to us go around and note prices elsewhere. We ask you to do this, because if you find out how high others are asking, we can sell to you quicker.

Our prices are so low that they proclaim themselves bargains, and if those who come will just price elsewhere, persuasives to buy will be entirely unnecessary.

We leave the facts in the hands of intelligent buyers.

DOUBLE SPINAL CURVATURE.

GILFORD, ONT., Nov. 9th, 1883.

To Mr. Cluthe:—

DEAR SIR.—I thought it my duty to write and tell you how we got along with the apparatus you made for my little girl in April. I can safely say from the day she put it on until to-day she has never once complained. She seems as well apparently as ever. Before I got it she could neither get up nor down herself, and would cry with the pain in her back, and walked with her back in, and I am sure in another month or so she would have been a helpless cripple, but for the instrument I got from you. I have often said since, your name and skill should be spread the world over. People here all think it a miracle. The spine of her back is almost straight again. I feel as if I could sound your praise from shore to shore. Hoping God will long spare your life to relieve the suffering. I am, dear sir, yours very gratefully,

MRS. THOS. KNEESHAW,
P.M. Gilford, Ont.

I thought your price was great, but it is worth ten times $25. Would like to have a line from you.

Patented in Canada and U.S., 1882.

Made a Man of.

M. C. Munn, of Argyle, N. S., was taken alarmingly ill with a severe cold, through which he was confined to his bed for eight days. The alarming symptoms were a hard, dry cough and the raising of a considerable quantity of sticky phlegm. There seemed to be no doubt that he was well started on the road to consumption. Just about this time he began using Dr. Wilson's Pulmonary Cherry Balsam, and in a short time in his own words, "it made a well man of me." It is always so.

Anniversary Services.

The special anniversary services in connection with the Murray Street Bible Christian Church, held on Sunday and Monday evening last, were the most successful of the series.

SERMONS.

At 10:30 a. m. and 7:00 p. m. Rev. Geo. Webber, of Oshawa, occupied the pulpit, and preached powerful and vigorous sermons to large audiences. The sermon in the evening was particularly powerful.

In the afternoon Rev. A. H. Munro, pastor of the Baptist Church, preached, according to his invariable custom, an eloquent and excellent discourse. This reverend gentleman's sermons are spirited as well as spiritual, and fine examples of pulpit oratory.

THE ANNUAL TEA.

On Monday evening the annual tea was held in the basement of the church, and was attended by a much larger number than usual. The refreshments were abundant and excellent, and the annual tea was a decided success. But the grand attraction was in the body of the church, where at 8 o'clock every seat was filled to listen to the interesting lecture of Rev. Mr. Webber on the subject of

WILLIAM OF ORANGE.

The members of the Orange order filled the first half dozen seats in the middle of the church.

After prayers by Rev. Mr. Munro, and excellent music from the choir, the rev. gentleman began his lecture, and, although its delivery lasted over two hours and a half, the speaker held his audience to the close. It is impossible to give an adequate idea of the speech in a newspaper report. Its fullness, completeness, stirring passages, and thrillingly-narrated details would have to be heard to be appreciated. The speaker traced the history of William of Orange from his birth, which took place in the Netherlands, the cradle of civil and religious liberty, Nov. 4th, 1650. His mother was a princess of England. His infancy was clouded with sickness and weakness. His education, the speaker explained, from its excellent influences, accounted in great part for his future goodness, greatness, and his love of liberty. His heroic resistance of the invasion of his native land was graphically painted, as the starting point of the future preserver of Protestant England. Other incidents of William's career, in which his struggle for liberty was described, were given, and his history brought down to his marriage with the Princess Mary, of Protestant birth, and heiress-apparent to the throne of England.

The speaker dealt in detail with the high-handed attempts of King James to destroy the civil and religious liberties of England and to restore Romanism; his violation of his coronation oath and his disregard of the laws of England, which were carried to such an extent that several of the lords, spiritual and temporal, of England appealed to William of Orange, who nobly responded to the call to defend his wife's patrimony, and the Protestant faith and civil and religious liberty of England.

King James appointments to office were alluded to, and the speaker drew a strong lesson on the evils of partizanship in political parties, and he asserted that if he had ten votes he would not give one to either party in Canada. He asserted that principle, not party, should be the leading motive.

William's setting sail for England, the providential delay, and the prospering "Protestant winds" that favored his fleet, were eloquently described, and on his arrival at Torbay he was greeted with joy, and continual accessions were made to his standard. King James' flight from the country left William in possession of England without blows or bloodshed. A new parliament declared the throne of England vacant, and William and Mary became joint sovereigns, and Protestantism and liberty were restored through the efforts of this great and good man. The speaker delivered a warm and eloquent eulogy of the king's character, and then touched upon the state of affairs in Ireland, and traced James' attempts to possess himself of Ireland, to the beleaguered town of Enniskillen, and the subsequent attack on Londonderry. His description of the sufferings and brave defense of the people, and the triumphant ending of their troubles in the relief of Derry, were greeted with frequent bursts of applause, which marked his address till the culmination in the glorious victory the Battle of the Boyne, when round after round of applause greeted the speaker. As before intimated, no summary can give an idea of the address, but those interested may be pleased to learn that this lecture in book form can be purchased from the sexton of the Bible Christian Church, Mr. Richardson.

A vote of thanks, moved by Rev. Mr. Munro and seconded by Mr. Robt. Weir, was tendered the speaker.

Our New Watchmaker, Mr. Hughan, comes well recommended, and we are sure any work entrusted to him will be done in good style. Office lately occupied by Elias Burnham, Simcoe Steet. 18-tf

LAKEFIELD.

(From our own Correspondent.)

COUNCIL MEETING.

Present—His Worship the Reeve in the chair, and Councillors McWilliams, Cox, Urquhart, and Moore.

The minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed.

A communication was read from Mr. W. McDonald, asking to be appointed clerk vice Mr. Sanders, who would be leaving the village in the spring. On motion it was received for future consideration.

The auditors' report for 1883 was read, and on motion adopted, and the clerk directed to get 150 copies printed for distribution.

Mr. Chapin addressed the Council regarding exemption of taxes on a new cabinet factory which he and his brother contemplate building. They would employ 15 to 20 hands.

Mr. Urquhart thought it would be best to wait till next meeting to consider the matter.

The Reeve thought as many municipalities were holding out inducements to encourage labor and manufactures, they should act promptly, and not delay in the matter. The exemptions asked amounted to a mere nothing.

Mr. McWilliams was prepared to encourage any new industry.

A resolution was passed unanimously granting Mr. Chapin the exemption of taxes, and a by-law be prepared containing the proper guarantees, etc., to be passed at the next regular meeting.

An account of $36 for expenses of deputation to Ottawa was presented and ordered to be paid.

The deputation were asked concerning the prospects of the Trent Valley Canal being pushed forward.

The Reeve and Mr. McWilliams said they had received considerable encouragement. So far as they could judge the work would go on.

Mr. Sanders said he had not much to add to the statements already made. The deputation had been cordially received, etc.

A by-law was passed appointing Mr. Griffin assessor for the ensuing year, and Mr. Isaac Watson roadmaster, at the rate of $1.35 per day when actually employed.

ACCIDENT.

A young man by the name of John Dwyer cut his hand in Arthur Duggan's shanty, Burleigh, last Saturday night. They could not stop the bleeding, and consequently brought him to Lakefield, where a medical man dressed the injured member.

CARNIVAL.

On Thursday night, the 7th instant, as announced, the carnival took place at the skating rink. This was the first of the season, and proved a complete success. The evening was most favorable, and the ice in splendid condition. The building was most tastefully decorated with evergreens, and well lighted with Chinese lanterns, etc. The Peterborough brass band added to the attractions of the evening. There was a large number of spectators present, and the skaters in costume were well represented. The management intend having another as an early date. COUNCIL MEETING.

The Council met pursuant to adjournment, January 28th, 1884, all the members present; the Reeve, Henry Collins, Esq., in the chair. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed.

On motion of Mr. Brealey, seconded by Mr. Brownscombe, a by-law to appoint pound-keepers, fence-viewers and pathmasters, was read a first time.

By-law No. 312, to appoint certain township officers, was read a second and third time and passed. The officers all re-appointed.

Moved by Mr. Dobbin, seconded by Mr. Dunlop,—That Robert Jackson be paid $4.00 for removing logs and stumps from drain.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Dunlop, secoonded by Mr. Dobbin,—That $5.00 be granted as charity to Wm. Close.—Carried.

On motion of Mr. Dunlop, seconded by Mr. Brownscombe, Mr. Collins was appointed a delegate to Ottawa in connection with the Trent Valley Canal.

The Council then adjourned until Friday, the 7th of March next, then to meet to appoint pound-keepers, fence-viewers and pathmasters for the current year.

COBOURG.

Mr. R. C. Gardner, formerly bandmaster of the Trenton band, has been engaged for the Fountain Hose band of this town.

On Sunday evening, about thirty new members were received into full connection with the Methodist Church in this town.

A man came into this office on Monday and informed us that there were fifteen birthdays due him on the 29th inst. On enquiry we learned that he is sixty years of age on that day, and as he was born in leap year, he consequently is lacking the above number of birthdays to complete the count Sentinel Star.

NORWOOD.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

PAID OFF.

A happy event took place in our village on Saturday afternoon last, when the patrons of the old Norwood cheese factory were paid off their final dividend coming to them from the $2,000 insurance from the Western Insurance Company. It is gratifying to know that an equitable settlement has been arrived at between all parties concerned in that factory. Another cheese factory is now under construction upon the site of the one burned down last summer. Mr. H. Spence, formerly of the Dummer cheese factory, will conduct the new one, and under his able management will, no doubt, secure a large patronage from the farmers of the surrounding district.

A RUN ON COAL OIL.

There has often been a serious run on some of our old established banks; but a run on one of these institutions is nothing compared to the run on coal oil which occurred here on Saturday last. Two of our leading merchants have been vieing with each other to see who could sell the cheapest in some lines, when the climax was reached on Saturday by a considerable "dip" in coal oil. No. 1 (the corner store), determined not to be beaten by No. 2 (further south store), brought down the oil to 17c. per gallon, when No. 2 reduced the liquid to 15c. Then No. 1 brought it down to 10c. No. 2, not to be beaten by anything in the trade, came down to 7c. No. 1 issued orders for a further reduction, which, coming to the knowledge of No. 2, by the display of the oil by a purchaser from No. 1, he made a bold stroke and brought down his oil to 5c. per gallon. "There now," said he, victoriously, "that will fix him." And it did fix him, as the supply at No. 1 was stopped, and it is also stated, sotto voce, that No. 1 confined his sales to one gallon, while from No. 2 the flow of oil was as abundant as if the veritable oil wells were in our midst. However, it's an ill wind that blows nobody any good, as our friend Fraser, was fortunate enough to be cleaned out of oil cans of every size and description.

QUARTERLY SERVICES.

The quarterly services of the Methodist church at Norwood were held on Sunday and Monday week ago. The Sabbath services were conducted by the very popular pastor, Rev. Mr. Gee, who preached, both morning and evening, eloquent, impressive and instructive sermons, and on both occasions the large church was filled by attentive and appreciative congregations. The collections were remarkably liberal. On Monday following, the usual quarterly meeting of the official board of the church was held, when a highly satisfactory business meeting was disposed of. The financial reports from the different parts of the circuit were specially gratifying, showing no deficiencies, and showing, too, that under the zealous charge of the Rev. Mr. Gee, there is no flagging, but on the contrary an increased zeal in the religious work of the church. Besides the regular expenses in connection with the working of the church, there will be this year a large outlay in repairing the church property, all of which expenses will be promptly met by members of the church by additional subscriptions. The popularity of the minister has, no doubt, given an impetus to the increased liberality of the congregations, both of the Norwood and Dummer Methodist churches.

A Lawyer's Opinion of Interest to all.

J. A. Tawney, Esq., a leading attorney of Winona, Minn., writes: "After using it for more than three years, I take great pleasure in stating that I regard Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, as the best remedy in the world for Coughs and Colds. OUR LOCAL MEMBER.

HIS DEBUT IN THE LEGISLATIVE HALLS.

We received the following communication from Toronto after we went to press last week. It shows that a man may be a hero on his "native heath," and a very ordinary creature of very ordinary clay amongst men of eminence abroad:

TORONTO, Feb. 6th.

The member for West Peterborough has spoken in the Local Legislature. He delivered himself of an oration during the early hours of Wednesday morning. To say that Mr. John Carnegie's debut was disappointing to his friends, is placing the matter very mildly. He had come to Toronto amid a great flourish of trumpets. But the high hopes that were entertained that he would be a considerable source of strength to the Opposition, have been sadly crushed. Although an old parliamentarian, the hon. Speaker had to call him to order on more than one occasion, and was forced to inform him that he must address the chair, and not the personality of any of the members. That was only done after he had violated the most simple rules of the Legislature by calling out to the member for East Peterborough: "Well, Blezard, we'll have an all night's sitting;" but the Speaker did not call him to order then. It was persistent violations of that kind, that prompted Speaker Clarke to uphold the dignity of the House. During almost the whole of Mr. Carnegie's speech the majority of the Opposition were to be found in the smoking room, and those who remained were not sufficiently inspired with the hon. gentleman's platitudinarianism to applaud his utterances. His scrap-book was his stock-in-trade; so much so, in fact, that he was immediately dubbed "Scrap-book Sarah." He has Charlie Eykert's weakness for a scrap-book, but has neither Charlie's force of character nor ability. For an hour he hashed up all the small scandals collected during the twelve years the Conservatives of West Peterborough honored themselves by allowing him to amuse himself in private life. His speech was regarded on both sides of the House as one of the flattest of the debate. Lauder, Creighton, and Merrick, it is understood, have regarded "Scrap-book Sarah" with some degree of uneasy jealousy since his advent here had been heralded with so much gush. But before he had spoken ten minutes, the countenances of those honorable gentlemen wore a complacent aspect, being evidently well satisfied that "Sarah" could never get the inside of the track of them in the estimation of the Conservatives of the House. Creighton felt so much relieved that at one time it seemed that although within reach of the hon. gentleman's arm, he deliberately settled down in his chair for a comfortable snooze. The member for West Peterborough may be a heavy card at home, but he has found out that in Toronto he takes much lower rank than many of the fifth-rate politicians on the Tory side of the House.

Turnbull's Black Cashmeres will bear close inspection. The Quality, Colors and Prices are Right. A full range now in stock.

WEATHER NOTES.

January has been a severe month, snow falling on eighteen days, to the depth of 34 4/10 inches, being considerably above the average for the month, the severest of which was on the 9th, falling 16½ inches in twelve hours. Rain fell on two days, but only to the depth of 35/100 of an inch, being below the average. We had three cold dips during the month. On the 15th the thermometer fell to 23 degrees, on the 20th to 24 degrees, and on the 25th to 34 degrees below zero. Eighteen times did it drop to and below zero, and only once did it rise to or above the freezing point, namely, on the afternoon of the 30th, reaching 40 degrees. We had an average temperature for the month at sunrise and sunset of 11 degrees, being only half a degree less than January of 1883.

I see by the EXAMINER of the 6th, that there is a difference of opinion respecting our recent cold dips, but in looking over the reports, the reader should bear in mind that a cold wave does not come in one uniform temperature, but in currents, so that scarcely two towns in Ontario range alike.

PETERBOROUGH, FEB. 14, 1884.

Classical Education.

The relative merits of classical and what is entitled "modern" education, have been very frequently and eagerly discussed. On either side are to be found strong partizans and firm opinions. The question is one, however, which can scarcely be decided except by some practical test. The present age has been rather in favor of science and modern languages, but it is evident a reaction is setting in. Perhaps in the light of recent proposals respecting our own Collegiate Institute it may be well to show how the tide is running.

Some years since—as much, we believe, as a quarter of a century ago—an experiment was made in Prussia to decide as to the respective merits of modern and classical education. Schools were erected side by side. In supervision and equipment, in hours of instruction and general characteristics, they are the same. The length of the course is also the same in both, and pupils are drafted of the same age. But here the likeness ends. The methods of instruction are quite dissimilar, and so are the subjects taught. In one class of schools half the entire time is devoted to teaching Latin and Greek. The additional subjects are those usually taught in high-class schools among ourselves, embracing modern languages, mathematics, music and drawing, and the elements of physics and natural history. Such institutions are looked upon as feeders to the great universities.

In course of time these gymnasia, as they are entitled, were found unable to cope with the new requirements of the educational problem. The State, therefore, established side by side with them new schools. In these most vigorous efforts were put forth to instruct pupils more thoroughly in natural sciences and modern languages. So Greek was altogether dropped, and the time for teaching Latin curtailed one-half. Modern subjects received close attention. Pupils from these schools were admitted to the universities on equal terms with those from the gymnasia. And what is the practical result of such an admirable test?

The Philosophic Faculty of Berlin have pronounced an opinion upon the subject. Their statement is one worthy of attention, and it is exciting at the present time the deepest interest in educational circles on this continent. The faculty embraces over one hundred professors and lecturers, some of them widely known as famous and clever teachers. They made the subject a special test on the merits of the two systems, and so gave the matter careful investigation. And they decided unanimously in favor of classical education. They declare that the preparatory education received at the newer schools—Realschulen, as they are called—was altogether inferior. They assert that the lack of a thorough classical education opposes many obstacles in the pursuit of study, leads to defects in close reasoning, and destroys all interest in learning or science which has no important practical aims or benefits. Their opinion is concluded in the following words: "An acquaintance with the classical bases of our science and civilisation can be satisfactorily cultivated only in an institution of classical learning."

Speaking to the question, "Does classical study offer the most effective instrument for developing the mind?" Professor Bonamy Price gives precisely similar testimony to the above. He speaks with all the authority, not only of a ripe and deliberate judgment, but of a wide experience, which reaches back to the golden days of Dr. Arnold at Rugby. He has, in fact, grown grey in the work of teaching, and is besides a man of liberal views and varied culture, whose grave warning regarding the existing system of education deserves to be heard and heeded. Alluding to the ordinary subjects of study, he says; "They bend themselves too readily to the practice of cramming. In his opinion no educational instrument can be compared in power, and value with the study of the Greek and Latin languages. Greek pre-eminently had no equal. It was the best, the strongest, the most fruitful instructor known to man. At no time was the proclamation of the great truth more needed than now. By the study of the dead languages every part of the student's intellectual being was brought into play; his knowledge, his intelligence was summoned to work hard, and he was called upon every moment to perform acts of selection or judgment." Professor Price utters a note of warning also respecting the present system of competitive examinations, and the abuses in connection therewith. He shows plainly the evils of cramming, and advocates viva voce examinations as greatly superior to the methods now in use. We trust his wise counsel, based upon large experience, may produce some lasting fruit. If it has the effect of putting down cramming and competitive examinations, which are, it is said, causing mental deterioration even now among members of the civil service, it will be an immense advantage and gain in the cause of true education.

TOWN COUNCIL.

Murray Street Transfer By-Law—Municipal Amendments—The Shortest Session in a Twelvemonth.

Council met on Friday evening, Feb. 8th. Present—His Worship, George A. Cox, Esq., Mayor, in the chair; Messrs. Cahill, Allin, Green, Millar, Rutherford, Kendry, and Menzies.

After routine

were read

From E. B. Edwards, stating that he had prepared a by-law for the transfer of part of Murray street to the Wm. Hamilton Manufacturing Company, and informing the Council that it was only competent for that body to give the by-law its first reading.—Received.

From E. B. Edwards, regarding the local water-rate tax against the George Street Methodist Church, claiming that the church was by statute, exempt from taxation.—Received.

From Robert Duncan, asking remission of water-rate tax on Water street.—Referred to Fire, Water and Gas Committee.

In discussing this matter it transpired that the members of the committee on Fire, Water and Gas who had charge of the petitions were in ignorance of the fact that the by-laws passed by the Council called for a special rate on the property on Water and Aylmer streets to be collected in 1883.

From Robert White, asking that the Council remit a fine imposed by the Police Magistrate on Friday for not having a livery stable license.—Referred to the License Committee to report.

MURRAY STREET TRANSFER.

Mr. Miller introduced the by-law for authorizing the conveyance of a portion of Murray street to the Wm. Hamilton Manufacturing Company (limited), which was read a first time.

ACCOUNTS

were presented from

John Hurley, tickets to Ottawa deputation [paid]	$97 80
George Johnson, Smith, 5 cords wood [paid]	27 50

MUNICIPAL LAW AMENDMENT.

Mr. Cahill moved, seconded by Mr. Menzies, that in the opinion of this Council it is desirable that the time within which appeals may be made to the Court of Revision and the County Judge should be curtailed, so that the assessment roll, in municipalities where the assessment is made between the first day of February and the first day of May, may be finally revised by the County Judge not later than the 20th of June in each year, and that the collector's roll be placed in the hands of the collector not later than the 20th of July. Also that the Municipal Act be so amended as to give power to municipalities to give a rebate on taxes to persons who pay their taxes before a certain date to be fixed by law. And that this Council is further of the opinion that such amendments would enable municipalities to collect their taxes within the year for which they are levied, and render the accounts of corporations more intelligible and satisfactory, and also enable the clerks of municipalities to make out the voters' lists at an earlier date than at present, all of which in the opinion of this Council would be of advantage. And that the clerk be instructed to forward a copy of this resolution to the Attorney-General, and to our local members.

Mr. Cahill said it was evident that it was better to have the collector's roll in the collector's hands early in the season, when laboring men especially, had employment, and therefore money to pay their taxes. He was also in favor of giving a rebate to those who paid their taxes early.

The Mayor—I see that in Toronto the taxes were paid in three instalments.

Mr. Rutherford called attention to the desirability of an amendment of the statute to make landlords, especially where tenants were poor, responsible for the taxes.

Mr. Menzies also held the same views on this subject as the former speaker. He thought the landlord should in all cases pay the taxes.

The Mayor said that in Toronto the landlords practically paid the taxes—the latter were incorporated with the rent and paid as such.

The motion was agreed to.

ASHBURNHAM FIRE ACCOUNT.

Mr. Rutherford moved, seconded by Mr. Menzies, that the committee on Fire, Water and Gas be authorized to arrange with the Ashburnham Council or with the Reeve with reference to the indebtedness of that village on account of fire protection.

The motion was agreed to, and the Council adjourned at 8:45 p. m., to meet on Monday evening, February 25th.

James Brayley, Hamilton, says;—I read the testimonials for McGregor's Speedy Cure and found that I had not to go to New York, Philadelphia, Louisiana or Texas to find living witnesses of its value, we had plenty of persons right here to prove its merits. I got a bottle and it helped me right away, I was as bad with Billious Fever and Indigestion as I think any one could be, I have taken three bottles and am nearly well and can eat any kind of food without it hurting me. I may say that I am better than I ever expected to be." Free Trial bottles at J. McKee's Drug Store. 7-2t

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

Fifth Parliament—First Session.

WEDNESDAY, FEB, 6TH.

In the Legislature to-day in answer to Mr. Clarke, member for West Toronto, as to whether the Government knew that large numbers of pauper immigrants, principally from the workhouses in Ireland had been landed in this country during the past year, and if any of these immigrants had been assisted by any funds in the control of the Ontario Government, and if in the opinion of the Government assisted passages to such a class of immigrants ought not to be discontinued, Mr. Hardy said that the Government did know that for considerable time past a number of pauper immigrants had been brought to this city. During the past immigration season a number of families had settled in Toronto while others had been distributed to different parts of the country. Some of those who were so distributed had returned to Toronto. He believed that some thirty or thirty five families of that class had so returned who had been suffering from want. No funds of this Government had been paid towards assisting such persons to come to this country, or to reach Toronto after they had arrived in this country. No funds of this Government had for some years past been paid towards assisting persons to come from the old country here, but certain funds had been paid by the way of assisting a certain class of female and domestic servants from Quebec to Toronto during the past year.

Mr. Creighton moved for all papers relating to the outstanding accounts between Ontario, Quebec and the Dominion.

A. M. Ross stated that he had made it one of his first duties upon entering his office as Provincial Treasurer to try and come to a settlement with the Dominion and province of Quebec. Delays had occurred but these delays were unavoidable. He was perfectly willing that the correspondence asked for should be laid before the house. He had received a statement from the Dominion authorities, but it was a very voluminous one, and it would be brought down as early as possible. He could say, however, that the Province of Ontario did not stand in the same position as the Province of Quebec, but he thought there was a large amount due the Province.

Mr. Mowat brought down a message from the Lieutenant Governor transmitting the estimates of certain sums required for the service of the province until the estimates for 1884 are finally passed, and recommends them to the legislative assembly: civil Government, $35,000; legislation, $80,000; immigration, $5,000; education, $100,000; administration of justice, $40,000; public institutions, maintenance, $50,000; Crown lands, expenditures, $60,000; miscellaneous, $10,000; agriculture, $25,000; total $232,500.

THURSDAY, FEB. 7TH.

This afternoon Mr. Meredith made his request for explanations about ministerial changes, and these were given at some length by Mr. Mowat. He referred to the fact that he had for twelve years been uninterruptedly premier of the Province, and spoke confidently of being able to retain the position for four yeas more if his health permitted.

Mr. Meredith was not quite satisfied with the explanations, especially the portion of them having reference to Mr. G. W. Ross, whom, in the course of his remarks, he described as "lawyer by Act of Parliament."

This brought the Minister of Education to his feet, and in a few vigorous sentences he explained the reason why an Act of Legislature had been necessary to enable him to take the solicitors oath, while it hadn't in any way diminished the amount of work he had to do. Mr. Meredith's own brother, he said, was quite as much as he was, a lawyer by Act of Parliament.

Mr. Fraser protested against the discourtesy of the reference to Mr. Ross. In reply to Mr. Morris, who wanted to make out Sir John Macdonald had a longer term of office in old Canada and since confederation that Mr. Mowat, the Commissioner of Public Work called attention to the fact that there had been since the Union no fewer than thirteen changes of Premier for forty-three years.

In reply to a series of questions by Mr Meredith, the Attorney General described the cause which led to the failure to open polls at certain places in Algoma after which the debate was adjourned.

NOTES.

AGRICULTURAL COMMISSION.

Public appreciation of the value of the work of the Agricultural Commission is reflected in the motion of which Mr. Waters gave notice on Thursday. Mr. Waters wishes the House to declare that the publication of another edition of the Commission's report would be highly beneficial to the farmers of this Province.

HON. MR. FRASER.

Mr. Fraser, notwithstanding his recent indisposition, spoke with all his accustomed fire in reply to Mr. Meredith's complaint that Hon. G. W. Ross had been admitted by special Act of Parliament to practice as a solicitor. Mr. Meredith insinuated that the Government did this because Mr. Ross was a political friend, and he said there was no parallel case since Confederation. Mr. Fraser's effective rejoinder, that Mr. Atkinson, a political friend of the Opposition leader, had likewise had a special Act passed admitting him to practice, effectively silenced the complaint of one-sidedness.

DOMINION INTERFERENCE.

The exposure made by Mr. Hardy of the tactics of the Dominion Government in Algoma has thrown stronger light upon the desperateness of the exertions made by Sir John Macdonald to crush the Ontario Government, and with it the last vestige of resistance to to Federal usurpations. It is felt in the House that the indubitable evidence given by Mr. Hardy of how the Dominion sent an operator and a post-office clerk into Algoma to steal telegrams and letters, to defeat the Liberal candidate, will make a deep impression on a Province already fully awake to the danger of the situation.

THE ALGOMA CONTEST.

The ventilation which the conduct of the Algoma election received on Thursday was such as to convince any candid man that neither the Government nor its officers had neglected any reasonable means to give the electors of that constituency full opportunities to record their votes. It was shown that the Opposition had nothing but vague and unfounded rumours to go upon. The Attorney-General showed that the detention by storm of the deputy returning-officer who was to act at Algoma Mills had not interfered with the voters there, for a train had been procured to take the voters of both sides of politics to the nearest polling place, seven miles distant. The person in charge of the ballot-boxes for the two polling places on Rainy River had started from Rat Portage five days before the polling day, but owing to clearly unavoidable causes had not reached one of these places until the afternoon of that day. If the total number of votes belonging to that district had all been polled for Mr. Lyon's opponent it could not have effected that gentleman's return.

At eleven o'clock on Wednesday the delegation from this district to interview the government in regard to the Trent Valley Canal, waited upon Sir Charles Tupper in the railway committee room of the House of Commons. The following are those who comprised the delegation:—

County of Victoria—Messrs. John Fell, M.P.P., John Daniel, C. Fairbairn, John Bailey, W. Cameron, E. Hopkins, J. L. Reed, Joseph McArthur.

County of Simcoe—David Dunn, warden; Reeve—J. Fraser, Tay; John Howel, Midland; Arch Thompson, Orillia and Matchedash; Mr. Wiancko, Morrison.

County of Hastings—John White, M. P., Alex Robinson, M. P., D. J. Wilmott, H. G. Blacker, M. Bird, Clement Armstrong, Wm. Finally, Ruliff Glass, Sidney.

Orilla—James Quin, Reeve; G. H. Booth, Mayor; J. B. Thompson, Councillor.

Bobcaygeon — J. L. Read, Reeve; Hirkimer, Councillor; John McDonald, member of the firm of Moss, Boyd and Co., Jasper Bolton, Harney, Oliver.

Lakefield—W. C. Sanders, J. McWilliams.

Fenelon Falls—Rev. Wm. Logan, Wm. Jordan, George Cunningham, John Thompson.

In addition to the above there were also present several members of Parliament, more particularly those representing the constituencies through which this proposed highway is contemplated being built, and who also spoke as to the feasibility and desirability of constructing the work.

The following gentlemen addressed the Minister of Railway in the order given: Messrs. D. R. Murphy, chairman of the committee which was appointed to frame the petition for presentation to Sir Chas. Tupper, Dr. Willoughby, Dunn, Geo. A. Cox, G. W. Ostrom, Rev. Mr. Logan, Cook, M. P., Hilliard, M. P., Cameron, M.P., (Victoria), White, M.P., (Cardwell), Coughlin, Burnham, M.P., White, M.P., (East Hastings), Robertson (Middlesex), and Armstrong.

Quite a number of the deputation forcibly pointed out to Sir Charles that as the public work was made to do services by them in political elections it was necessary for him to give an appropriation, or the people would tell them when they returned home that the whole thing was a political dodge. Rev. Mr. Logan, put this matter in a particularly happy way to Sir Charles. The tenor of all the speeches made was to the effect that it was extremely desirable to proceed at once with the constructing of the work, not merely in the light that it was a local work but a national highway in so far as is shortened the distance of conveying the North West wheat to the seaboard by about a distance of 500 miles. A good sum had already been expended, and when it was taken into consideration that only about 60 miles out of 200 were necessary to be built, the importance of the work could not well be over estimated.

The following petition was then read and handed to Sir Charles Tupper.

We, the undersigned petitioners, representing twelve counties along the line of the Trent Huron Navagation, beg most respectfully to represent that the policy of the present government in opening up the great Trent Valley Water Route from Georgian Bay to Trenton, has our fullest endorsement and approval, and by our presence in person here to-day, wish to impress upon you the great importance which we attach to this canal route as a national highway and local outlet, and we urgently but firmly request that you will place such sum in the estimates at this session as will assure the depatation and country of the early completion of this national work, and as in duty bound will ever pray.

(Signed.)

D. B. Murphy, chairman of Trent Valley Canal Committee, solicitor, Trenton, and all the members of the delegation

Ottawa, Feb. 6, 1884.

Sir Charles Tupper in accepting the petition said that he had already appointed an engineer, Mr. Burbridge, to examine into the survey and other matters and report to him at an early day. This report was not yet ready but when it was he would lay the whole matter in a favorable light before his colleagues. In the meantime he had arranged for doing what work the engineer knew would fall on the route inland. He said that if a syndicate of undoubted means and resources (like the Pacific Railway syndicate for instance), would come to him and offer to complete the canal for three millions, he would advise his colleagues to accept the offer and provide the funds. He trusted at no distant day to see the canal built as it was much more than of local importance. The delegation thanked Sir Charles and withdrew.

They were afterwards entertained by the members of parliament whose constituencies lie along the purposed route of the canal, in the Commons restaurant.

A Millionaire's Mansion.

A Railway Magnate's Palatial Residence.

GEORGE STEPHENS' HOME—ONE MILLION DOLLARS INVESTED IN LUXURY.

At a time when the Canadian Pacific Railway is knocking at the door of parliament for further assistance, and is in all likehood to get a favorable response to their demand from the present government, it might be opportune, following up the letter of Mr. George Stephen, President of the Pacific Railway company, to refer to the exquisite grandeur of that railway magnate's residence in Montreal. We are told by those who have examined this millionaire's mansion that although wealth has been lavished with an unsparing hand by the merchant princes of that city upon their respective residences, still prominently stands out among them all

THE HOME OF MR. GEORGE STEPHEN.

The building is of Palladian style, and the pillars, three of which on each side support the balcony that forms a roof to the portico, are admirably carved. The more one looks at the building the more artistic design and well executed cutting is to be noted. The window sashes are of polished mahogany, the ceiling mahogany, polished and panelled, and the floor of the lobby is marble—three varieties of it radiating, so to speak, from a medallion in the centre, which is Vienna marble, and the Italian and French stripe and line the flooring. All up each side of the walls is Italian marble polished, with the panelling of Vienna marble—all except one large panel on the left, which is of Mexican onyx, polished until it looks like

A LARGE JEWEL.

The furniture of the waiting room is of rosewood. The carving is superb. The door steps to the entrance of the library are of solid brass, while the door way which leads to the main lobby is for excellence beyond description. The suite of rooms of the lady of the mansion, Mrs. Stephen, are simply exquisite. The furniture alone, which is made of cherry and satinwood, costing upwards of $20,000. Glancing at the magnificiently carved bedstead, the wardrobe with its mirrored doors and panels, looking past the buff tinting of the walls, one notes the cherry moulding and satinwood panelling of roof and walls and passes into the boudior. where much of the satinwood furniture, the cabinet, the blue flowered silk velvet upholstery of chairs, and the soft polish of the satinwood table, with the carving and design of the bureau and other articles, are in

ADMIRABLE TASTE.

The drawing room, with its secretare of satinwood, jewel cabinet, chairs and tables of the same, mirrored dressing case and mirrored panels, so that the human form divine can be seen from any point desirable when the lady looks in front of her. The bed room and suite of Mr. Stephen is equally elegant, but of a different type, the fittings of the jewel safe being nickel silver instead of gold plate as in the case of Mrs. Stephen's room. The embellishments of the different rooms are beyond description, and the woodwork of the dining room alone cost $20,000. As for the furniture of the servant's rooms it is as costly as though was determined that they should taste of the comforts which wealth brings to himself and wife. The bed room sets for the servants in the basement are marble top, black walnut and cost from $400 to $500 for each room. Prior to the house being built five hundred piles were driven into the clay at a cost of $2,000. The building and stables cost about $500,000. Operations were commenced about two years ago and the mansion received the finishing touches last October. About $1,000,000 have been invested in the luxury of living in Mr. Stephen's palatial style.

THE PRINCELY OWNER

An Open Letter.

MESSRS. T. MILBURN & CO.

JOHN TAYLOR, Parliament St. Toronto.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

Fifth Parliament—Second Session.

TUESDAY FEB. 5TH.

In the House of Commons Sir Charles Tupper moved the resolutions proposing better terms for the C. P. R. Co. He reviewed the statements submitted by the Company regarding their position, and contended that it was in the interests of the country to grant the increased subsidies. He spoke until recess, and resuming at 8 o'clock, he announced that the Government had resolved to discontinue the monopoly provisions of the North-West as soon as the road around Lake Superior was completed. This was the most important part of the speech.

Mr. Blake's speech in reply to Sir Charles Tupper was a splendid effort. For three hours and a half he discussed the Pacific Railway question, speaking directly to the point, and fearlessly exposing the shuffling, inconsistent, and dishonest tactics of his opponents. Amid the cheers and laughter of his supporters, and to the chagrin of the Ministerialists, he showed that the figures given by Sir Charles Tupper did not agree in any particular, and that there was an extraordinary difference of 24 millions between the Government's Pacific Railway estimates this year and last. Without saying so directly he proved beyond doubt that the statements, of the Company's expenditure submitted by the Government were cooked for the occasion, and that the alleged investigation by Messrs. Schreiber and Miall was a shameful farce. Mr. Blake was listened to attentively to the close by the entire House, and was warmly congratulated by his friends at the close.

The debate was then adjourned.

WEDNESDAY, FEB. 6TH.

In the Commons to-day questions were answered by the Government respecting the navigation of Hudson's Straits, the contract for improvements at Morpeth Harbour, and the Canada Temperance Act.

Motions were passed calling for papers relating to the fishery bounties and receipts and expenditures; a motion by Mr. Laurier for papers respecting Mr. Mousseau's election trials and appointment as judge was discussed by the mover and Messrs. Ouimet, Casgrain, Langevin, and Girouard, and was voted down by 189 nays to 47 yeas. The House adjourned at six.

THURSDAY, FEB. 7TH.

In the House of Commons to-day Mr. Blake complained of reports and returns being sent to Ministerial papers before they were laid before Parliament. Mr. Blake also called attention to the fact that the papers he had asked for in relation to the appointment of the High Commissioner had not yet been brought down. Mr Charlton, in moving the second reading of his seduction bill, supported it in an able speech, and it was carried without a division.

Mr. Ouimet moved the second reading of the bill to repeal the act to render members of Legislative Councils and Legislative Assemblies now included or which may hereafter be included within the Dominion of Canada, ineligible for the House of Commons. The second reading was lost by 59 to 92 on a division.

Mr. Mulock's bill for the better prevention of fraud in connection with the sale of patent rights received its second reading, and was referred to a select committee.

Mr. Cameron (Huron) moved for papers respecting the resignation of Mr. Samuel E. St. Onge Chapleau, Secretary of Public Works, and his subsequent appointment as sheriff in the Northwest. The motion was passed.

Mr. Ouimet moved for copies of the correspondence between the several Provincial Governments and the Dominion Government respecting the readjustment or the increase of the money subsidies paid, or to be paid by the latter to the former in pursuance of the Confederation agreement, or of any other arrangements since made. The motion was carried.

Sir Richard Cartwright moved his resolutions condemning Sir Leonard Tilley for the advances to the Exchange Bank, and supported them in a capital speech, in which he overhauled the Finance Minister for his recklessness. The motion was voted down by 97 to 60 on a division.

FRIDAY, FEB. 8TH.

In the House of Commons Mr. Allen introduced a bill to extend the jurisdiction of the Maritime Court of Ontario, and several private bills were introduced.

The debate on the Pacific Railway resolutions was then resumed by Mr. Ives, who was followed by Sir Richard Cartwright and Messrs. White (Cardwell), Casgrain, and Woodworth.

Sir Richard Cartwright's speech on the Pacific Railway resolutions to-night was trenchant and powerful, and gave great satisfaction to his friends. His exposition of the fact that, while the loan was being urged to complete the Pacific Railway within two years, no obligation was imposed upon the company to complete it in that time, obliged Sir Charles Tupper to rise later on and state that the Government intended to make such provision in their agreement. Sir Richard's figures showing excessive prices paid to the company for road building nobody attempted to refute, and in this way the cost of constructing those sections of the road already completed has been exaggerated. He showed that the obligations into which the Government had entered would seriously impair the country's credit, as about thirty millions additional would have to be pledged to Quebec and other claimants upon the Federal purse before the resolutions could be passed.

At one o'clock the debate was, on motion of Mr. Davies, adjourned.

NOTES.

THE MOUSSEAU OUTRAGE.

The debate on Mr. Laurier's motion for papers in connection with Mr. Mousseau's election trials and his elevation to the bench developed some points worth noting. In the first place, the Government not only put up its supporters to defend Mr. Mousseau, and in so doing to defend the Administration itself, but actually refused to allow the papers to be brought before the House, and, forcing the matter to a division, voted Mr. Laurier's motion down. If Mr. Mousseau is the persecuted saint they try to make him out to be, he will hardly thank his friends here for making such clumsy efforts to shield him. In the second place, notwithstanding that the speakers on the Liberal side referred several times to the boast of Sir John that he never appointed any but good men to the bench, and dwelt in the strongest terms of condemnation upon Mousseau's appointment, the Premier did not speak on the subject to make any explanation, which, if it can be made at all, can only be made by him. Mr. Laurier made an exceedingly clear speech, dwelling on the fact that Mr. Mousseau was appointed while the charges against him were still pending. The speakers on the other side, of course, could not deny that fact, and had to make the best show of defence they could by representing Mr. Mousseau as a persecuted man, and by making loud charges of corruption against his opponents.

MR. BLAKE'S GREAT SPEECH.

Mr. Blake's speech on the Pacific Railway resolutions last night has had an effect which will require all the efforts of the ministry and the railway company to counteract. From the figures adduced by the Government Mr. Blake proved that the proposal to loan this company thirty millions of public money was unworthy of a moment's consideration. All reasonable Conservatives acknowledge that Mr. Blake's facts and arguments cannot be combatted successfully, and had a division been taken at the close of his speech, before the "lobby" had time to operate, it is doubtful if the resolutions would have been carried.

Dear Sirs,—For over twenty years I have suffered greatly from Nasal Catarrh; sometimes being unable to smell or taste properly. The disease caused a severe pain over the eyes, and frequently stopped my writing on account of dizziness. The phlegm in my throat gave me much annoyance, especially in company, balls of which would occasionally fall down into my throat, and I could seldom breathe through my nose. I have taken quarts of various medicines without any apparent benefit, until I was induced, by your agent of 69 Muter street, to try your Fountain of Health. After using five bottles I am prepared to give it as my honest opinion that for the cure of Catarrh it is a grand success. I have recommended it to many of my friends, one of whom encloses his testimonial with mine.

Wishing you deserved success I am gratefully yours,

JOSEPH BROWN,

Oh, my Back!

Is there a miserable, weakening pain in the small of the back? Is urination painful? Do you have palpitation of the heart? Do strange, indescribable feelings creep up your back and sides? Does the least exertion weary you? Does your urine show brickdust or albuminous deposit? Does any sudden fright cause an intense, sharp pain in the small of your back? Do you have an aching in the groin? Is your memory impaired? Is your breath short? Are there shooting pains about your vitals? Are you becoming dropsical?

These are all symptoms of kidney diseases. Be on your guard against them. If let run it may end in Bright's Disease, which is sure death.

Your best course is to procure at once a bottle of SULPHUR AND IRON BITTERS costing only 50c. It will cure any form of Kidney Complaint, except Bright's Disease, it will relieve the symptoms and defer the evil day sometimes indefinitely.

SULPHUR AND IRON BITTERS is a medicine as harmless as water. The world has not seen its equal as a cure for diseases which attack the Kidneys and for the complaints to which females are alone liable. It is of more value than any medical compound known to the medical faculty.

The Tucker Spring Pad Truss

FOR HERNIA OR RUPTURE.

(This cut represents the Pad without the belt. ☞Note the position of the ▷ shaped spring situated in the pad by which a CONSTANT but easy INWARD and UPWARD pressure is conveyed to the Hernia when the Pad is adjusted.)

This Truss, which is placed before your notice and consideration, is wholly unlike any other appliance in construction or principle. It dispenses with the ever uncomfortable Body Spring, having the means to convey a proper pressure just where it is required, that is in the Pad. The Tucker Truss is very light, single one weighing about 4 ozs., and the double one not 8 ozs., it completely and comfortably retains the Hernia under all positions and exertions of the body. A swivel attachment to the belt prevents displacement by locomotion or stooping, and its ready and complete adjustability by which each Pad is made either RIGHT or LEFT at once or fixed at any desired angle commends it, and also, it is more durable than any other, as there is nothing to rust or break, all the metal work being nickel plated.

WHAT SHALL I GIVE HIM?

Is a puzzling question. It is easy enough to find things for the "hers," in fact the variety is embarrassing; but the selection of a present for the male sex is more difficult. We have known Ladies to present their Husbands with useful Household Articles and it is not a bad idea, but if you wish to give the man something for personal use, the list to choose from is rather short. CLOTHES are Staple—always in demand. Why not a new OVERCOAT or SUIT? A SET OF SHIRTS, some fine HOSIERY, HANDKERCHIEFS, or NECKWEAR? or, if that is not appropriate, give the Domestic Man a HOUSE COAT OR WRAPPER. While to the Gay Young Man, SHIRT STUDS, SCARF PINS, SILK TIE or SCARF. Now that you have the hint what to get, we will modestly add that a good place to get everything of this sort is right here, where we are making a Special Holiday Display of Useful and Ornamental Wearin Apparel for Men and Boys.

PETERBOROUGH, FEB. 14, 1884.

Who Pays the Money?

The Tory Government at Ottawa coolly proposes to give some thirty millions more of money to the Pacific Railway syndicate, with only the security of the completed road, which, according to the best calculations, and according to the precedent of the Intercolonial Railway, will not pay running expenses for years after it is finished. A "loan" with security like that is only a gift, that has to come from the pockets of the people, and from the pockets of the people of Ontario, too.

Ontario, it may be depended on, will have to pay the shot. The other provinces are demanding equivalents that will compensate them, and in the eyes of their representatives justify the latter in voting for the gigantic grab proposed.

It is a grand game of grab all around, with only Ontario left out in the cold. Let us see how the other provinces stand in this matter. Let us compare the patriotism of their representatives to the tame subserviency of the Tory representatives of Ontario.

Quebec is first in point of eagerness, as in amount of claim. Quebec is burdened with debt, the result of years of Tory rule, or, rather, misrule. She now owes the Central Government a cool million for arrears of interest, and is after better terms. She will make the most of the present opportunity to enforce her demands. She will fix her price for voting for the Government's gift to the Syndicate. Quebec makes no disguise of her claims. Her newspapers boldly assert that the Government has got to do something for Quebec.

And the other provinces are not far behind. On behalf of the Maritime Provinces, the Halifax Chronicle makes the following unblushing demand. The "consideration" for their support is plainly stated. This journal says:

There are upwards of forty representatives of the Maritime Provinces in the House of Commons. Why should not these gentlemen, on both sides of politics, unite on a common platform and inform the party leaders that they will resolutely oppose any further grants for the Pacific Railway or other western schemes until the just claims of the Maritime Provinces have been recognized in a substantial manner. Such united action should be had, and we have no doubt that if taken promptly and firmly it would lead to results which would settle some of the troublesome Maritime Provinces questions and create life, hope, and activity in many quarters, where now there is stagnation and despondency. The opportunity exists. Have the Maritime men the wisdom, the patriotism, and the courage to use it?

New Brunswick, for itself and the other provinces by the sea, demands its "quid pro quo" in no mistakable terms. The Moncton Transcript, in reference to the "demand" of the Syndicate, says:

If that demand is to be conceded in order to complete two or three thousand miles of railway through a country in which there are no more people than in three or four of our counties, the forty odd representatives of the Maritime Provinces will not be worthy of the trust reposed in them if they do not make common cause in demanding a quid pro quo in simple justice to the eastern section of the Dominion.

And Manitoba is not behindhand. Norquay, the cringing Premier of that province, asserted recently that the time had come "when Manitoba must be placed on a level with other provinces of the Dominion," while the journals are hardly less outspoken. Listen to the Free Press:

The people of this province will not submit to having their rights trampled on and their prospects blighted for the carrying out of a visionary scheme. If more money is to be expended by the Dominion, let it be spent in purchasing the monopoly wrongfully conferred by the Government on the C. P. R. If any new arrangement is made in which the interests of this province are not first consulted, the Government will before long have reason bitterly to repent it.

British Columbia is after "better terms" again, and there is little doubt but that her pacification will be purchased for the sake of the endorsation by her representatives, of the "loan" to the syndicate.

But where is Ontario in all this gigantic grab game? What is she to get? Who speaks for her? Who, but her Reform representatives will raise a voice against the outrage that is being done Ontario? What quid pro quo is she to get? Why, her reward will be the privilege of "paying the shot." That is another form of the punishment that Sir John is to visit on Ontario for her remaining loyal to Liberalism. Every device his ingenuity could frame for weakening and crushing the Liberal party in Ontario has been tried in vain, and these efforts failing, the Province of Ontario is to be made to bear the burden of the addition of thirty millions to the public debt.

How is this done? Very simply. Why, the Dominion has to become responsible nominally, but virtually the other provinces claiming compensation will get an equivalent in consideration of their support of the steal, and therefore will virtually escape the burden of the debt, while Ontario, which under wise rule is in no financial trouble, but has an overflowing treasury, will have to pay the piper.

There is another position in which this province is at a disadvantage. The representatives of the other provinces, generally speaking, irrespective of party, stand up loyally for their constituents. But the Tory representatives of Ontario forget their province when the behests of their master demand their votes, even to the humiliation and disadvantage of this province. Mere voting machines, they bow and bend in obedience to the turn of the party crank.

The fact stands out clearly beyond controversy that the new debt that is to be saddled on the country will have to be borne by Ontario. When Ontario was Upper Canada she paid the lion's share of the taxes and got the jackal's share of the expenditure. Whatever advantage she derived, in this and in other respects, from Confederation, it has been the study of Sir John's maturer years to nullify. Through him Ontario has been attacked and made the object of his bitterest hostility. Through him have the attempts to deprive her of her constitutional and territorial rights been made, and through him the crowning act of infamy, which throws a burden of thirty millions on Ontario and practically releases the other provinces, is to be accomplished, and a subservient following of Tory members from this province, aid and abet his nefarious designs.

Not Proof Positive.

The Review, in asserting the popularity of the Conservative Government of the Dominion, unblushingly quotes the results in York, New Brunswick, and West Kent as examples. If our contemporary were not in full sympathy with the unscrupulous and material methods employed by the Ottawa government to influence public opinion, it would blush to quote these cases in confirmation of its contention. In York, especially, facts have transpired and are transpiring which go to show that that election, as well as the West Kent contest, was manipulated from Ottawa, and that a vast amount of money was smuggled into the riding to be used by way of argument. The government and the Pacific Railway syndicate had, it would appear, a common interest in carrying both the ridings of York and West Kent. The Montreal organ of the syndicate ingenuously releases the cat from the bag when it asserts that "neither the government nor the Pacific company could afford to lose these two elections," which is a twofold confession; implying, first, that the government is not so popular as the Review seeks to make appear; and secondly, that the Pacific Railway steal is so monstrous that even the present government majority, slavish and subservient as it is, is expected to find the dose so unpalatable that even two members may be of service by voting for the resolutions, in recognition of the government's or syndicate's expenditure, to which they owe their seats. En passent, we might remind our contemporary that the result of the recent Dominion by-election in Lennox, where Sir John himself was practically defeated, is not a surprisingly strong indication of the "growing popularity of the Macdonald administration from one end of the Dominion to the other."

The Same Old Contrast.

A contemporary has summed up the results of the controverted election trials, so far, arising out of the late general elections in Ontario. The net result of the campaign in the courts is as follows: "On the Reform side it was found that in not one case had corrupt practices prevailed extensively. Six Reform members were found not guilty, two were unseated for trivial acts on the part of agents, and 18 agents were found guilty of corrupt practices. On the Tory side, 32 agents were found guilty of corrupt practices, three members were unseated, one was disqualified, another "escaped disqualification by the skin of his teeth," and in two constituencies corrupt practices prevailed extensively.

The Algoma Case.

We have now, it is to be hoped, heard the last of the Algoma case until it is ventilated in the courts. Nothing is to be gained by discussing it in Parliament any more than there is to be gained by discussing any other election contest. In the course of the debate on the address members of the Opposition twitted Mr. Hardy and Mr. Pardee with having been personally engaged in the work of corrupting the constituency, arranging the polling places to serve a party purpose, and even intriguing to prevent a poll from being held in certain localities, with a view to disfranchising the Tory majorities in these places. Mr. Pardee took occasion to refer to these charges early in the debate in a masterly speech, which formed the text of Mr. Meredith's second effort, when he rose to move an amendment to the address. Mr. Pardee's defence of his conduct and his defiance of his detractors were excellent specimens of parliamentary speaking, and supplemented by Mr. Hardy's more detailed narrative of what took place at Rat Portage, it forms an admirable refutation of the scandalous charges made so recklessly by the Opposition.

Mr. Meredith's resolution to move an amendment to the address at so late a stage was a piece of very poor parliamentary strategy. His time to move, if he meant to do so, was at the very outset, when some Government supporters were thought by the Opposition to be in a state of uncertain equilibrium. When he did make his motion he committed a still worse blunder by producing stolen telegraphic dispatches. These were two in number, and even if they were improper messages for Government employes to send, the fact that no answers were transmitted, of which fact Mr. Meredith was himself aware, made it perfectly evident to any astute mind that they would not compromise the Government in any way. All that he effected by his strategy was to afford Mr. Hardy an opportunity of describing how the dispatches were stolen by a post-office employe at Rat Portage, thus bringing the iniquity close home to Mr. Meredith's fellow-townsman and patron, Hon. John Carling.

The subject of the Algoma election was renewed by Mr. Meredith in the form of a series of questions intended to lead the Government into a trap, and of a series of resolutions for papers. The charges against the Government were renewed by Mr. Meredith and Mr. Creighton, and were again refuted by Mr. Mowat and Mr. Hardy. The effect was to show that the law had been strictly observed, and that whatever irregularities may have taken place tended to benefit the Opposition rather than the Government. It is possible that Mr. Meredith may have some notion of bringing the matter up again in the House on a resolution referring the irregularities to the Committee on Privileges and Elections. This would simply be another blunder. The defeated candidate has filed his petition in the Election Court. The case will come up for trial in due time, and the effect of the irregularities on the contest will be carefully appraised. Pending this trial why should the Assembly take up precious time in going over the case again and again in the House? Mr. Lyon must be allowed to occupy his seat this session, and if he is unseated after it is over, the Opposition will have another chance of trying to redeem the constituency. Till then the Assembly will be better employed in the work of practical legislation.

Party Strength.

On the test vote provoked by Mr. Meredith last week Mr. Mowat's majority was twelve. Mr. Neelon, who was absent, is said to have stated that had he been present he would have voted against the Government. If this be true, then it was all the better for his own peace of mind that he happened to be absent, for assuredly the Liberals of Lincoln, who brought him into public life, and have kept him there ever since, would have regarded themselves as misrepresented by such a vote. An affectation of independence of this kind does not wear well, and it adds neither to the reputation of the member nor to the dignity of the House.

Mr. Neelon, in his speech, condemned the Government for backing down on the boundary dispute, and it would be quite consistent with that speech for him to vote against the reference to the Privy Council when the Government bill comes up. This is a very different thing from voting for an amendment to the address, which covers quite other ground, and implies condemnation of the Government for standing up for Provincial rights. Should Mr. Neelon feel disposed to take the course he is said to have approved, he is bound in honor to resign his seat and either run again or allow a square contest between the Government and Opposition parties in Lincoln. If he continues to sit and vote condemnation of the Ministry, in a way entirely uncalled for, he will give a color of truth to the statements made freely by the Opposition, that he had been made all right by the promise of a Dominion Senatorship.

In any event the Mowat Government is safe for another term, and on this the country may well congratulate itself. Stern defence of Provincial rights is needed now more than ever. A new and more flagrant spoliation has set in at Ottawa, which will cast the Pacific Scandal period into the shade. Sir John Macdonald will not be able to put his C.P.R. resolutions through without heavy bribery of some kind—perhaps of several kinds, and it may yet be necessary for the Ontario Legislature to take cognisance of what is going on at Ottawa. If Confederation is to be preserved, the rights of Ontario must be maintained, and if they are deliberately trampled upon, it will be impossible to answer for the consequences.

Mr. Mowat has already taken the first step to secure a representative for South Oxford by moving to refer the petition from that riding to the Committee on Privileges and Elections. That a Liberal will be returned goes without saying, and Muskoka may also be counted upon to support the Government. These would bring the majority up to fourteen, without Mr. Neelon's vote, which, we still believe, will be cast more frequently with the Government than against them.

One-Sided.

The Review quotes, with great gusto, the Week's condemnation of the appointments of Chief Justice Wood and Lieut.-Governor Cauchon. But will our contemporary return a moment from the dead past and give us its opinion on the last outrage on our judicial system? What has it to say of the appointment of Mousseau who has been appointed to a judgeship, with all his corruptions thick upon him? Will "Sarah" swallow the Mousseau morceau, as Mr. Laurier forced the "brute" majority to gulp it down last Thursday? Mr. Mousseau stands charged by a journal of his own party with accepting a bribe of $5,000 for giving a Government contract corruptly to Mr. Charlebois; and, at his last election, he was accused of personal bribery and corruption, and rather than face an investigation he resigned his seat, and his resignation of the Premiership of Quebec was rewarded by a judgeship, evidently the best way for preventing a political criminal from receiving justice "by making him a dispenser of justice to other criminals. "Setting a thief to catch a thief!" Can any appointment be more degradingly iniquitous, than that of the elevating of a branded political criminal to the judgment seat? The judiciary of Canada has always been our proud boast; but with the ermine on such shoulders as Sir John has flung it last, one can hardly resist the temptation to parody the Lady Constance's scornful injunction to the Archduke of Austria, in King John:

'Thou wear a judge's robe! doff it for shame,
And hang a wolf's skin on those recreant limbs!"

Yet, the Tories claim that Mr. Mousseau is a persecuted saint. If that be their belief and knowledge, why should they vote down a motion for having the papers in connection with his appointment and his election trial, brought before Parliament? If Mr. Mousseau is an honorable and innocent man, he will not thank his political friends for their partizan zeal in voting against an investigation of the grave charges made against him. No honorable man, wrongfully accused, would decline an opportunity of having false charges disproved. Mr. Mousseau avoids this chance and shirks investigation, and the public are forced to believe in his guilt.

Mr. Carnegie's Speech.

The part taken by the member for West Peterborough in the debate on the Address, was a very disappointing one for his friends. The impression had for months been studiously conveyed that he would be a great acquisition to his own side of the House, as a debater. Those who were acquainted with his style and form knew better, and knew that he would soon be appraised at his true value. He never made a good speech in his life, and it was not likely that he would begin with his first effort in the Assembly. He cannot complain of want of time for preparation, for the debate had been dragging for nearly two weeks before he ventured to let his voice be heard, and his waiting so long wore the appearance of being due to a dread of being followed by some critic on the Government side. But in spite of time and preparation, he never once rose to anything like a high level. His language was rude, to the verge of being insulting, towards members of the Government, and he confined his remarks chiefly to a few matters of such trifling importance that they might more properly have come before the House as a part of some desultory discussion in committee of the whole.

Though he has forced for himself a place on the front benches, Mr. Carnegie must needs come in after the two talkative members for Grey, Messrs. Lauder and Creighton. In fact the latter is the most useful lieutenant Mr. Meredith has, and those who have watched the course of the Opposition for some years past, know the significance of this statement. With a Ministry opposed to him made up of six good debaters, the leader of the Opposition needs all the assistance he can get, but until something better than the Morrises, Lauders, Creightons, and Carnegies comes to the front, he stands a poor chance of holding his own in either House or country.

Compared with the course taken in the debate by Mr. Carnegie, observe that taken by Mr. Wood, of North Hastings. The chief part of his speech was devoted to a topic of undeniable importance, which he had made a subject of careful study, and about which he had taken steps to inform himself. If other private members were to follow his example, instead of indulging in useless and vulgar abuse of Ministers, they would better succeed in establishing for themselves the reputation of being useful members of Parliament, and in justifying the choice of the people who elected them.

An unknown man got on the Montreal train at Belleville on Tuesday night. When the conductor asked him for his ticket he drew a revolver on him and snapped it, but it declined to work. He then jumped on the conductor and struck him on the head. He subsequently made good his escape.

Peterborough Real Estate Investment Co'y (Limited).

Peterborough has long had reason to be proud of the standing and importance of that most thriving and substantial corporation, the Peterborough Real Estate Investment Company (Limited). The feeling of gratification is largely intensified, when the success of its enterprises, the safe and careful nature of its investments, and the business-like mode of conducting its affairs carried out by the local managers, are the subject of high encomiums from the British shareholders of the company.

At the recent annual meeting of the British shareholders, reported in the Glasgow News, the chairman, Mr. Henry Cowan, in moving a vote of thanks to the "directors and managers in Canada," made most flattering remarks, and said the increased applications for loans was due to the "high character for probity and honorable dealing which the management has obtained for us." He congratulated the shareholders on Mr. George A. Cox, President of the Midland Railway, being added to the Board of Directors and to the Investment Committee. He considered the company's debentures worthy of the purchase of the "most cautious investor."

Mr. William Mathier, in seconding the motion, paid a high tribute to the management, and said the uncommonly high dividends and the undoubted security, should make shares worth 25 or 30 per cent. over par when the company and its operations became better known.

Mr. Wright was sure that every Old Country shareholder was thoroughly satisfied with the way in which the business was managed, and other gentlemen spoke in high terms of the perfect security afforded to investors, and expressed their entire satisfaction with the annual report of the Peterborough Directorate.

From this it will be seen that British shareholders regard their investments as perfectly safe, and are highly gratified at the large dividends declared. Praise from such a source is praise indeed, and the Peterborough Board of Management and the Investment Committee are to be congratulated upon the success of their careful and prudent management of the business of the Company.

Billous Billingsgate.

To use the rodent, but expressive phrase, there must be "something gnawing" the member for West Peterborough. He's in a bad humour, perhaps because Mowat won't go, or because he (Mr. C.) is not more highly appreciated; he evidently feels exceedingly billous, and relieves himself by by his usual means, abuse and strong language. In an editorial letter to the Review, Mr. Carnegie blows out a column respecting Algoma election matters. We can't afford space to go through its windy wilderness of abuse, but we submit a few of the choice expressions, whose habitual use renders it easy to understand why "Sarah" is so often called to order by the Speaker of the House. In less than a column the delicate word "forgery" is repeated nearly a dozen times, and we find a surplus of the following style: "robbed of his rights," "the gang," "conspirators," "stolen evidence," "theft," "stole," "forged interpolations," "inveigled into their den," "guilty secrets," "trembling culprits," "purloiners," "disgraceful documents," "forged alterations," etc., etc., etc., ad nauseam. Scrap-Book Sarah is terribly upset about something, and this last out-break of Billingsgate must have been suggested by his going to a cock-fight with the member for Kingston, and betting on the wrong "rooster."

Farmers of the County of Peterborough,

And Adjoining Counties, TURN OUT and Attend the EASTERN

DAIRYMEN'S CONVENTION,

TO BE HELD IN THE

TOWN OF PETERBOROUGH

On Wednesday and Thursday, Feb. 20th and 21st, 1884,

And hear some of the best, most able and practical men on the Dairy Farming, Breeding of Cows for Milk, Cheese and Butter. Read the list of names of gentlemen that are expected to be present to address you.

HON. HARRIS LEWIS, of Frankford, N. Y., A thorough, practical Dairy Farmer, Cattle Breeder, Butter Maker, and one of the best informed men in the United States.

PRO. J. P. ROBERTS, of Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y. a Practical Farmer, and owner of a first class farm in the Western States, and now in charge of the farm in connection with the above University at Ithaca, N. Y., and who manages to grow over 70 bushels of Oats to the acre.

THOS. BALLANTINE, M. P. P., Stratford, and President of the Western Dairyman's Association of Western Ontario, a practical dairyman, and in all probability the best authority on the manufacture of cheese in the Dominion of Canada, and who has done so much in Western Ontario to improve the quality of the Manufacture of Cheese.

PRO. BROWN, of Agricultural College, Guelph a thorough practical man in every department of Agriculture, your servant in charge of the Ontario Agricultural College, and who will speak to you on:—1. Ensilage in dairying; 2. Influence of Food in Dairy Products.

PRO. L. B. ARNOLD, of Rochester, N. Y., who has devoted a lifetime nearly in the investigation of the manufacturer of cheese and butter, and is so well known to every cheese maker and manufacturer of cheese and butter in the United States and Canada.

JAS. WHITTON and HOWARD BISSELL, who have been in the employ of the Eastern Dairymen's Association for the past season as Instructors in the manufacture of a better quality of cheese, and who have done so much in improving the quality of the make of cheese in Eastern Ontario.

Farmers, do not have it said any longer than there is no enterprise in the Eastern Ontario Farmers, but turn out and show to the Western Farmers that you take an interest in all matters pertaining to your interest.

The Western Farmers turn out by the hundreds every year to attend the convention of the Dairymen held at Ingersoll, Stratford, London and Woodstock, and remain the whole 3 days in most cases, and either join the Association or pay their 25 cents each time on entering the convention, morning, afternoon, and evening.

The Committee make the convention free in Eastern Ontario, and leave it optional with those attending to become members, in which case entitles those joining to a copy of the Report of the proceedings, and now hope that it will never be said again that there is not enterprise enough among the Farmers of the County of Peterborough and adjoining Counties to turn out and make a respectable attendance to a Convention when held at the Town of Peterborough. Do not allow all the attendance to come from a distance. Turn out en masse and fill the City Hall, and remain through the three days, and I feel confident you will be amply repaid for the few days time spent in listening to the addresses that will be delivered to you.

Yours respectfully,
HARFORD ASHLEY,
Secretary, E. D. Association.

Spreading Holy Scripture.

Annual Meeting of the Upper Canada Bible Society.

Report of the Peterborough Branch—Mr. Munro's Eloquent Address—Address by the Agent—More Local Workers Needed.

The annual meeting of the Peterborough branch of the Upper Canada Bible Society was held in the Charlotte Street Methodist Church on Thursday evening, Feb. 7th. Mr. John Walon occupied the chair. There was, it is to be regretted, only a small attendance.

The exercises began by the choir singing an anthem appropriate to the occasion. Rev. Mr. Manning read Scripture lessons, and Rev. Mr. Torrance offered prayer.

Mr. J. Stratton, secretary, read as follows:

THE ANNUAL REPORT.

The Committee of the Peterborough Branch of the Upper Canada Bible Society beg leave to report:

That in the presence of the agent of the society they are constrained to be silent on the work that the parent society is doing, but they may say that never in the history of the society was its influence for good more felt in diffusing a knowledge of the Holy Scriptures into almost the ends of the earth. The Upper Canada Bible Society, with which the labours of your committee are more intimately connected, has been earnestly engaged in meeting the wants of the outlying districts of our own country, through their branch societies and co-operators, with unvarying success.

Your committee, however, regret to have to report the continued existence of the same hindrances referred to last year. It is true that denominational pecurress requires the united efforts of individual church members, and to this may in part be attributed the fact that the work of this society is left to a few old tried friends, but many of these are men, who can ill afford the time necessary to secure a thorough canvass of the town and suburbs.

After a discussion of this matter, with a view to finding a remedy for it, your committee agreed, at its last meeting, to submit to the ministers of the town a recommendation to preach an annual sermon in each church, the sermon to be preached in January, previous to the annual meeting, and respectfully recommend an exchange of pulpits on the occasion.

Owing to the heavy snow falls during the months of December and January, the usual meetings in the rural districts have not been held yet, but it is hoped that they will be held at an early date, just as soon as arrangements can be made.

The committee acknowledge with thanks the handsome donation to their funds of $48.41, made by the Ladies Bible Association, through Mrs. Kirkpatrick. This latter association usually divided its funds between the British and Foreign and Upper Canada Bible Societies, in equal sums, and as our society was accustomed to do the same in the same proportions, the ladies concluded to unite the funds and have them disposed of.

During the year a small donation of copies of the Scriptures was made to the Y.M.C.A., and a similar one to the Auburn Sabbath School.

Your committee recommend that the following gentlemen be the officers and committee for the ensuing year:

PRESIDENT—W. C. Nicholls.
SECRETARY—J. Stratton.
TREASURER—J. H. Roper.
DEPOSITORY—Peter Connal.
COMMITTEE—R. Kingan, John Erskine, W. W. Johnston, Dr. Fife, W. A. Morrow, John Luckhart, Dr. Bell, John Carnegie, John McClelland, John Walton, S. Curtis, Wm. Yelland, W. Wand, R. Weir, I. Robinson, W. E. Sherwood Dr. Halliday, and A. Gillespie.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

J. STRATTON,
Secretary.

Feb. 6th, 1884.

Rev. A. H. Munro, pastor of the Baptist Church, in moving the adoption of the report, delivered a brief but telling and eloquent address, speaking of the influence exerted by the Bible. It was a grand thing to do good individually, but a grander work was that of lifting up the nations and shedding the light of the word of God on their darkness. A high and noble work was that of the Bible Society. Referring to the saying of Archimedes, the speaker said the heathen were the fulcrum, and the word of God the lever to elevate the world of darkness into the light of Christian truth. The work of the Bible tends to remove the stigma resting on the supineness of Christian civilization. With its regenerating influences it proved that Christianity had not been preached in vain. The speaker was an evolutionist in one sense, he believed in the "survival of the fittest"—the Bible—the word of God that liveth and abideth for ever. It had resisted the attacks of wicked men to destroy it, and had proved itself immortal. The Bible was also the focus of intellectual greatness—in spite of the assaults of materialistic scientists. The speaker contrasted some of the prominent Christian and agnostic scientists, and showed that the former, in the person of J. Lawrence Smith, had received the highest honors from the French Institute, while Herbert Spencer, the arch-agnostic apostle of science, had been given a subordinate place. The Bible was not only an intellectual, but a moral force. The speaker in Montreal placed two propositions before infidel Ingersoll. The first was that atheism had never made a single soul better, and the other was that his infidel philosophy subverted and nullified all moral excellence, but that great agnostic had slunk away without defending his doctrines. He contrasted the self-sacrifice of Christian missionaries, who risked and gave up life to spread the word of God, with the exertions of infidels, and asked where were the infidel missionaries. The Bible was to be valued for its elevating effects on the nations of the earth. The speaker showed how nations were great and happy in proportion to the spread of the word of God amongst them, and how sunken and degraded were those countries where the Bible was not known.

The speaker related pointed incidents of his personal experience of the grand effects of the Bible distributed, and closed an interesting and impressive address with the assertion that Christians were committed to the glorious work of Bible distribution—it was their declaration of faith. The past work of the Bible Society had been grand, said its future would be more glorious.

The Rev. Mr. Torrance seconded the motion, and the report was adopted. After an anthem, well rendered by the choir,

Rev. A. A. Drummond, agent of the society, began his address by remarking that Christians were anxious to spread the Bible, because they believed it was God's message to the human race. Having proved its worth, they wished others to enjoy its blessings. It had withstood the persistent persecution of centuries, and still survived and flourished exceedingly, and still was a living factor in the work of bringing the world back to God. The effect of the Bible on heathen nations had proved that it would elevate the nations. The most degraded and benighted heathens had become good under its influence. As agent he could cheer their hearts with the assertion that there were good news all along the line—from the 400 branches of the Upper Canada Bible Society. There was an increase of contributions—$2,700 more than last year. Agents had been sent out to Algoma, Muskoka, and the Northwest. In other lands the British and Foreign Bible Society had circulated 54,000 copies more than the year before. They spread abroad last year nearly three million copies of the Word of God, making since the organization of the society, nearly 97,000,000 copies, and in another year this would likely be increased to 100,000,000 copies. The Bible had been translated into 316 different languages, and two or three new translations are given the world every year. Thus the Bible Society is keeping pace with other missionary work. Missionaries learn new languages, translate the Bible, and the society does the publishing. In Europe last year there were circulated large numbers of copies of the Bible—in France, 133,000 copies; in Italy 59,000, and in Germany 419,000, while in the latter country the 400th anniversary of Luther was to be celebrated by the publication of an immense edition of Luther's translation of the Bible. In India 100,000 copies had been circulated, and India had had been greatly uplifted morally. Yet there was much work to do there. The abominations of caste and early marriage remained, and Christians could greatly promote the glory of God by liberally contributing to the funds of the Bible Society. The old fields must be kept open, and extra effort made to open new fields.

Mr. W. A. Morrow moved a vote of thanks to the speakers for their excellent addresses.

Mr. James Stratton, in seconding the motion, said that all must feel that the addresses would stir them up to more earnest work. The great drawback in Peterborough was the lack of individual canvassers. He knew there was plenty church work, but with all this, the work of spreading the Bible must be pushed. There were two wards in the town that had not been canvassed for two years. Two ministers had agreed to urge the matter upon their congregations and interest them in the work, and he hoped for a better record next year.

Rev. Mr. Drummond acknowledged the vote of thanks, but added that the best vote of thanks he could receive would be the volunteering of half a dozen good canvassers for the town.

The benediction, pronounced by Rev. Mr. Torrance, closed the meeting.

THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN MEN AND WOMEN.

When a woman becomes flurried she feels for a fan; when a man become flurried he feels for a cigar.

Women jump at conclusions and generally hit; men reason things out logically and generally miss it.

Women always show by their actions that they enjoy going to church; men are less demonstrative.

Some women can't pass a milliner store without looking in; some men can't pass a saloon without going in.

A women never sees a baby without wanting to run to it; a man never sees a baby without wanting to run from it.

Women love admiration, approbation, adulation on the part of others, and are often weak, vain and frivolous. Ditto men.

A man of fashion hates the rain because it deranges the set of his pantaloons; a woman of fashion hates it because it deranges her complexion.

When a woman wants to repair damages she uses a pin; when a man wants to repair damages he spends two hours and a half trying to thread a needle.

A woman can sit in a theatre for three hours without getting all cramped up, catching the toothache, or becoming faint for want of fresh air; a man can't; he must go out and see a man.

LINDSAY.

From $3,000 to $4,000 of the town taxes are yet uncollected.

The council deliberations were carried on by "the glimmering lamp." No gas, no eloquence.

About $12,000 of town debentures fall due this year. To meet this claim it is expected that the hand fire engine will be sold.

Lindsay still lives in an Arcadian atmosphere of rural simplicity. She is going to have a genuine country school house "singing school." These singing schools are all right, but then, one doesn't generally find them in places the size of Toronto, Hamilton or Peterborough.

OMEMEE.

According to the latest census, the population of Omemee is 765.

On Tuesday morning last, Mr. Wm. Neill, Sr., died in this village at the advanced age of 80 years. Mr. Neill had been a resident of Omemee for upwards of 40 years.

The first attack of the Salvation army will be made on Omemee on Sunday next at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. The meetings will be held in the village hall.

Officeholders.

The office held by the Kidneys is one of importance. They act as natures sluice-way to carry off the extra liquids from the system and with them the impurities both those that are taken into the stomach and those that are formed in the blood. Any clogging or inaction of these organs is therefore important. Kidney-Wort is Nature's efficient assistant in keeping the kidneys in good working order, strengthening them and inducing healthy action. If you would get well and keep well, take Kidney-Wort.

Mr. Pardee and the Algoma Charges.

The Tory journals, and among them, of course, our down-street contemporary, have been attempting to make much of the charges of corruption made by Mr. Meredith on the stump in West Middlesex, where he indulged in much braggadocia and reckless assertions respecting the Algoma contest, but in the House, under Mr. Pardee's withering speech, he shrank within himself in silence. On the Algoma matter Mr. Pardee said:

"The whole local contest in February was conducted from Ottawa, and with a vindictiveness and determination hitherto unparalleled. On his part, he (Mr. Pardee) protested against such interference by the central authority in local affairs, and, in his opinion, if successful, it would result in greater injury to our federal system than would be worked by legislative union. (Cheers) A good deal had been said by gentlemen on the other side of the House about what they termed the "frauds in Algoma." The leader of the Opposition had made no reference to this matter in his speech on the Address, but a short time prior to the meeting of the House that gentleman was loud in his declarations of what he was going to do when he came to this House. He had charged members of the Government, including himself (Mr. Pardee), with having been guilty of gross frauds in that constituency during election. (Hear, hear.) As no one on the opposite side of the House had brought forward these charges during the course of this debate, he had been given no chance to reply to them, but he now availed himself of the first opportunity to answer those accusations. It was not the first time the hon. gentleman and his party had charged him with bribery. After the election in February they filed a bill charging him not only with bribery by agents, but with all sorts of personal corruption, and when the trial came off, not one vestige of proof had been offered in support of these charges. (Hear, hear.) He ventured to say that the result would be the same when they came to investigate the charges in respect to Algoma. (Cheers.) He utterly denied, on behalf of himself and the Government, that there was any truth or foundation in those accusations whatever.

* * * * It seemed to him (Mr. Pardee) that the high-minded leader, this pure-minded patriot, who stood upon the public platform—he had not yet done so in the House—and accused others of bribery without the slightest proof, was bound to have taken a different course in West Middlesex, and to have advised the electors against re-nominating Johnston, in order that his party, as well as himself, might be cleared. (Hear, hear.) His hon. friend had likewise said that they could not shut the door upon bribery by legislation. He (Mr. Pardee) admitted this to be true, but held that so long as the leaders of a party condoned bribery by defending the parties who had been guilty of it, so long would that party be guilty of bribery, and it becomes a great moral question how long in the interests of morality a man who holds the views his hon. friend seemed to hold, should remain the leader of the party."

OR,

BEAUTY IN DISTRESS.

CHAPTER I.

It is growing dark. The fire in the library, although the time is early June, is burning briskly. A greyhound, a very handsome specimen of its kind, lies sleeping on the hearth-rug. There is a general air of comfort in all the surroundings, yet Mr. Dugdale—whose admiration for the country is not unrestrained, and who has come down to his neglected estate only because a long-forgotten sense of duty and a new steward have called him—is sitting with his hands before him, wondering, in a melancholy fashion, what on earth he is going to do with himself for the next month.

If, he soliloquises, he even knew any one in the county! Of course, they will all call, the Katkins especially, but new acquaintances are such a bore. And dinners where French cooks are unknown—pah! He doesn't know a tenant on his estate, or a landlord in the district, except old Major Hyde, who, probably, would be considered unendurable in town. He wonders, vaguely, what Thistleton is doing now, and Dunmore, and all that lot; perhaps—

"A lady wishes to see you, sir," says Hickson, speaking in a respectful undertone from the doorway.

"I sincerely hope not, Hickson," responds his master, lazily, without turning his head. "I really couldn't, you know. I have come down here, against my will, partly to escape all that kind of thing. And having sacrificed myself, I insist on quiet."

"She says, sir—"

"I know all about it," with an impatient gesture; "just say I am ill, dying, dead, buried—anything, only send her away."

"I beg your pardon, sir," with an apologetic cough, "but she seemed so urgent, and I could not possibly take it upon myself to dismiss the lady in question. I believe you would not wish it, sir, if—"

"You have evidently made up your mind I shall receive her," resignedly; "there is, therefore, nothing for it but to submit; I am incapable of argument under my present depressing circumstances. Is she," desperately, "a woman or a lady, Hickson?"

"A lady, sir; quite the lady."

"Ah!—old or young?"

"Not old, sir; and not too young, either."

"Neither old nor young. That generally means forty. Is she forty?"

"Dear me, no sir—nothing of the kind. I beg pardon, sir, I merely meant to imply she was a good deal more than eighteen."

"You are invaluable, Hickson; I have always said it," with a flash of admiration. "Show her in."

"Another of the personal begging-letter sort," says Mr. Dugdale to himself, with a meek shrug, unlocking a drawer that contains money. "Better have it ready; the only thing I know of to get rid of them in a hurry." Sinking back in his chair, he puts on his most miserable air, and prepares for an ignominious defeat.

There is some slight delay; then the faint rustle of a woman's skirts, a word or two from the admirable Hickson, who then throws wide the door, and announces "Miss Carew," in his usually well-bred monotone.

Dugdale, rising from his seat with some precipitancy, makes her a deferential bow. There is extreme respect, though a good deal of irrepressible surprise, in his manner as his eyes meet hers.

She is young—about three-and-twenty very slender, very excellently formed, of middle height, and extremely pretty. Her eyes are clear, dark gray; her light brown hair is covered by a large hat, trimmed handsomely with feathers; a gray gown fits her rounded figure to perfection; her hands are incased in irreproachable gloves. Dugdale, as he looks at her, repents him of the "begging-letter" idea, and, at remembrance of it, colors slightly. So does his visitor, though from far different motives.

"I must ask you to pardon this—this intrusion," she says, in a low tone, though perfectly distinct, and full of dignity and sweetness. "I would not have come myself, but my brother is quite an invalid, suffering from an accident, and it was necessary one of us should see you. When we heard you were returning to town again so soon, it frightened us into action."

"I do not return to London for a month."

"Indeed!" with suppressed chagrin. "We were told that you started to-morrow, or the next day. Had I known the truth——"

"Pray sit down," says Dugdale, courteously handing her a chair, "and let me know what I can do for you."

"I should have introduced myself," she says, with a faint smile. "My brother and I are your tenants, Mr. Dugdale, and have, I think, some slight claim on your forbearance. The place—Weston Lodge, you know of it?—has been in the possession of our family for years. First, my grandfather had it from your grandfather; then my father had it; now my brother has it; but our lease has expired." She pauses.

"You make me feel ashamed that I know so little of my tenants, or their wishes or concerns," he says. "I know, indeed, nothing of the neighbourhood. My living so much abroad is my only excuse. But that my late steward, poor fellow, died, and that the new man insisted on my presence here for a few weeks, I should not be in this house now. Yes, you want a new lease—is that it?"

"That is it," with a glance of surprise at his evident indifference to, or ignorance of, all that has been going on of late. "The question is, shall we get it? The new man you speak of—Graham—has, I think, advised you to the contrary. He wishes to take our farm and incorporate it with the fields that lie beyond it, and let it all out at a higher value. Of course we can retain the house, but without the land it is useless to us, as my brother is fond of farming. We are willing you should raise our rent—we would gladly take all those fields, I speak of that stretch to the south of us, but, unfortunately, just now we cannot. I thought, if I were to ask you, you would perhaps reconsider your steward's advice, and let us keep our home."

The sweet voice trembles over such a little, the gray eyes fall, the little delicately-gloved hand taps nervously upon the table near her.

"Have you spoken to Graham?" asks Dugdale, who, just at this moment, could have soundly rated his own zealous manager.

"No. We thought it better to see you, yourself. Will you think of it?" She raises her eyes again, and regards him earnestly, entreatingly. "To me it would be so much matter," she adds, gently, "but my brother—his heart is in the place; he has been delicate of late, and all this anxiety preys upon him and retards his recovery. We have been good tenants; I would ask you not to dispossess us."

"I shall speak to Graham to-morrow. Pray do not disturb yourself about it; I promise you," says Mr. Dugdale, who is singularly pliable where beauty pleads, "you shall keep your home. Nobody shall dispossess you."

"How shall I thank you?" exclaims she, with grateful warmth, rising. Tears of emotion shine in her dark eyes. "I hardly dared hope when I came, and now"—she pauses, and again a smile curves her lips—"I can go back to George and make him happy."

"It makes yourself happy, too, I trust?"

A little shadow falls into Miss Carew's eyes. They droop.

"Thank you—yes," she answers, but there is a faint weariness, a curious pain discernable in her tone.

She bows slightly, and turns to the door.

"Let me see you to your"—carriage he is going to say, but hesitates. She certainly looks like a woman who should have carriages at her disposal, but he remembers hearing from Graham that Weston is a small place, and checks himself.

"Yes—I drove over," she says quietly. And then he follows her to the hall-door steps, and sees there waiting for her a tiny phæton, a tiny pony, and a groom holding its head. All is well appointed, and, though small, perfect.

Miss Carew gives her hand to Dugdale, and steps into the phæton; the groom springs in behind and hands his mistress the reins; she turns and bestows on her landlord a smile, short, though exceedingly sweet, and in another minute pony, tiger, lady and all have disappeared down the avenue.

He, left standing upon the gravel, watches her retreat until distance has, indeed, swallowed up all traces of her, and as he looks he muses.

What a sad little face she had, but how expressive! What sweetness in the eyes! Yes, beyond doubt it all lay in her eyes! There wasn't much to speak of in the rest of her features, except her mouth, which was charming, but there certainly was a fascination in her eyes. What did Graham mean by creating such confusion, all about a paltry few pounds a year, more or less? It was most officious of him. After all, a fellow ought to come down and see about his tenants every now and then, and consult their wishes and see after their—

"Well, Dugdale, my boy, and how are you?" says a mellow voice behind him, and turning, he beholds the Major.

"Ah, Hyde, I'm uncommonly glad to see you," exclaims he, brightening, and telling the honest truth. Even Hyde, old-fashioned as he is, brings a welcome with him, being, as it were, a breath from the world of town.

"Thank you. Heard of your arrival, and just dropped down to get a look at you, and ask you to dine to-morrow night. Know how slow you must find it vegetating in the wilderness. I came through the park, and just saw Miss Carew driving away. Monstrous pretty girl, I take it. Came about the lease, eh? You must give her her own way there, Dugdale, you must indeed, you know," says the kindly Major.

"I have given it," says Dugdale.

"Glad of it—glad of it. The only right thing to do. I might have known that she would get no refusal from you. Beauty in distress, my boy, is all powerful, eh? You have nothing that can touch on her this season, come now," says the ancient hero, with an airy laugh that still retains the freshness of nineteen. "I'll lay you anything you like, you haven't seen a prettier girl this year."

"Yes, I have," laughing, "but few so—so—haunting. I like gray eyes. Come in and dine with me, Hyde; it will be a charity, and may, perhaps, save me from suicide; I can't stand my own company."

"I shall be delighted," says the Major, who, next to having some one dine with him, likes best to dine with some one. He is fond of society and young men, and is especially fond of Dugdale.

As they lounge through the gardens, enjoying a cigar before dinner, the Major grows communicative, and relates many things. Touching on the Carews, he finds himself encouraged by his host, and forthwith enlarges on the topic.

"There is only she and George," says he, "and they are quite devoted; she thinks there is nobody like George, and he thinks the same about Clarissa, and I quite agree with him."

"You seem rather épris there," says Dugdale, smiling. "George, as you call him, is ill, is he not?"

"Knocked himself to bits last winter, out hunting. Ribs, leg, head, all went to smash, and even now he is only slowly recovering. No doubt he will pluck up in a hurry, now this lease worry is at an end, but at one time I confess I thought he was done for. That poor child, Clarissa, was quite ill, between grief and nursing."

"Ah! That is what makes her look so sad, I suppose."

"Well, no—not that altogether," mysteriously.

"Any thing more?" turning sharply; "not a disappointment in love, surely? It is an impertinence even to imagine it."

"I may as well tell you about it," says old Hyde, who adores the sound of his own voice, and is beginning to enjoy himself intensely. "All the world here knows the story, so as you are sure to hear it from some quarter, sooner or later, I shan't be breaking confidence by telling you. And you may as well hear a true version of it. You made a good guess; it was an unhappy love affair."

"He had bad taste, whoever he was," says Dugdale, with a faintly unpleasant ring in his tone. He had already begun to feel an interest in his lovely tenant, and when a man feels an interest in a woman, however slight, he takes it badly when he is told she, in her turn, has felt an interest in some foreign quarter.

"You know Sir Wilfred Haughton? Well, he was the man. They were engaged to be married about three years ago; everything was arranged; never was there a fellow so much in love, as we thought, when suddenly a cousin of Clarissa came on the scene. A pretty girl, I am bound to say, but bad, sir, bad to the heart's core. There was something fetching about her, I suppose, because every man in the neighborhood (except myself, Dugdale, I am proud to say) made an ass of himself about her. But she laid her plans cleverly, and never ceased till she had wiled Haughton from his allegiance, and, I verily believe, broke Clarissa's heart. She has never held up her head since." Fairly crushed she was, and all for a most unworthy object, as I cannot help thinking him."

"You put it mildly. A man who could be guilty of such an act must be termed an unmitigated blackguard," says Dugdale, calmly, knocking the ashes off his cigar.

"So I think. But the dream of the joke is to follow. Madame Violet, having made her little game, and cajoled Haughton to the top of her bent, coolly threw him over at the last moment, and married a city man with no birth to mention, but unlimited coin."

"Served him right," viciously. "I knew him slightly, but can't say I fancied him; weak, it seemed to me, and self-opinionated. He has been abroad for some time."

"Fit of the spleens. They say he is coming home at the end of the month, so I dare say he has got over it."

"How will Miss Carew like his being in the neighborhood again!"

"She is very game," says the Major; "proud you know, and that—she wont show what she really feels. Perhaps his coming will cure her effectually, and settle matters for ever."

"You mean she will accept him a second time?"

"Accept him! Nonsense, sir; she will reject him, and that with scorn—with scorn!" says the Major, flushing with indignation.

A month renders the Carews very intimate with their landlord—which is hardly to be wondered at, as scarcely a day passes without his coming to Weston, avowedly to sit with George, but in reality to see Clarissa.

Now, he does not even care to conceal from himself the fact that his early admiration for her has deepened into love. Yet his attachment causes him only unhappiness, having in it all the elements of disappointment to come, Clarissa, apparently, being utterly indifferent to it. She is very sweet, very gentle, and treats him with all the kind familiarity of a sister, but even he cannot deceive himself into the belief that there is anything sentimental in her regard.

One evening towards the close of this month, Dugdale happens to be dining at the lodge. He has dined there often of late, young Carew having taken an enormous fancy to him, being, indeed, almost low-spirited when he is out of his sight. All through dinner Clarissa has been singularly distraite and meditative; there is a far-off look in her clear gray eyes, her lover is quick to mark. Strolling in the garden with her, later on, through the warm, sweet, wooing July air, he suddenly breaks the long silence by saying:

"How quiet you are this evening. Has any thing vexed you—disturbed you?"

"Have I betrayed myself even to you?" she says, with a smile and a rare faint blush. "No—yes—I confess it; I should not be disturbed, but I am—in that lies my self-contempt. It makes me angry with myself to know that I am annoyed, but I cannot help it. I heard to-day Sir Wilfred Houghton is coming home to-morrow!" Her voice has fallen slightly.

"Yes, I know." He has turned his face away from hers.

"Of course you have heard all that old story," she says, quite calmly, but with another blush so vivid as to bring tears to her eyes. "It seems very old now. Every one knows it; that thought was very bitter to me just at first, but now I scarcely seem to mind it, and you are so good a friend I can speak to you about it. It is very disheartening is it not," with a little constrained laugh, "that after all one's inward lectures, one should find one's self as far from indifference as ever?"

Mistaking her meaning altogether, he winces perceptibly.

"Does his coming distress you?"

"Yes," slowly, "it distresses me; and yet I cannot say whether it makes me glad or sorry. After all, he was an old friend before—before anything foolish occurred between us. I do not forget that."

"No doubt he has, long ere this, repented his crowning—nay, his only act of folly." They have got down to the wicket-gate by this time, that leads into the haggard, and he, leaning his arms upon it, continues, always with his eye turned from hers, "What if he is coming home because the first and best love is strong within him? It may be that he is coming to gain forgiveness."

"O, no, no!" shrinking. "I hope not. That would be terrible. I hope not! But," with an effort, "it is impossible."

"I think it so utterly possible that I am almost sure of it," says Dugdale, who takes a savage pleasure in piling up his own agony. "No man, under the circumstances, would elect to come to the place again, unless with such an object."

"You frighten me," she says; and then she sighs, and brushes back her soft hair impatiently from her temples. "Would you act so in such a case?" she asks, presently, in a slow, dreamy tone.

Then he turns to look at her, and their eyes meet. The tender silence of coming night is all around. The faint, melodious lowing of the oxen in the far-off meadows alone breaks the stillness of the evening that is dying with such lingering sweetness.

"I cannot answer that question," returned he, a little unsteadily. "I could not picture myself in such a case. Had I dared to love you, it would have been with such a love as would have lasted to my dying day!"

Silence again. She has grown very pale, and the hand that trifles with the huge bunch of crimson roses so lately plucked is trembling slightly. The cows are coming slowly toward them through the cool deep grass; the birds, high over their heads, are twittering drowsily a last good-night; George's voice from the verandah calls them to return.

"You are thinking of the past?" says Dugdale, hurriedly, taking one of the roses from her.

"Yes—and of the future," she replies, in a troubled tone.

"Clarissa! you still love him?"

"How shall I tell, returns she, with a touch of passion. "I have so long brooded over my unhappy story—so often told myself I shall never again——" She pauses abruptly. "I want to see him," she says, after a slight hesitation.

"Naturally," with some bitterness.

"No, you mistake, I want to see him," slowly, "because, when I do—on the instant—I shall know."

"Know what?" eagerly.

"My own heart," replies she, somewhat sadly.

...it has issued a ...dical manual, for ... we purpose to re... ...ho method or process ..., giving a liberal instal... benefit of those interested ... beginning with.

MILKING PREPARATIONS:

...nliness is the most important thing ...ilking. The milk-vessels and pails ...quire to have been thoroughly scalded immediately after previous use, ready for use again. The place where the milking is done should be properly ventilated, the floor or ground upon which the cows stand, should be clean and dry. This will require, if in a stable, that straw, or some other absorbent, be spread under the cow's feet to prevent spattering.

Now the cow is ready to welcome the milker who presents himself with clean hands, and by a kindly word and a gentle patting gains her confidence. Before bringing the milking-pail to the cow the milker gives the udder a good brushing with a cloth, or the hands. It is taken for granted here that the cow has all along been properly bedded and carded, and that previous milkings have always left the udder clean, and in healthy condition. Failure in this respect may make it necessary to wash the udder and teats. If so let it be done with clean water—never with milk—and the udder be wiped dry before ilking. To milk clean, dry teats with clean, dry hands is not only cleanly but easier and more pleasant.

THE OPERATION.

The milker, provided with a good and solid stool for a seat, draws himself close up to the cow, his right side towards her head. If his pail does not hold a full milking, the milker has within reach, vessel room enough to hold all that the cow will give, so that he need not rise before he is done. The left arm is held near the leg of the cow, as a protection for the pail should the cow raise her foot. The milking is done with both hands, the right hand taking one forward teat and the left hand taking the opposite hind teat, "changing teats often enough to relieve the pressure in the different parts equally." The milk is now drawn very quickly and quietly, care being taken to draw, or "strip," all that there is.

"When the cow is nearly milked, the milker's hand, as it grasps the teat, reaches up a little above the teat so as to press the milk down through the valve or contraction at the upper end of it, and every time the milk is pressed out of the teat, the milker pulls down on it, not with a jerk, but gently. The omission of this operation leaves a part of the milk in the tubes." (Arnold.)

The milking is usually done by using the hands alternately, gently squeezing out the milk with the speed and force that experience will show to be most agreeable to the cow, keeping up an almost continuous stream. When towards the end of the operation it is necessary to reach the hand above the teat, as above directed, the alternate motion may sometimes with advantage, give way to coincident motion—both hands moving together. Which motion is the best will depend much upon the peculiarities, of the udder and teats of the cow. The thorough milker will study these peculiarities, adapt himself to them, decide upon the best plan, and then always milk the same cow in the same manner.

CARE OF THE MILK.

Our wise and capable milker as soon as possible, with no unnecessary loss of time, carries the milk to the nearest and most convenient place, where in a pure atmosphere, the milk may be emptied, either into a carrying, heating, or milk-setting vessel. If for convenience, or other economical reason, the milker while milking in one vessel allows milk to stand close at hand in another, the precaution will be taken to have this second vessel covered from the surrounding air. The atmosphere of the milking-place is not likely to be the most suitable for aeration. Knowing that the full range of falling temperature is required in the cream-rising process, the wise milker does not allow the freshly-drawn milk to stand and cool any longer than absolutely, necessary, before getting it into the next vessel that receives it,—in the carrying, milk-heating, or milk setting vessel, as the case may be.

OTHER POINTS.

One characteristics of a good milker are system and regularity. Care is taken to milk at a regular hour, which has been chosen so that the intervals between milkings will be as nearly as possible evenly divided. Each milker undertakes to milk only as many cows as can be well attended to, which is not usually more than ten; and these are milked in regular order, each cow in her own turn. A few cows may sometimes be milked when standing loose in open field or yard, but if there are any risks of the cows annoying each other or of being from any cause fretted and disturbed, they are securely attached in their respective places to be milked.

THE TALE OF TEN TRAVELLERS.

Ten weary, footsore travellers,
All in a woeful plight,
Sought shelter at a wayside inn
One dark and stormy night.

"Nine beds—no more," the landlord said,
"Have I to offer you;
To each of eight a single room,
But the ninth must serve for two."

A din arose. The troubled host
Could only scratch his head;
For of those tired men no two
Could occupy one bed.

The puzzled host was soon at ease—
He was a clever man—
And so to please his guests devised
This most ingenious plan.

A B C D E F G H I;

In room marked A two men were placed;
The third he lodged in B;
The fourth to C was then assigned—
The fifth retired to D;

In E the sixth he tucked away,
In F the seventh man,
The eighth and ninth in G and H,
And then to A he ran.

Wherein the host, as I have said,
Had laid two travellers by,
Then taking one,—the tenth and last,
He lodged him safe in I.

Nine single rooms—a room for each—
Were made to serve for ten,
And this it is that puzzles me
And many wiser men.

"WHO AM MY NAYBUR?"

AN IMPORTANT MORAL QUESTION DISCUSSED BEFORE THE LIMEKILN CLUB.

"Who am my naybur?" asked the old man, as he opened the meeting and blew his nose with the report of an army musket loaded to kill a mile and a half away. There was deep silence throughout the hall for a moment, and he then continued:

"It's none o' my bizness. If my naybur wants to borry an'lend an'be friendly dat's all right, an' I shall meet him half way. If he wants to lib secluded, dat's his bizness. It's none o'my affair whar he come from, what he works at, how much he gets, what he eats or wears or where he puts in his time. If he am a good man, so much the better for society. If he am a bad one, let the parlesce take care o' him!"

"I has bin hangin' onto life ober seventy long y'ars, an' when I sit down of a night to reflect an' wonder an' recall, it pears to me dat one half de trouble an' worriment of life cum from mindin' odder people's bizness an' lettin' our own go at loose ends. I got frew wid it a good while ago. Dar was a time in my life when, if a strange nigger passed my cabin ridin' a cream cull'd mule an' followed by a yellar dog, I'd quit hoein' co'n to wonder where he was goin', how old de mule was, what his wife looked like, how many children he had, an' a hundred odder things. Am it any bizness ob my naybur's wheder I prefer onions raw or cooked? Not a bit. I run my bizness to please myself. I let my naybur do de same. I don't ask wheder he ain't jist out o' State prison or jist cum from Chicago. I don't ask an' I don't care how he got his pianner, or wheder he has paid for his ca'pets. If he exhibits a nayburly speerit by axin' to borry my shovel, I shall respond by axin' de loan of his ax.

"Dar am three or fo' members ot dis club who am greatly troubled ober odder peoples bizness. Dey can't see dis, and den wonder ober dat, an' dey suspect an' suspishun an' go to bed mad bekass it ain't all writ out on de ba'n doah for 'em to read. I want sich members to disreckollect that any one pusson who airns a libin', pays his debts, an' keeps outer the hands of the doctahs an' purlesce has all the bizness he kin 'tend to. If he imagines he hasn't, I can make no' bizness fur him."

UP TO THE STICKING POINT

"One evening' as I was sitting' by Hetty, and had worked myself up to the sticking point, sez I, 'Hetty, if a feller was to ask you to marry him, what wud you say?' Then she laughed, and sez she, 'That would depend on who asked me.' Then sez I, 'Suppose it was Ned Willis?' Sez she, 'I'd tell Ned Willis, but not you.' That kinder staggered me; but I was too cute to lose the opportunity, and so sez I agen, 'Suppose it was me?' And then you orter see her pout up her lip, and sez she, 'I don't take no supposes.' Well, now, you see there was nothin' for me to do but to touch the gun off. So bang it went. Sez I, 'Lor, Hetty, it's me. Won't you say yes?' And then there was such a hullaballoo in my head, I don't know 'zactly what tuk place, but I thought I heard a yes' whisperin' somewhere out in the skirmish.

MANHOOD

We have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediment to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.
☞Price in a sealed envelope, only 6c. or two postage stamps.
The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the use of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

SCIENTIFIC BUTTER MAKING.

MILKING.

(From the Ontario Government Manual for Scientific Butter Making.)

No. 1.

The Ontario government has issued a most important practical manual, for butter making, and we purpose to re-publish the scientific method or process of butter making, giving a liberal instalment for the benefit of those interested each week, beginning with.

MILKING PREPARATIONS:

Cleanliness is the most important thing in milking. The milk-vessels and pails require to have been thoroughly scalded immediately after previous use, ready for use again. The place where the milking is done should be properly ventilated, the floor or ground upon which the cows stand, should be clean and dry. This will require, if in a stable, that straw, or some other absorbent, be spread under the cow's feet to prevent spattering.

Now the cow is ready to welcome the milker who presents himself with clean hands, and by a kindly word and a gentle patting gains her confidence. Before bringing the milking-pail to the cow the milker gives the udder a good brushing with a cloth, or the hands. It is taken for granted here that the cow has all along been properly bedded and carded, and that previous milkings have always left the udder clean, and in healthy condition. Failure in this respect may make it necessary to wash the udder and teats. If so let it be done with clean water—never with milk—and the udder be wiped dry before ilking. To milk clean, dry teats with clean, dry hands is not only cleanly but easier and more pleasant.

THE OPERATION.

The milker, provided with a good and solid stool for a seat, draws himself close up to the cow, his right side towards her head. If his pail does not hold a full milking, the milker has within reach, vessel room enough to hold all that the cow will give, so that he need not rise before he is done. The left arm is held near the leg of the cow, as a protection for the pail should the cow raise her foot. The milking is done with both hands, the right hand taking one forward teat and the left hand taking the opposite hind teat, "changing teats often enough to relieve the pressure in the different parts equally." The milk is now drawn very quickly and quietly, care being taken to draw, or "strip," all that there is.

"When the cow is nearly milked, the milker's hand, as it grasps the teat, reaches up a little above the teat so as to press the milk down through the valve or contraction at the upper end of it, and every time the milk is pressed out of the teat, the milker pulls down on it, not with a jerk, but gently. The omission of this operation leaves a part of the milk in the tubes." (Arnold.)

The milking is usually done by using the hands alternately, gently squeezing out the milk with the speed and force that experience will show to be most agreeable to the cow, keeping up an almost continuous stream. When towards the end of the operation it is necessary to reach the hand above the teat, as above directed, the alternate motion may sometimes with advantage, give way to coincident motion—both hands moving together. Which motion is the best will depend much upon the peculiarities, of the udder and teats of the cow. The thorough milker will study these peculiarities, adapt himself to them, decide upon the best plan, and then always milk the same cow in the same manner.

CARE OF THE MILK.

Our wise and capable milker as soon as possible, with no unnecessary loss of time, carries the milk to the nearest and most convenient place, where in a pure atmosphere, the milk may be emptied, either into a carrying, heating, or milk-setting vessel. If for convenience, or other economical reason, the milker while milking in one vessel allows milk to stand close at hand in another, the precaution will be taken to have this second vessel covered from the surrounding air. The atmosphere of the milking-place is not likely to be the most suitable for aeration. Knowing that the full range of falling temperature is required in the cream-rising process, the wise milker does not allow the freshly-drawn milk to stand and cool any longer than absolutely, necessary, before getting it into the next vessel that receives it,—in the carrying, milk-heating, or milk setting vessel, as the case may be.

OTHER POINTS.

One characteristics of a good milker are system and regularity. Care is taken to milk at a regular hour, which has been chosen so that the intervals between milkings will be as nearly as possible evenly divided. Each milker undertakes to milk only as many cows as can be well attended to, which is not usually more than ten; and these are milked in regular order, each cow in her own turn. A few cows may sometimes be milked when standing loose in open field or yard, but if there are any risks of the cows annoying each other or of being from any cause fretted and disturbed, they are securely attached in their respective places to be milked.

The Best for Butter.

There is but one best color for butter, and that is Wells Richardson & Co's. Improved Butter Color, no candid investigator doubts. It is the best butter color in the world; is free from sediment or impurity, always ready for instant use, and it imparts to butter that rich dandelion yellow, without a tinge of red, which is the acme of desirability in any butter color.

THE TALE OF TEN TRAVELLERS.

Ten weary, footsore travellers,
All in a woeful plight,
Sought shelter at a wayside inn
One dark and stormy night.

"Nine beds—no more," the landlord said,
"Have I to offer you;
To each of eight a single room,
But the ninth must serve for two."

A djs mcree. The troubled host
Could only scratch his head;
For of those tired men no two
Could occupy one bed.

The puzzled host was soon at ease—
He was a clever man—
And so to please his guests devised
This most ingenious plan.

: A : B : C : D : E : F : G : H : I :

In room marked A two men were placed;
The third he lodged in B;
The fourth to C was then assigned—
The fifth retired to D;

In E the sixth he tucked away.
In F the seventh man.
The eighth and ninth in G and H.
And then to A he ran.

Wherein the host, as I have said,
Had laid two travellers by,
Then taking one,—the tenth and last,
He lodged him safe in I.

Nine single rooms—a room for each—
Were made to serve for ten,
And this it is that puzzles me
And many wiser men.

"WHO AM MY NAYBUR?"

AN IMPORTANT MORAL QUESTION DISCUSSED BEFORE THE LIMEKILN CLUB.

"Who am my naybur?" asked the old man, as he opened the meeting and blew his nose with the report of an army musket loaded to kill a mile and a half away. There was deep silence throughout the hall for a moment, and he then continued:

"It's none o' my bizness. If my naybur wants to borry an'lend an'be friendly dat's all right, an' I shall meet him half way. If he wants to lib secluded, dat's his bizness. It's none o'my affair whar he come from, what he works at, how much he gets, what he eats or wears or where he puts in his time. If he am a good man, so much the better for society. If he am a bad one, let the purlesce take care o' him!"

"I has bin hangin' onto life ober seventy long y'ars, an' when I sit down of a night to reflect an' wonder an' recall, it pears to me dat one half de trouble an' worriment of life cum from mindin' odder people's bizness an' lettin' our own go at loose ends. I got frew wid it a good while ago. Dar was a time in my life when, if a strange nigger passed my cabin ridin' a cream cull'd mule an' followed by a yellar dog, I'd quit hoein' co'n to wonder where he was goin', how old de mule was, what his wife looked like, how many children he had, an' a hundred odder things. Am it any bizness ob my naybur's wheder I prefer onions raw or cooked? Not a bit. I run my bizness to please myself. I let my naybur do de same. I don't ask wheder he ain't jist out o' State prison or jist cum from Chicago. I don't ask an' I don't care how he got his pianner, or wheder he has paid for his ca'pets. If he exhibits a nayburly speerit by axin' to borry my shovel, I shall respond by axin' de loan of his ax.

"Dar am three or fo' members ot dis club who am greatly troubled ober odder peoples bizness. Dey can't see dis, and den wonder ober dat, an' dey suspect an' suspishun an' go to bed mad bekass it ain't all writ out on de ba'n doah for 'em to read. I want sich members to disreckollect that any one pusson who airns a libin', pays his debts, an' keeps outer the hands of the doctahs an' purlesce has all the bizness he kin 'tend to. If he imagines he hasn't, I can make no' bizness fur him."

There was quite a rustle of excitement as the president finished, and if Lonesome Sanders had not had his face in the water-dipper he would have observed fifty different individuals looking in his direction.

UP TO THE STICKING POINT

"One evening' as I was sittin' by Hetty, and had worked myself up to the sticking point, sez I, 'Hetty, if a feller was to ask you to marry him, what wud you say?' Then she laughed, and sez she, 'That would depend on who asked me.' Then sez I, 'Suppose it was Ned Willis?' Sez she, 'I'd tell Ned Willis, but not you.' That kinder staggered me; but I was too cute to lose the opportunity, and so sez I agen, 'Suppose it was me?' And then you orter see her pout up her lip, and sez she, 'I don't take no supposes.' Well, now, you see there was nothin' for me to do but to touch the gun off. So bang it went. Sez I, 'Lor, Hetty, it's me. Won't you say yes?' And then there was such a hullaballoo in my head, I don't know 'zactly what tuk place, but I thought I heard a yes' whisperin' somewhere out in the skirmish.

MANHOOD
HOW LOST, HOW RESTORED

We have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediment to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.
☞ Price in a sealed envelope, only 6d. or two postage stamps.
The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the use of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.
☞ This lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

Cattle Shipment.

On Friday last Mr. George Webber took twenty head of cattle to the Montreal market. The stock was fed specially for the market by Mr. Webber himself, and it is probable that a score of finer beef cattle never left the town. They arrived into Montreal at a time when the hosts of visitors to the carnival had devoured the supply of meat, so that they were pretty sure of meeting with a brisk demand and a tidy price.

Beauty and the Beasts.

The other day a pair of swains had a dispute at a hotel in town over their respective rights to the preference of a rural beauty. The dispute ended in a fight, and the fight ended in a big drunk. The amorous ardour of one of the lovers was pretty well cooled by his lying helpless in a snow bank so long that he narrowly escaped freezing to death. Beauty has not yet decided which of the beasts she prefers.

Terse and Vigorous.

The Lindsay Post says of Rev. Mr. Munro, who delivered an address at the Baptist social at Lindsay, last Thursday night:—"The event of the evening, however, was a terse and vigorous address by Rev. Mr. Munro, of Peterborough. When the Rev. gentleman again appears on a Lindsay platform we predict for him a large and appreciative audience." We commend and endorse the Post's good judgment.

Ten Cent Minstrelsy.

The Skiff & Gaylord unique novelty company, minstrels, will open a season of three nights in Bradburn's opera house, beginning Monday, February 18th. The admission is only ten cents, but the profits consist in over-flowing houses drawn by a first-class varied programme. The Kingston Whig pronounces the "whole programme meritorious," and asks, "where has its like been seen for ten cents?" Remember, Bradburn's opera house, two performances daily at 1.30 and 7 p.m, on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, Feb. 18, 19 and 20. Tickets 10 cents. Reserved seats, at Hartley's music store, 20 cents.

Presbyterian Social.

The social in aid of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, held at the residence of Mrs. John Bertram, Smith, on Tuesday evening, was a most gratifying success, both socially and financially, the cash proceeds being $30. There were over a hundred persons present, and a delightful evening was spent in social pastimes. Readings were given by Rev. Mr. Torrance and Mr. Roper, and several ladies rendered excellent musical selection. The uncommonly fine instrumental music supplied by Messrs. Loch, Sanderson and Best, was worthy of the hearty applause which its great excellence deserved. The refreshments supplied were of the choicest. The large and elegant residence was generously thrown open throughout, and Mr. and Mrs. Bertram's graceful and unstinted hospitality contributed very largely to the uninterrupted enjoyment that marked the entire evening.

THE SKATING CARNIVAL.

Grand Glacial Aggregation of the Gorgeous and Grotesque.

The second carnival, held at the skating rink on Friday night last, was perhaps the most successful and brilliant that ever took place in the rink. The number of masks was large, and many of the costumes gave evidence of great taste and accuracy of knowledge of the characters assumed. Comment on the many costumes of unusual merit, with unusual elements of the beautiful or bizarre, would require more space than we can spare. The delicate task of discriminating and selecting the best costumes, we leave to the judges, who were: (Lady judges)—Mesdames R. Hamilton, Pigeon (Dr.), and White, and Messrs. M. Millar, J. F. Lewis, and R. Hall.

There was an unusually large attendance of spectators, and the music furnished by the Fire Brigade Band was pronounced on all sides, to be the best they have rendered for a long time, although the unfavorable acoustic properties of the rink building detracted somewhat from the effect of the music. The euphonium solo of Mr. E. McCabe in the Bellevue Quadrilles was a very fine and finished performance.

PERSONAL.

The members for both Houses for both ridings spent Sunday at home.

In the House of Commons, on Monday, Mr. Cameron, of Middlesex, gave notice of an inquiry into the relations of the Government and Mr. H. H. Smith.

Lieut.-Col. Villiers, Deputy Adjutant-General, visited Peterborough on Thursday last. He was unexpectedly called away, and was prevented from making an inspection of the armouries.

Mr. A. H. Smith, of Rochester, N.Y., the veteran conductor of the New York Central railway, accompanied by his wife and daughter, have been visiting friends in Peterborough and vicinity during the past week.

We observe by the Hamilton Spectator that Mr. James Saulter, formerly of this town, now Inspector of the Citizens' Insurance Company, adjusted to mutual satisfaction the claim of the Spectator Printing Company, arising out of the recent burning of Spectator buildings.

According to the Lindsay Post, Rev. Father Lynch, on Sunday before last, resigned the pastorate of St. Mary's church, in that town. Weight of years make so large a pariah beyond his powers, and he will take a well-earned rest. During his stay in Lindsay he made many friends.

Funeral Obsequies.

On Thursday the remains of Eugene Donoghue, who lived near Hilliard's mills, were conveyed to the R. C. Cemetery. There were twelve pall bearers, and a cortege of eighty vehicles followed the remains to the grave. A beautiful metallic casket, with plate-glass top and sides, revealing the trimmings of white satin, held the body, and the entire appointments of the funeral, conducted by Mr. D. Bellegham, were as gratifying to the family, that they have requested us to publicly thank that gentleman for the handsome manner in which he assisted them in paying, with becoming decency, their last respects to the dead.

Farmers, Beware!

Frequently, and recently, too, we hear in different parts of the county of farmers being taken advantage of by sleek strangers, who procure their signatures to some apparently simple document, which turns out to be something quite different from what it was represented, and which involves the signer in troublesome transactions. It would be wise in every farmer to be satisfied with his business, and to beware of the glib-mouthed stranger and his winning tales of cent per cent. profits. In the long run, the farmer will be the best off who sticks to his plough and confines his business transactions to men and firms of well-known honesty. The seductive stranger is, as a rule, to be dealt with carefully. Above all, never sign a document without reading it over two or three times.

Maternal Instincts.

In proof of how strongly the maternal instinct reigns in the breast of a true woman, it may be stated that Mrs. Tyler, the mother pro tem. of the "town baby," when she heard the proposal of the heartless town fathers to send the little waif to a foundling hospital or to find an adoptive father, she came to the Mayor weeping piteously to inquire if they really intended to carry out the proposition, and deprive her of the "darling." Though but a few months the nurse of a nameless infant, she had become so greatly attached to it that the very thought of parting with it wrung her womanly heart. Since, however, arrangements have been made for the adoption of the infant, and a charitable couple in the Third Ward have adopted the waif and made it their son.

"IS IT MALICE?"

To the Editor of the EXAMINER:

SIR,—I noticed in a late issue of the Review a letter from John Holmes, of Burleigh Falls, under the above heading. With the general manner in which that gentleman conducts his business, I have no interest. The only statements contained therein to which I will trouble you to print a reply are: (1st) That I was never in his hotel; and (2nd) that the Editor of the EXAMINER had copied from another paper the letter giving rise to the discussion.

(1st) On October 26th last, I arrived at his hotel at 11.20 a.m., put my horses in charge of the man at the stable, went into the house, and asked for dinner. A lady, whom I took for Mrs. Holmes, informed me that Mr. H. was away deer hunting with a party of Americans; and that they would probably return about 1 p.m.; if I would wait till then I could be accommodated, "but not otherwise." In answer to my request to provide a cold lunch, the lady replied she was "busy, and could not be bothered getting extra meals." It being necessary for me to drive a long distance that day, I was obliged to resume my journey without refreshments. I subsequently received information from a number of local persons that such treatment of ordinary travellers is the rule rather than the exception, though the place is said to be a good one for hunting parties, and run, apparently, solely for the accommodation of those gentlemen. I do not, nor have I ever entertained any malice against Mr. Holmes. I describe things as I find them. If he does'nt like the statement of facts he will have a chance to operate his "black snake whip" the next time I call.

(2nd) Mr. Holmes appears in ignorance of one or both newspaper articles, aside from the simple statement in both regarding my experience at his hotel. Two entirely distinct articles were written; one was for the EXAMINER. The substance was similar, as it must be when truth is adhered to, but the articles themselves were widely different. Mr. Holmes should have convinced himself of the fact before making such a palpably foolish statement that one was a copy of the other. The one, in fact, which he states was "copied" in the EXAMINER, was a mere synopsis of the EXAMINER'S article, and written by an entirely different correspondent, though from the same notes.

I am, Sir,
Yours respectfully,
NORTHERN PETERBOROUGH.

Peterborough, Feb. 11th.

[We have always, in stopping at Mr. Holmes' place, when on our way to the north, received every courtesy from the Burleigh Falls Hotel. We have also every confidence in our correspondent, and do not think for a moment that he intentionally desired to injure Mr. Holmes. The trouble arises out of some unfortunate misunderstanding, somewhere.—ED. EXAMINER.

POLICE COURT.

FURIOUS DRIVING.

At the Police Court, on Tuesday, Wm. Trotter was charged with damaging a sleigh owned by Mr. T. E. Fitzgerald, deputy-reeve of Smith. The circumstances are these. On Saturday, Mr. Fitzgerald, while on his way home, stopped at Wainright's butcher shop, leaving his mother, son and daughter sitting in the sleigh. The accused, Trotter, came down George street, driving furiously, and struck the back of the sleigh, throwing Miss Fitzgerald forward to the next seat. The shock broke the neck yoke, leaving it to be held only by one horse. The horses attempted to run away, but the son pluckily held on to the one rein he grasped, and the animals were turned into the fence of the Agricultural grounds and stopped. If they had not been thus opportunely stopped, being a spirited team, great damage would have been done. Trotter was adjudged guilty and fined $5 and $4.15 costs, and directed to pay $5 damages or spend twenty days in jail.

HIGHWAY ROBBERY.

William Burton was charged with committing highway robbery on Mrs. Rogers, on Water Street on the 19th ult. He was committed to jail to stand his trial.

DAIRYMEN DELIBERATE.

Meeting of the Eastern Dairymen's Association.

Address of the President.

The seventh annual meeting of the Eastern Dairymen's Association met in the Council Chamber on Wednesday at 10 o'clock. There was a light attendance. Among those present were noticed D. Derbyshire, President, Brockville; D. Vandewater, 1st Vice-President, Foxborough; Thos. Walker, 2d Vice-President, Wellman's Corners; H. Ashley, Secretary, Belleville; Dr. Faulkner, Warden of the County of Hastings; Henry Wade, Secretary of the Agricultural and Arts Association, Toronto; James Whitton, cheese instructor; L. Sills, Belleville; Platt Hinman, Grafton; F. McCrea, Brockville; James Alexander, of McPherson & Alexander, produce merchants, Lancaster; D. McPherson, Lancaster; Frank Brenton, Foxborough, etc. The attendance of local farmers was very slight, but it was expected that there would be a larger attendance in the afternoon and the second day. Miss Augusta M. Ashley acted as official stenographer to the association.

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

The President, Mr. D. Derbyshire, said that the seventh annual convention met under very favorable circumstances. He had expected a better attendance, but no doubt there would be more on the incoming trains. He anticipated a bright future for the great dairying industry—one that on account of the interests involved was the most important in the country. The future dairyman would have to use more brain and science—the demand of the trade calling for a first-class article. But a first-class cheese, made on the Cheddar principle, must be made if we expected to hold the market and compete with our American neighbors. Cheese-making people must be educated to keep pace with the improving tastes of customers. Referring to butter, he said the poor quality of much of the butter made left large amounts of useless stuff on hand, on which five, six, or seven cents per pound were lost. The money lost was not all—custom was lost, and customers looked elsewhere for butter which we might supply. A few years ago farmers were speculators in cheese, holding it for a better market, but the association had secured a change—regular marketing, which tended to the advantage of the industry.

The qualifications of a manager of a cheese factory were ability and experience, and a careful study of the wants of the trade and improvement in processes. The time to canvass for milk was the first of May. (Hear.) The same principles that apply to other trades are required in this. Cheese-making needed apprenticeship and experience as well as other industries. The speaker asserted that no factory should be less than a 500-can factory; less would not pay. Managers should see that the milk delivered is the best in all respects as related to cleanliness, food of cows, etc. No manager can succeed without a thorough knowledge of the business. An ignorant manager might sell his cheese once, but after that he was a marked man. (Hear.) A cheap cheesemaker could not compete for his employer with first-class cheesemakers, and therefore was not to be employed. Three or four salesmen were not required in one factory; they delayed and complicated business. Only one intelligent salesman should be selected; he should be a good man, and be well paid, so that he can spare time to keep himself thoroughly posted as to markets, etc. By heeding the points thrown out cheesemakers would reap great advantage. A cheap man is the dearest in the end. With such men the country could not work up a reputation in foreign markets. Makers should be careful in boxing and have the lid flat on the top of the cheese. And makers should give 16 ounces to the pound, and get an honest name in Liverpool. A neglect of this gave trouble from the factory to the final market. Better have a few ounces too much than an ounce too little. He hoped that the audience would remember these points, and help in building up a national reputation. There had been a great improvement in these respects, but he feared that half of Eastern Ontario was turning out cheese of a poor quality. He emphasized the importance of the travelling schools—cheese instructors; the association had, through them, succeeded in teaching cheese-makers many important lessons. He contended that some cheese-makers were selected for their ignorance. We couldn't afford to have poor cheese-makers. We must sell our cheese to compete with the United States, one county of which, he related, had said that it would spend two thousand "to beat Canada." The cheese industry required the most delicate manipulation and thorough knowledge, and a man of ability was required to manage the business. Cheap cheese was not the best. No good cheese could be made for less than a cent and a half per pound—that is, if good cheese is produced. The day of cheap cheese was past. There is no cheese in Liverpool now that could not be sold for 40 shillings, while first-class cheese would bring 70 shillings. Canada had produced and exported 167,000 more boxes of cheese this year than ever before, and yet there was a brisk demand. The increase of 25 per cent. in demand was due to increase of the quality of the cheese made. The future of dairying was never brighter than at present.

The butter business had been neglected by farmers, who use the most careless and slovenly processes. The temperatures for setting milk for butter were explained, and the proper time for skimming laid down. Butter should not be worked enough to break the grain, an ounce of salt to the pound should be used, and the butter put on the market regularly every fortnight. The only successful way of making a profit, was making a first-class article. A clean, bright, airy cellar was indispensable, and regular marketing should not be neglected. No branch of farming was as profitable to the farmer as sending his milk to a factory.

In regard to the work of the Association, he was assured by the Minister of Agriculture that if they could use more money they should have it. (Hear.) The committee appointed for the purpose had advised the Minister of Agriculture to have only one creamery at the Model Farm instead of three. Now, we are to have a first-class practical man at Guelph, from whom any one desiring information could get it gratis. He paid a high compliment to the Model Farm, and advised every farmer to send his son to that institution. Mr. Derbyshire concluded by paying a handsome compliment to the town of Peterborough.

The chairman then nominated the following committees:

NOMINATIONS.—Messrs. Platt Hinman, D. Vanderwater and J. Bissel.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.—Messrs. D. McPherson, Platt Hinman and Jas. Bissel.

FINANCE.—Messrs. Ira Morgan, Henry Wade and J. Haggarty.

DAIRY UTENSILS.—Messrs. J. Whitton, H. Bissel and R. Wheny.

DAIRY AND IMPORTED STOCK.—Messrs. F. H. McCrea, Thos. Walker and James Haggarty.

Mr. D. M. McPherson, Lancaster, eulogised the President's address, and enlarged upon the great benefits the Association exercised upon the cheese industry. A good article was necessary to secure a good reputation. He believed in educating the tastes of consumers by giving them a fine article. He emphasized the importance of early shipping—so that the cheese might arrive in the English market at maturity—say four weeks after making. An average of 11 cents per pound was enough to give a good profit. There had been an immense demand, and all good cheese met with ready sale. He predicted twenty years of good prices for cheese. He agreed with the President's "travelling school"—pratical experience and skillful men, who understood the best modes of manipulating materials, and asserted that it had been productive of much good.

The President added that the instructors had given an advantage to cheese makers greater than had been derived from the investment of a similar amount in any other way.

The Association then adjourned till two o'clock.

SANITARY.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Sir,—The season of the year is fast approaching when our Town Council and people should give some consideration to our sanitary condition and legislation. And my object of addressing you is to call the attention of the town's people to some of the conditions that exist and that are more than likely to seriously affect the health of the town.

The fact that we have little or no sewerage cannot but impress the people that it is necessary to make some improvements.

The soil, and consequently the air and waters, must be impregnated with pernicious and fatal influences. The geological formation of our town is such that filteration and evaporation is certain to take place. In a porous soil which easily allows of the rise and fall of the water line an amount of air finds its entrance and exit equal in volume to the quanity of water which occupies the interstices of the earth. If the soil is impure from the cess-pool, soakage and other sewage abominations, the air drawn into those interstices, as the water line falls becomes naturally loaded with the results of sewage decomposition.

As the water line rises this air is expelled and adulterates the purer atmosphere above. If the area is inhabited as our town is much of this finds its way into the basements of the houses built upon such a foundation (it gets out more easily there) and the inhabitants naturally suffer from the effects of foul air. But this is not all, the rise of the water line is attended by certain evils, typhoid and allied diseases become prevalent, also the intermittent class—ague, neuralgia, rheumatic diseases are rife. When we consider the quantity and quality of refuse which has to be dealt with in our town, such as ashes, kitchen refuse, stable manure, rain and domestic water, washing of passages, stable yards, cesspools and water closets, all absorbed by the ground, is it reasonable to suppose that the filtered water that we have in our wells is fit for culinary purposes.

Pure water in abundance should forcibly attract our attention. It constitutes four-fifths of our flesh and blood. Man has been described as twelve pounds of solid flesh wet up with six pails of water. To supply the system each man requires 1680 lbs yearly.

In conclusion I hope that our present council and leading men of the town will take such action as will tend to, at least make a commencement this season of the sanitary improvements.

Hardly any town in the country has better and cheaper natural advantage for such works, and there is clear evidence by our death reports that a reasonable expenditure is warranted.

Yours, etc.,
G. W. RANNEY, C. E.
Peterborough, Feb. 18th, 1884.

FORESTRY.

Dr. Bell, with a number of Foresters of Lakefield Court, went to Apsley, on the 13th inst., and instituted a Court at that village. After the ceremony of initiation, etc., they repaired to a sumptuous repast prepared by mine host Pratt, who quite astonished his guests by the taste and profusion with which he catered to their wants.

MITE MEETING AND PRESENTATION.

On Wednesday evening, 13th inst., a very successful Mite Meeting, in the interests of the P.F.M.S., was held at the house of Mr. David Smith. The evening passed very pleasantly, being enlivened by solos, duets, recitations, etc. During the evening the following address, accompanied by a purse containing thirty dollars was presented to Miss Smith, the very efficient organist of the Presbyterian church here.

DEAR MISS SMITH,—It has been wisely said, that it is profitable and beneficial to assemble ourselves together, and few, if any, will dispute this fact. On this occasion, by your parents kind consent, to the use of their house, we have met in the interests of the P.F.M.S., and the members thereof desire to tender their sincere thanks for your kindly reception.

The congregation have taken advantage of the occasion as well, and feeling the valuable and efficient services you have rendered as organist, seize the opportunity to evince their appreciation, by asking you to accept this gift, not for its intrinsic worth, but as a slight token of regard and esteem.

We trust you may be long spared to assist the service of song, and when your earthly work is done may your harp be strung to the praise of the Most High.

Signed on behalf of the congregation,

S. J. CULLEN.
T. J. BIRD.
W. H. RAY.

Miss Smith was completely taken by surprise, but replied in suitable terms.

WARSAW.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

The Presbyterians are to have a musical and literary entertainment here, on Wednesday evening, March 5th. A pleasant evening is anticipated, as the committee are arranging a nice programme. Mr. Choate's choir has kindly consented to be present and assist. This will add much to making the entertainment a pleasant one. We hope to see a large turn out, as the proceeds are to be devoted towards repairing the church.

The roads are becoming very soft, and there has not been so much trade to town this week as usual. The farmers will soon be through drawing grain, and those who have contracts of wood to fill are busy at work.

Our genial and popular assessor, Mr. Jas. Robb, is again on his rounds.

Our municipal matters are well managed. With a gentleman of Mr. Kidd's ability at the head of affairs, and a good safe council such as we have, to back him up, we are going to run the municipal machinery on a close basis.

I trust for the sake of justice you will kindly insert the following: The parents who are sending children to Warsaw school are justly proud of our teachers, Mr. and Mrs. Rennie. For years we have had very young men engaged as teachers, who liked to play with the children better than to teach. Now, since Mr. Rennie came the children have progressed rapidly. The school has been well conducted; the children know when they come home that the lessons must be learned, but still our teacher is kindness itself. Though this is Mr. Rennie's second year in the school he has had no trouble till recently, and that with a lad about seventeen years of age, who was very troublesome. He defied the teacher's authority, and by the failure of all forms of mild correction exhausted his teacher's patience, till the latter was compelled to give the lad the sound threshing he deserved. For this Mr. Rennie was taken before a magistrate and fined fifty cents. He has the sympathy and respect of the neighborhood. The father of the boy knew that if the charge were tried where the teacher was known it would fail, so he went to a magistrate at Norwood to secure a conviction.

A correspondent of the Review, from this place, asserts that the Reformers in this vicinity are raging over the appointment of a Roman Catholic to the Registrarship. Now, this is not the case. It is the Tories that are gnashing their teeth and doing all the raging, because a Catholic was appointed. They are raising all the objection, and in so doing are showing all the intolerance and bigotry that has characterised the political dealings of that party in the past.

OTONABEE.

A Big Boom to the Busy Farmer—Walker's Climax Hay and Grain Lifter—Reckless Driving—Sad Accident.

An issue or two since we clipped from a local contemporary a paragraph purporting to describe an important improvement for elevating hay and grain, invented by Mr. Peter Walker, lot 27, 1st concession of Otonabee, which paragraph was, to a certain extent, misleading. The invention in question is so important and of such great interest to the farmer, that a few days ago an attache of THE EXAMINER called on Mr. Walker and personally inspected his excellent invention.

The apparatus is, in general, one which has been before used, but Mr. Walker has invented improvements that doubly increase its value to the farmer. Mr. Walker's lifter, which is intended to raise loads of hay or grain bodily to any desired height, consists of a roller long enough to reach from one to the other of the parallel beams, to be found in most barns, but which, for the purposes of this apparatus, can, where they are wanting, be put in easily. The roller rests on proper journals. At the opposite end is placed a pole of sufficient strength, reaching from one parallel beam to the other. This pole is movable and can be shifted nearer to or further from the roller, as the length of wagon rack may require. To the roller, at one end, is fastened a wheel six feet in diameter, grooved for the reception of the rope, to which the horse is attached in operating the lifter. To the roller are fastened two sets of ropes. One set descends from the roller directly down, and the ends is fastened to the rack. The other set extends across the space between the roller and the beam mentioned above, and passing through pulleys on its under side, descends and is fastened to the other end of the rack. When a horse is hitched to the rope, passing around the wheel, as the animal advances the wheel revolves (its large diameter giving it great leverage, it works easily), and the roller to which it is pinioned revolves also, and both sets of ropes are wound up alike and the load is raised with the greatest ease.

The important part is stopping the wheel at the point desired. This is accomplished by a self-acting dog or ratchet, the chief merit of Mr. Walker's invention. The dog or ratchet is V-shaped, and is pivotted to the top of the parallel beam at the end of the roller, where the wheel is fastened. In the ratchet face of the wheel is a series of slots, shallow in depth at the beginning, but increasing in depth sufficiently to hold firmly when the dog drops in the slot, which it does of itself by means of a weight attached to the underside of the arm of the V next the wheel. The other arm of the V is provided with a wire which descends to within a convenient distance of the floor. To this there is a heavier weight attached, which, being raised by a lever, and held by a hook or other means, allows the other weight above to work, and the wheel end of the dog drops into the slots in succession, passing from one to the other as fast as the wheel revolves, and as soon as the load is raised to the desired height, the horse stops, and the dog, dropping into the deepest part of the slot, is locked and the load of grain or hay is held suspended where it is wanted.

The apparatus works beautifully. At a test made, by the inventor, he asserts that he drove into his barn with a load, unhitched a horse, hitched him to the wheel rope, raised the load and had the horse back to the wagon in a minute and a half. There is no doubt that in practical work, the outside time required to raise a load will be three minutes. The advantages of this apparatus are obvious. Every farmer knows it is easier to pitch down than up, and the labor of one man is saved, for, from his elevated position, the man on the load can deliver sheaves to any part of the mow.

Mr. Walker has applied for a patent, which he expects daily, but he is prepared now to supply farmers at a price which is exceedingly low. He will place the apparatus in the barn, ready equipped for use, for the small sum of $35. He has put one in the barn of Mr. Thos. Blezard, M.P.P., who is highly pleased with it.

Mr. Walker is a most ingenious man, and his farm, supplied throughout with every labor-saving appliance, is a model of convenience, and well worthy a visit.

[Since the above was in type, we learn that Mr. Walker has received his letters patent.]

RECKLESS DRIVING.

On Tuesday night of last week, two ladies, accompanied by a little boy, were driving towards town. When about six miles from Peterborough, on the Keene road, they met a heavy sleigh, containing four or five men. The ladies turned out, but the heavy sleigh kept its course, and, coming in contact with the cutter, tore it loose from the horse and left the ladies helpless on the highway. The men did not even look around to see the damage they had done. It is possible that they did not see the cutter, for their heads were bent forward to avoid the rain storm that raged that evening, but they could not help knowing that they wrecked the cutter, which they deserted in so heartless a manner. A neighboring farmer assisted the ladies to repair damages.

A RAT-TLING ACCIDENT.

I am very sorry to relate a rather painful accident that happened at a threshing in this neighborhood a few days ago. As the boys were sportively throwing missles around the barn, a dead rat was flung with some force, and, coming in contact with the susceptible cranium of J. C., alias "Minnie," our Westwood correspondent of the Hastings Star, for a few minutes, laid that giant intellect low. But a liberal application of machine oil restored consciousness, and the readers of the Star need have no fear of missing the weekly contribution of effusions, big with many-syllabled words. "Minnie" is again busy taking notes and going through the dictionary for pollysyllabic ammunition.

The Grand Trunk Protest.

Mr. Hickson Speaks.

Injustice of the C. P. R. Claims—Public Money Used to Crush out Private Enterprise—Disregard of Charter Provisions—The National Credit in Europe.

A sensation was caused in the House and lobbies last Tuesday when the pamphlet of the Grand Trunk Railway Company, protesting against the proposed loan to the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, appeared. The pamphlet opens with a letter from Mr. Hickson to Sir John Macdonald, dated 2nd February inst., in which the former states that his cable advices from London intimated that all the daily papers published there were protesting against further aid being given by the Government to the Canadian Pacific Railway so long as that company continues to go out of its legitimate sphere to compete with and injure the Grand Trunk Company. Mr. Hickson said: "I am urged to protest against the course being pursued unless the Government are prepared to take measures to guard against the public funds granted or to be granted being used to damage private interests in other Canadian railways. The result of persistence in the course which has been pursued in the past by the Canadian Pacific Company or those controlling that company can only be a total destruction of credit, endangering the large investments of the Government in the Canadian Pacific Railway, and retarding the settlement and progress of the country. Your Government has the power to put an end to a state of things which is to the best interests of the people of Canada. Have you considered what the result of united, harmonious action by the two companies in Europe, working for the promotion of the settlement of the Northwest and the advancement of the interests of Canada generally, would be? You will realize doubtless that unless I can secure the intervention of the Government it will be incumbent upon me, situated as I am, to make an appeal for justice to Parliament in such a manner as constitutional usages permit."

HURTFUL IN THE HIGHEST DEGREE

On the 4th of February Sir John Macdonald replied, asking for an explanation as to how the proposed aid to the Canadian Pacific was going to injure the Grand Trunk shareholders. On the following day Mr. Hickson forwarded a letter to Sir John, stating that he was instructed by cable message to inform the Premier of the Dominion that the Directors of the Grand Trunk, with every wish for the prosperity of the Dominion and the Canadian Pacific Railway proper, strongly protest against legislation embracing assistance to the lines acquired by the syndicate outside of the objects of the Canadian Pacific charter, thus using public money for competition against private enterprise.

In reply to Sir John's note Mr. Hickson, on Thursday last, wrote, stating that, while an amicable arrangement between the rival companies was desirable in the interests of the country, it was unfair that one contestant should have all the influence and aid of the Government thrown upon its side, and the other be rendered necessary by the policy pursued towards its rival. Attention is called to the unsuccessful effort made last year to harmonize the conflicting interests of the Grand Trunk and Pacific Railway Companies, and proposing means to get over the difficulty in view of the desire of the Government that the Canadian Pacific road should reach Quebec. It is suggested that there might be an exchange of the North Shore lines for lines owned by the Canada Pacific Company or those controlling that company in Ontario on terms to be agreed upon, or under certain definite conditions determined by arbitration. The Ontario and North Shore lines might be organised as independent of the companies, and owned and operated as such in the interest of the Canadian Pacific and Grand Trunk companies, under an agreement which would secure full facilities to the public, and for the traffic proper of the main lines of both companies. Under such an arrangement some independent authority to settle disputes would be necessary, and it would be requisite to make well-defined contracts under either of these plans. The fullest facilities could be afforded for traffic to and from the Intercolonial road. An unbroken through route, via that line and the Canadian Pacific, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, secured, and the making of

HALIFAX THE WINTER PORT

of the Canadian Pacific, to which the hon. Minister of Railways in his recent speech attached importance, rendered possible of accomplishment. Mr. Hickson proceeds to point out that if the Canadian Pacific Railway had been incorporated and its transactions conducted on the ordinary basis of a joint-stock corporation, it is probable that the directors of the Grand Trunk Railway would not have thought it necessary to address any remonstrance to the Government, as the usual conditions attaching to the investment of private capital would have afforded them all the protection necessary or that they could expect; but as practically the money to build the railway is being supplied out of the public revenues, largely increasing the burdens of this company, which is directly and indirectly at present the largest separate tax-payer within the Dominion, the operations of the Canadian Pacific Company assume an entirely different aspect. When, in addition, the fact is taken into consideration that the funds provided by the Canadian Government are more than sufficient in themselves to complete the Pacific line and the resources of the Canadian Pacific Company, obtained through the assistance and credit of the Government, have been and are being diverted to the promotion of lines of direct antagonism to this Company, lines which are either not needed in the public interest, or where needed should be supplied entirely by private enterprise, it becomes a duty incumbent upon those who have charge of this company's affairs to protest against the course being pursued. It is manifest, from a perusal of the papers which have been presented to Parliament, that the money subsidy and the lands granted by the Government to the Canadian Pacific Company on the basis of the Government and company's estimate of their value, were sufficient to pay for all the work which has been done up to this time upon the Pacific line proper, and that no further demands upon the public purse would have been required had the company's operations been confined to the objects for which it was originally incorporated; and I respectfully submit that but for the antagonisms which have been created by the course pursued it would have been perfectly practicable to have realized the the grants made by the Government, and thus to have provided without any further recourse to the public treasury the amounts needed to complete this through route which it has become part of the public policy of the country to construct. The proposal to grant additional Governmental assistance to the Canadian Pacific to the extent of thirty millions of dollars,

WITHOUT ANY ADEQUATE PROTECTION BEING TAKEN

that these funds will not be used as has been the case in the past upon works wholly apart from the objects sought to be attained by the construction of the Canadian Pacific line, and that still further demands for assistance will not follow, has increased the alarm already felt by those who have invested their capital in Canadian enterprises; and I respectfully submit that a continuance of the policy of the past must result in damaging, not only the investments in this company, but in all other railway enterprises in the country, and render impracticable the securing of further capital for new lines and improvements upon existing ones under any conditions other than that of a Government guarantee."

The appendix to this pamphlet shows that the Grand Trunk Company sent to Sir John Macdonald in April last a strong protest against allowing the Canadian Pacific Company to lease the Ontario & Quebec, Credit Valley, and other railways, pointing out that the Canadian Pacific Company was brought into existence for a national object at the expense of the people of the Dominion of Canada, subsidized with $25,000,000 of public money, supplemented by an addition of 25,000,000 acres of productive land, exempt from taxation in perpetuity, and freed from competition for twenty years. It is now to be made the vehicle, without any relevance or reference to the object of its charter, for carrying on a local competitive warfare with the other chief railway system of Canada, the largest taxpayer and contributor to the revenue of the country whence these liberal subsidies are derived—that they have been just recently described by the president of the company as sufficient to construct the railway. The Canadian Pacific Company, therefore, created with one object, is to be employed for another, aided by all the strength which can be given it by a powerful government. The Credit Valley, Ontario & Quebec, and Atlantic & Northwestern companies are not necessary in any sense to the performance of the duties which have been imposed on the Canadian Pacific Railway Company by the Dominion, and the effect of their acquisition can only be to [illegible]ing the Government into the position of direct competition with the investors of British capital in the existing railway system of the country at a time when a large outlay in improvements is contemplated. The injustice of the course proposed, looking at the sacrifices which have been made by those who found the means wherewith to construct the Grand Trunk system of railways, which has so largely benefitted the country, must be apparent to everyone who will give the subject one moment's dispassionate consideration.

SUBSIDIES SO LIBERAL

Cameron's bill to amend the law of evidence in criminal cases to a Committee of the Whole House was carried by a vote of 86 to 81. The Committee reported progress and the House adjourned.

THURSDAY, FEB. 14TH.

In the Senate the expediency of establishing an additional school of military instruction for Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island was discussed. A motion for papers concerning the steamship Northern Light was also passed.

The House of Commons went into committee on Mr. Charlton's bill making seduction a criminal offence. The bill was reported with amendment. Mr. Casgrain's bill to prevent fraud in connection with the letting of Government contracts was read a second time. Mr. Cook obtained an order of the House for copies of documents relating to the appointment of the Indian agent at Penetanguishene. Mr. King moved for report of the surveys at Jemseg, N. B. Mr. McMullen asked for information respecting sitting of the Intercolonial Claims Committee on the employment of immigration agents, and payments to the Montreal Gazette Company. Mr. Davies called attention to the low salaries of Prince Edward Island Railway employes. Mr. Patterson, of Essex, moved for papers relating to the selection of the postoffice site at Amherstburg, and also for correspondance in connection with coal oil seizures at Sandwich and elsewhere. On motion of Sir Richard Cartwright the items of survey charged to capital accounts were referred to the Public Accounts Committee.

FRIDAY, FEB. 15TH.

In the Senate to-day Mr. O'Donohue questioned the Ministry regarding destitute Irish immigrants in Toronto. John Graham's divorce bill was read a second time and referred to a select committee.

In the House of Commons the Orange Incorporation Bill was read a first time. Sir John Macdonald's resolution, giving the Canadian Pacific Railway resolutions precedence before all other business, was carried. The debate on the resolutions was then resumed by Mr. Curran and continued by Messrs. Fisher, Girouard, Fleming, Ferguson (Welland), McMullen, Stairs, and Breaken until after one o'clock when, on motion of Mr. Lester, the debate was adjourned.

Sir Alex. Campbell stated in reply to Mr. Haythorne that owing to the peculiarly inaccessible position of Prince Edward Island it was not possible that the Dominion Exhibition would be held there this year.

In the House of Commons the Orange Incorporation Bill was introduced on motion of Mr. Cameron (Victoria) seconded by Mr. White (Hastings) and read a first time. Sir John Macdonald's resolution, giving the Canada Pacific Railway resolutions precedence before all other business, was carried by 107 to 51 over the amendment of Sir Richard Cartwright setting forth that full information on the subject of the Canada Pacific Railway has not yet been laid before the House and the great bulk of papers brought down are still unprinted; that the subject of the Canada Pacific Railway referred to in the gracious Speech from the Throne is of vast importance and demands ample time for consideration and the most searching enquiry. The debate on the resolution was then resumed by Mr. Curran and continued by Messrs. Fisher, Girouard, Flemming, Ferguson (Welland), McMullen, Stairs, and Brecken until after one o'clock, when, on motion of Mr. Lester, the debate was adjourned.

NOTES.

MR. POPE'S STEEL RAILS, "STEAL"

It is stated that not only did Mr. Jno. Henry Pope induce the Government to pay for steel rails for the International Railway, but that such rails were imported free of duty, thus allowing the sum of $156,000 voted to go further than it otherwise would, increasing the value of Mr. Pope's property. The rails, it appears' were entered as material for the Canadian Pacific Railway. Mr. Pope, a minister draws his $8,000 per year and gets his Steel rails purchased for him by the Government and admitted duty free. It's no wonder the Grand Trunk kick's against the unfair discrimination shown in aiding railroads with public money to compete with private enterprise.

ANOTHER RAILWAY SUBSIDY WANTED.

The manager of the Jacques Cartier Junction Railway had an interview with Sir Charles Tupper, to request that a subsidy of $200,000 should be granted by the Federal Government to construct a line of railway from Sault Aux Recollect to St. Vincent de Paul, and thus enable the Grand Trunk Company to make connection with the North Shore Road independant of the Canadian Pacific Company's lines. Sir Charles expressed himself as in favor of the proposition, and promised to lay the matter before his colleagues. Rather than oblige the Pacific Company to abandon their selfish dog-in-the-manger policy, Sir Charles proposes to spend $200,000 of public money to build ten miles of railway that is not necessary.

AN ARRANGEMENT.

Sir John Macdonald has it is asserted, conciliated his Quebec followers and the Pacific loan scheme will be pushed through without delay. The Quebec men, it was said, were to be given all they asked, but later information does not seem to justify such a conclusion. The friends of the Quebec Government say that they received an offer of settlement from the Dominion Government which they refused. The Montreal Gazette, which has all along opposed the application of the Quebec Government for increased subsidy, has suddenly wheeled into line and joins the chorus for better terms. Sir John has still, therefore, to deal with the Quebec difficulty before the Pacific Railway resolutions are adopted. The Quebec Government insist that they will not be satisfied with more promises, but must have a signed agreement before the debate closes.

The Tucker Spring Pad Truss
FOR HERNIA OR RUPTURE.

(This cut represents the Pad without the belt. Note the position of the ▷ shaped spring situated in the pad by which a CONSTANT but easy INWARD and UPWARD pressure is conveyed to the Hernia when the Pad is adjusted.)

This Truss, which is placed before your notice and consideration, is wholly unlike any other appliance in construction or principle. It dispenses with the ever uncomfortable Body Spring, having the means to convey a proper pressure just where it is required, that is in the Pad. The Tucker Truss is very light, single one weighing about 4 ozs., and the double one not 8 ozs., it completely and comfortably retains the Hernia under all positions and exertions of the body. A swivel attachment to the belt prevents displacement by locomotion or stooping, and its ready and complete adjustability by which each Pad is made either RIGHT or LEFT at once or fixed at any desired angle commends it, and also, it is more durable than any other, as there is nothing to rust or break, all the metal work being nickel plated.

SCIENTIFIC BUTTER MAKING.

Setting the Milk for Cream Rising.

(From the Ontario Government Manual for Scientific Butter Making.)

No. 2.

FROM THE MILKING-PLACE TO THE MILK ROOM.

The milk is carried to the milk-setting room with the least of loss of time. It is then at once strained carefully, through a linen or wire cloth, into the milk-setting vessels. If a strainer-milking pail has been used in milking, it will not be necessary, of course, to strain again in the milk-room. Where the milk is aerated or heated, it is to be done at this stage.

SETTING IN OPEN MILK-VESSELS.

If air is depended upon for cooling the milk, while setting, the variations of temperature of the atmosphere must be taken into account in determining the depth at which the milk should be set. A general rule may here be laid down. The cooler the air, the greater may be the depth; the warmer the air, the shallower may the milk be set. It is always an object to have the temperature of the milk-room somewhat low, and as unvarying as possible; it is especially desirable where air is the cooling agency. A pure atmosphere is always an essential in the milk-room; this is especially important where open vessels are used.

Where water or ice is used for cooling the milk, the question of depth is not dependant upon the variation in the temperature of the air.

SETTING IN CLOSED M. K-VESSELS.

The advantage of a closed vessel is that the impurities in the atmosphere are excluded from the milk. But before milk be closed against the atmosphere and ventilation, in such a way that its own impurities cannot escape, it is necessary that the milk be purified. This may be done by aeration—exposing the milk to pure air, or by heating it, to expel or kill the germs. The advantage would be in favor of heating, since heating would more effectually purify the milk, and increase the range of falling temperatere. Aeration would lower the temperature of the milk, which in itself is not desirable.

Where milk is set in closed vessels, air is never depended upon for cooling, except the milk has been heated to a high temperature before setting. Where pure cold water is used, milk may be set in closed vessels without heating. The water may be used to seal the cover from the outside atmosphere and yet ventilate the milk. The water, being colder than the milk, condenses and takes in the odours that escape from the milk.

HEATING THE MILK.

Heating milk before setting it is not commonly practiced, nor is it absolutely necessary. All that can be said for it is that it has certain advantages in the process, and that it is better for quality's sake to heat before setting than to practice low cooling, or cooling below 55° to 50°. If good results in cream-rising are obtained by setting the milk at its own temperature, without low cooling, then heating may be dispensed with. If heating be employed, let it be no higher than necessary, the range being from 100° to 140°. The more defective the milk, the higher the heating. If the milk is in a normal condition the extreme temperature may, both for sake of saving in labor and quality, be avoided. A good average will be from 110° to 130°.

The heating may be done by setting the vessel containing the milk in a vessel containing water, the latter being heated in the most convenient manner.

BEST RANGE OF TEMPERATURE.

With the present knowledge of the effect of temperature upon the melting point of butter, it is not easy to give a definite rule for placing the range of temperature. A suggestion may, however, be given. The process demands lowering the temperature to 58° for the purpose of washing. If this change, or fall, of temperature is not sufficient, it will be better to heat above 60° or 100°, than to cool lower than to 55°. Ten degrees above 100° will give more advantage to the process than ten degrees below 55°. How high to heat before cooling below 55° it is not easy to say. The experience of the operator and circumstances will best determine. The rule will be kept, as far as possible, within safe limits both in heating and cooling, and yet obtain for the process every necessary advantage from cooling and heating. If making butter for a far market, give its melting point, or keeping quality, the benefit of any doubt; which means to cool or heat less rather than more.

AERATING MILK.

Aeration is not so necessary where heating is practised as otherwise. The higher the heating is carried, the less necessary it is to aerate or air the milk. Where heating is not employed, it is better to aerate the milk, where it can be done without cooling it too much before setting.

Milk is aerated by exposing as much as possible of its surface or body to a pure atmospere. It is done in many ways—by pouring it from one vessel to another, by stirring it, etc. The disadvantage of both heating and aerating milk, is the troubled involved. Buttermakers will always spare themselves any unnecessary labor.

COOLING THE MILK.

The first part of the cooling, when the difference between the temperature of the milk and the cooling agency is greatest, will be the most rapid. This is well, because the milk, if kept long at a high temperature, will quickly sour. But when the milk is down to from 75° to 65°, it is better to cool slowly; that is, is it better that the temperature should change slowly and be constantly falling than that it should fall too quickly and then stand unchanging at its lowest point.

Where air is depended upon as a cooling agency and is variable in temperature, it is not easy to accomplish this. The general rule given may be kept in mind. Where heating or aeration is employed, it is not so difficult to do. Where milk is heated to 120° and above, and more or less of the germs it contained are killed, it will keep a longer time at high temperature and so be allowed to cool more slowly. Where the air of the milk-room is the cooling agency and it is high, say up to 70°, the advantage of heating before setting would be greater. Aeration will cool the milk a few degrees and it will thus loose some of the advantage of the falling temperature, but it will allow the milk to be more slowly cooled afterwards.

Avoid too low cooling. It will be found that quality and "delicacy of flavor" suffer from low cooling. For this reason spring water or running water are better than ice, and the moderate employment of heat is desirable whenever it saves the necessity of cooling too low.

WARMING UP AND COOLING.

Where the temperature has been lowered too quick and to a very low point, it may happen that the cream has almost ceased to rise, and there is yet some cream held in suspension near the top, on its way up. This case may be met, if the milk-vessel is suitable, by applying heat—water or steam—at the bottom, and raising the temperature a few degrees. This warms the milk, and the cooling which follows sends up more cream. In this way the effects of a falling temperature are availed of indefinitely. The heating must be done gradually, not too fast, and only a few degrees.

HOW LONG MILK MAY SET.

The length of time that will be required to raise the cream, will depend on the means used in setting for cooling. Where advantage is taken of the help of artificial heating or cooling, cream will rise in twenty-four, or even twelve hours. Setting milk in the most primitive way it will require thirty-six or forty-eight hours to rise. Cream may be raised in twelve hours, without loss in quality, and with great gain in saving of time and labor.

(To be continued.)

A HORRIBLE CUSTOM.

BARBAROUS DEATHS RITES IN THE CELESTIAL KINGDOM.

Shanghai letter to Philadelphia Press:—The most barbarous of all the death-rites which have been observed in China was that of immolating human beings at the tombs of the departed great. As high as 177 men have been buried alive in the tomb of a single individual. This horrible custom does not prevail at all now, of course, but the same false and inadequate notions of the sacredness of human life do prevail universally. But of all Chinese customs the most remarkable has been the prevalent, public, fashionable suicides, conducted in public with every show of pomp, and sometimes actually under the general direction of a Mandarin. A gay procession would be formed and a delighted throng would follow the prospective victim to a scaffold which had been erected with great care. The seats commanding the best view of the sacrifice would be sold and there would be a grand turnout of the suciding party's friends as well as of the public at large. Perhaps it would be a young widow, who had resolved to end her miserable existence on account of the death of her husband, a widow not being privileged to remarry in China. The occasion would be treated as a regular holiday by the natives. For a time the woman would chat pleasantly with her friends, partaking of a beautiful feast with them on the gallows. Then, having caressed a little child that was placed on the table before her, and adorned it with a necklace, she would take a basket of flowers and scatter the blossoms gayly among the crowd, after which she would cheerfully place her head in the noose and swing off into eternity. As a rule suicides are nowdays performed without such publicity, but they are common.

Dear Sirs,—For over twenty years I have suffered greatly from Nasal Catarrh; sometimes being unable to smell or taste properly. The disease caused a severe pain over the eyes, and frequently stopped my writing on account of dizziness. The phlegm in my throat gave me much annoyance, especially in company, balls of which would occasionally fall down into my throat, and I could seldom breathe through my nose. I have taken quarts of various medicines without any apparent benefit, until I was induced, by your agent of 69 Muter street, to try your Fountain of Health. After using five bottles I am prepared to give it as my honest opinion that for the cure of Catarrh it is a grand success. I have recommended it to many of my friends, one of whom encloses his testimonial with mine.

Wishing you deserved success I am gratefully yours,

7-2t. JOSEPH BROWN,
Bookkeeper, 25, Sherborne st. Toronto.

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

Fifth Parliament—First Session.

MONDAY, FEB. 11TH.

Among the petitions presented to-day were the following:

By Mr. McKim—From the Municipal Council of the Township of Erin, praying for the simplification of the laws for the transfer of real estate.

By Mr. McKim—From the municipality of Maryboro, praying that the Municipal Act may be amended in respect to bridges in Ontario.

By Mr. McKim—From the Maitland Grange, praying that an act may pass to simplify the laws for the transfer of real estate.

By Mr. Laidlaw—From the Council of the County of Wellington, praying that an act may pass to amend the Municipal Act so as to give County Councils power to pass certain by-laws regarding roads.

By Mr. Laidlaw—From the County Council of Wellington, praying that an act may pass to amend the Statute of Limitation of Actions.

A bill was introduced by Mr. McKim to consolidate the debt of the town of Palmerston.

After some discussion on a motion by Mr. Creighton that questions asked of Ministers after due notice and the answers thereto be in writing and entered upon the journals of the House, which was voted down, the debate on the Algoma election was resumed.

The House adjourned at 4:30 p. m.

TUESDAY, FEB. 12TH.

After routine proceedings in the Legislature to-day, Mr. Mowat moved to have the South Oxford case referred to the Committee on Privileges and Elections. The motion was carried without dissent.

Mr. Clark, of West Toronto, brought up the question of the new parliament buildings, and by his reflections on the Government for not taking action provoked a sharp retort from Mr. Fraser, Commissioner of Public Works. Mr. Meredith provoked a similar retort by his reference to the loss of time by the House during the early part of the session.

WEDNESDAY, FEB, 13TH.

Delegates from several temperance organizations interviewed Mr. Attorney-General Mowat and the Minister of Education respecting amendments to the Crooks Act. The Rev. John Smith, Mr. W. H. Howland, and Mr. James Thomson were the spokesmen. They asked for the introduction of the local option plebiscite in connection with ordinary municipal elections for a reduction in the number of licenses and an increase in their price, for the enaction of increased accommodation in taverns, for the abolition of all saloons, for the closing of taverns and shops at five instead of seven o'clock on Saturday evening, and several other changes of an important nature. Mr. Mowat stated that the changes contemplated by the Government were in the direction of those proposed by the deputation, but he could not promise that they would in all cases go so far.

The Committee on Privileges and Elections took up the case of Mr. Crooks, and expert medical testimony was taken to show that his mental derangement was of an incurable character. The witnesses examined were Dr. Spragge, Dr. Hall, and Dr. Clarke, the latter being superintendent of the Toronto Lunatic Asylum. The evidence on which the chancery order to administer Mr. Crooks' estate was based was also put in. A motion by the Opposition for delay was voted down.

Mr. Harcourt brought up in the House the necessity of doing something to secure the Canadian side of Niagara Falls for a public park. Mr. Mowat laid the blame of delay on the Dominion Government.

Mr. Gibson, of Hamilton, advocated the preparation and publication of approved plans for school houses, in order that their sanitary condition might be improved. Mr. Ross was favorable to the suggestion.

Two Government measures were read a first time. One introduced by Mr. Hardy to amend the Crooks act, and the other by the Provincial Treasurer to prevent the spread of noxious weeds.

THURSDAY, FEB. 14TH.

Among the petitions presented to-day was one by Mr. McKim from the School Board of Palmerston, for the introduction of the ballot in the election of school trustees.

Mr. Drury presented a petition from the Agricultural and Arts Association, for an appropriation of money to place specimens of the leading breeds of cattle on the Model Farm at Guelph.

Mr. Harcourt presented the first report of the Committee on Privileges and Elections, with reference to the case of Mr Crooks. The Committee reported generally that, as Mr. Crooks was hopelessly insane, they recommended that the seat be forthwith declared vacant.

The report was received and adopted.

Mr. Mowat moved that by reason of the incurable mental condition of Hon. Adam Crooks, member-elect for the South Riding of Oxford, as stated in the report this day presented and adopted by the House, the representation of the said riding in this House be hereby declared vacant, and that a new writ forthwith issue for the election of a member to serve in the room and stead of the said Adam Crooks.

Mr. Morris spoke at length against what he termed the urgent haste in thrusting the matter through the House. He contended that delay should be had till Monday, when the evidence could be printed and considered by the House.

Mr. Fraser observed that it appeared that the member for East Toronto had a brief for delay; what he evidently desired was that as long as possible the issue of the writ should be delayed.

The motion was carried.

Several bills then received their reading.

The House adjourned at 6 o'clock.

NOTES.

FOR THE FARMERS.

The bill introduced on Thursday by Hon. A. M. Ross, respecting noxious weeds, extends the operations of the Act respecting thistles. Municipal Councils may without petition appoint an inspector to secure the destruction of weeds, and must do so if fifty landholders petition that such appointment be made. The inspector's duty shall be to have thistles cut when they are not destroyed after due notice is given, and the cost is to be assessed against the owner of the land.

LAND DRAINAGE.

Mr. Waters deserves the thanks of the country for the attention which he is now giving to the subject of land draining. His bill respecting under-draining, read the second time on Thursday, and referred to a large committee, is designed to provide what he considers better machinery that now exists for determining the proportion which parties whose lands are benefitted by tile drain outlets should pay to the construction of such outlets. The bill proposes that the township engineer shall arbitrate in the matter—in fact that the machinery used in similar cases under the Acts respecting open drains shall be available in respect to tile drains.

WESTERN FLOODS.

Ohio and west Virginia have been visited with disastrous floods and the latest dispatches place the estimate of the resulting destitution at 626 entire families and 3000 people destitute, not to mention the immense destruction of property. For example, Pomeroy's Bend contains nineteen towns embracing 40,000 inhabitants. All the towns were flooded, and the losses are estimated at over $2,000,000. Last week thousands of valuable horses, cattle and sheep were taken from parlours and dining rooms of residences in the farming country below the Bend by steamers with flat boats. Pomeroy's Bend is a narrow reach on the river 12 miles along, and the bottom lands on both sides of the river contains some 20 coal mines, eighteen salt works, and 12 towns with 30,000 inhabitants, of whom 8000 are laborers. Six mines are flooded, and will not be pumped out for from six to eight months. Some 3000 people are idle and 9000 are homeless, demanding immediate assistance. There are destitute in Camden 300 people, in Middleport 2000, in West Columbia 4000, in Clifton 70, in Mason City 4000, in Pomeroy 2000, in Minesville 600, in Hartford City 1100, in Syracuse 700, in Racine 500, in Antiquity 100, and at German Furnace 1000. The stockade will distribute some three tons of provision here. The Standard nail and iron works at Clifton, W. Va., have been thoroughly soaked and will not resume for four weeks, making 600 men idle and causing a loss of $40,000.

John Deasy has been nominated to parliament for Cork by the Irish league.

PETERBOROUGH, FEB. 21, 1884.

The $30,000,000 Steal.

There was intense excitement in the Commons Tuesday night. Sir John A. was resolved to force a vote on the proposal to give $30,000,000 additional to the Canadian Pacific Railway. Already ample funds had been advanced. There were no urgent reasons for completing the road in two years. It now reaches the Rocky Mountains, and stretches back to Prince Arthur's Landing. Our burdens would be increased. The financial stringency would be tightened. The Dominion, as a whole, would gain nothing. The North-West would be but little advantaged. There was insufficient security offered, and there was no probability that so enormous a loan would ever be repaid.

Almost every journal in Quebec was opposed to it, and it was not unexpected when it was announced that 42 members from that Province had retracted their party allegiance and refused to swallow the infamous Canadian Pacific pill, and were discussing the possibility of an alliance with Mr. Blake and the defeat of Sir John A. But, when the division came on, they had been conciliated; but at what price, no one yet knows. They voted solidly against Mr. Cameron's amendment, asking for further delay. When the Government majority was made known, and while the Speaker was about to put the main motion, Hon. Mr. Costigan, Minister of Inland Revenue, to the surprise of everybody, moved the adjournment of the debate, and it is now understood that he has resigned.

It seems incredible that the Ontario members could be cajoled into supporting this grant. There will not be the slightest possibility of any gain to Ontario arising from this wretched swindle, whilst this Province and the Dominion will lose one whole year's revenue and our national honor will be impeached. Such an arrogant crime was never before committed by any minister, to the disgrace of our Dominion and the personal aggrandisement of an unprincipled politician.

On business principles it would be pronounced idiotic to pay for an article twice over and not own it. Yet that is what the Dominion Government proposes to do. The Government gives the Syndicate money to pay for the railway from Ottawa to Montreal. Quebec built the road and demands that the Dominion pay her back the price of the road. The Dominion is asked thus to pay twice for the road, and will not own it after all.

A rude slap at the N. P.: In the Mail's, even the Mail's, report of the proceedings of the City Council of Toronto, we find that that body has made an appropriation of $5,000 to give work to the unemployed! This is a direct insult to the N. P., and an usurpation of its functions. It was to give perpetual employment, at top wages, and the vote of the City Council is a direct way of saying that the N. P. is a failure. The Mail shouldn't allow this sort of thing.

The Why and Wherefore.

When the contract for building the Canada Pacific railway was made, about three years ago, every one thought the time given for its completion was not enough, and the Syndicate itself was doubtful if the work could be done within the time.

The Tory Government, however, desirous of advertising to the world the great ability and resources of its pet Syndicate, fixed the time to do the work in 1891, the shortest period it was then deemed possible to build the road in.

Now, when it suits them they want to push it through by 1886, although for this improper and undue haste there is no necessity except as a plea to get more money.

The road is already built almost to the limit of land fit for settlement, and is a decade of years in advance of all the immigration that can pour into that country.

At the time the contract was entered into, little, if any, information was known of the route over which the road is now being built, and although millions of dollars had been expended on explorations and surveys, from Ottawa to Victoria, it was practically of no avail.

There was, indeed, no definite or reliable data upon which to base the contract, and, hence, to some extent, the difficulty met with when seeking for capitalists willing to take the work. But, with the Government the necessity for organizing a corporation was becoming urgent. Political exigencies demanded immediate action.

The control of the vast undertaking, with the power and patronage it would bring the Government, must not a second time be let slip from their hands. Failure in one Pacific Scandal was enough, and things must be better managed this time.

In this way, and for these reasons, was the present Syndicate thrown together and given the contract with all the privileges, immunities and favours attached to it, amounting practically to a confiscation of public as well as private rights.

The contract once made, the great deluder felt safe. Another term of corruption and plunder was secured. Charters and contracts and pledges might be violated and trampled upon with impunity. The votes of a servile majority could be counted on.

Hence, when it suits the favored Syndicate, they have but to ask and they will receive. A large proportion of the moneys and land grants already made have been absorbed by the Syndicate in paying itself 11 per cent. on its own estimate of the work done, and in investments of large sums in enterprises foreign to their charter, into which they should not have been allowed to put one cent. of the money, or one acre of the land designed for the building of the Pacific Railway. Instead of applying the resources furnished them by the country to the specific object of building the road, they have spent millions of dollars in purchasing, for their own benefit, several outside railways, the Ontario & Quebec, Credit Valley, and Atlantic & Northwestern.

In the public interests, this great and greedy monopoly, who, vampire like, are eating up the life blood of the land, should not even, with their own money, be permitted to acquire possession of these railways.

Their acquisition formed no part of the obligations imposed on the company by the Government, and the effect of fusing them with the Canada Pacific can only prove disastrous in a great degree to the interests of other railways built and maintained by private capital, as well as to the commercial interests of this Province especially.

But, having gobbled them up and sunk in them the millions that should have been expended in the legitimate work of their contract, the company now find themselves "short of cash," and, in the fullest confidence, come down to their friends, secure in power at Ottawa, hardly to ask, but to get, $30,000,000 more of the people's money, wherewith, it may be, to buy more railways, build more palaces, or turn out other "Little Tyrants" who may dare to stand up for the rights of their Province. Never in the history of any country has so outrageous an attempt been made by any Government to trample upon justice and rob a struggling people of their hard-earned means.

Now, it is seen why the Dominion elections were brought on in 1882, one year before the regular time. Unreflecting persons advanced the plea of short crops, failure of the N. P. fraud, &c.

Not a single move that has since been made on the Canada Pacific chessboard but had been anticipated and pre-arranged by the champion players, Sir John and Geo. Stephen, the heads of the Government and Monopoly.

If the Grand Trunk could not be "pooled" it must be punished. Other railways, built and operated by sharehold capital, Provincial aid, &c., must be seized to compete with it, and the public funds, granted for the Pacific Railway, must be used for this purpose. The monopoly's exchequer, becoming thus exhausted, required to be replenished; but how to do it was the question. Only one session of the charter-selling Parliament remained unexpired. It would be political death to Sir John and his slavish followers to come before their constituents with this $30,000,000 crime on their heads.

Sir John is equal to the occasion: "Look here, Stephen, I have it. You keep quiet. I will help you and you help me. You know the N. P. fraud is dead. That cry won't do worth a cent. Millions of money everywhere waiting investment in the North-West when a settled Government is assured, and our policy gets a chance to develop. That's it. That'll fetch 'em."

True for the wily schemer, it did fetch 'em. From this county it fetched two as silent and slavish supporters as Canada may deplore, whose names are sure to figure among the "yeas" when the vote to give this enormous sum comes up.

This business, however, is one of the straws that will break the camel's back. Public forbearance and credulity will have an end. The policy of tyranny and plunder must cease. The voice of an outraged and indignant people will be heard from the Atlantic to the Pacific, who will, by one united, patriotic effort, hurl from power and patronage the most venal and corrupt Government that ever cursed and crushed a country.

The Syndicate Grab.

The freedom with which money is talked about at Ottawa, and the millions which the Government and the Syndicate speak of so familiarly, show that millions are nothing to them, though they mean much to the people of Canada, who have to furnish the money. The proposed "loan" (which nobody ever expects will be repaid) of thirty millions of dollars means a burden of debt of over $7.50 per head on every man, woman and child in the Dominion, or about $150,000 to each constituency in the Dominion. Therefore, the people have an interest in the proposal to give the Syndicate so enormous an amount of the people's money.

The "loan" is to be opposed on many grounds. In the first place, when the original compact was made it was declared to be a finality, that the road would be built without the country being called on for further funds—in fact the enormous concessions to the company at first, were justified on these very grounds. But, here, at the end of two years, we find the Syndicate again knocking at the public chest and demanding thirty millions more. If this is granted we have no guarantee that a similar "demand"—for it is, indeed, a demand—will not be made at the end of two years more.

The company, for legitimate purposes, does not need the thirty millions. The Tory story does not hang together. On the 31st of January the Mail, no doubt inspired by the Government, stated that the loan must be made as an "alternative to stopping the work," while Sir Charles Tupper, speaking of course on behalf of the Government, asserted that the "loan" was to be made, not to "enable the company to fulfil their obligations," but to finish the line five years before the time required by the original contract. Therefore, the question arises, whether the country will reap an advantage equivalent to thirty million dollars by giving that sum to complete the road in two years.

But why should the company now be financially embarassed? They have received from the Government a large amount in excess of their expenditure on construction.

The Government spent $30,000,000, or are committed to that amount, to finish those sections of the road between Port Arthur and Selkirk, and between Port Moody and Kamloops. The company took this thirty millions worth of finished line as a gift, and went on with the construction of the 650 miles between Callender and Port Arthur, and the prairie section of 1,350 miles between Winnipeg and Kamloops. The company have built 1,121 miles, of which 900 belong to the easy, or prairie section, 54 to the Rocky Mountain section, and 167 miles to the Callender section. The company has expended to do this, as follows:

Construction	$23,078,929
Rolling stock (for whole road)	6,130,792
Lake steamers	552,251
Shops, tools, etc. (say)	1,000,000
	$30,761,972

The company received the following sums from the Government:

Cash	$12,239,212
Sale of land bonds	8,025,012
Sale of town sites	477,775
Net earnings of road	511,875
Sale of stock	21,356,828
Loan on stock	4,950,000
	$43,904,702

Thus, it is seen that there is a balance of over $22,000,000 of receipts, from all sources, above what was actually expended on the construction of the road. Because the company expended, as they claim, eight millions on outside speculations, above their receipts, it is their business. But it is asking too much of the country to supply the funds for speculative investment in other railroads, with a view of increasing the strength of the grip of their monopoly.

There are 789 miles of road yet to be built, and, according to the company's own reckoning, this will cost $27,000,000. Now, leaving the land grants out of account, the company asks over thirty-five millions—the balance of the cash subsidy and the new "loan"—to do this work.

Taking the "loan" as made, which we fear it will be, the road will cost the country $93,387,699, and the actual cost of construction will be to the company $80,078,929, leaving a balance of $13,308,770 for the company to "play on." The company, by refusing to keep the road, that is, throwing it up as a forfeited security, and putting it on the Government's hands between 1886 and 1888, will add to their "pile" $29,880,912, the amount of the loans due in 1888 and 1891. By keeping the road the company make over thirteen millions, and by allowing the Government to foreclose their mortgage on the line, they will clear over thirty millions, the amount for which the road is given in pledge.

From every point of view the proposal is a monstrous one; it has no justification, and its adoption by Parliament will be another proof that the Tory Government and its supporters are willing to ruin the country at the behests of a syndicate, that holds in its hands the existence of the Tory Administration. The country does not demand it; the country can't stand it. The amount is more than the country can afford to pay to a legitimate enterprise of the kind, not to speak of contributing to a gigantic Tory corruption fund.

The Situation in Toronto.

The great aim of Mr. Meredith and his associates is evidently to trip up the Government if they can, not to defeat them by a fair appeal to the public reason. They, therefore, spend the chief part of their time in fishing for evidence of alleged scandals, instead of devoting themselves earnestly to their legislative duties. We predict for them in such a campaign an overwhelming defeat. The public have already discounted every charge, and are weary of pointless and unsupported criminations. The Government have now a solid party of supporters, with not a waverer amongst them, who give them a working majority of twelve. Mr. Gould keeps his seat in North Ontario. In a few days South Oxford will add one Government supporter, and before next session Muskoka will furnish another. Judgment has not yet been given in the North Victoria case, but even if Mr. Fell is left in possession, the Government can count on a majority of 15 for the rest of the Parliamentary term, with the chances in their favor of carrying the by-elections.

Mr. Meredith may well despair of ever reaching the Treasury benches, and to him the prospect must be peculiarly depressing. He is a man of some legal knowledge, some intellectual ability, and some debating talent. Unfortunately for his reputation he allowed himself to be seduced by Sir John Macdonald into betraying his Province in the matter of the boundary award, and accepting as the price of his treachery the assistance at the general elections of such agents as Shields, Prinyle and Wilkinson. These brought their own punishment, and his, with them. Their characters became so well known, that decent people in every constituency they visited revolted at their presence and rebuked both them and their employer with their votes.

Had Mr. Meredith, when the session began, owned his defeat and set diligently about making capital for himself in a legitimate manner, the public would have over-looked his unfortunate blunders, and watched his career with renewed interest. Had he cordially accepted the Government's proposal for a reference of the boundary dispute to the Privy Council, allowed election by-gones to be by-gones, and set about the work of providing legislative remedies for admitted defects, he might have embarrassed the Government, as any Opposition leader, untrammelled with either principles or convictions can easily do, by proposing radical measures for the approval of the Legislature. He might, for instance, have brought in a bill containing many useful amendments of the law relating to corrupt practices at elections, and to the trial of election petitions. He might have framed a measure placing the political franchise on the basis of registration and residence, instead of property and income. He might have worked out a scheme for the introduction of a system of land transfer, which would afford that most desirable of boons, an indefeasible title to the owner of real estate. Or he might have undertaken the revision of the Crooks Act, in the light of the decision of the case of Hodge against the Queen.

All these matters will probably be dealt with by the Government during the session; but why should Mr. Meredith leave everything to be done by the Government? As a private member he has the right to initiate any public legislation he pleases, and he is not bound to await the Government's pleasure. If he sees anything wrong, it is his privilege to propose a remedy, and if he wants to get credit with the public for legislative ability he will have to set about the task of convincing them that he has it. Unfortunately for himself he is almost alone on his own side of the House. The only member who is of any real use is Mr. Creighton, and he is so manifestly partisan in all his movements, that everything he says or does is discounted before hand. Mr. Carnegie, of whom so much was expected, has already sank to the level of the Merricks and the Lauders, and there, those who know him best, expect him to stay. He has no mind for anything except little points about colonization road expenditure, delayed returns, or repairs on the agricultural building. Even Mr. Scott did better than this. He could, and did, initiate legislation of a proper and useful kind, and the Government showed their good sense by accepting his proposals. Not a member of the present Opposition appears to be able to originate anything, and, if one does get off a good idea, he always manages to get it muddled before is takes statutory form.

The most interesting matter before the Legislative Assembly during the week was the now celebrated South Oxford case. In order to find a precedent for the removal of an insane member from his seat in Parliament, the House had to go back to 1811, and then only for the mode of procedure, as in the case relied on, the member was left undisturbed. Unfortunately, in Mr. Crooks' case, the evidence of his insanity was only too incontrovertible. Besides the testimony of local experts, there was taken that of the medical Superintendent of the Asylum in which the late minister is now confined, in Hartford, and it was of the saddest and most impressive kind. The Committee on Privileges and Elections unanimously reported to the House that there was no doubt of Mr. Crooks' insanity, and recommended that a writ should be issued for a new election. There was some difference of opinion in the House as to whether there should be a day's delay or not, but none as to the need of taking early steps to have South Oxford represented in Parliament, and accordingly the writ has been issued. There will be henceforth a precedent for dealing with such cases while the House is in session, but we would urge upon the Government the need of providing a means of declaring a seat vacant during the recess, when a member becomes insane. The evidence that satisfies the Court which puts the person and estate in the charge of administrators, ought to be, by Parliament, declared sufficient to vacate the seat, and the writ for a new election should issue, on the statement of two members, as in a case of death. The interest of the unfortunate member in the representation of the constituency is of small moment, compared with the right of the people to be represented in the Parliament which assumes to legislate for them.

Our Member.

The member for West Peterborough is anxious to be recognised by his friends in Toronto. But Mr. Meredith does not place as high an estimate on "Sarah's" importance as that gentleman does himself. The other day the Attorney-General asked the leader of the Opposition to name three members for certain committees. Mr. Meredith looked around to make a choice. "Sarah" sat hopefully. But the leader of the Opposition quietly ignored him and named Creighton, White and Wood. Mr Carnegie's evident chagrin was a subject of comment. So Meredith had to do something to appease his wrath, and accordingly proposed the member for West Peterborough for the Chairmanship of the Public Accounts Committee. By some kind of an understanding the Tory members were out in force, and the Reformers had not arrived when it seemed as if a vote would have to be taken. Mr. Carnegie again looked hopeful. But Mr Fraser quietly informed him that if he should succeed in capturing the Committee after that fashion, he would be stripped of his honors at the next meeting. Mr. Ferris was then named as the Government candidate for the position. The question now is, whether the leader of the Opposition only proposed "Sarah" for the position, believing that he could not get it, or whether "Sarah" asked to be nominated when he thought, by counting the noses of those present, there was a bare possibility of pitch-forking himself into the position. In the meatime it is evident that "Sarah" has been sat upon.

Editorial Notes.

How the high tariff helps our shipping interests: In 1873 Montreal shipped 17,490,570 bushels of grain and flour. In 1882 this amount had dwindled to 9,959,378, a decrease of nearly one-half, while the principal American shipping ports show a proportionate increase. Those who predicted that a high tariff would divert the western grain trade to United States ports, do not seem to have been far astray.

Sir John is not all bad. He does wrong on rare occasions, but then he makes amends. His bill for putting the noble red man in training, with a view of making ward politicians of them in the future, is evidently a sort of conscience measure—a reparation for robbing them of the timber on their Fort William Reserve and bestowing it on political supporters. We shall see if his bill hath charms, like music, to soothe the savage breast.

The N. P. boom in Belleville is rather taking on the back-action movement. The hands of Birrel's axe factory have gone on strike, because they were asked to accept a reduction of 17½ and 12½ per cent. in wages. Our Tory contemporaries will doubtedless attempt to prove that the movement is a sign of prosperity, and that the reduction of wages is a great benefit to the workingmen—they have reduced wages, of course, but they have the N. P. with them also. If they can't get high wages they have the glorious Tory privilege of paying high taxes.

The most inexcusable feature about the proposed Pacific "loan" of thirty millions is, that it is not necessary. Sir Charles Tupper declared that the company did not need the loan if they took the full time allowed by the contract to complete the road. But the company, it appears, needs money to speculate in, purchasing railroads to strengthen their monopoly, and to dabble in Colonization Company stock. The country can afford to wait the full time, but it can't afford to furnish thirty millions and allow the Syndicate to squander it on other outside speculations, unconnected entirely with the original contract.

Let us bring the Syndicate "loan" of thirty millions home. It means a tax of $150,000 to every constituency in the Dominion. The two ridings of East and West Peterborough will have to contribute to it, for the purpose of enriching the members of the Syndicate and helping them build palatial residences, $300,000. This means over eight dollars of a tax to every man, woman and child in the two ridings, and nearly fifty dollars each to every ratepayer. At the same time, we can't get the first step taken to build the promised post office and custom house, and, as for a grant to push on the construction of the Trent Valley Canal, that seems as hopeless. The town of Peterborough will have to contribute about $50,000 to the Syndicate "steal." How will our citizens relish this, when our present Council was committed by the people at the last election to the most rigid economy? In the present crisis where are our members? Will Messrs. Burnham and Hilliard have as much patriotism as the representatives of Quebec, and will they refuse to endorse the thirty millions grant, till the Government has done justice to Peterborough in the matter of the post office and the Trent Valley Canal? Now is their time; they have the Government in a tight place, and if they are loyal to their constituents they can secure the immediate building of the post office, and a substantial grant to the Trent Valley Canal. Will they look after our interests, or will they bliudly obey the beck of their party leaders? We shall soon see what stuff they are made of.

B. Clementi, P.L.S., and registered in the Registry Office for the County of Peterborough, on the 14th day of January, 1869, particularly described in the petition filed in this matter, which description can be obtained on application to the Vendor's Solicitors. These parts together comprise the property occupied by the late David Carlisle, as a homestead. On this parcel there is erected a large two storey house, veneered with white brick, containing six large rooms and one small one, besides pantries and closets, heated by a hot air furnace. There is also on the premises a stable and wood shed. There is a good garden, planted with young apple, pear and plum trees, and the usual small fruits all in bearing.

These lands will be offered for sale in two parcels as above described. If the bidding on Parcel 2, does not reach the reserved bid the portion of Lot two, according to said plan, having a frontage of about 33 feet on Benson Street, will be offered separately in one parcel, and the remainder of the land comprised in said parcel two, in another parcel. There will be a reserved bid on each parcel offered for sale.

BALTIMORE.

Mr. Gordon's carding mill at Baltimore was destroyed by fire on Sunday morning between the hours of 6 and 8 a. m.. The property was insured. Cause of fire unknown.

EMILY.

We are sorry to learn that the residence of Mr. Hugh Mitchell, of Emily, was destroyed by fire on Sunday morning Feb. 9th, together with a great portion of the furniture. The fire is supposed to have orginated from a chimney. There was a small insurance on the house.

BELLEVILLE.

The hands in the axe factory went out on strike Saturday morning in consequence of the heavy reduction which they were asked to accept by the firm. Twelve men quit work—six grinders and as many polishers. The latter were to be reduced 17½ per cent., and the grinders 12½ per cent. The men complain that they have been making very low wages all winter. They only average about $3 apiece this week.

HARWOOD.

The new R. C. Church at Harwood was opened on Sunday last. The blessing was performed by Rev. Dr. Jamot, Bishop of Peterboro, at 11.30, after which the dedicatory sermon was preached by Rev. Father Murray of Cornwall, which was followed by mass by Rev. Father Donohue, of Belleville. The services were interesting and largely attended. The new edifice is a very neat one, and is capable of seating about three hundred.

BALLINDERO.

Last week a rather singular accident occurred near this place. Dr. Gray, while driving along the road, met Johnston Fair, son of Mr. James Fair, returning from Port Hope with a load of coal. The doctor noticed that he was lying on the coal apparently insensible. It was found that Mr. Fair was overcome by gas arising from the coal. Proper restoratives were used and the young man was soon all right. The doctor says that a few minutes later aid would have been useless and the result fatal.

WHITBY.

A despatch from Whitby says that at about noon on Tuesday while a fast express which did not stop there, was nearing the station Mr. J. P. Beall, a commercial traveller of Montreal, and widely known, jumped from the train and received fatal internal injuries. He died at seven o'clock that evening. He had been on the road seventeen years. Mr. Beall was well known in Peterborough. He was a member of the firm of Beall, Ross & Co., and was one of the most popular of the commercial men who transacted business in Peterborough.

PORT HOPE.

Mr. H. G. Hawkins, of the Times, has been appointed Secretary of the Young Men's Christian Association of this town, and entered on the duties of his new position on Monday last.

Col. Williams, M. P., says the Times, is deserving of praise for the diligence he has evinced in the interest of the town. It will be seen from the estimates that our member has secured a grant for the new Post-office, Custom House &c., of $15,000, and $7,500 for the harbor.

We learn from the Calgary Herald that Mr. Crawford Smart, son of Col. R. W. Smart, of this town, has been promoted to the position of Sergeant of the North-west Mounted Police. We congratulate our young friend and trust he may go on and climb still further up the ladder of distinction.

LINDSAY.

Rev. Father Lynch bade his congregation farewell last Sunday, and left town Wednesday for Kingston, where he will remain some time.

Fred Heap, youngest son of Mr. Jas. Heap, fell from a heavy sleigh to which he was hanging for a ride the other day, and had his leg run over and badly hurt, but not broken.

Mr. John Henderson has commenced the manufacture of speed guages, a small tool that is very handy to have around the machine shop. The guage tells by a simple application the speed at which any shaft is running.

Some mischievous person or persons fired stones through the windows of the Salvation Army hall on Saturday evening, doing considerable damage to the glass and striking a young man, cutting his face seriously.

Very great was the satisfaction felt and expressed when a telegram from Montreal announced that our curlers, the Lindsay rink, skipped by Mr. S. A McMurtry, had succeeded in capturing the first prize of the bonspiel—four gold medals offered for the single competition.

CAMPBELLFORD.

The Trent Valley woollen mills have resumed work.

The Seymour Agricultural Society is trying to purchase grounds in Campbellford.

Mr. Thos. Hume, of Seymour, is in possession of two fine specimens of the Cotswold breed of sheep, known as the "Maid of Oxford "and "Belle of Arkell." They were recently admitted to registry in volume 3 of the Cotswold Record of the American Cotswold Association. Seymour farmers are coming up to the mark with the best agriculturalists in Ontario in the possession of fine stock.

The Presbyterians have been fighting a battle with their own friends who oppose organ music in churches, to gain a conquest in the improvement of their song service, and from present appearances the gentle strife is almost at an end. They have lately purchased a large and expensive instrument for regular use in the church, and it has been put up ready for action of the performer. The position of organist has not yet been given, but that question will be decided soon in the selection of Miss Dinwoodie or Miss Beatty. The organ will be a valuable aid in the services of the church, and perhaps in time will delight the ear of every member and adherent of the congregation.

COBOURG.

At the late Quarterly Official meeting of Cobourg Methodist Church, a resolution was unanimously passed, asking the Conference to station Rev. F. H. Wallace, M. A., B. D., in Cobourg for the third year.

The town clerk has already received about forty applications for the position of chief constable. Out of this number, the committee appointed by the council should be able to select a competent man for the office.

The license commissioners for West Northumberland, appointed under the Ontario License Act of 1875, are Mr. John Thompson and J. Clarke, Cobourg, and Thos. Lawless, Grafton.

The meetings of the Saved Army are continued nightly in the Y. M. C. A. Hall, with a grand rally in the Opera House on Sunday evening after church. A great deal of good is being done; multitudes being drawn to the meetings, and a large number having resolved to lead a better life.

Mr. Thos. McCulloch, the foreman of the gas works, had a narrow escape from a serious, if not fatal, accident on Monday. He left the works and proceeded to the street entrance when he remembered having forgotten something, and at once turned back for it, and had just opened the door when a heavy piece of stone work, weighing over 250 pounds, fell from above the door at his feet.

DISHONEST MEN VALUE HONESTY.

A young man came one day with a case of conciseness. He was corresponding clerk in a flourishing house of business. His employers had begun to direct him to write letters to customers containing statements which he and they knew to be false. He had objected and they said:

"We are responsible for these statements; it is nothing to you whether they are true or false."

I said to him:

"Do they sign the letters, or ask you to write them in your name?"

As soon as the question had left my I saw that, if there was a difference, both would be wrong, and I hastened to tell him so. He said:

"I have to sign them with my name, pro. Messrs. Blank."

I said:

"Your case is perfectly clear; you must decline to do it."

He said:

"Then I shall be dismissed;" and after a pause, "I have a wife and family."

I replied:

"My dear friend, this is a trial of faith and principal; you must do right and trust to God to take care of you and your family."

I met him some days after.

"Well, Mr.—," said I, "how are you getting on now?"

He replied:

"I am still in my situation; I had an interview with the partners, and told them I could not write letters I knew to be untrue. They were very angry, and I expected to receive notice, but I have not received it yet."

Months passed, and he remained in his situation. After a while he called on me; and I saw in his face something had happened.

"Well, Mr.—" I said, "have you had your dismissal?"

"No!," he said, "I have not," and smiled.

"What then?"

"A very confidential post in their service, with a higher salary, has fallen vacant, and they have put me into it!"

On second thought the unprincipled men had come to the conclusion that a clerk who would not deceive a customer would not deceive them, and was too valuable to be lost.

REFORMERS AND THE "LOAN."

The Halton Reform Association at the annual meeting held a few days ago, passed the following resolutions:—"That we view with alarm the proposed demand for a loan of $30,000,000 to the Canada Pacific Railway Company, and would urgently ask our leaders at Ottawa to use every lawful endeavor to defeat the proposition: and we hereby tender our heartly thanks to the Hon. Edward Blake and other members of the opposition for their energy and vigilance on behalf of good government in the Dominion Parliament. Also that the Association takes great pleasure in again expressing its continued confidence in the Government of Hon. Oliver Mowat, and views with much satisfaction its able and upright administration of the legislative affairs of the Province, and particularly its noble and patriotic stand in defence of Ontario's rights."

CENTRAL ONTARIO RAILWAY.

It is expected that the grading of the Ontario Central Railway will be completed in about two weeks. The building of the iron bridge across Beaver Creek will be proceeded with at once, the material for its construction will be shipped from Trenton, as soon as possible.

Prominent Butter Makers.

There is no dissent from the decision of candid and capable dairymen, that the Improved Butter Color of Wells, Richardson & Co., Burlington, Vt., is the best in the world. Such men as A. W. Cheever of Massachusetts, E. D. Mason, Vermont, Francis A. Hoffman, Wisconsin, use it and recommend it as superior to all others.

Ethel—"Oh! isn't it lovely? The paper says that huge mastiffs are to be pet dogs for the young ladies this season." Eudora—"That's just to sweet for anything. Why, a mastiff is almost as big as a pony." Ethel—"Yes; won't it be lovely? When dear Alphonso gets tired promenading with me by, moonlight alone I can lift him up and let him ride on the mastiff."

Great Excitement.

There is always great excitement in case of sudden accident and injury. Every one should be prepared for an emergency. Hagyard's Yellow Oil is the reliable friend in need; it is for internal and external use, curing Burns, Scalds, Bruises, Lameness, Croup, Sore Throat, Rheumatism and painful affections and wounds. 8-2t

"Sir!" he said, as he caught a man in a cutter on Woodward avenue, after a chase of three blocks, "you are the man who ran over my son on Adams avenue yesterday!" "Ah! was that you son?" "It was—my only son." "Oh, well, then you shouldn't complain. I've got six of 'em, and you can't be much of a driver if you can't manage to run over three or four of the lot before the sleighing goes off!"

Hope in Hopeville.

Mrs. McArthur, of Hopeville, declares she could not keep house without Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam. It is a remedy in which the sufferer may safely hope for speedy relief and effectual cure of Coughs Hoarseness, Bronchial, Throat and Lung Troubles, which neglected end in hopeless consumption. 8-2t

Fifth Parliament—Second Session.

NOTES FROM THE CAPITAL.

GENERAL LUARD'S SUCCESSOR.

The report that Colonel Middleton, now in command at Aldershot, is to succeed General Luard has been confirmed.

DIFFICULTIES AMONG MANITOBA MEMBERS.

The Manitoba members are also at loggerheads, Messrs. Scott and Royal having declined to sign the memorial prepared by Mr. Norquay with respect to the demands of that Province, and it is believed that this quarrel has also been fomented by Sir John Macdonald to divide the Manitoba party and secure delay. The Scott-Royal faction seem anxious to kill off Mr. Norquay, and to further that object they will do their utmost to make his present mission a failure and destroy his influence. Mr. Norquay will leave for home in a day or two without accomplishing anything.

A CANDID ADMISSION.

The Tories are to-day greatly incensed at one of their leading lights, Mr. Brecken, of Prince Edward Island, because that gentleman, in the course of his speech, unwittingly exposed the true inwardness of the "patriotism" by which the Government are seeking to justify their new donation of $30,000,000 to the Pacific Railway Company.

He says we have heard of patriotism. I never like to parade the word, because very often the man who is loudest in talking about patriotism is the least in his patriotic principles. I know the definition given, I think, in Johnston's Dictionary. I have no hon. gentlemen in my eye when I say it, but I think the old lexicographer defines patriotism as the last refuge of a scoundrel.

It is not surprising that this explanation of the patriotism of which the Tories have been boasting was received with uproarious cheers and laughter by the Opposition. The cat is out to the bag. Patriotism is the last refuge of the Tory leader, and the only possible plea offered by his party for the new C. P. R. loan, the Credit Mobilier Construction Company transactions, and the thousand-and-one other scandals that have recently been exposed.

On Monday the debate on the Pacific Railway resolutions was resumed by Mr. Lister, and continued by Messrs. Orton, Cameron, of Huron, Rykert, and Armstrong until 1.30 o'clock when the debate was adjourned.

PROTEST AGAINST ASSISTED IMMIGRATION.

A petition from the United Labourer's Union of Toronto, presented by Mr. Hay on Monday noon, points out that the system of granting assisted passages to immigrants has ceased to be a necessity or an advantage to Canada.

THAT OTHER PACIFIC SCANDAL.

Mr. Speaker Kirkpatrick on Monday not for the first time, showed the cloven foot of partiality. Mr. Lister, in the course of his excellent and practical address, pointed out a remarkable coincidence which had previously been overlooked, viz., that the member for Argenteuil, Mr. Abbott, who was the central figure in the Pacific Scandal of 1873, was now sitting in Parliament, the paid counsel of the Canada Pacific Railway Company. The member for West Lambton was called to order by the Speaker. Mr. Lister was evidently dealing with a subject that was exceedingly unpleasant for the Ministerial party, and had to be stopped. The Speaker's partiality becomes apparent when it is remembered that Mr. Ives and Mr. Woodworth both falsely charged Mr. Blake with being the counsel of the Grand Trunk Railway Company, and, though Mr. Blake denied the charge it was repeated, and Mr. Speaker in his wisdom did not see fit to interfere. This is impartiality with a vengeance, but Mr. Lister made his point all the same. He called attention to the fact that the man who is pressing through Parliament the resolutions to give his employers a bonus of $30,000,000 is the same individual who disbursed Sir Hugh Allan's corruption fund in 1872. It was he who received the famous telegram ("Send me another ten thousand"), and who responded with his usual alacrity. As Mr. Lister pointed out, this coincidence alone is enough to convince the public that there is something scandalous and corrupt in the proposal now before the House.

Jet Laces, Gimps and Ornaments, are fashionable again, and more sought after than ever. Some choice designs in Turnbull's new stock just received.

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

Fifth Parliament—First Session.

The Public Accounts and Estimates were brought down on Tuesday and the Budget Speech made on Wednesday.

Mr. Meredith's Bill to amend the Municipal Act proposes that the Board of Commissioners of Police in cities and towns having police magistrates shall consist, of the Mayor, the Judge of the County Court, the Police Magistrate, and two members of the Council.

The advisability of placing before school trustees and teachers, in a convenient form, approved plans of school architecture, with especial bearing on heating, drainage, and ventilation, is apparently realized by the House. Past efforts to accomplish this have proved abortive. An excellent work which discussed these and other phases of the architecture very fully was published in 1878 by Dr. J. Geo. Hodgins, but obtained a circulation of only a few hundred copies.

That the Rivers and Streams Bill to be re-enacted this session, recommends itself to those people who best understand its real bearing is shown by the fact that the large petition from Carleton Place in favour of the bill is signed by many influential Conservatives and approved by the Conservative paper published in that town as well as by the reform paper. The townships, too, along the river are overwhelmingly in favour of the bill, and in the election of last February the votes were three to one in favour of the Reform party. Before party feeling had influenced the Conservatives lumbermen in the House they supported the bill, and two of them, Messrs Calvin and Guest, continued to support the Government in the matter, when the remainder of their party had taken an antagonistic position.

GLADSTONE ASSAULTED.

Gladstone was walking Firday afternoon in London, quite unattended, on his way to the House of Commons, when suddenly a man, seized him by the collar and brought him to a standstill. The Prime Minister, with some difficulty, shook off his assailant and continued on foot, to his destination. It is asserted the man made this attack ou a wager.

Corsets to fit any age or figure, always on hand at Turnbull's. Special attention given to large sizes.

THE GLADSTONE GOVERNMENT.

THE PREMIER'S SILVER TONGUE.

Great is the tongue of Gladstone, and with one speech he has absolutely revolutionized the situation of the government on account of its Egyptian policy. Up to last Tuesday the position of the Cabinet was miserably bad. The Liberals howled as loudly against them as the Conservatives press. Their supporters were openly mutinous or mourned in abject depression. Even the most faithful could not pluck up courage to give Gladstone anything but a faint cheer. The Conservatives were noisy and exultant, and just before Gladstone rose on Tuesday the capital of Sinkat apparently filled the Ministerial cup of humiliation to overflowing. When the Premier sat down the Liberal ranks were closed up in one solid body, and the Conservatives were once more flabby and forlorn. Not more that five or six Liberals were expected to shirk voting, and the conclusion of the fight became at once so foregone that though the talk was kept up, there has not been one good speech in the attack on the Ministry ever since.

PETERBOROUGH, Feb. 21, 1884.

Receipts of grain two or three days in the last week was large, principally wheat; spring wheat brought more money, without any apparent reason, judging from outside markets. Peas are lower, selling from 70c. to 71c. Barley, 50c. to 64c., not much offering. Oats are in better demand, and sold higher, several loads brought 34c.

On the market, eggs have been selling at 23c. to 25c., more offering, this price not likely to hold up. Fresh butter in fair demand, 20c. to 23c. Keg butter, dull, slow to sell at 17c. to 18c. for fine. Other commodities unchanged.

Flashing eyes—
Dancing smiles—

Glances sly—
Repented sighs—
In Paradise we seem.

Future bright—
Sunny light
Surrounds this earthly love.

Arms entwining,
Love's light shining,
Fixed, the happy day;
A fatal ring—
A pretty thing—
Gives liberty away.

Wedded life—
Daily strife—
Babie's ceaseless squall;
Repent too late—
Dreadful fate—
The common lot of all.

Clarissa's Choice;

OR,

BEAUTY IN DISTRESS.

CHAPTER II.

Three days later, walking along the quiet road that leads to Weston, Clive Dugdale comes upon Clarissa and a stranger, evidently in earnest conversation. Even from the distance he can see that the stranger is Sir Wilfred Haughton, and that he and Clarissa are on friendly terms. It is plainly, however, a chance encounter, because Haughton's horse is standing beside him, and even as Dugdale, with a beating heart, marks all these facts, they shake hands, and Haughton, mounting again, rides briskly away.

As Dugdale comes up with her, Clarissa turns gladly to greet him, with a bright smile. Her face is delicately flushed; there is an unwonted brilliancy in her eyes; she is altogether a changed and even a lovelier Clarissa than usual.

"That was Sir Wilfred?" remarks he, superfluously, regarding her curiously—jealously.

"Yes," still smiling.

"Your very first meeting with him has wrought a wonderful change in your appearance. You are pleased?"

"It was not our first meeting. Last evening he called to see us just after you had left. Had you remained to dinner, as George and I wished, you would have met him."

"Should I? Thanks. The loss is not irreparable. I would rather see George and you when alone. But you have not yet answered me; though, indeed, I scarcely need an answer when I look at you. You are brighter, more radiant than I have ever yet seen you. You were pleased to see him?"

"Very!" emphatically. "Why not? After all, as I told you, he is an old friend; I hardly remember the time I did not know him."

"And," bending a little to look into her eyes, which meet his frankly, "you now—'know'?"

"Yes—now I 'know,'" returns she, with a quiet though very intense satisfaction.

"And you are quite happy?" There is a shade upon his face that grows deeper every second. She, having averted her eyes, fails to see it.

"Very happy," she answers, quietly. "Happier than I have been for three full years. A long time is it not?" she asks, a little wistfully.

"Yes. I congratulate you," in a somewhat forced tone. They have reached the entrance to Weston, and he now puts out his hand to say good-bye.

"You will come in?" surprised.

"Not to-day, thank you."

"O, do," with open disappointment; "George will be so grieved if you do not."

"George must excuse me to-day; I cannot go in now," he says, almost curtly, and, raising his hat, walks determinedly away.

His heart is filled to over-flowing with bitterness and sad forbodings. Is it, indeed, all over?" Can his sweet dreams and happy thoughts have met with such a cruel death? Again he sees her lovely face as she turns to greet him, flushed with content and gladness. Of course the blush had been for Haughton; already her poor wounded heart has found comfort in the very nearness of the beloved.

Pshaw! why dwell upon the inevitable like a love-sick girl! He will throw up the whole business, leave for London in the morning, and try in absence to forget.

But when the morning comes, he lingers. A faint hope—that is almost despair, so closely does it border on it—holds him still in bondage, and compels him to stay on, and witness the final scene in this small drama.

But at the end of the second month even this faint star of hope has been drowned in the giant flood of despair. He has no longer any sustaining doubts. Day by day, meeting his rival at Weston, he notes Clarissa's kindly manner toward him, the frank warmth of her look and tones.

As for himself, her demeanor toward him has completely changed. It seems to him as though she purposely avoids his society, and shrinks from any tete-a-tete chance may throw in his way. And yet—with an obstinacy that shocks even himself—there are moments when he cannot bring himself to believe he is altogether hateful to her. A certain softness at times, a sudden blush, a surprised glance now and again, make him persuade himself, against his common sense, she still bears for him some of her ancient friendship.

One afternoon, walking along the road to Weston, he encounters the Major coming toward him from a side walk that branches toward the west, and leads to Uplands, where dwell the Adairs. They shake hands, but, even at the moment of meeting, Dugdale become aware that there is an unmistakable cloud upon the Major's urbane brow.

"You have been to Uplands?" says Dugdale, because he has nothing else to say, and is too much the property of melancholy to care to make conversation.

"Yes," absently; "the old lady is ill again. But tell me, Clive, is it true what I have heard there, that Clarissa Carew is going to marry that fellow Haughton?"

"How you heard it?" asks Dugdale, wincing.

"Yes—the Adairs are full of it. They say it is all settled, and that they are to be married immediately. My dear boy," says the Major, raising his hat to wipe his forehead, "it can't be true."

"It may be true," says Clive, gloomily. He is drawing aimless strokes with his stick upon the dusty road, and is feeling distinctly miserable.

"It may, sir!—what do you mean by that?" demands the Major, irascibly; "I tell you it shan't! It is monstrous! What! a woman like that to throw herself away upon a worthless fellow; and one who has treated her so infamously in the past! I tell you I won't hear of it. I thought Clarissa had more pride."

"And yet I do not think she is wanting in pride," says Dugdale.

"I don't know what you call it—but I, for one, wouldn't have believed it of her," says old Hyde, growing slightly incoherent. "I shall speak to her, and, if possible, prevent it. If I were a young man like you, Dugdale, I should make love to her myself, propose to her, and marry her under his very nose, rather than let such a sacrifice take place. But the young men of the present day," says the Major, disgustedly, "are abominably wanting in both taste and feeling."

"I wish I could agree with you," says poor Clive, sadly.

"As no one else will interfere, I shall. Nothing shall prevent me. Her father and I were old cronies, and I shan't stay by and see his girl make such a fatal mistake without uttering a word of warning. I must now go home and scribble a letter or two for the post, and after that I shall walk up straight to Weston, and ask her what she means."

"I think I wouldn't, if I were you," Dugdale ventures to say, mildly.

"But I shall, sir! Don't talk to me! Pouf! do you think the anger of the prettiest woman in Europe could turn me from my duty? Never!" says the Major, proudly.

Dugdale half smiles as they part company, and he continues his way to Weston. The hall door, as usual, stands wide open during the glorious August weather, and, making his way to the study, where young Carew generally sits, he enters, unannounced.

At the doorway he stands motionless a moment, seeing young Carew in earnest conversation with Sir Wilfred Haughton. Hearing him, they both look up, and Carew's expression changes from cold disapprobation to quick distress.

"It is only Dugdale," says Haughton, with a curious gleam in his dark eyes, and a certain maddening sense of triumph in his slow deliberate tones. "No, do not go away, Dugdale; you are a welcome friend here, and I have no desire to conceal from you the reason of my presence here to-day. I have come to ask Miss Carew's hand in marriage!"

Dugdale pales visibly and his brows contract—otherwise he suppresses all outward symptoms of emotion. Then suddenly a wild determination to enter the lists himself, to declare aloud his affection for her, if only to let her see how well, though silently, she has been beloved, takes possession of him. Almost without taking time for reflection, he turns to Carew, and says, with forced composure:

"I, too, have come to Weston to-day bound on the same errand. I love your sister, Carew, and would ask her to marry me. Let her choose between us."

George rises slowly. He is still weak, and finds a difficulty in sudden movements; a look of perplexity and discomfort pervades his handsome face; he trifles nervously with a paper-knife that lies beneath his hand.

"You distress me, he says, at length, addressing both the suitors. "I hardly know what to say. Of course I shall inform my sister of the honor you have both done her, and—and—you must abide by her decision. But it grieves me to know that one of you—must——"

He pauses, and unconsciously in his embarrassment, fixes his eyes upon Dugdale. Clive groans inwardly; to him it is a simple matter, the translation of that regretful look, the finishing of that broken sentence. "One of you must go to the wall—and you, Dugdale, are the man." So he reads it. The brother, knowing well the sister's feelings, had thought kindly to give him gentle warning of what is surely in store for him. That glance was an ill omen! Well, well! He throws up his head in angry defiance of cruel fate and draws his breath a little hard.

At this moment a light and well-known step crossing the hall outside makes itself heard. It comes nearer; the door is thrown open, and Clarissa, fresh and sweet as the perfumed flowers in her hands, stands upon the threshold.

"Why, what a solemn conclave," she says, jestingly. "What long, long faces! But that the silence of the grave seems to reign, I should say you were all indulging in a battle royal. What is it, George?" laying her hand upon his shoulder with a soft, caressing touch.

Taking down the hand, Carew holds it closely in his own and regards her with a silent scrutiny for a full minute. Then glancing at the two men, he says, as though decided:

"My sister is here—she shall speak for herself. Clarissa, Sir Wilfred Haughton and Clive Dugdale wish to tell you—that they—love you; they have come this afternoon to ask your hand in marriage. It is for you to either refuse them or both—or—make your choice between them."

He has spoken disjointedly, but to the purpose. Clarissa, growing white as the lilies in her trembling fingers, shrinks away from him, and, letting her flowers fall, covers her face with her hands.

"O! why have you done this?" cries she; "it is terrible—it is cruel!"

"No—it is the wisest course," whispers he, hurriedly. "It will end at once all doubt and suspense. Believe me, it is better so—and kinder."

Looking up, she glances first at Sir Wilfred, who is evidently anxious, but, perhaps, a little too assured—then timidly at Dugdale, who is rather in the background, with his head bent downward and his arms crossed upon his breast. Feeling the intensity of her regard, he raises his head, and meets her full gaze. In his eyes there is a world of sorrowing, a passionate regret, a dumb agony sad through its hopeless longing.

"Clarissa!" says Haughton, entreatingly, attempting to take her hand.

"No, no!" she exclaims, hastily, waving him back, her heart beating painfully. Then, "Clive, will you not speak to me?" she says, moving a step or two in his direction.

The effect is electric. At her words Dugdale starts violently, the sadness disappears, and in its place a great gleam of joy rises and illumes his face. Yet even now he hardly dares believe in his own good fortune.

Going up to her, he imprisons her hands and asks, in a voice so changed she scarcely knows it to be his:

"Am I your choice?"

"Yes," faintly.

"You love me, Clarissa?" almost vehemently.

"Yes," returns she again. And then, overcome by her emotion and the situation generally, she burst into tears; whereupon Clive, unmindful of her brother's presence or that of his disconcerted rival, catches her in his arms; and with a sob she lays her head upon his breast.

Leaving Weston about two hours later, he has just reached the entrance gate, when he finds himself for the second time to-day, face to face with the valiant Major, evidently bent on slaughter. "You see I have kept my word," says the warrior, fiercely; "I am not to be frightened, even by a frown from Venus! I have come to reason with Clarissa about this talked-of engagement."

"There is no need. I can tell you all about it."

"Well?" impatiently.

"It is only too true. She is going to be married!"

"And who, pray, told you that pretty piece of news?"

"I had it from her own lips."

"You don't say so?" exclaims the Major, staggered; then plucking up courage again, he advances a step. "All the more cause why I should now interfere," he says, with much determination.

"I am afraid it will be too late. She and he seem very much attached to each other. I am almost sure she will not give him up."

"She will when I prove to her what a despicable scoundrel he is, and open her eyes a bit about his doings in London."

"O, Major! that I should live to hear you say such things!"

"Say them! I have said them a thousand times, and I shall say them again. I tell you, this man she is bent on marrying is a villain of the deepest dye!"

Dugdale laughs.

"Ah! you may make a joke of it, Dugdale; she is nothing to you, of course; you don't care about her future happiness, poor child! but I do, and I can't see her enter on such a wretched marriage without feeling grief."

"I don't think," says Clive, modestly, "it will be a wretched marriage."

"I hope you may be forgiven," ejaculates the Major solemnly. "Well," in an offended tone, I shall go and fulfill my duty, and see what I can do."

"Don't put an end to the engagement, Major," exclaims Clive, in a tone of affected dismay; "because, if you do, you will make Clarissa and—and me eternally miserable."

He has placed both his hands on old Hyde's shoulders, and is laughing lightly.

"Eh? What? You don't mean to say—bless me!—What have you got to do with it?"

"Is me you behold the coming bridegroom," says Clive, with an air of the profoundest triumph.

The Major is struck dumb for a full minute (a most unusual occurrence with him), and then gives way to a wild rapture.

"My dear Clive—my dear, dear boy, can it be true?" Oh! you young scamp, not to tell me sooner. My dear fellow, I am rejoiced." And then he fairly gives way, and falling upon the unsuspecting Dugdale, treats him to a hearty hug.

"But, Major, consider; would you wed your pearl among women to a 'despicable scoundrel,' a 'villain of the deepest dye?' When are you going to open her eyes to my scandalous 'doings in London?'"

"None of your chaff," says the Major, threatening him with his stick, "but come straight home with me, and let us drink the future Mrs. Dugdale's health in a bumper of champagne."

THE END.

BAKING A CAT.

A good housewife in Orangeville had rather an amusing experience last week. During the day, when the heat from the cooking stove was turned off the oven, a large cat sprang into the latter, and found a very comfortable place on one of the grates. The housewife had to bake, and, prior to entering upon her work, put on a rattling fire, turned the heat on to the oven, and closed the oven doors upon the sleeping cat. A few minutes later, as she was busily engaged in mixing dough, she was startled by the fierce "mewing" of a cat. She knew that the animal must be in pain and trouble, and began to look for it through the house with the intention of affording it relief. She searched every hole and corner in the house, but failed to find the screaming cat. She was returning in dispair to her work, and as she was passing the oven the cat gave another loud and fierce "mew," for the poor creature's sufferings were becoming intense. In a moment one of the oven doors was throw open, and the cat sprang to the floor, and at once began to hop, jump and roll around in a manner that made even the sympathetic housewife smile. The animal's paws were very badly burnt. It has not since ventured into the oven.

Improve Nutrition

The central idea in the treatment of all Chronic Wasting Diseases, resultiug in Nervous prostration and General Debility is to improve the Digestion and Assimilation of Food, and the formation of Healthy Blood. Dr. Wheeler's Compound Elixir of Phosphates and Calisaya contains the only agents known that act directly as excitants of nutrition, by imparting tone to the Stomach, Liver and Pancreas, the great tripod that prepares nourishment for building up the organs and tissues of the body. The action of this remarkable preparation is extraordinary in strengthening and vitalizing the constitution, whether impaired by age, exhausted by excesses, bad habits, or run down by old complaints that have resisted all ordinary methods of treatment. Being a delicious cordial to take, and perfectly harmless under all circumstances, it is eminently adapted to prostrate anæmic women and delicate children.

Itching Piles—Symptoms and Cure.

The symptoms are moisture, like perspiration intense itching, increased by scratching, very distressing, particularly at night, seems as if pin-worms were crawling in and about the rectum; the private parts are sometimes affected. If allowed to continue very serious results may follow. "SWAYNE'S OINTMENT" is a pleasant, sure cure. Also for Tetter, Itch, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Erysipelas, Barbers' Itch, Blotches, all scaly, crusty Skin Diseases. Box by mail 50 cents; three for $1.25. Address, DR. SWAYNE & SON, Philia., Pa. Sold by Druggists. 7-52t.

Earning His Living.

Mr. S. Webb, of Aubert, Ont., had a most distressing cough for six months, during which he was under medical advice. But still he grew worse and worse and his case was given up. He bought two bottles of Dr. Wilson's Pulmonary Cherry Balsam, and after using them was able to earn his own living. It is the very best cure for all manner of coughs and colds and all forms of disease of the lungs and air passages. It cuts away the phlegm, soothes the inflamation, and tones up the system.

Hard to Believe.

It is hard to believe that a man was cured of a Kidney disease after his body was swollen as big as a barrel and he had been given up as incurable and lay at death's door. Yet such a cure was accomplished by Kidney-Wort in the person of M. M. Devereaux of Ionia, Mich., who says: "After thirteen of the best doctors in Detroit had given me up, I was cured by Kidney-Wort. I want every one to know what a boon it is."

The extensive alpaca and worsted mills belonging to the estate of the late Sir Titus Salt at Saltaire, Yorkshire, have been flooded out. Several thousand men are rendered idle.

WHAT SHALL I GIVE HIM?

Is a puzzling question. It is easy enough to find things for the "hers," in fact the variety is embarrassing; but the selection of a present for the male sex is more difficult. We have known Ladies to present their Husbands with useful Household Articles and it is not a bad idea, but if you wish to give the man something for personal use, the list to choose from is rather short. CLOTHES are Staple—always in demand. Why not a new OVERCOAT or SUIT? A SET OF SHIRTS, some fine HOSIERY, HANDKERCHIEFS, or NECKWEAR? or, if that is not appropriate, give the Domestic Man a HOUSE COAT OR WRAPPER. While to the Gay Young Man, SHIRT STUDS, SCARF PINS, SILK TIE or SCARF. Now that you have the hint what to get, we will modestly add that a good place to get everything of this sort is right here, where we are making a Special Holiday Display of Useful and Ornamental Wearin Apparel for Men and Boys.

"Upright Pianos."

A few extracts from the numerous endorsements by the leading artists of the World as to their Superiority:—

The pianoforte of your make used at my last concert is the most admirable instrument I have ever seen. Please send to my address in London one of your Upright Pianos. This, I think, is the best endorsement of your instrument I can give you.—CHRISTINE NILSSON.

Neither in Europe or America have I seen an Upright to equal yours.—ELILEN GERSTER GARDINI.

In all the qualities an artist can require your Upright Pianos surpass anything I have ever seen.—SOFIA SCALCHI.

It is superior in quality of tone and evenness of action to any instrument I know of. CLARA LOUISE KELLOGG.

Having had an opportunity of using your New Concert Upright Piano at the concerts given by Her Majesty's Opera Company, we beg to compliment you upon your great success. You can justly claim a superiority over any piano we have hitherto seen, for concert purposes and accompanying the voice.—ITALO CAMPANINI. ANTONIO GALASSI, ANNA DE PELOCCA, EMIL AMBRA.

The successful manner in which your Upright Piano has stood the severest tests, is such as heretofore has been applied to the Grand Piano only, and it commands our unqualified endorsement.—OLE BULL, EMMA THURSBY, ALFRED H. PEASE, MAURICE STRAKOSCH.

BIG BRITISH BREACH OF PROMISE CASE.

AN ACTRESS CLAIMS $250,000 DAMAGES.

All London is talking of the Fortescue Garmoyle breach of promise case, in which Miss Fortescue an actress, sues Lord Garmoyle, son of Lord Cairns, for $250,000 for breach of promise of marriage, and the papers furnish the latest details of the scandal. Lord Cairns is blamed by many for his interference in the matter, and it is claimed that he alone is to blame for the marriage between the actress and his son not being consummated. His opponents will take advantage of the noise to endeavor to drive him from politics.

The World says that the conduct of Lord and Lady Cairns has been base, treacherous, and unchristian. They deceived the girl into thinking herself accepted; they fooled her with false hopes; then when the rupture came, Lord Cairns suggested £2,000. His lawyer induced him to consent to £5,000. Beyond this he would not go. Society is anxiously waiting for the trial. Lord and Lady Cairns will enter the witness box. Lord Garmoyle's letters to his "blue-eyed darling" will be read. Public opinion regards him with contempt, and he has gone abroad. His name has been withdrawn from the books of the clubs.

Miss Fortescue's legal advisers say that the letters leave nothing now to be decided but the amount of damages. £50,000, is claimed, and it is believed he is good for that, as he received a legacy of £70,000 two years ago, Lord Garmoyle tried to effect a compromise, but the fair actress desires her reputation to be sustained. She has retained as counsel, Mr. Charles Russell, while the defendant is to be represented by Sir Henry James.

MARVELLOUS CHANGES OF FIFTY YEARS.

Fifty years ago there was not a steam railway or an electric telegraph in the world. Now there are 90,000 miles of of railroad and 300,000 miles of telegraph in this country.

Fifty years ago there was not an ocean steamship afloat. Now the greater part of the foreign trade of the United States is done by steamships. That trade in the year 1880 amounted to more than $1,500,000,000.

Fifty years ago the population of the United States was about 13,000,000. In 1880 it was more than 52,000,000.

Fifty years ago there was not a friction match, revolver, a breechloader, a percussion cap, or sewing machine in the world.

Fifty years ago Bessemer steel, the photograph, the power press, the mower and reaper, the process of electrotyping and stereotyping were unknown; illuminating gas had been introduced but eight years.

Fifty years ago the production of anthracite coal was but 173,734, tons; in 1880 the consumption was more that 25,000,000 tons.

A DEATH-DEALING CYCLONE

HOUSES, CHURCHES AND PEOPLE BLOWN AWAY—TREES LAID LOW.

A cyclone passed over the northwestern part of the State of Georgia on Wednesday. Trees, fences and buildings were blown down without number. Near Rome a barn was blown down, and two mules killed. At Jonesboro' the colored church was carried away. Several houses were unroofed. In the country 300 small houses and negro cabins were demolished. Fifteen hundred poor people are homeless. At Covington a negress was carried into a small stream and badly hurt. Two negro children perished in the ruins of a cabin. Scores of other casualties are reported. At Livingstone a house in which a dance was progressing was blown down. All the inmates escaped serious injury except a farmer, whose skull was fractured. The loss will probably be $100,000.

THE RED SUNSETS EXPLAINED.

Though a little diffident, she is quite a philosopher, and as they sat together discussing the recent phenomenal sunsets she suddenly declared;

"I think I know the cause of them."

"You do?" queried he.

"Yes."

"Then you know more than the professors do."

"Well, I have my idea of it, anyway."

"What is it?"

"I hate to say it before you."

"Oh, come! out with it, don't be afraid of me."

"Well—"

"Well—"

"Well, the sky blushes when she sees the sun go to bed!"

And exclaiming, There now! I've told you!" she hid behind a screen while he revived.

MANHOOD
HOW LOST, HOW RESTORED

We have recently published a new edition of Mr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.
☞Price in a sealed envelope, only 6c. or two postage stamps.
The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the use of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.
☞This lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

Rascality in Lard.

Last Saturday, Mr. Fee, grocer, Hunter street, purchased a cake of lard on the market weighing twenty-four pounds. On taking it home Mr. Fee discovered that there was only a thin outer coating of lard, the centre being composed of tallow and salt, worth respectively five cents and one cent per pound, while good lard is worth twelve cents. There did not appear to be more than a pound or two of real lard in the cake. Mr Fee is the fourth purchaser who has been victimized within a short time by some dishonest rascals, who should be caught and punished severely as an example. It is not one degree better than straight stealing.

A Fire Frustrated.

A fire was discovered in the cellar of Sailsbury & Co's store about one o'clock on Friday morning. The brigade was called out, and the fire was speedily subdued. The fire had burned through the board partition separating the Messrs. Sailsbury's shop from Miss Armstrong's millinery store. Both places were filled with smoke, which, in addition to the water in the former shop, did the principal damage, which was slight, and covered by insurance.

St. Luke's Temperance Society.

The final one of a long series of successful entertainments given under the auspices of this flouriching society was held on Monday night last in St. Luke's school-room. An excellent programme was excellently sustained by Mrs. Meade, Mrs. Bowman, Misses E. Chrow, Ballantyne, Scott, Grundy, and Rowley, and Mr. A. D. Browne. At intervals the President of the society, the Incumbent, gave a brief sketch of the past work and outlined the future course of the society. The society was established Sept. 5th, 1883, and has now a membership (including the juvenile branch) of 130. The society had held five very successful entertainments. One portion of the President's address, alluding in an exceedingly humorous manner to the debut of the shining lights who had helped the society with addresses, was acknowledged with loud applause and great laughter. Sunday, March 2d, has been appointed by the Bishop, Temperance Sunday, and on that day there will be sermons on temperance.

In the last number of the Ontario Gazette notice was given as below:

New Midland Time Table.

The new Midland time table came into operation on Monday last. The arrivals and departures of trains affecting Peterborough, are as follows:

Trains leave Peterborough for Toronto at 7.40 a.m., and 4.40 p.m., and arrive in the city at 12.15 p.m., and 9.15 p.m. Returning, they leave that city at 7 a.m., and 4 p.m., respectively, and arrive in Peterborough at 11.45 a.m., and 8.45 p.m. A mixed train leaves Peterborough at 11.40 a.m., and reaches Toronto at 7 p.m. Another mixed leaves Toronto at 6 a.m., and arrives in town at 3 p.m.

The single daily train for Lakefield leaves here at 12.55 p.m., and arrives in Lakefield at 1.40 p.m. Returning, it leaves Lakefield at 3.10 and arrives in Peterborough at 3.55.

The new time table gives frequent enough communication with Port Hope. The two express trains for Toronto start from Port Hope and arrive here at 7.40 and 4.40 a.m. and p.m., respectively. By these trains Orillia, Waubaushene and Midland are reached by changing cars at Blackwater, or by changing cars at Lindsay and Lorneville junction. The Lakefield train that leaves here at 12.55, arrives from Port Hope at 12.25, leaving that town at 10.25.

The Grand Junction train service is as follows: Mail trains leave Peterborough for Belleville at 8 a.m. and 2 p.m., arriving at Campbellford at 10.20 and 3.50, where the morning train at 10.20 a.m., crosses the mail train that leaves Belleville at 8 a.m., and arrives in Peterboro' at 12.20. The evening train leaves Belleville at 6 p.m., and arrives in Peterboro' at 9.40 p.m.

A South Ward Social.

A social entertainment will be held this evening in the Mission School House, in aid of the funds of the branch of St. John's Sunday School held there. Music and a magic lantern entertainment will be presented.

The Band at Lakefield.

The Fire Brigade Band went out to the Lakefield carnival professionally on Thursday night last, to furnish music at the carnival which was a very pleasant success, several maskers from Peterboro' having been present.

Peterborough Post Office.

The report of the Postmaster-General for the year ended June 30th, 1883, informs us that the gross revenue of the Peterborough Post-office from the sale of postage stamps, etc., last year amounted to $10,522.37. The amount paid in salaries was $2500, and the forward allowances and allowances for light, fuel, etc., were $600.

Money Disappeared.

On Friday last a stranger in town informed the police that in some way he had been relieved of a purse containing $100 cash and a bank book representing deposits of $400 in a Buffalo bank. His memory and consciousness had been somewhat muddled with drink, and a very clear account of the loss was not forthcoming. A suspicion was attached to two parties who left town suddenly, but the clew was not followed up.

Very Remarkable Recovery.

Mr. Geo. V. Willing, of Manchester, Mich., writes: "My wife has been almost helpless for five years, so helpless that she could not turn over in bed alone. She used two Bottles of Electric Bitters, and is so much improved, that she is now able to do her own work." Electric Bitters will do all that is claimed for them. Hundreds of testimonials attest their great curative powers. Only fifty cents a bottle at Taylor & McDonald's.

Who Was he?

The Brockville Recorder states that a Peterborough man went on the spree recently in Ogdensburg, obtaining his whiskey in a disreputable house, and was robbed of all his money by a local boon companion. The robber was arrested, and the money rescued from the toe of his rubber. Who was the victim? But it is useless to enquire. Most probably he was some man from Lindsay, Port Hope or Cobourg, who, wanting something to be proud of, gave Peterborough as his residence.

St. John's Chapel Entertainment.

A very successful entertainment under the auspices of the St. John's Girls' Friendly Aid Society was held on Wednesday evening of last week. The programme, which consisted of readings and vocal music, for which Miss Errett supplied the accompaniments, was supplied by Misses Sanderson, Charman, Grundy and Irwin. Readings and songs were given by Misses Stevens, Worsley, Hawkes and Ballantyne. An excellent chorus and an amusing dialogue were given by members of the society.

School Attendances.

The winter has been hard on the attendance at our public schools, especially in the primary departments. The almost impassable walks caused by the snow blockade, and the severe weather of January kept smaller pupils from attending regularly, and the milder weather of February has resulted in such a copious crop of colds, coughs, influenzas, catarrhs, and juvenile contagious diseases, such as mumps, etc., that this month will probably show a falling off of attendance of from fifteen to twenty-five per cent. None of the diseases or ailments are serious, but they affect the attendance.

Full Bred Horses.

Mr. W. M. Fair, of Millbrook, has made an important addition to his extensive stud of thorough-bred horses. He has purchased from Mr. John Miller & Son, of Pickering, the thorough-bred, three-year old, heavy draught stallion, "Lord Brougham." This new acquisition will be for service in this section. Mr. Fair, has, perhaps, the finest stud of thoroughly good horseflesh in the district, claiming to have the largest between Toronto and Belleville. Amongst them are to be found the imported heavy draught stallion, "Enterprise," the far-famed "Comet"—general purpose—the imported mare, "Topsy," and his latest purchase. Farmers desiring to improve their stock should show their appreciation of Mr. Fair's enterprise.

"Good Luck."

Mr. H. LeBrun, of the city clothing store, is an enterprising fatalist—he believes in good luck, at least his magnificent new sign, in the shape of a horse shoe, would indicate such a belief. This new sign consists of an immense horse shoe, about twelve feet in height, hung out on the "outer wall" of his establishment on George street. It is covered with gold leaf, and bears on it, in Gothic letter in black, the legend, "City Clothing Store." Mr. Cocks was the gold leaf artist, and the conspicuous and attractive sign must have cost over $50. It is a fitting emblem of a flourishing business, and we wish the enterprising elevator of the "Golden Horse Shoe" all the luck of which that article is supposed to be the emblem. The sign was put up in celebration of Mr. LeBrun's tenth anniversary of opening business in Peterborough.

The County Boundary.

The county of Victoria is, to put it mildly, exceedingly modest. Failing in its attempt in the courts to compel the county of Peterborough to pay for a bridge lying in Victoria county, our neighbor is seeking special legislation with a view of forcing this county to perform its duties and pay its debts A deputation consisting of Dr. Norris, W. Cameron, Robert Adam and D. Walker, representing the County Council of Victoria, waited upon the Attorney-General and Provincial Treasurer the other day. They represented that the boundary road between the counties of Victoria and Peterborough deviated from the true boundary in one place, where there is a bridge wholly within the county of Victoria, which is now obliged to maintain it. The deputation asked that an Act be passed compelling the county of Peterborough to bear a portion of the expense, the same as if the bridge were actually upon the boundary. Mr. Blezard, M.P.P., with his usual vigilance for the interest of the county, at once notified Mr. Lang, Warden, of the proposed legislation, and there is no doubt that Mr. Lang will take proper and adequate measures for the protection of the rights of this county in the premises.

Matrimonial.

Next week—Tuesday and Wednesday—the Second Ward is expected to do something handsome in the 'hymeneal line. Two weddings are on the tapis, one of which will be celebrated in St. Peter's Cathedral at 10 o'clock on Tuesday.

At Factory Prices.

It will no doubt be a matter of interest to those contemplating the purchase of Furniture, to know that such articles as Sideboards, Bedroom Suites, Bedsteads, Tables, etc., are being sold retail at factory prices, at McKee's furniture factory, Dickson's race.

Correction.

In Mr. T. E. Bell's communication in a recent issue of the EXAMINER a very palpable clerical error was made in giving the weight of a Pekin duck, reared by him, at forty pounds. The weight of forty pounds applied to the male of a pair of his bronze turkeys, not to the duck. Also a pair of Black Spanish fowls should have been mentioned instead of only one.

Empty Honours.

Sir John, in pursuance of his game of bluff in reference to the McCarthy License Act, has appointed His Honor Judge Deenistoun and Mr. James Stevenson the first and third license commissioners for the Peterborough district. These gentlemen are not to be congratulated very cordially on the empty honors attached to an office whose functions will never be exercised.

The Royal Hand Bell Ringers.

This company will appear again in Peterborough, on Tuesday, the 29th inst. It is unnecessary for us to comment as to the standing and superiority of this company, as they are too well and favorably known by the public, from the last entertainment here about two years ago. Tickets and reserved seats for sale at A. L. Davis & Co's bookstore.

Sale of Household Furniture.

Mr. Henry Morris, late travelling auditor of the Midland Railway, being about leaving town has instructed Mr. C. Stapleton to sell by auction, on Thursday next, 28th Feb. at his residence Bethune street, north of Toole's old factory, the whole of his household furniture, without reserve. The furniture is comparatively new, having been in use only a short time. For particulars see posters.

Important Business Change.

After seven-and-twenty years in the carriage making business, Mr. T. Fitzgerald has earned the retirement which he secures by the sale of his business to Messrs. Porter Bros. The new firm will, no doubt, meet with great success. They will add a ripe business experience and a thorough knowledge of the craft to a well established business, and a shop equipped with all the most improved machinery and appliances. They will also have a thoroughly first-class staff of mechanics. Mr. Samuel Fitzgerald will have charge of the wood-working department; Mr. Joseph Batten, of the iron-work; and Mr. James Martin, of the painting department; and all the other branches will be under thoroughly competent workmen. The old staff are all retained, and new hands will be added as the expanding business may demand. The new firm have a first-class start in business life in Peterborough, and we have no doubt that they will realize our wishes for a thriving and flourishing business.

Presbyterian Social.

The social held in the lecture room of St. Paul's church, on Tuesday night, in aid of the organ fund, was a very pleasant and enjoyable success. There was a large attendance. Mr. Melville Millar occupied the chair, and discharged the duties of the position with his usual grace and efficiency. Rev. Mr. Munro's address was warmly appreciated. This gentleman is making friends in town fast, and is very cordially received wherever he appears. The committee of ladies having the management of the entertainment are deserving of praise for its success. The following excellen ly rendered programme was presented:

Anthem, "Wait, and Murmur Not," Choir.

Song, "The Old Arm Chair," Mr. Gallstly.

Majority for Peterborough, 6.

On Monday afternoon and evening the Peterborough and Lakefield clubs held quite a tournament here. In the afternoon match Peterborough won by a majority of 21 shots. After lunch at the Croft House two impromptu matches were arranged, the stakes being two 100-pound sacks of flour for the Protestant Home. In the first match Peterborough won by two shots, and in the second Lakefield won by five shots, the Home winning in both cases.

INDIAN RIVER.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

On Saturday evening of last week, one of the camp of Italians stationed here, cut open the pocket of a fellow-camper's vest and and took therefrom about forty dollars. For orthographical reasons his name is withheld. He made his escape, and it was well he did, for if he had been caught by his outraged fellow-countrymen his life might have paid the forfeit, as he came to the camp without money, and has been living there on charity ever since, and the Italians were greatly incensed against him. It proved a warning to the camp, for one of them came to town next day and banked $400.

Material and Moral Entertainment for the Young Men—Provided by the Y. M. C. A. in the Opera House—A Most Successful Entertainment.

The social entertainment given in the Opera House on Thursday evening last was an unexpectedly great success. It was under the auspices of the Young Men's Christian Association, and was rather a departure from the unostentatious system of doing good practiced by that excellent association. The efforts of the secretary of the association were heartily supplemented by liberal-hearted ladies, so that there was a superabundance of refreshments for the five hundred young men that congregated in the hall.

Dr. Fife, President of the Association, occupied the chair, and Messrs. Best, Sanderson, and Lech, whose liberality in contributing to the success of social entertainments is only to be equalled by the excellence of the instrumental music they provide, were first on the programme. Mr. D. Gallstly then gave "Nil Desperandum," a song, with his usual success, and was followed by a pleasing duet by the Misses Shaw. Mr. Cole, Travelling Secretary, gave a short address on the aims of the association, and a recitation for the youngsters. A song by Mr. H. Morris was followed by a duet by Misses Shaw and Ellsworth.

An intermission for refreshments was duly taken advantage of, and was followed by votes of thanks to Mr. Bradburn for the free use of the Opera House, and to the ladies who had so freely supplied refreshments. An instrumental selection by Messrs. Best, Sanderson, and Lech, followed by "God Save the Queen," brought to a conclusion a most pleasant and profitable evening's entertainment.

OBITUARY.

The Late Elizabeth Smith.

The subject of this sketch was born at Hunker Hill, parish of Tarres, Aberdeenshire, Scotland, in the year 1826, and, consequently, was at the time of her death in her 58th year. She was the ninth child of a family of twelve children, and was married to John Richardson, a mason by trade, of the same place, in the year 1852. They remained in their native country until the year 1855, during which time two sons, John and William, were born to them. About this time they became deeply impressed with the responsibility of their increasing family, and, like many of their countrypeople, turned their attention to Canada, a colony of their beloved Scotland. They landed in Montreal on the 24th of May, 1856, where their third son, Alex., was born a few hours after their arrival. In the course of a few weeks they came on to the town of Cobourg. Here they suffered a sore affliction; the whole family was taken down with that terrible disease, small-pox, contracted, no doubt, whilst on the ocean vessel. Fortunately, however, Mrs. Richardson had the disease much lighter than her husband, who was prostrated for three months, and was able in a measure to care for her husband and three children. But it was a severe trial, and so undermined her usual robust health that she never fully recovered. During this affliction her second son, William, died. The family remained in Cobourg four years, during which time James, the fourth son, was born. The family then came to the Village of Lakefield, quite a new place in the county of Peterborough, where two other sons, Robert and Francis, were born, and have grown to manhood, the youngest being eighteen years of age, and the two oldest are married. Here the family has been fairly prosperous. Mr. Richardson, being an industrious man, soon carved out for himself and family a comfortable home. But Mrs. Richardson's health has been for some time rapidly declining, until Thursday last, when she died. She was a kind and noble-hearted woman, but what is better than all else, she was a real Christian, much loved and respected by all who knew her. Her remains were followed to their last resting-place on Saturday last by her sorrowing family and a large concourse of people.

PERSONAL.

Rev. E. J. Stobo, pastor of the Belleville Baptist church, has accepted the call to the pastorate of the Quebec Baptist church.

Mr. Wm. Morris, conductor G.J.R.R., accompanied by Mrs. Morris, goes to Toronto this week to attend the convention of conductors.

Mr. A. W. Lauder, M. P. P., member for East Grey, died at Toronto on Wednesday morning. He was a supporter of the Hon. Mr. Meredith.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Tully, formerly of Smith, arrived in town from Iowa, their present residence, to attend the funeral of the late Mrs. Robert Tully.

Miss Begley and Mr. George Ball, of this town, sang at a concert given by the choir of St. Mary's church, Lindsay, and Mr. T. McNaughton gave an exhibition in club-swinging.

Mr. Joseph Hill, snare drummer of the Fire Brigade Band, on the occasion of his departure from Peterborough for Campbellford, where he engages in the soda water business, was well remembered by the members. He was considered the best drummer the band ever had, and on Friday evening the members of the band presented him with a handsome gold finger ring.

Mr. F. J. Hartley, at the skating carnival at Hastings on Thursday night, carried off the silver medal offered to the winner in a skating competition. His Belleville opponent, who was expected, didn't come to skate, and therefore he let the medal slide, it having been awarded to Mr. Hartley, who gave a lengthy and much-applauded exhibition of fancy skating. This makes about the dozenth medal he has won as a skater.

BENSFORT.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

The Grange here is reviving; a short time ago they actually managed to secure a meeting.

Music is all the rage here just now. We suppose it is the result of the serenade given the inhabitants on the last night of '83. There is a class of violinists, taught by Professor Jackson, twice a week. Some of the boys seem very enthusiastic over it; it is even rumoured that one gets up at three or four o'clock to practice his lesson, and then goes threshing. Perhaps he takes his fiddle to bed with him.

The Professor, with one assistant, gave a "concert" here last week, the former handling the organ and the comic songs, and his assistant the fiddle. The audience was very slim.

AN EPISCOPAL DECADE.

Tenth Anniversary of Bishop Jamot's Consecration.

Celebrating the Tenth Year of his accession to the Episcopate—The Reception at the Convent—A Splendid Programme worthy of the occasion—The Programme—Address to His Lordship and Reply—Remarks of Guests.

The reception and entertainment given by the pupils under the auspices of the sisters of the Congregation of Notre Dame in the Convent, on Monday afternoon last in honor of the tenth anniversary of the Bishop's consecration was worthy of the importance of the occasion. The reception was given in the convocation hall of the Convent, which was beautifully and appropriately adorned by mottoes and flowers. The pupils to the number of about two hundred, all uniformly clad in black, occupied rising tiers of seats in the alcove at the western end of the room, and at the southern side. The archway leading to the alcove was wreathed with snowy swathings of some diaphanous material, picked out with sprigs of evergreen, and golden stars. Above the arch a scroll extended, bearing in gilt letters the words, "Heaven grant our Bishop many happy years," while here and there were bannerets and placard, tastefully disposed on the walls with appropriate mottoes. The auditorium was filled with guests, in the front ranks of which was seated his Lordship, Bishop Jamot, having on either side, Mr. James Stratton, Inspector of Public Schools for Peterborough, and Mr. Wm. Cluxton, while the clergy were represented by Rev. Vicar-General Laurent, of Lindsay, and Rev. Fathers Conway and Keating. The audience was composed of prominent citizens, both Roman Catholic and Protestant.

THE DELIGHTFUL PROGRAMME

opened with the "Entrance," to the music of the Grand March, rendered in a most artistic manner by Misses Annie Delaney and Annie Henry.

The second number consisted of a pleasing Prologue, spoken by Misses Minnie O'Sullivan and Katie Henry.

The song and chorus, "Come Gaily Sing," was delightful; the solo part taken by Miss Annie Dunn, was rendered with an ease, grace and finish worthy of a prima donna, while the harmony and tempo of the chorus seemed without a flaw.

"The Little Girls' Favourite Birds," was a beautiful medley of song and recitation, in which the little performers, consisted of Misses Minnie O'Sullivan, Mary Ellen McMullen, Birdie McIlmoyle, Nellie Muncaster, Nellie Hickey, Annie Weir, Katie Cavanagh, Maggie Butler, Philemon Gauthier and Mary Frances Sullivan. They acquitted themselves to perfection, inter-weaving with their rendition, touching allusions to the occasion, with which his Lordship seemed deeply impressed.

The opeertta, "The Fairies' Gifts, was beautifully performed by Misses Alphonsine Lemay, Ellen Henry, Rosa Martin, Maud Morrow, Minnie Garvey, Lizzie Donegan, Annie Leonard, Maggie Doherty, Lizzie Maher, Essie Crummie, Maggie McCabe, Eliza Wier and Katie White, who presented his Lordship with a beautiful basket of flowers, the accumulated "gifts" of the "Fairies."

The fourth number, "Fantaisie Brilliante," a piano solo, by Miss Annie Delaney, a former pupil of the convent, was a most finished and brilliant performance, which elicited enthusiastic applause and great praise.

"Dolowara; or the Indian Princess," an episode of the 17th century, in the history of the parent Congregation de Notre Dame, Montreal, in which a converted Indian maiden, resolves to carry to her heathen home the blessings and knowledge of religion she has learned with the good sisters, was presented in a faithful and effective manner. Miss Annie Dunn took what may be called the "leading part," "Dolowara," supported by Miss Cahill, as "Mother Bourgeois," Miss Mary Tierney, as "Sister Le Ber," and Miss Weir, as "Pupil."

The chorus, "Festal Wishes," was an enchanting selection, in which solo passages were admirably taken by Miss A. Delaney, Miss Redmond and Miss Jennie McIlmoyle.

Miss Cahill then came forward and read with excellent accent and emphasis, the following

ADDRESS.

To His Lordship Right Rev. J. F. Jamot, Bishop of Peterborough:—

MY LORD BISHOP.—The celestial guardians of Innesdun's Sanctuary have once more come and whispered in our ear that to-day is the anniversary of an event inscribed by them in golden characters on the eternal tablets.

Although the beautiful panorama of that memorable February day is now softly passing before our vision, we shall leave those things of the past, stamped with our grateful magnificat; let them rest in our memory while we exult in the presence of him in whose honor we are now assembled.

My Lord, a little more than a year ago we welcomed you as first Bishop of Peterborough, and more particularly as our pastor and father. We were then assured by His Grace the Archbishop that we were privileged among thousands in having for our Bishop one so distinguished as a missionary, so loved as citizen and so venerated as a prelate. Time has proved the truth of this assertion. Like the Apostle of old, you are all to all; all to our Convent, all to our teachers, and all to each one of us, therefore do we all bless your name and exult with the holy psalmist, "Blessed be the Lord God of Israel, for He has visited and wrought the redemption of His people."

Our faces are radiant with joy to see in this assembly so many distinguished citizens who have come to join their felicitations to our own, and to greet you, most revered Bishop, on this the tenth anniversary of your episcopal consecration. They can say in eloquent words what our timid lips could never express, but you, my Lord, can understand the language of our hearts, and you will, on this most blessed day, deign to accept, with our best wishes, the assurance that in each young breast there dwells a profound feeling of gratitude, affection and veneration, won by your zeal, your devotedness, and your sanctity.

CONGREGATION DE NOTRE DAME.

Peterborough, Feb. 25th, 1884.

His Lordship in reply returned his thanks for the address, and for the entertainment, and to the friends who had honored him with their presence. He would regard the sentiments of the address as too extravagant, but that he felt that they proceeded from young and guileless hearts, and they only presented the bright side of things, but when he looked back on his career, he marked many short comings. But the address brought him only joy, and he felt as having charge of their souls a great responsibility, but he was cheered by the able services of his priests whose zeal and piety he highly eulogized. He also spoke highly of the labours of the good sisters, and closed by enjoining the children to profit by the great advantages they were enjoying.

Mr. W. Cluxton, as a devoted musician, said he had on former occasions had to express his high appreciation of the superior music provided at these entertainments, and the present occasion called for warmer words of praise, of the high character of the music presented and the excellence of the instruction which had produced such results. He was pleased that the town possessed such excellent opportunities for obtaining a high class musical education.

Mr. James Stratton had great pleasure in being present to add his own to the good wishes that had been extended to Bishop Jamot. He did not think that difference of religious opinions should bar any one from expressing his good wishes. This was a free country, and all had a right to their own opinions. He had watched Bishop Jamot's course since he came to Peterborough with interest, and was in full sympathy with his lordship's great moral work as involved in his persistent efforts in the interests of the cause of temperance. The example exercised by his exertions in this direction, and the good effect on his flock, must re-act beneficially by force of example on the community in which they moved. All must recognize the great good done by his Lordship's efforts. He spoke highly of the educational status of the Convent, from his experience at entrance examinations, where Convent pupils had taken excellent positions. He wished his Lordship continued success in the great moral work in which he had been so successful in the past, and hoped that he would in the words of the motto, enjoy many happy years to exercise an influence for good in the community. (Applause.)

Mr. John Campbell, Classical Master of the Collegiate Institute, was greatly delighted with the proceedings of the afternoon. He was exceedingly pleased with the graceful and polished deportment of the children, a branch of culture too much neglected elsewhere in these practical days. He had never had the pleasure of meeting Bishop Jamot before, but he had heard of his great efforts in the cause of temperance and morality, and though he (Mr. Campbell) was not as great—he was tempted to say—a maniac, on the subject as Mr. Stratton, he wished his Lordship continued success in that work, and many happy years of usefulness.

Mr. Wm. Lech said the beautiful sentiments expressed, and the music heard appealed strongly to his emotions. The occasion convinced him more than ever that vocal music should be taught in schools.

Mr. J. O'Mears, barrister said that he had witnessed similar entertainments at Ottawa and Montreal, and he truthfully asserted that considering the relative advantages, the Congregation de Notre Dame had not been surpassed by any of them.

Dr. O'Sullivan pronounced these entertainments the "bright sunny spots" in life. He could heartily join the children in the sentiments they expressed towards his Lordship. Another grand feature of these entertainments was the effect they had in breaking down religious barriers, and promoting harmony in the community.

Ex-Mayor Smith was pleased to be present. He endorsed the sentiments of the last speaker, and had done all he could in his past official capacity to promote harmony.

Dr. O'Shea endorsed the address, and passed a high eulogy on the character and labours of his Lordship.

Mr. J. E. Belcher, briefly added his congratulations, echoing the many complimentary sentiments expressed.

Mr. J. W. Fitzgerald expressed great pleasure at being present on the occasion, and testifying, not only his respectful homage, but his sincerest congratulations to his Lordship Bishop Jamot on the tenth anniversary of his Lordship's consecration to the episcopacy. Peterborough, he said, was indeed fortunate in having, under the providence of God and the favour of the Holy See, as its first Bishop a divine of such great learning, courage and zeal in the cause of religion and morality. Through many changes and vicissitudes, and in the face of many difficulties, the Catholics of Peterborough had always stood firmly by the faith, and that too, when priests and churches were few in number. How thankful then should they not now feel when their town had been made the seat of Episcopacy, and with their bishops, priests and good sisters, and churches, convents and schools multiplying everywhere. It is the proud boast of Catholics to be always obedient to their pastors and to the church, but how specially agreeable must that duty be to them when it is paid to an ecclesiastic of Bishop Jamot's exalted virtues, who, by his example and precept and labour, seeks to promote not only the spiritual, but the temporal welfare of his flock. He said he was but expressing the feelings of all Catholics, and of Protestants as well, some of whom he was glad to see present, when he said it was their fondest hope that Almighty God may spare his Lordship for many a decade of such anniversaries, to guide and to direct and watch over his people.

His Lordship then thanked the citizens for their attendance and encouragement, on behalf of the nuns and the children, and was glad to see such evidence of good feeling as he had heard expressed. The duties of his holy office did not debar him from aiding in the more secular work of promoting harmony in the community. (Applause.)

After the rendition of a beautiful instrumental selection, by Misses Annie Dunn and Cowie, the company separated, all highly delighted with the entertainment of the afternoon.

MOUNT PLEASANT.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Your correspondent, here, has not done his duty lately in reporting progress in this village and vicinity. The good and the bad are so mixed up that it is difficult to tell which predominates. A great work has and is now being done in all the departments of the churches here; the young Methodist minister is following the rule of "The great Apostle of the Gentiles," working with his own hands to relieve suffering humanity, while with words of cheer he raises the downcast and broken-hearted and points the sinner to a Saviour.

The Mount Pleasant Sabbath School had a grand entertainment, supplied by local talent (with one exception); the Presbyterian church was beautifully decorated with mottoes and evergreens. The programme was a lengthy one, after which speeches were given by Rev. Messrs Ewing and Halfpenny; presents were given to all the scholars and a beautiful card presented to each scholar by the Superintendent James McLean, Esq. Great praise is due to the public school teacher Mr. Wm. Hickson for his preparation of the pupils; also to Mr. T. H. Best for the music and to all the lady teachers for the good taste displayed in the decorations.

Although we are favored with churches there are those amongst us who care for none of these things. Satan, or those cold waves which have gone over us, has had a terrible effect on our once peaceful village; the demon of intemperance shows his cloven foot notwithstanding the vigilance of the Good Templars. When will the millennium come?

Although we did not get the "missing link" through our village, yet the Ontario & Quebec Railway will be a great boon to our village, which is situated in a very fine, healthy part of the country, which, with its energetic citizens, its tall chimneys, improved side walks, shows the effect of the N. P. in all its loveliness.

We were glad to see "Reformer" vindicate the cause of the so-named "raging" reformers of this community. No doubt he supposes that the correspondent of a reliable journal should furnish reliable statements, as true facts are surely all that a popular paper requires.

THE BAND.

Since my last correspondence, some few weeks ago, I have had the pleasure of hearing our band. It is getting quite "tony" you must know, and the citizens may be justly proud of it, and look forward to the time when on the "Court House Green," it may enable us to enjoy again the pleasant times experienced last summer, by its music.

PRETTY GOOD LOADS.

Mr. Jas. Elmhirst, and Mr. John Hope, while drawing brick for the new Presbyterian Church, did something fine in the line of drawing one day last week. Loads have been brought, by different parties, ranging from five hundred to eleven hundred bricks, but we hear that the above mentioned parties each brought in a nice little load of 1300. Pretty good loads. Who beats it?

WEEKLY SCHOOL REPORTS.

Mr. Campbell has again, by request kindly furnished us with the standing of his senior class on last week's examination. The names stand in order of merit there obtained and are as follows:—1st, David Eason and Walter Bryce; 2nd, Robt. Armstrong; 3rd, Eliza Laundreville; 4th, Dennis Kenneley; 5th, Nellie Dickson; 6th, Aggie Miller and Annie M. Kirby; 7th, Maggie Kenneley. We have obtained Mr. Campbell's consent, to furnish us, each week, with his list, for publication.

DEATHS.

Mr. D. McNevin, a life-long, and much respected resident of Otonabee near Keene passed away, on Wednesday last, after only a few days' illness. A numerously attended funeral cortege followed his remains to Keene Cemetery on Saturday last, testifying the respect in which he was held by all.

ENNISMORE.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

A large meeting of the patrons of Myrtle cheese factory, was held in the factory building, on Monday, the 18th inst., for the election of officers, and transacting any other necessary business preparatory for the ensuing season. The following was the result of the election, William Cumming, occupying the chair: Directors, William Crough, William Cumming, William Sullivan, John S. Tellford, Philip Smith. Salesmen, William Crough and John S. Tellford, re-elected. Salesman at the factory, Patrick Crough. Sec'y-Treas., Thos. Tellford, re-elected. There is every prospect of the factory in the ensuing season far exceeding its former operations, under the management of William Cribbin, our excellent cheese maker.

NORWOOD.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

NORWOOD VICTORIOUS.

A skating carnival of no small dimensions came off at the village of Warkworth on Friday evening last, when there assembled the most celebrated skaters the country for miles around could produce. A prize of a silver medal was given for the best skater, which was carried off against all competitors, by Mr. Atkinson, of this village, one of our best lacrosse players, as well as an accomplished skater. A prize of $20 was also given for the best brass band present; but only the Norwood band had the pluck to face the music, and consequently the prize, though not an exorbitant one, was awarded to our Norwood musicians. It certainly speaks well for the rising fame of our fair village, to be thus able to carry away the highest prizes at gatherings of this kind, and our hand and Mr. Atkinson are certainly to be congratulated on the additional laurels they have gained in this instance.

REUNION.

The first reunion of the season, under the auspices of the Norwood Mechanics' Institute, was held on Tuesday evening, and was a very successful affair. All the musical and literary talent who participated on the occasion were local, and all certainly acquitted themselves in a highly creditable manner, and richly entertained the large audience present. The vocalists were Mrs. Jones (a favorite singer, and one always ready and willing to assist on all occasions of this kind,) Mrs. J. Patterson, Miss Campbell, Miss Raddon, Messrs. E. Speers and Ritchie; while the literary portion of the programme was filled by Mr. Jas. Kerr, Dr. Ford, Mr. Dermo, Mrs. P. W. Stevenson and Mrs. Baptie. Bandmaster Stickles and Mr. Pringle, rendered some difficult pieces on the violin, in such a manner as to display thoroughly their efficiency upon that instrument. The Norwood cornet band also rendered valuable aid at the reunion.

SOLD.

There were rumours upon our streets last Saturday that there was another run on coal oil, but on a good many going to the shops where the oil wells were said to exist, it was found that the prices were still firm—too firm for the buyers, who expressed their disapproval and disappointment by returning with empty cans. A number of our people have procured extra-sized cans for the next depression in coal oil stocks, as it is hinted around a crash must sooner or later occur. By the way, storekeeper No. 2 claims—rightly too—that he deserves the credit of bringing down the price of coal oil at the first raid made upon this liquid.

RESUMING WORK.

Work will be resumed on the Ontario & Quebec railway in this neighborhood on Monday. A number of railway hands have already arrived to re-commence operations where the work was left off last Christmas, which will be pushed forward to Peterborough with the utmost despatch. The bridge being completed across the Indian River, there will be no cause for delay, if another snow blockade does not become again a serious obstacle in the way of construction.

PERSONAL.

The Revs. William and James Ford, of the London Methodist Conference, paid a visit to their brother, Dr. Ford, here, on Saturday last, remaining with him a few days. The Rev. gentlemen, with their brother, the doctor, were summoned to Peterborough last week to pay the last tribute of respect to their aged and widely esteemed father, Mr. Joseph Ford, who died in that town on Monday morning last. Dr. Ford and his relatives have the sincere sympathy of the people of this village and neighborhood in their bereavement.

Mr. Barber, engineer of the Ontario & Quebec railway, was in town last week, making the necessary arrangements to re-commence operations on that line in this vicinity.

Messrs. Breathen and Maboney, of this village, have purchased the saw mill in Dummer, known as the Haynard mill. From the well known enterprise of these two gentlemen, it is quite safe to predict successful operations in that quarter for the future.

WEST RIDING AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY.

To the Editor of the EXAMINER:

DEAR SIR,—Fair play on both sides. I noticed a communication in your issue of the 31st ult., over the signature of "Fair Play," but I think he does not give the Directors of the West Riding Society justice. As to his criticism of the report, if he was not there he should have been, as the Society, it is plain to be seen, is not in a flourishing condition. When the report was read the finance part was pronounced by the Auditors all right. This part the meeting had to adopt. The remainder of the report was only suggestions offered by the Secretary, and, perhaps, two or three of the Directors. This was objected to as not meeting the ideas of those present of the way to advance the Society. It was moved by T. E. Bell, seconded by G. A. Elliott, and supported by J. Garbutt and others, that this part be not adopted, and it was only carried because it was in connection with the other. I fully agree with "Fair Play" that the townships, that assist in raising the Government grant, have a right to their share of the money, and as the law is at present, they can have it. I suppose our legislators know where their support comes from, and if we must have the law changed, I think we had better have the thousands that are squandered at the Provincial Exhibition divided amongst the counties and townships, or have it so fixed that wherever a certain sum is raised the Government will give an equivalent, and have it divided so as to do the most good to the greatest number. I also agree with "Fair Play" that it would be very wrong to deprive the ladies from making exhibits—a death to the show.

As for the business men of Peterborough; if they are applied to they will do their share. I have only to refer to the last Central, when, inside of three hours, we raised a guarantee of $460.

Yours truly,
T. E. BELL.

DAIRYMEN DELIBERATE.

Meeting of the Eastern Dairymen's Association.

WEDNESDAY.

Afternoon Session.

In the afternoon, the Convention reassembled at two o'clock. There was a larger attendance of auditors than in the morning. Since the morning session there had arrived Prof. Arnold, of Rochester, Prof. Roberts, of Cornell University, C. H. Lynch, of Danville, P.Q., author of the Ontario Government manual on "Scientific Butter Making," T. M. Grover, Norwood, and Prof. Brown, of the Agricultural College, Guelph, who gave an address on the "Influence of Food on Dairy Products." The facts presented had been deducted from a series of experiments made at the Experimental Farm, Guelph, to determine the value of different foods employed. Climate and topical circumstances, as well as the time of year, affected the nature of food, and these winter experiments had been undertaken in the especial interests of Canadian farmers, whose feeding time lasted about six months. Six common Ontario cows had been selected for the experiments, and to increase their value different sets of experiments had been made on the different sets of cows in succession, under as nearly as possible similar conditions.

The first test was with what is called,

"ORDINARY" FOOD,

which consisted daily of 15 lbs. hay, 24 lbs. turnips, and 9 lbs. bran, and the daily product per head, was 16⅔ lbs. of milk of a specific gravity of 102, containing 11.5 per cent of cream by bulk, and 11 2/5 lbs. per hundred by weight. From 100 lbs. of cream were produced 28 3/5 lbs. butter, from 100 lbs. milk were produced 3½ pounds of butter, and 12 2/5 lbs. cream curd. The cost of producing one pound of the following, was: milk, 6 mills, cream, 3 cents, butter 13 cts, cheese, 7 cts.

"THE BRAN RATION"

consisted of 12 lbs. hay, and 15 lbs. bran, per day. The following was the daily result: milk, 14⅔ lbs. of a specific gravity of 102, with 13.4 per cent of cream by bulk, and 14 1/10 lbs. of cream by weight, from 100 lbs. of milk, 23 lbs. of butter, to 100 lbs. of cream, and 3¼ pounds to 100 lbs. of milk, and 10 4/5 lbs. of cheese curd from 100 lbs. of milk. The cost per pound to produce, was: milk, 5 mills, cream, 2 cents, butter 7 cents, and cheese, 5 cents.

From

"THE ROOT RATION"

consisting of 15 lbs. hay, 36 lbs. Swede turnips, and 6 lbs. of bran per head per day, was a daily product of 17 lbs. of milk of a specific gravity of 103.5, 11.9 per cent of cream, by bulk, 13 1/5 lbs. of cream, by weight, from 100 lbs. milk, 27 lbs. butter from 100 lbs. cream, 3½ lbs. butter from 100 lbs. milk, and 14⅔ lbs. cream curd; and the cost per lb. was: for milk, 6 mills, cream 2½ cents, butter, 9 cents, cheese, 5 cents.

The fourth experiment was with consisting of, daily: 18½ lbs. of oat fodder ensilage, 15½ lbs. hay, and 9 lbs. bran. The result was 15 lbs. of milk, per day of a specific gravity of 103, with 15 per cent of cream by bulk, 15½ lbs. per 100 of cream, by weight, 25½ lbs. butter from 100 lbs. of cream, 4 lbs. of butter from 100 lbs. milk, and 15 lbs cheese curd, and the cost per lb. was, for milk, 9 mills, cream, 3 cents, butter, 11 cents, and cheese, 6 cents.

In view of the lack of variety of food in winter as compared with summer, the question of ensilage assumed great importance. The result of the ensilage experiments made at the farm were detailed, and the cost of putting in a silo of 28 tons of late oats was $48. The silo on being opened at the end of three months, showed the ensilage in capital order.

Regarding the butter produced under the tests, Prof. Brown said that that from roots had the best colour, but the flavour was slightly "high." The butter from bran food was light in color, but of good flavour. That from the ensilage ration was pale in color, and of a greasy consistency, but perhaps, not bad butter. Bran gives the highest feeding ratio, roots were lower, and ensilage the lowest feeding diet in nutritive ratio.

In answer to Mr. McPherson, Prof. Brown stated that the cost of producing cheese was 1¼ cents, per lb.

Prof. Arnold in a few remarks, endorsed the address of Prof. Brown. It was not to be inferred that ensilage would not make good butter. It depended under what conditions it was fed. It should be properly mixed with other food.

Prof. Roberts, of Cornell University, said he had been experimenting on ensilage, and had been so often disappointed and elated that he must have further trial to satisfy himself.

CHEESE INSTRUCTORS.

Messrs. Whitton, of Belleville district, and Bissell, of the Brockville district, instructors of cheese makers, presented their reports, and showed what great improvements had resulted from instructions given on the subject of cheese making. Improvements had resulted in improving the quality of cheese, and of course its price. In view of these reports, a resolution was adopted endorsing the employment of instructors, and pronouncing in favor of an extension of the system.

Evening Session.

In the evening the convention resumed session. A telegram was read from Thos. Ballantyne, M. P. P., expressing his regret at his inability to be present.

CHEESE AND CHEESE MAKING.

Prof. Arnold read an elaborate paper on the above subject. He showed the commercial importance of the cheese industry. Cheese on this continent was largely used as a luxury, but in other countries it was used as a food. He enumerated various causes, some controllable and some otherwise, that influenced the quality of cheese. He had examined large quantities of cheese, and of these not more than one per cent. was up to the highest possibilities of cheese. The digestibility of cheese increased as its green stage advanced to curing, and his tests had shown that half of the solid matter of cheese was digestable. He pointed out that the chief cause of faulty cheese was the improper preparation of the rennet, and another was the practice of leaving the curd in the whey, after the latter had become sour. By the acid process one-third of the mineral matter of the curd was carried off in the whey. The result: the digestibility of the cheese was impaired. As to rennet: enough clean, sweet, properly prepared rennet, by steeping in brine, should be used, to cure the cheese in the time desired, which should not be too short. The time for taking the curd out of the whey was an important point. The best time for drawing the whey was just on the point of the appearance of acidity, or it might be drawn at any time when the curd was firm enough, so that by brisk stirring the whole of the whey might escape quickly and completely. The stirring should be brisk enough to keep the curd firm, and be continued under a temperature of about 90 degrees till the curd developed, un der the hot iron test, a cheesy taste and smell. Thorough airing of the curd, when fine and warm, allowed of the escape of all animal odors in the milk, the odors from improper food, etc. To make the work effectual, the whey must be drawn sweet. There was another way of handling curds after the whey had been drawn sweet. As soon as the whey was drawn, the curd was drawn towards the sides of the vat, at the elevated end, and briskly stirred for ten or fifteen minutes, till the whey was well drained off. Then it was allowed to pack into a solid mass, cut into pieces of convenient size and turned, to allow the whey to escape and keep all parts warmed alike. This treatment should be continued till the presence of pin holes indicated gas. The curd was then ground fine in a curd mill, and stirred enough to keep the pieces from adhering. The airing is continued till the curd takes on a tender condition and cheesy flavor, or until, when a hot iron was applied, the curd or cheese will spin out in long coarse threads. The process was an easy and safe one to follow, and was becoming deservedly more popular.

Mr. D. M. McPherson took exception to Prof. Arnold's position in regard to the drawing of the whey. It was necessary to have the whey expelled from the curd in a sweet state, but it should remain on the outside until the change. The important point to reach was the breakage of the curd into such sized fragments that the moisture should be expelled before the development of perceptible acidity, and the whey should then stay on the outside. When the acid was developed to a certain point it was impossible to expel the moisture. The rennet was most active at the point of change. If the whey were drawn off entirely sweet the cheese was liable to be deficient in moisture, and dry cheese was the result. Another thing he had noticed; when milk was cured lower than the air, the condensed air on the surface produced injurious gases, which became part of the cheese. He advocated the establishment of a Bureau for giving cheese intelligence.

The discussion was continued by Prof. Arnold and others.

In reply to questions, Prof. Arnold stated that with slightly sour milk, by washing at low temperature, a fair, but hardly a good, cheese could be made. There should not be more rennet used for old milk.

Prof. Roberts stated that salt was injurious to heavy clay soils, but was beneficial to light soils inclined to drouth.

Prof. Arnold said he would not object to discarding the "iron" and going by the nature of the curd. It was not injurious for the curd to stay in the vat unless in contact with the whey. There was no objection to ripening curd with warm water.

THURSDAY MORNING.

After routine, Mr P. R. Daly, Treasurer, presented the finance report, which showed that the receipts for the year ended Feb. 20th, 1884, were $1,983.90, and the disbursements, $1,698.33, leaving a balance of $284.57, which, the Treasurer explained, would be wiped out by the expense of the present convention. The report was pronounced correct.

"BETTER METHODS"

Professor Roberts of Cornell University Ithaca, N. Y., then delivered a splendidly practical address, on the above subject. A synopsis can hardly secure the cream of it for it was, like Jersey milk, nearly all cream. He said that the present tendency of efforts to improve the dairy were in the direction of increasing the yield This was well, but improvements in other directions should receive attention. Farming demanded a diversity of industry. His motto should be to spend little and always have something to sell, and his method to keep everything employed all the year round. If one product did not pay sufficiently, diversify and cultivate other things. The wheat yield in Seneca County, N Y., had fallen off, and the value of the farms had depreciated $20 per acre. Some farmers were wise enough to diversify, by raising sheep and cattle, and they had succeeded. He then gave an outline of his methods of farming on the Cornell University farm, to illustrate his ideas of diversified husbandry. The farm contained 155 acres. From May to December the receipts from milk amounted to $3.947,56, and from milk beef and calves, for 19 months, $6,264,80. The gross receipts from live stock and their products were $6,600,92, and the profit on live stock, $5,367.42. Cotton seed meal was the best fertiliser, and when fed to cows giving milk the manure was a valuable fertiliser. Wheat bran as a food was worth $15 to $17, and after fed the manure was worth $13. They did not pay enough attention to the manurial value of feed. The manure of the milch cows of Ontario during the six cold months of the year, if properly fed, would be worth twice as much as their milk.

He referred to the satisfactory result of careful cultivation, and the use of manure from cattle liberally fed, at the University farm. The manure was kept under cover, and they controlled temperature and moisture. The university dairy farm was conducted for the purpose of experimenting, enriching the farm, producing milk, beef and cattle. He explained the methods of the Hollanders in keeping their dairy supplied with the best cattle, by not raising too many and only the best. There should always be plenty of carefully selected young cows coming on to take the place of the discarded ones, and good cows could be raised cheaper than they could be purchased. The true way to improve the dairy cattle was to breed from grade cows and thoroughbred sires, and to select the poorest to dispose of. The gross receipts from their best cows was $160, while the poorest cows only yeilded $40—and the poor cows were soon sold. Every farmer should keep a strict account, so that he could tell how much he made and how he made it. The secret of success was to follow up successes.

Find out what succeeded, and then follow that up keenly. He urged them to pay more attention to the pastures, and to put money in the land, which was a good bank. Prof. Roberts' address if heeded is worth an untold sum to any farmer, and none should be without it. Those who wish to do themselves an immense benefit, should secure it by sending one dollar to Mr. Harford Ashley, secretary of the Eastern Dairyman's Association, Belleville, which will entitle them to a copy of the report of this meeting, containing word for word the report of the addresses of Prof. Roberts, Prof. Brown, Prof Arnold, Rev. W. F. Clarke Prof. Barnard, and all the various suggestions and valuable points brought out in the discussion.

Afternoon Session.

The first business was the election of officers, which resulted as follows:

President—D. Derbyshire, Brockville.
1st Vice-President—D. Vanderwater, Foxborough.
2nd Vice-President—Thomas Walker, Wellman's Corners.

DIRECTORS.

Div. 1—D. M. McPherson, Lancaster.
Div. 2—Ira Morgan, Metcalf.
Div. 3—Jas. Bissel, Algonquin.
Div. 4—Jas. Haggarty, West Huntington.
Div. 5—Platt Hinman, Grafton.
Div. 6—Henry Wade, Toronto.

AUDITORS.

Jas. Hamilton, Belleville; F. H. McCrea, Spring Valley.

The committee appointed to inspect the butter made under Prof. Brown's experimental feedings, reported that the butter produced from grain and roots was the best sample.

The Committee on Business recommended that the Association's Cheese Instructors be not allowed to compete in cheese at Agricultural Exhibitions, and the report was adopted.

Rev. W. F. Clarke, of Speedside, Ont., then delivered his address on MISTAKES IN DAIRY FARMING.

Rev. W. F. Clarke, of Speedside, Ont., delivered an instructive address upon "Mistakes in Dairy Farming." He advised curbing desires for novelties till all known mistakes are corrected, and all well-known methods reduced to practice. The first mistake he pointed out was that of those who go into dairying with the idea that it was an easy way of getting a living. A dairy farm was one of the busiest places he new of on earth. The second mistake was "Going it on the cheap," Dairyman should have none but the best cows, the best fodder, the best stables, the best milk pails, the best milkers, the best cans, the best factories and the best prices. The first cost of a good cow is more than that of an inferior one, but the after cost is no more, Suppose a first class dairy cow cost $100 (far above the actual figure) the interest on that is but $6 a year. She will easily give $20 a year profit over and above what can be got from a $25 scrub. Here are upwards of $15 to the good. Forty such cows are $600 a year better to their owner than 40 scrubs. A general determination to keep good dairy cows would infuse new life into cattle breeding. Demand controls supply. "Poor cow" and "cow poor" generally go together. No cow is "better than she looks. Here is the picture of a good cow irrespective of breed: Fine horns, small head, bright eyes, slim neck, fine bones, a smooth escutcheon, large bag, prominent milk veins, soft hair usually and a blonde complexion. Poor cows eat off their own heads. "The best fodder"—permanent pastures, carefully laid down with the most nutritious grasses in sufficient variety to give a toothsome bite from early spring till late in the fall; green soiling feed of some kind for the summer droughts; prime well cured hay (mainly clover), ensilage, bran, a sprinkling of meal and a taste of carrots or mangolds. Great results would follow such a bill of fare. Attention was called to the high manurial properties of clover as well as its wonderful value as food. The clover left on the field after cutting and gathering in the crop is equal in fertilising properties to ten or twelve loads of barnyard manure per acre. Adopt clover culture to remedy soil exhaustion. Slipshod farming was vigorously denounced, and in dairying it was down right dishonesty, for the dirty milk of such a farmer delivered at a factory would impair the quality of that of clean, careful farmers. A third mistake is committed in the waste of manure, chiefly arising from the fact that it is exposed to weather instead of being covered with even a rough shed of some description. Lord Kinnaird ascertained by actual experiment that covered dung brought a crop of potatoes from four to five tons per acre larger than the same quantity of uncovered dung. A shed with two ends and a roof on the side of the barn where the stable doors are placed will answer. A manure shed is a source of wealth and comfort. Carting manure to the fields in winter means loss; and every time manure is handled valuable properties pass into the air in the form of ammonia, etc. Naked fallowing is one of the greatest mistakes ever made by a dairy farmer or any other kind of farmer; fallowing is lost labor, even for the destruction of weeds. Is is far better to seed a dirty piece of ground to clover. Two years clovering has thoroughly purged land that persistent summer fallowing would not clean. It is also a mistake to think, that dairying can be successful without brains, without reading, the study of books, agricultural and dairy journals, and the acquiring of intelligent methods. It is a mistake to fight shy of associations like this or staying at home instead of attending such a cheap and excellent school of dairy husbandry.

A PLEA FOR BUTTER MAKING.

Prof. Barnard, Director of Agriculture of the Province of Quebec, read a suggestive paper, bristling with statistics, on the "Past, Present and Future of Commercial Dairying in Canada." He showed that while the cheese industry had improved, and the exports had increased, butter had remained at a standstill. In 1858 Canada imported 13,104 lbs. of cheese valued at $1,497; this increased to 16,425,025 lbs. value $1,840,284, in 1872, and 58,041,267 lbs, value $6,451,870, in 1883. But the butter trade has afforded no such reasons for congratulation. While in 1858 the Provinces of Canada exported 3,721,200 lbs. of butter, at $480,712, in 1872 19,668,448 lbs. at $2,975,175 in 1883 and to 8,166,447 lbs. at 1,705,817 in 1883 He instanced as one reason for this state of things the improvement of Canadian cheesemaking, and the great profits arising there from. Although Canadian butter-making had remained at r standstill, other countries had advanced. Denmark, for instance, shows an increase in exports to the same markets as those of Canada of over 100 per cent. The same was true of other foreign countries. The true reason, however, is in the very poor quality manufactured in Canada. In the Montreal markets, where the speaker had found from 25 to 30 per cent. of good butter, 50 to 60 per cent, was poor, Montreal butter exportors are unable to get a suitable article for the English market. An improvement was being affected in Quebec by the spread of the creamery system by circulating information on the subject, by the establishment of dairy schools and by Government aid. He pointed out the many advantages to be derived from butter dairying, and urged a more thorough and systematic developements of the system in all its branches.

Evening Session.

Rev. Mr. Clarke briefly spoke on "Northwest Competition," which had excited a good deal of interest in Western Ontario. Having spent a year in the Northwest, he thought there would be competition from that quarter, but it was of a nature that need excite no fear of immediate competition. The crop yield had been exaggerated considerably, and the exhaustive system of farming pointed to a steady diminution. In regard to dairying, it was improbable that Northwest farmers would go into that till exhaustion of soil drove them to it. On the contrary, the Northwest would be customers for dairy product for some time to come.

Mr. D. W. Dumble enquired how the soil exhaustion was to be remedied, and Mr. Clark replied that it would have to be done as in Ontario, by dairy farming and fertilizing.

Mr. H. B. Merrick stated that injured wheat had been brought from Brandon to Peterborough at 42 cents per bushel, and there need be little fear from competition for years. He added that it was impossible to get a good stand of clover in the the Northwest.

Rev. Mr. Clarke said he had seen clover in Manitoba in good condition. His recipe for growing clover was comprised in three words, "Sow it alone," and he had no doubt that would be successful in Manitoba. Clover grown with other plants could not get depth of root enough to resist the frost.

Prof. Roberts said western soils did not take kindly to grass in their new condition, but their susceptibility to taking grass increased with the introduction of sheep and and cultivation. He agreed with Rev. Mr. Clarke as to sowing clover alone if practicable, but the quick growth of weeds prevented it, and he preferred to sow with wheat. He sowed two quarts of timothy to the acre, ten days after sowing wheat, and the clover in the spring. Orchard grass if cut early was an excellent grass.

Mr. G. M. Roger asked how light, fluffy grass seeds were sown.

Prof. Roberts said the only way was to sow two or three times over on a still day.

Mr. Hinman said he had, in putting down a permanent pasture, sowed Lucerne Perenial rye, Alsike clover, blue grass, orchard grass and red clover, and cross-sowed it early in the spring, and in ten weeks it was fit for pasture. The permanent pasture had not been affected by drouth. Stock ate it with avidity.

Mr. Philp spoke highly of Lucerne clover; he cut three crops in a season.

Prof. Roberts feared Canadians did not appreciate what a magnificent soil they had for grasses, and they ought to encourage that "wonderful man, Brown," at the Agricultural College, and help him in his great experiments in grasses. He was worked too hard; he needed more help; more time to travel and compare notes with other experimenters. He urged Ontario farmers to rally round their Agricultural College, and bolster it up.

Mr. D. M. McPherson, asked Prof. Roberts what was the usual price paid for 1 and 2 year old heifers in Holstein.

The answer was that he had paid $93 for heifers part one year old. Referring to horse breeding, his experience had been that colts could be better raised in winter. A colt dropped in October, was kept in a box stall, and any one who knew how to feed a cow for milk could feed a mare. In the spring the colt could go out ready to take care of itself, and the dam was available for summer work.

In answer to Mr. McPherson, Prof. Roberts said that cotton seed meal was the best food ever tried to produce milk. In clay lands in general, Prof. Roberts approved of fall ploughing. Leached ashes were good for any soil at any time, especially on grass.

Mr. D. W. Dumble said that as an amateur farmer, he was intensely interested in the proceedings, but he was astounded that there were not a thousand of the surrounding farmers present, and he believed it had not been sufficiently advertised.

Mr. Hinman said the matter of advertising the meetings had been left to Mr. Carnegie.

VOTES OF THANKS.

Resolutions of thanks to the Mayor and Council, for the use of council chamber, to the Professors who had delivered addresses, and to the press for reports were passed.

Prof. Roberts moved seconded by Rev. Mr. Clark, that a vote of thanks be tendered to the audience who listened with such interest to the proceedings. He had attended a good many conventions, but he had never seen so attentive an audience. The resolution was adopted.

Two hundred copies of Lynch's Manual of Scientific Butter Making, published by the Ontario Government, distributed by Mr. Henry Wade, were highly appreciated by the farmers who received them.

There were a large number of specimens of dairy apparatus, etc., exhibited at the convention, among which was a most ingenious combined milking stool, bucket and strainer, shown by Mr. Bessie, and made by the Ontario Milk, Bucket Manufacturing Company, Toronto; it is a most useful apparatus, and it received high praise from Prof. Arnold, of Rochester, and Prof. Brown of Guelph, and many were purchased by farmers.

The success of the convention throughout was very satisfactory, and much credit for that is due the energetic and wide awake President, Mr. Derbyshire. The association acted wisely in re-electing him President.

APPROVING THE ONTARIO GOVERNMENT.

Moved by Porf. Barnard, seconded by Rev. Mr. Clarke and carried unanimously:

That this association highly appreciates the encouragement given from time to time to the dairy interests of Ontario by the Provincial Government and would specially express its appreciation of the manual of butter making recently issued under its auspices also conveying its thanks for 200 copies for free circulation among the members of this association.

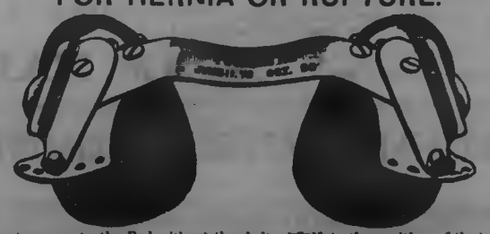
The Tucker Spring Pad Truss

FOR HERNIA OR RUPTURE.



☞ (This cut represents the Pad without the belt. ☜ Note the position of the ▷ shaped spring situated in the pad by which a CONSTANT but easy INWARD and UPWARD pressure is conveyed to the Hernia when the Pad is adjusted.)

This Truss, which is placed before your notice and consideration, is wholly unlike any other appliance in construction or principle. It dispenses with the ever uncomfortable Body Spring, having the means to convey a proper pressure just where it is required, that is in the Pad. The Tucker Truss is very light, single one weighing about 4 ozs., and the double one not 8 ozs., it completely and comfortably retains the Hernia under all positions and exertions of the body. A swivel attachment to the belt prevents displacement by locomotion or stooping, and its ready and complete adjustability by which each Pad is made either RIGHT or LEFT at once or fixed at any desired angle commends it, and also, it is more durable than any other, as there is nothing to rust or break, all the metal work being nickel plated.

AMONG THE LAKES OF NORTHERN PETERBOROUGH.

Racy Records of a Rambling Writer.

No. 3.

About four miles south of Apsley a board was noticed on a gate post, marked in large letters, "Post Office," which impressed me forcibly that "Her Majesty's Mail" must reach the settlers of this district. Driving into the yard, the acquaintance of was made (Postmaster of Burleigh P.O.), who informed me that the office was first established in the township in 1863, on lot 16, 12th concession, where it was kept for a period of ten years by Mr. James Golbourne, lumberman and miller. After his removal to the township of Anstruther, 1872, it was transferred to its present locality. Mr. Brown was born in Scotland, 1835. Since his residence in North Burleigh he has cleared a farm and erected good log buildings, and expended for the Government, during the last ten years, about three thousand dollars in improvements on the road. One peculiar feature noticeable in this country is the many additions strung together for a log barn. One can, with apparent safety, calculate the number of years of settlement of the occupant, by the the number of additions; each year's clearing being indicated by a new length of 12 feet of logs. Those who have braved sixteen winters have sixteen log beams joined together, which presents a very romantic appearance.

About two miles north, on the left-hand side of the road, there appeared in the distance,

AN ENORMOUS BLUFF,

which, upon approaching, proved to be a huge pile of granite rock, about one-fourth of a mile in length, extending from the roadway, almost perpendicularly, to an altitude of two hundred feet. At the extreme top was plainly visible a small one and a half story frame house. While standing at the base of the huge boulder, for some time lost in admiration at the strange scene which so much resembled old historic Quebec, my curosity was excited to know something of the occupants of that rock-founded castle. How to scale the height was a mystery. I reflected upon the example of the gallant General Wolfe, who constructed ladders to scale the heights of Quebec in 1759. But, for want of time, this plan seemed impracticable. After wandering around, a winding road was discerned, which led to the top. Upon opening the door, I suggested the passage of Scripture to the occupant, "A house built upon a rock," etc., and inquired if it was the one alluded to in the Good Book? It proved to be a more modern structure. Although it had withstood the gales and storms of twenty-one seasons, it seemed as firmly anchored to its foundations as when first erected. The owner and occupant was who, after the usual salutations, informed me that he was born in Hope township, Durham county, in 1827. His grandfather, Captain James Adams, at an early day, owned a large portion of the land now occupied by the city of Kingston. On the 20th of November, 1812, when the American fleet attempted to bombard the town, Capt. Adams was in command of a company of troopers, within the fortifications. At the approach of the enemy's ships, many of the citizens fled, taking their personal effects with them. Capt. Adams refused to allow his family to leave, or move any of their goods. The old gentleman was as firm as a rock, and stood by his guns, cheering his men to noble exertions, and soon had the satisfaction of seeing the intruders haul off, beating out of the channel, with their ships of war, into the open lake, completely whipped. No doubt Mr. Clifford inherited the military air and firmness of character from his loyal sire, and in selecting this impregnable, rock-bound fortress for the foundation of his home in life, acted priestly, and feels safe from the attacks of the enemy. Within the cottage it was a perfect hive of industry. The occupants were busy spinning and weaving; manufacturing various grades of cloth, which, for texture, beauty and quality of fabric, could hardly be excelled.

ROBERT CLIFFORD,

Night was fast approaching, and, after descending the mountain, I took one last look at the huge boulder which so long has been the admiration of thousands of tourists and traveller, and departed; while the old team paced off the next two miles in "fine military style," and brought me in sight of the CROWN LANDS OFFICE.

It is situated in the south-eastern portion of the township of Anstruther, about half-a-mile south of Apsley, on the left hand side of the Government road. In the rear of the building, to the north and west, the land rises in a succession of steep ridges and valleys; while to the east of the road, a short distance, Eels' Creek crosses in a south-westerly direction; while still further east, the land rises in a steep abrupt bluff, composed of red granite rock, with a few scattering dry pines, indicative of desolation. On the right hand side of the road are large frame barns of modern design, apparently well-filled with the products of the soil, which, in the valley, is a good sandy loam. Having been annually overflowed for years by spring freshets from the river, a rich alluvial deposit has been formed, rendering it very productive.

The Government Crown Lands office is a wooden structure, painted red, one and a half stories high, with a verandah along the front and sides, the whole enclosed by a handsome picket fence; it presents an air of comfort, reminding one of "sweet home." The building was originally erected (1863) by Thomas Stuart, for a hotel, and was used for that purpose until February, 1871, when the farm and hotel were purchased by the present Crown Lands Agent, who immediately opened the first temperance house north of Peterborough, which he conducted for several years. Mr. Anderson is a native Canadian, from the township of Douro. He seemed quite willing to impart any information respecting the past, present and future prospects of the people of this district. From him it was learned that the Government, in 1861, let the contract for the construction of the Burleigh Road, from Busby Falls, north-east through the townships of Burleigh, Anstruther, Chandos and Cardiff, in the provisional county of Haliburton, a distance of about forty miles, along the valley traversed by Eels' Creek. It being a rough, rocky country, it was then considered a great undertaking. The contract was given to

MR. DUNCAN ANDERSON,

MR. JAMES WALSH,

and the road completed as far as the twenty-first mile post the same year. Previous to this the northern townships had been surveyed, and the only means of access to this country was over surveyors, roads, used for transporting supplies. In 1862 the northern portion of the road was completed by sub-contractors, and the land thrown open for settlement. All lots along the line of the road were "free grants"; outside of that belt settlers were compelled to pay one dollar per acre on time, or seventy cents, cash. Until 1868, at the sitting of the first Parliament after Confederation, the lands then unoccupied (except pine lands) became free, the townships of Burleigh and Methuen not being included, are still held as Crown lands and sold at one dollar per acre cash, under the mining Act, but, when entered for the purpose of settlement and cultivation, one dollar per acre is charged; one-fifth down, and the balance in four annual instalments, with interest. This district, at the present time, embraces the townships of Anstruther and Chandos, in the county of Peterborough, and Cardiff and Monmouth, in the provisional county of Haliburton. The whole number of patents issued to date in the free grant district is 314. About 50 per cent. of the land of Chandos and Monmouth, 60 per cent. of Cardiff, and 75 per cent. of Anstruther is still Government land.

STAPLES & ERRETT, OF PETERBOROUGH,

Since Mr. Anderson has taken up his residence in this district he has greatly improved his farm property, it now being under a good state of cultivation. In 1877 he was commissioned a magistrate, and since then has acted in that capacity. He is an earnest advocate of temperance reform, and takes an advanced position with men and measures.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

Fifth Parliament—Second Session.

TUESDAY, FEB. 19TH.

To-day the excitement over the Pacific Railway resolution reached fever heat. For a few hours there was the possiblity entertained that the administration was in danger. The Quebec members, it appears, had not had their terms met and absented themselves from the House in a body; they demanded more than Sir John was willing to pay.

As the debate progressed and the time when the division would become inevitable drew near, the excitement among the Quebec members increased. During the past two days scarcely a member from Quebec could be seen in his seat. Caucus after caucus was held. The members kept themselves in communication with Sir Langevin who imparted all the proceedings to his colleagues.

The debate on the resolutions was carried on with great vigor, especially on the part of the opposition members. Mr. Charlton made a speech of three hours duration and it is generally conceded that it was one of his ablest efforts. His matter was capital and as he departed from the old line of argument and fearlessly denounced the members of the syndicate, the effect on the house was telling. He discussed the past history of the members of the syndicate and dealt some heavy blows at Mr. Stephen, whose little game of using $8,000,000 of Montreal bank funds when he was president for speculative purposes, he denounced as dishonest and deserving of severe punishment. He quoted past events to show that members of the government had aided and abetted the syndicate in their scoundrelly and dishonest transactions, of which stock watering was the principal one. When called to order he regretted that in stating a fact he had violated parliamentary usage.

Mr. Laurier concluded the debate ending the struggle at 1,20 a. m; Mr. Cameron's amendment to the Pacific Railway resolutions was voted down by a majority of 70—132 to 62. It was evident that the French members had had their demands acceded to. It is needless to say that the names of Messrs Burnham and Hilliard were found among those voting a gift of thirty million dollars to a railway company that had secured already more than enough to build the line.

WEDNESDAY FEB. 20th.

The debate on the C. P. R. resolutions was resumed. Mr. Vail, (Digby, N. S.,) moved in amendment the six months hoist. Mr. Blake in a terse and able speech moved in amendment to the amendment; "That before asking this House to go on with the consideration of the resolutions for the aid to the Canadian Pacific Railway Company the Government should lay before the House its proposals with regard to any further subsidies to be granted to the provinces or the Company or any other aids to be provided, or other works to be secured in connection with the great scheme of the transcontinental railway, with Canadian termini." He criticised the government severely for the paucity of the information given concerning the Government relations with the C. P. R., and entered into an examination of the data before him concerning the terminal points of the railway on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts, and the terms with British Columbia. He wished information concerning the branch lines in Manitoba and the Sault Ste Marie line, Sir Charles Tupper replied expressing his faith in the estimates and promises of the Company, and attacking the G. T. R. After recess the debate was continued on the opposition side by Messrs. Vail, Auger, Platt, Gilmour and Cook, and on that of the Government by Messrs. McNeil, Sproule, Houde and Homer, Mr. Houde criticizing the policy of the railway severely, however. The division on Mr. Blake's amendment was then taken, which was declared lost by a vote of 62 yeas to 137 nays. Majority against 75. Mr. Vail's motion was then put and lost, yeas 63, nays 136. The main motion was then and carried on the same division reversed viz. 136 yeas to 63 nays. The House then went into committee of the whole on the C. P. R. resolutions, and all the clauses were passed. Mr. Ouimet exculpated Mr. Blake from the charges brought against him by the Mail, of trying to bribe the Quebec Bleus, and characterized it as an insult to both Mr. Blake and the Quebec Bleus also. The House adjourned at 3.10 a. m.

THURSDAY. FEB. 21ST.

In the House of Commons Mr. Robertson, of Hamilton, introduced several bills to amend the criminal laws.

Mr. Blake asked for information respecting the estimated cost of unfinished parts of the Pacific Railway, and also the running of the C. P. R. steamers. Mr. Mulock's bill to amend the consolidated Railwey Act was read a second time. Mr. Cameron, of Inverness, moved for papers concerning the necessity of increasing salaries of certain customs officials. After discussion, the motion was passed, and the House adjourned.

FRIDAY, FEB. 22ND.

In the House of Commons to-day Mr. White, of Cardwell, introduced, a bill to amend the consolidated statutes of Lower Canada with respect to seditious associations. On the moving of Sir John Macdonald's resolution giveng precedence to concurrence in the Pacific Railway Loan Resolutions, Mr. Watson moved in amendment to the effect that the railway monopoly in the North-West should be abandoned by the C. P. Company. After speeches by Messrs. White (of Hastings), Cameron (of Inverness), Kirk, Scott, and Baker, the amendment was put and lost by 112 to 49, Another amendment, moved by Mr. Weldon, with the object of providing that the Atlantic terminus of the Pacific Railway should be on Canadian territory, was also voted down by 43 to 104. The resolutions to give away $30,000,000, or an amount equal to the whole of the wheat crop of Canada for one year, were then concurred in, a bill founded upon them introduced, and the House adjourned.

Thousands Say so.

Mr. T. W. Atkins, Girard, Kan., writes: "I never hesitate to recommend your Electric Bitters to my customers, they give entire satisfaction and are rapid sellers." Electric Bitters are the purest and best medicine known and will positively cure Kidney and Liver complaints. Purify the blood and regulate the bowels. No family can afford to be without them. They will save hundreds of dollars in doctors' bills every year. Sold at 50 cents a bottle by Taylor & Macdonald.

The sheriff who was sent to collect from John Shields the amount of the cost of his abandoned libel suit against the Globe has reported nulla bona. Where, asks the Hamilton Times, did Shields get the money to supply the frozen whiskey and other Tory election requisites for Muskoka? The Star-Chamber investigation now gowing on at Ottawa might reveal the facts.

Plain Truths!

The blood is the foundation of life, it circulates through every part of the body and unless it is pure and rich, good health is impossible, if disease has entered the system the only sure and quick way to drive it out is to purify and enrich the blood.

These simple facts are well known and the highest medidical authorities agree that nothing but iron will restore the blood to its natural condition; and also that all the Iron preparations hitherto made blacken the teeth, cause headache, and are otherwise injurious.

SULPHUR AND IRON BITTERS will thoroughly and quickly assimulate with the blood, purifying and strengthening it and thus drive disease from any part of the system, and it will not blacken the teeth cause headache or constipation and is positively not injurious.

St. Johnsbury, Vermont Oct. 2nd 1883.

For six years I have been a great sufferer from blood disease, dyspepsia and constipation, and became so debilitated that I could not retain anything on my stomach, in fact life had almost become a burden, and when hope had almost left me, I was induced to give SULPHUR AND IRON BITTERS a trial. I am now taking the third bottle and have not felt so well in six years as I do at present.

MRS. S. L. MOORE.

SULPHUR AND IRON BITTERS effectually cures dyspepsia, indigestion and weakness, and renders the greatest relief and benefit to persons suffering from such diseases as kidney and liver complaints, dyspepsia, indigestion etc.

PETERBOROUGH, FEB. 28, 1884.

Our Enlargement.

It was the intention of the proprietor of THE EXAMINER to have issued this journal in an enlarged form by the present date, but his paper manufacturers having shipped a large consignment of paper of the size used in the present form of the paper, earlier than usual to prevent delay in case of a snow or freight blockade, and THE EXAMINER paper being a special size he decided, in justice to himself and his manufacturers to utilize that supply and print it out before enlarging the size of the THE EXAMINER. But in the course of three months the paper will be enlarged by an equivalent of five columns beyond its present size. It will then be the largest rural weekly newspaper in Ontario. At the same time other improvements will be made, such as will add to its interest and make it more worthy of the liberal encouragement which the public have bestowed upon it in the past.

The Budget.

The Parliamentary event of the week has been the financial statement of the Hon. A. M. Ross, Provincial Treasurer. It occupied the unusually long time of over three hours in delivery, and was by far the most thorough exposition ever yet given of the Provincial finances. Owing to the peculiar manner in which the joint debt of the old Province of Canada and its joint assets were disposed of when it was divided into Ontario and Quebec, there has never been a clear settlement made of the claims of the latter, either as against each other, or as against the Dominion, which assumed their debt. Part of the delay was caused by the actions of Quebec in obstinately refusing, until compelled by the decree of the Privy Council, to submit to the award of the arbitrators appointed under the British North America Act. That decree was, however, given some years ago, and it is not easy to see why there should have been so long a delay in getting the accounts finally closed. That we are in a fair way for such a consummation now is evident from Mr. Ross' speech, for he is not merely an expert accountant, but an energetic administrator. A considerable portion of his statement was devoted to an explanation of the items in dispute between the Province and the Dominion. The Finance Department at Ottawa has issued a Blue Book, containing a statement of the account as it stands between the Dominion on the one hand, and Ontario and Quebec on the other; but Mr. Ross maintains that the claims of Ontario are, in it, quite incorrectly represented. He makes out that the Dominion owes this Province over two and a half millions instead of less than one million, and he intimated very plainly that the Government of the Province means to press its claims for all they are worth. The manner in which this assurance was received by the Opposition was significant of sympathy with Ottawa, but Mr. Ross quickly silenced certain ominous cheers, by expressing the hope that on this question at least the Government would be able to rely on the patriotic support of the whole House. In view of the interests at stake in this matter alone, it is a fortunate thing that the Mowat Government were not defeated at the late general election. Quebec can depend on her representatives in the House of Commons to see that she gets justice, or a little more; Ontario has been compelled to depend on her own Provincial Government to get even her scant due. That the struggle to obtain our Provincial rights in this matter will be sternly and ably maintained to the bitter end, goes without saying. The assurance to that effect is given in the Budget speech, and recent events at Ottawa have shown that Ontario must henceforth look out for her own interest like other Provinces, and throw the responsibility of making trouble where it belongs, that is, on the shoulders of the present Government at Ottawa.

The financial statement shows that though there was last year an expenditure above the receipts of over four hundred thousand dollars, the monetary affairs of the Province are in excellent condition. The assets make a total of $4,740,624, while the liabilities amount to only $356,-413. The difference is, of course, the surplus capital on hand, amounting this year to $4,384,241, all of which is in one way or another productive of revenue. If Mr. Ross can make good the claim of the Province to another two and a half millions he will bring the normal surplus up to nearly seven and a half, for the amount this year is unusually small, owing to fluctuation in Crown lands and timber receipts, and exceptional expenditures. The expenditure for the year appears to be nearly at its normal amount, as it has increased only $87,000 during the past ten years. Next year the Treasurer, who is evidently not disposed to err by being too sanguine, anticipates a deficit of about $40,000, but it is pretty safe to predict that the balance will nevertheless come out on the right side of the account. He proposes to diminish the annual expenditure by issuing new railway scrip for a longer term of years, instead of paying up the scrip at present outstanding, and he proposes to increase the annual revenue by imposing for Provincial purposes a much heavier liquor license fee. The increased revenue from the latter source is estimated at $200,000, and should the lumber trade prove to be at all brisk, there is likely to be a considerable surplus instead of the anticipated deficit. The addition to the license fee is in accordance with the request of the temperance agitators; it is not adverse to the license holders, and it is perfectly equitable on the ground that, as the Province expends large sums yearly on prisons, hospitals and asylums, which are largely peopled by the victims of intoxicating drink, the traffic in the latter should be made to pay for their maintenance. This is a kind of social reform legislation to which nine-tenths of the community will subscribe, the only limit that can be imposed, being the necessity of not raising the fee so high as to make it too profitable for unlicensed vendors to prosecute their trade. Such a measure, coupled with absolute forfeiture of license for voluntary infractions of the law, will do much to make the liquor seller's calling as respectable and as harmless as it is capable of being made.

The task of reviewing the Budget speech was this year assigned to Mr. Creighton, whose ability and industry have at last met with their reward from his friends. He has been placed this session in the front row, beside Mr. Lauder, who sat next to Mr. Morris, and he next to Mr. Meredith. Now, in all probability, Mr. Creighton will take his deceased colleague's seat, and thus take his proper position in the ranks. He is the most effective opponent of the Government, not even excepting his leader, whom he excels in Parliamentary insight, though he lacks his fine presence and good style of speaking. Mr. Creighton's task this year was a difficult one, but he struggled manfully with it. He could not have anticipated the line of Mr. Ross' argument, and therefore was in no position to reply to it off-hand. All he could do was to repeat his contention of former years, that some of the alleged assets are not entitled to be ranked as such, and that, for this reason, the surplus is not as great as the Government make it out to be. It is obvious that this difference of opinion resolves itself into a mere question of book-keeping methods. So long as any capital sum is bearing interest for the benefit of the Province, it makes no difference whether we can touch the principal or not. If we had the money handed over to us we would have to find some way of investing it, and it is just as well to leave it where it is. The only advantage to be gained by drawing it would be to have it absolutely under our own control in the event of a break up of the Dominion, and, as Mr. Creighton does not fear anything of that sort, he need not distress himself about the un-get-at-ableness—if we may use the expression—of the so-called trust funds. As Mr. Ross admitted to the House that he, himself, had not been able to go very thoroughly into the open accounts with the Dominion, and as his statement has furnished some new lines of inquiry for the Opposition, it is not unlikely that a good deal of time may, during the rest of the session, be spent in discussing financial topics. In view of this fact it was a piece of bad strategy for Mr. Meredith, the other evening, to insist on an adjournment of the Budget debate, instead of allowing the House to go into Committee of Supply, and pass unopposed items. There are always a number of questions to be asked for information in connection with votes of public money, and to stop the House from going into Committee means a prolongation of the session unnecessarily. No right of the Opposition to speak on the financial situation was at stake, for every one who wishes has has an opportunity every time the Treasurer moves the House into Committee again. Mr. Meredith is too intelligent not to understand this, and therefore his persistence in wishing the debate adjourned must be attributed to some other cause not creditable to him as a public man, or very full of promise for his future as a party leader.

The doctrine of Provincial rights will be once more the theme, as it was during the debate on the address, one side holding up patriotism to the Dominion as the highest motive, the other side holding up fealty to the Province. In questions of finance the latter view is likely to have full weight, and, therefore, the Government can count with safety on the support of the House in any effort to get the claims of Ontario fully and immediately recognized. Should the Dominion Government undertake to reward the other Provinces for their support of the loan to the C.P.R., there is every likelihood of a formal protest being voted by the Assembly of this Province, against the granting of favors in which Ontario is not allowed to share. And what is to be the end of this gigantic game of grab? We shall see.

Money No Object.

The apathy of the people in regard to the manner in which the Dominion Governmen is making "ducks and drakes" of the people's money is something impossible to understand. It must be that they have become accustomed to the sound of millions of dollars, so glibly talked about during the debate on the Pacific "loan" resolutions, and do not realize the enormous amount of money a million is. To judge by the way the Government squanders millions like scores, on the Syndicate, one would suppose that every back township in the Dominion were an Ophir. So far in the history of the Syndicate the people have footed the enormous bills, and the company has expended very little of its own funds—except on palatial residences for themselves—and yet the Government ask the representatives of the people to fling another thirty millions into the coffers of the Syndicate, already bulging with the public money, and a pliant majority, including, of course, the faithful members of these ridings, have voted straight for the "steal." To their credit, be it said, the representatives of other Provinces kicked against voting for the "steal"—they would not swallow the hook unless it was baited with something substantial, not for themselves, personally, but for the Provinces they represented; but the Tory representatives of Ontario took the hook bare, and gulped down the "steal" without a qualm of conscience. Their party loyalty swallowed up every consideration of patriotism and fealty to their Province. Representatives of other Provinces committed the sin of voting for the resolutions, feeling themselves excused on account of their Provinces getting some compensating advantage; but Ontario's Tory representatives gratuitously committed the outrage upon the country of voting $20,000,000 to a road which will never repay one cent, and that without any security worthy of the name. To them the country was forgotten; money was no object; the whips turned the crank, and the voting machines ground out their venal votes.

With an enormous debt already saddled on the country, let us see what additions the Government has, with its reckless use of public money, made to the burdens of the country; and the amount that will have entered the fathomless maw of the Syndicate in 1886 is as follows:

Original subsidy	$35,000,000
Present loan	22,500,000
Land subsidy at $3 per acre	75,000,000
Roadway, etc., built by the Government	30,000,000
Deposit on guarantee surrendered	7,380,912
Interest	16,000,000
Total	$186,880,912

That is about $43 per head to every man, woman and child in the Dominion—over $900,000 to each riding, or over a million dollars and a half to East and West Peterborough, and about $250 to every ratepayer. Yet blind party zeal leads our representatives to squander the people's money like water. None dares say that the finances of the country are not becoming terribly demoralised under the mismanagement of the present Tory Administration; but still the game goes on bravely. In other ways reckless waste and corruption are rampant. Millions are squandered on political favorites, who are expected to make a return by giving assistance at election times. So that the very bread is not only taken from the people's mouths, but their own money is used to compass the prostitution of their political morality to maintain a Tory Government in place, to whom the nation's money is no object so long as it can be used to promote the retention of their unrighteous power. It is hard, looking at the perilous state of the times, to refrain from using the hackneyed inquiry, whither are we drifting? Heaven keep the country, for vain, it seems, is the help of man.

Rats leave a sinking ship. Is it on this principle that Sir Charles Tupper is announced to retire from the Cabinet at the end of the present session? Sir Charles entered public life a poor man, and retires from it a rich man. Does he retire from the Ministry because the lavish expenditures, the ruinous extravagance, the free gift of millions to a spendthrift Syndicate, leave nothing substantial worth living for, politically?

The Mail is shamelessly mendacious. It squarely lied when it asserted that Mr. Blake was negotiating the purchase of the Quebec Conservative vote on the Pacific loan. The assertion is flatly denied both by Mr. Blake and by Mr. Ouimet, on behalf of his fellow-Tories, who are very indignant at the Mail. But one need not be surprised that a journal that could endorse the Pacific steal, should say anything.

The Dairyman's Convention.

We suppose the farmers of this vicinity know their own business; still, we can not help thinking that they were forgetful of their best business and interests in not attending the immensely instructive meetings of the Dairymen's Convention held in Peterborough last week. The subjects discussed were of vital and everyday importance to farmers, and no agriculturist, however skilful, could have failed, by attending, to have received knowledge, ten times beyond any cost in exertion—for that was the only cost involved—of attending the meetings of the Convention. There were present scientific agriculturalists, not mere theorists—but practical and intensely earnest men, who, by study and perseverance, have conquered the secrets of science and made them servants to the work of the farm. They had much to tell, and they told it in a familiar, plain, practical way, and those who were present carried away many valuable facts, which will aid them in their work and contribute to the success of their farming operations. Every other profession but farming requires a special training; while this business—the most intricate, the most scientific, involving the most thought and shrewdness—too often is left to the mercy of traditional ignorance of the principles that underlie its operations; all success is trusted to the blind chance of blindly conducted experiments, aimless except so far as to discover how much the soil will give without receiving a return. Farming, like every other industry, is going on in the march of progress, and that farmer who relies on the old worn-out methods, and worn-out soil to boot, will, sooner or later, find himself left behind both in position and pocket. It was, indeed, a misfortune that more of our farmers, most of whom strive to keep step with the times, were not given to understand more fully the nature of the Association; if they had been, we are sure a much larger attendance would have resulted.

Dominion License Fees.

A new aspect has been given to the liquor license question and the McCarthy Act, by the assertion that it is within the constitutional competency of the Local Legislature to raise the fee for licenses issued by the Dominion Government to such a price as to virtually prohibit such licenses being taken out. If Sir John forces the fighting the Local House will doubtless show that gentleman that it holds the whip hand in the matter of license fees. Accordingly, on Tuesday, Hon. Mr. Hardy gave notice of a resolution to be the basis of an Act, fixing the amounts to be paid for licenses under the McCarthy Act, as follows:—Wholesale licenses, $350; city, $300; town, $250; village, $150; township, $120; vessel, $250; and the resolution repudiates the right of the Dominion to pass any license law; but if the Courts should decide the McCarthy Act legal, it would be wise for the Province to have the fees fixed. The Ontario Government will not allow the fruits of years of beneficial operation of the Crooks Act to be nullified by the vindictive usurpation of Sir John Macdonald.

Our Member.

"Sarah" seems to be systematically sat on in Toronto. On Tuesday night he delivered one of his characteristic speeches in the budget debate, in the course of which Mr. Ross gave Mr. Carnegie a well-deserved castigation for "cowardice," as the Minister of Education termed it, in bringing a personal insinuation which he dared not make as a charge. Mr. Ross then entered into a full explanation of his connection with W. J. Gage & Co., which he said was purely in connection with the Canada School Journal and lecturing, had no relation whatever to school readers or text books, and was quite within the law. Mr. White, who afterwards addressed the House, expressed himself as satisfied with Mr. Ross' explanation. Mr. Carnegie's coarse style of insinuating when he has not the courage to make a direct charge, is no new thing to the people of this riding.

Hawkin's Removal.

On Monday the Supreme Court gave its decision in the Bothwell election appeal, and decided that the Hon. Mr. Mills was entitled to the seat which Hawkins, Sir John's usurping protege, held unjustly, and without a shadow of a right, last session and part of the present. The decision is a direct snub to Sir John, who used and aided Hawkins as a tool in his attempt to keep a dreaded opponent, Hon. Mr. Mills, from the House.

Ottawa misgovernment threatens, not only to waste the public funds to purchase political support, but to waste the blood of Canadians. The Indians of the North-west are in open rebellion—they have seized the Government stores at Crooked Lake, and refuse to give up possession. They are well armed, and there is every probability of bloodshed. The uprising is the result of filling the Indian Department with political hacks. The Indians have never before given similar trouble, because faith has been kept with them. But ever since the advent of Sir John's creature, Lieut.-Governor Dewdney, there has been trouble with the natives. Treaty promises have been broken, and a course of petty tyranny pursued, which has resulted in the present uprising. But little else could have been expected. Trickery and dishonesty at the fountain-head—Ottawa—has infected the subordinates, and the result of Sir John's converting the Indian Department into a bureau for rewarding political hacks, is likely to be bloodshed and the loss of many valuable lives.

Editorial Notes.

A rousing Liberal demonstration is to be held in Lennox on Saturday, March 1st. Mr. Charlton, M.P., has accepted an invitation to address the gathering.

Sir John's theoritical Liquor License Act does not seem inclined to work smoothly. The Wardes of Frontenac has declined to act on the Board of Commissioners.

A Parliamentary return shows that the penitentiaries of the country contain 1,111 men, and 31 women. Does this fact go to prove that women are not worthy of a vote?

The Dominion House of Commons Sub-Committee on Private Bills has passed the bill to incorporate the Methodist Church. The amendments resolved on are unimportant.

According to Parliamentary returns, the quantity of spirituous liquors consumed in Canada in 1883 was 3,760,386 gallons, and the quantity of malt liquors was 13,192,505 gallons.

The Syndicate is extending its monopoly grip, and the St. Lawrence and Ottawa railway is to pass under the control of this great corporation, whose hand has been fastened on the throat of Canada, by the help of the Tory Government, so firmly that the cash must come at the demand of "Your money, or your life!" But the Syndicate is getting both the national money and the national life. When will public infatuation come to an end?

The Tory journals are very ready with flippant charges of disloyalty against Reformers, arraigning the latter for depreciating and injuring the Northwest. Among these charges was one that Reformers originated the frozen wheat cry. It turns out, however, that the Tory Montreal Gazette was the first newspaper in Canada to publish a telegram from a Tory correspondent, stating that "fully one half" of Manitoba wheat was ruined by frost. The Tories have so many sins to answer for that it is only natural that they should seek to shoulder some of them off on Reformers.

Manitoba matters are reaching a crisis. The discontent with the Dominion Administration's unjust treatment of Manitoba, and with Federal usurpation of Provincial rights, is so out-spoken that Sir John has recalled Premier Norquay to Ottawa, having possibly decided to give some measure of relief to Manitoba's grievances. The high taxes, Dominion control of Provincial lands, the grinding burden of the Syndicate monopoly, and disallowance of local railway charters, are more than our Northwest brethren propose to tamely endure.

Mr. A. W. Lauder, M.P.P. for East Gray, died suddenly in Toronto on Wednesday last. His was a familiar figure in the Legislature, he having been one of the three members present this session who have been continuously in the Legislature since Confederation. His death will be a great loss to the Conservative party. He was one of the leading members of the Opposition, and pretty certain of a portfolio in a new cabinet, in the remote chance of a change of Government. He was 50 years of age, and a prominent member of the Methodist church.

The Ottawa Free Press remarks respecting the treaty with British Columbia:—"It is insisted that Canada is bound to keep the treaty with British Columbia. Very good, but how is it now? A San Francisco ring has, with the connivance of the Dominion and Local Governments, taken absolute possession of Vancouver Island. They own it. We people of old Canada, therefore, must tax ourselves to the extent of $100,000,000—think of it—to keep faith with whom? A gang of reprobates who corrupted a Legislature and approached the Bench with a bribe! Truly things have arrived at a pretty pass under Macdonaldite government.

THE PROVINCIAL BUDGET.

Hon. Mr. Ross Presents His Financial Statement.

After the disposal of routine business at the House on Thursday, Mr. Treasurer Ross rose to make the annual statement of the assets and liabilities, receipts and expenditures, and the estimates for the ensuing year. The total receipts from all sources for 1883 were $2,436,941.42, of which sum the Dominion subsidy furnished the largest amount, $1,323,569.42, Crown lands furnished $636,447.26, licenses, $96,460.50, public institutions, $9,946,43, interest, $76,578,29, the balance being made up from other sources. The revenue from most of the sources was to some extent stationary, but the revenue from Crown lands was to some extent an

INDEX OF THE PROSPERITY

of the country. He regretted that there was a deficiency in the revenue from Crown lands owing to the depression which had prevailed for the last few months of the year. There was also a deficiency in the receipts from public institutions. The expenditures had been $2,887,037.73. There had been an increase in some departments over the estimates for last year, caused by an over expenditure for civil government, the cost of repairs and furniture for Government house, repairs to the east wing, and a new institution for the Provincial Board of Health. Also by an over expenditure for legislation arising from stationery and printing, sessional writers and repairs to the chamber. With regard to the first two of these, the Opposition were as responsible as the Government. With regard to the repairs no apology was needed. There had also been an over expenditure in the north-western part of the Province of $9000 or thereabouts, not $40,000, as had been stated by the hon. gentleman opposite. The expenditure for

PUBLIC INSTITUTIONS

was an ever increasing one, and this was not altogether under the control of the Government. He was glad, however, to say that in his opinion the maximum had been reached in the cost of maintaining the institutions for the deaf and dumb and the blind, the reformatory for boys and the central prison, and in future years these would show little if any increase. The gross cost of maintaining prisoners in the latter institution per capita had decreased from $172.90 in 1875 to $171.72 in 1883. He regretted to state that they had not yet overtaken the requirements for asylums for the insane. In 1873 the number of inmates had been 1,780, and the total cost of their maintainance $201,478; in 1883 the number was 3,285, and the cost $377,095, and in his opinion they had

NOT YET REACHED THE MAXIMUM.

The cost per capita had, however, decreased from $132.11 in 1873 to $131.01 1883; this was much lower than in the United States, where according to a return he held in his hand, the lowest in any institution was $227.75 per head. This too, when the cost was borne by the municipalities where the patient had resided, and where they therefore would maturally be more careful of the expenditure.

IMMIGRATION.

There had been an increase in the cost of immigration owing to an increase in the number of those settling in the province of about $5,000. There had also been an increase in the expenditure for the purpose of agriculture and arts of about $7.000, caused by the adoption of a new system of collecting the returns. The total expenditures on revenue account had been $2,648,171, while the estimated expenditure had been $2,606,151.

ASSETS & LIABILITIES.

The assets of the Province were $4,740,654. 95 and the total liabilities $356,413,03, showing a surplus of $4,384,241.92. There was an account open with the Dominion in connection with the old Province of Canada which they had hoped to have had settled before this. The statement of the Dominion Government had only been furnished in a blue book issued in December last and in this it was found that the Dominion had made some very exceptional charges which they disputed on account of the Province. The Provincial Government had been under the impression that the Act of 1873 had wiped out the debt of the old Province of Canada, but the way in which the Dominion Government account is made up the Province is charged with interest on account of it. The bill of 1873, was understood to explain the British North America Act of 1867, and if the views of the Ontario Government prevail there will be a difference in favour of the province of over two and a millions of dollars. The Dominion Government had evidently made up a statement charging everything, just and unjust, that they could think of and many of these charges the Government of which he was a member disputed. The surplus of the Province had been in 1873, $4,332-294, in 1874, $5,756,352, in 1883 it was $4, 384,241. They could safely count on a revenue from the sale of Crown Lands for many years and the receipts for the last year were only $15,000 less than the average of the past ten years, notwithstanding the depression of which he had spoken.

An estimate of the probable amount of timber land yet available had been made, and it showed that there was of good timber land yet undisposed of all of which was south of the line of the Canadian Pacific Railway and did not therefore include the timber lands in the disputed territory. (cheers) This was estimated to be worth now at least $500 a square mile, showing a total value of $10,000,000. Then too this would greatly enchance in value in consequence of the rapid depletion of the timber land in the United States. The expenditures of the Government in 1873 had been $2,460,212; in 1883 they were $2,548,117, while the average for the past ten years was $2,326,115. The difference between the expenditures ten years ago and now was only $87,959, or only three and a half per cent. The receipts in 1873 were $2,932,564, and in 1883, $2,439,941, while the average receipts were $2,534,908.

After recess Mr. Ross resumed his statement and said that in comparing expenditures for Civil Government several changes should be made to make it equal. When this was done it would be seen that the expenses on this account in 1873 were $175,914, and in 1883, $104,187 and 1883 had been an exceptional year as far as some expenses were concerned. Then, too, while the population had increased from 1,020,351 in 1873 to 1,933,228, in 1883, or 13½ per cent, there had only been an increase in expenses of 10½ per cent.

If a comparison were made with the Province of Quebec it would be found that while the population there had increased only 12½ per cent the cost of civil government had increased 32 per cent. The cost of legislation in Ontario had increased only 11½ per cent while in Quebec it had increased 21 per cent.

COMPARATIVE COST

The actual expenses per head of civil government in Quebec in 1882 was 15 cents while in Ontario it was only 9 cents. The increase in the cost of civil government in the Dominion in the past five years was 20 per cent, while in Ontario in ten years it had only been 10½ per cent.

The Province of Quebec was making a strong effort to have their subsidy increased, and alleged with some reason that the subsidy ought to be increased every ten years or each time the census was taken. If Quebec obtains what she asks for on this ground, Ontario as a matter of justice would also participate in the increase The estimated expenditure for the coming year was greater than before and this was due to extraordinary circumstances notably a balance of expenditure of previous years on account of colonization roads of $26,596.52 and from other causes.

Coming down to the estimated receipts and the methods to be adopted to cover the increased expenditures, he said the temperance people had been agitating for a large increase in the

and in the bill which would be introduced by the Provincial Secretary the following increase would be proposed: Wholesale licenses from $150 to $225; city tavern or shop licenses from $100 to $160; town licenses from $80 to $100; township from $60 to $75, and vessel licenses from $100 to $125. From this it was expected that considerably increased revenue would be received though there would probably be a decrease in the number of licenses granted, and this after deducting an allowance for the reduction in the number would give a revenue of about $20 000 against $96,460 last year.

Then their were charges against the government for railways, and this year that charge would amount to $242,000, and would continue at that amount for eight years yet. The Government proposed that inasmuch as these railways were largely for the benefit of posterity, to take up the certificates now outstanding and issue new ones running for a longer term. This would make the cost for this year $13.106, and next year $26.210, and go on increasing until the maximum $154,883 was reached in 1902, at which sum it remains stationary until the expiration of forty years, when all payments would cease.

After making allowance, there would, still remain a balance of expenditure over receipts of about $40,000. He then recited the work of the government which had been presided over so long by his friend the Attorney-General. He hoped if he had the honor to present a financial statement another year, to show that the receipts from crown lands had largely increased, and that they were receiving revenue from the territory now in dispute. He also trusted the Dominion Government would pay them a larger subsidy, that the questions at issue in connection, with the late Province of Canada would be settled, and this Province in the possession of the large sum which was justly due, He moved that the House do now go into Committee of Supply. (Loud and prolonged cheering.)

TORONTO LEGISLATIVE TOPICS.

SESSIONAL NOTES.

On Mr. Gould North Ontario, entering the House, the first time since the vindication by the Courts of the purity of his election—he was greeted with loud applause from the Ministerial benches.

A DECREASE.

While the estimates in some departments exceed those for last year, it is gratifying to find that as a whole they are $57,947 94 less than for last year, notwithstanding the fact that the maintenance of important institutions calls for a constantly increasing expenditure.

PUBLIC ACCOUNTS.

The Public Accounts for 1883, show receipts for the year of $2,443,110 and expenditures amounting to $2,887,037 73, against the expenditure of $2,920,161 in 1882, being a decrease of $33,124 in last year. The amount of investments withdrawn from special deposit was $1.941,784 71; the amounted invested or placed on special deposit; $1,345,410 42. The balance of 1883 was $248,174 57 and at the end of last year $400,621 54.

PRUDENT EXPENDITURE.

A striking testimony to the care exercised by the Government in the control of the expenditures for Asylums were cited by Mr. Ross. The average cost per patient in the most economically managed asylum in the United States was, according to the Inspector's report, $227.75; while the average for the Ontario asylums in the same year was only $134,68. This greater economy on the part of the Provincial Government is not secured, either by neglect of the comfort of the inmates.

SIR JOHN'S INCONSISTENCY

Mr. Ross, in dealing with the Dominion claim, made a telling point against Sir John Macdonald's inconsistency. The Dominion Premier had contended that Ontario, even if she secured the awarded territory, should not have "a foot of land or a stick of timber," for the Dominion had extinguished the Indian claims in that territory. Yet Sir John's Government in making this new claim admitted that there had been purchased on behalf of Upper Canada from the Indians a large part of the territory which the Dominion now sought to withhold from the Provinces.

THE EDUCATION DEPARTMENT.

The estimates for education evince much care in overhauling the expenses of that important department. Incidentals are cut down in many instances, and a saving of over $2,000 proposed in the cost of department examinations. The employment of an additional inpector of Separate Schools alone necessitated an increase of expenditure of over $1,500. Assistance towards the inspection of schools in the newer counties and districts, and unusually large balance of accounts unpaid at the end of the year, make up much of the total increase of $4,017,30 under his head.

IN THE FARMERS' INTEREST.

The bill introduced into the Ontario Legislature by Hon. A. M. Ross, respecting noxious weeds, extends the operation of the Act respecting thistles. Municipal Councils may without petition appoint an inspector to secure the destruction of weeds, and must do so if fifty landholders petition that such appointment be made. This is a step in the right direction. The inspector's duty shall be to have thistles cut when they are not destroyed after due notice is given, and the cost is to be assessed against the owner of the land.

NOTES FROM THE CAPITAL

QUEBEC HOSTILITY TO THE B'NAI BRITH ACT.

The Quebec Parliamentary contingent appear to be almost unanimous in their opposition to the McCarthy License Act, and will vote for its repeal. In addition to the well grounded opinion that the Act is ultra vires, there is the other important consideration that the Dominion License Act will deprive the Provinces of considerable revenue.

ACCORDING TO PRECEDENT.

Mr. Onderdonk, encouraged by the ruinous precedent of giving $30,000,000 to the Syndicate, is still here, working quietly, but no doubt effectively, in promotion of his claim for better terms in connection with his British Columbia contracts. He can hold out the same threat that the Pacific Railway Company used, viz:—That unless additional subvention is granted the contract must fail. If the Pacific Railway contractors are to be treated differently from the ordinary contractors, why? Mr. Onderdonk's demands are quite as reasonable as those of the Canada Pacific Company.

PROVINCIAL GRIEVANCES.

Nova Scotia, demanding better terms.
Prince Edward Island, demanding fulfilment of terms of union.
New Brunswick, demanding settlement of outstanding claims.
Quebec, demanding better terms.
Ontario, resisting federal encroachments.
Manitoba, demanding abolition of monopoly, the right to charter railways, reduction of the tariff, etc.
The North-West Territories seeking land law reform and representation in Parliament.
British Columbia, against disallowance of railway charters, and protests against the Campbell settlement.

THE COST OF THE C.P.R.

The cost of this road may be truthfully summed up as follows:

Original subsidy	$25,000,000
Present loan	22,500,000
Land subsidy at $3 per acre	75,000,000
Roadway, etc., built by Govt	20,000,000
Deposit on guarantee surrendered	7,380,312
Interest	10,000,000
Total	$159,880,912

This is $42 a head for every man, woman and child in Canada, or an average of $210 on every family.

"SEDITIOUS SOCIETIES"

Mr. White, of Cardwell, introduced his bill to repeal certain acts of the Quebec Legislature, respecting seditious societies. The Quebec members asked that the first reading of the bill be declared carried on a division, indicating that they will oppose it vigorously when the second reading is asked for. The bill would have the effect of legalizing the Orange Order in Quebec, and the members from that Province have another very serious objection to it, viz., that it would be a mischievous and dangerous thing for the Dominion Parliament to undertake to repeal or amend Provincial Acts.

LATEST PHASE OF TORY PATRIOTISM.

The Tories have again given emphasis to their professions of unbounded patriotism by deciding by 61 majority that the Pacific Railway Company shall make Portland their Atlantic terminus in preference to any port in the Maritime Provinces. They have also declared by rejecting Mr. Watson's amendment, that Manitoba and the North-West shall remain subject to Syndicate monopoly.

PICTURESQUE CANADA.

Parts 25 and 26 of this work have been delivered after a very long delay. If, however, the same depreciation continues, which has characterized the last half dozen or more parts, the longer all subsequent deliveries are delayed, the better it will please the majority of subscribers in this locality. In these parts, Peterborough is supposed to be represented—a mere supposition however—as no poorer representation could be offered than the single "illustration" of the town in part 26. The person selected for this duty was a young New York artist, of no reputation or ability whatever, employed because he worked cheap. The neighbouring town of Lindsay similarly suffers, and from the same cause. At the outset we strongly advocated the claims of this work upon our friends, on the strength of the distinct promise that it was to be the product of Canadian artists, and from the fact that such names as Mr. O'Brien and Dr. Grant were connected with certain departments thereof. Late developments prove, however, that having used the names of those gentlemen to swell their subscription lists, the publishers at once commenced a "squeezing" process, which has at last become so distasteful as to have caused them much trouble on their deliveries. For instance, their prospectus distinctly promised that each part should contain from 24 to 32 pages of letter press, one-third of which should be engravings of the finest character, from original drawings made expressly for the work, from sketches taken by the artists on the spot. Let us see how these covenants have been fulfilled. Of the 26 parts now issued, only two (Nos. 2 and 4) contain more than 24 pages. Although the initial numbers (before their town and city lists were canvassed for) contained from 18 to 24 views each, the last half dozen or more parts contain but 12 or 13, a large proportion of these being very small. But perhaps the most flagrant laches is the insertion of falsely named subjects, which do not represent the scenes claimed for them. We have it on the best authority that there is a large number of such, of which we will name a few. The frontispieces of parts 20, 21, 22 and 23, are all from pictures selected at random from the collections of New York artists, from sketches of American scenes prepared for an entirely different purpose, and given some indefinite title in order, if possible, to prevent subscribers from locating the imposition. So far as the Grand River Valley is concerned, such "Pastoral Hillsides" as we see here delineated, are purely imaginary, and belong to Vermont and Connecticut. Can any one tell us where are the mountains, the herds of Merino sheep, or the broad sheet of water, to say nothing of all three combined, in the Grand River Valley? Who can point to the spot "on the Thames," where the fertile brained artist is supposed to have stood in a mythical grove of pine and hemlock, when pencilling the picture bearing that title? We can repeat the question in regard to the wretched daub, "A Forest Pathway," until to appear in any work of art; while the "Trout Pool on the Saugeen," was sketched among the Adirondacks. This short-sighted policy (which violates both the letter and spirit of the publishers' contract with their patrons,) combined with other cumulative reasons, has already caused a large majority of subscribers in this locality to positively refuse to go on with the work, while we understand some of them threaten to sue the publishers if the money already paid out is not refunded. We are sorry the thing has turned out in this way, as we thought, and think, there were splendid possibilities in the enterprise, had it been honestly carried out. As it is, such chances seem to grow beautifully less with each succeeding delivery; and any quantity of the books can now be procured from disgusted subscribers at ten to twenty-five cents per part.

THE DOMINION LICENSE INSPECTOR.

To the Editor of the EXAMINER:

The Conservative party has always been sticklers for the principle that the most energetic and hard-working of the party should be rewarded by positions in the gift of the Government, or the bodies it constitutes. Upon this principle I should like an explanation of Mr. Wm. Collins, of North Monaghan, being appointed License Inspector under the McCarthy Act. He has not, to my knowledge, done so much for the triumph of the cause that he is pre-eminently entitled to this appointment. I could name a score or more Conservatives, who, by virtue of their services are a score times better entitled to the position. The loudest-mouthed members of the party are not always the most valuable workers of the party.

Yours, etc.,
CONSERVATIVE.

PETERBOROUGH, Feb. 28, 1884.

The movement in grain has been heavy. Prices have been declining in sympathy with outside markets. Chicago dropping down to 96c. and 97c. for May, with large stocks held, the prospects are not very favorable for higher prices. Spring wheat here has been selling at about $1.03; fall wheat, 90c. to $1.00; Goose being dull, at 70c. to 75c; Barley dull, selling at 50c. to 63c.; Oats, 33c., in good demand; Rye, 55c. to 56c.; Peas, 70c.

On the market there is not much doing. Eggs have declined to 20c. to 21c., with lower prices looked for. Fresh butter, 22c. to 23c., in fair demand. Keg butter still offering, rather slow, 17c. to 18c. Other commodities unchanged.

CHAPTER I.

A sigh came up through the forest. A sighing breath of the dying summer. It shook the leaves, scarlet and russet, and orange, of the trees that had already begun to don their autumn dress, and scattered the petals of a crimson-flowered creeper at the feet of a man and woman standing near.

The man stooped — mechanically, it seemed, for his face betrayed neither interest nor admiration—and gathered up two or three in his hand. There was a cluster of the same flower at the girl's throat. He had himself picked it, and given to her a short time before. Then he spoke in answer to her last speech.

"I am glad you say that I was not to blame. I am afraid that I was. I shall never be able to do away with that fear. Still, it is just some small alleviation to the pain that you believe that I would not willingly have brought you to this." He spoke in a still gentle voice—a voice that made the strangest contrast to his white lips and haggard eyes.

The girl, scarcely out of her childhood, flushed hotly, then shivered from head to foot.

"No—no!" she exclaimed, in sudden passion. "You had nothing to do with it. It was all my own fault. You would never have asked me to marry you that day if I had not—"

She stopped, and, hiding her face in her hands, broke out in pitiful shamed sobs.

The young man made no attempt for a moment to approach her. He stood looking at her, his handsome face growing white, his lips more strained and drawn, as if he were bearing the burden of two agonies—his own and hers—and that it was almost more than mortal strength could endure.

But he prevailed. There was a curious kind of repressed strength, physical and moral, in everything he said or did, that showed itself in every line of his face, in every muscle of his magnificent figure, that told the conquest would be his.

He took a step over to the sobbing girl, upon whose slender finger gleamed a plain gold ring. She did not look up, but bent a little towards him, as claiming his strength to support her. He passed his arm around her, and with a quick, longdrawn breath, she let her head rest on his breast.

"It was wicked of me to talk like that," she exclaimed, raising her face after a second or two in quick remorseful pain, to his. "You, who are so good to me; you, who never think from morning to night of any one but me; you, who are my husband, just as you are my love! Oh, Micheal, I grumble and say hard things and make your life miserable—yes, I do! Every time I am lonely and unhappy you look as if I had nearly broken your heart, and yet you are always so gentle and patient. But Micheal, I do love you. It is just that. If mother and all of them should forgive me, and want me back, I would not go without you. I could not live again as I did, now that you have once been in my life. You believe that, don't you?" She clung to him with a childlike, passionate abandon, and, raising her arms, drew his tall head down to hers.

He kissed her quivering lips and drew her closer to him.

For a second there was silence; only the ceaseless chirp of the grasshopper, so constant, so monotonous, so shrill, that it seemed as if it were the only sound in all the forest, broke upon the evening stillness.

It rose above and crushed into insignificance every other sound of life, until it appeared to Michael Laurie as if they two and the grasshoppers were the only living things breathing and moving in all that vast dimness of wooded avenues.

Two solitary human beings acting out there some terrible drama, with the eternal chirping of those shrill grasshoppers for the chorus.

It hurt him at last. It seemed to hurt more than the sobs of the girl on his breast as they gradually became fainter and died into long drawn breaths.

The shrill sound seemed to enter his brain and prevent his thinking, and mingle with the beats of his heart, until he scarcely knew if it were beating at all, or whether it had not stopped ever since that moment a short time when his wife had upbraided him with bitter, passionate aproaches for bringing her out of her happy girl's life into such a place as this.

The wife was still resting in his arms, her tears were still wet on his haud which she had raised to her lips in her remorseful pain—but those grasshoppers!

The pitiless hard monotony of their chorus seemed to give the lie to it all—to the clinging embrace, the bitterness and self-reproach of the tears; it was neither mocking nor merry, nor doubting.

It only repeated over and over again, till it sounded like the of beat of an eternal pendulum the motions, which had never had a beginning, and might never have an end, the whisper of his own heart:

"Love doubts, love dies."

He had not yet dared put the whisper into words.

But the thought before which this man's strength and courage quailed, those grasshoppers caught up and echoed in heartless, shameless cruelty, till all the wood rang with the expression of his heart's pain. Suddenly their was a movement from the figure in his arms. The terror and the stillness of the forest fell upon her again, even though she rested so close to him that she could have counted every beat of his heart.

She raised her head and looked round, her eyes dilating with the fear and the awe of the place; she caught his hand in hers convulsively.

"It is lonely, Michael! It is lonely, is not it?" she cried with a shuddering breath.

He too glanced round. The dusk of the summer night had stolen up every opening between the silent trees, and was already close upon them, shutting them in as with a ghostly shroud from the life and the love of the human beings who dwelt together in the towns and cities beyond the woods and forests. He had thought love was divine, and, therefore, all-sufficient to itself. He had been mistaken.

"Yes dear," he said gently. "It is very lonely—though I never found it so before. Come home now.

CHAPTER II.

That night, when his wife lay sleeping, Michael Laurie paced up and down the living-room of the tiny house he had built himself for his love.

There was not a nail but had been driven in by his own hand, not a plank but had been cut from his own tree he had himself felled. If the thoughts, and the heartbeats, and the great desires, and the passionate longings which had entered into every action of his strong right arm, from the first stroke of the axe to the last blow of the hammer, could have taken visible shape, that tiny cottage, in the midst of the vast woods, would have become a temple such as no mortal eye had ever yet beheld. Yet, though he had spent the best of his strength and his earning upon it, it had appeared so miserable and made a casket for the treasure it was to hold that his heart had failed him till she, seeing it for the first time, had stood still in a silence of wonder and delight, and then had turned to him with eyes in which the misty tears could not hide the lovelight, and with lips that trembled as they tried to smile, had said:

"Ah, Michael, what a beautiful home you have made me!"

Yes, it was the same woman who had reproached him a few hours ago.

Michael drew a deep breath through his clenched teeth, then, as if he would shut out the sight of everything that recalled that day and this, he flung himself into a chair, and laying his arms on the table, buried his face in them.

But he might as well have tried to crush out the love of his heart.

As he sat there the whole history of his love rose up before him, each separate act and incident taking the shape of a phantom shadow, mocking at his present pain.

The burning hotel with its horrible sights and sounds. The rescue of that child-girl already scarred and wounded by the fierce flames, and the giving her back to her father and mother, who in their wild delight and gratitude would have knelt at his feet and blessed him.

Him—a working man, while they belong to the great ones of the earth!

Then for the first time in all his life Michael Laurie felt the presence of the great gulf fixed between the high-born and earth's workers.

Was it the first time? Or was it not rather a foreshadowing of its depth and breadth which had fallen upon him, as he fought his way through the smoke and flames, the slight figure pressed closely to his breast, when, as he bent over her to see that she was not hurt to the death, she had opened her eyes, and met his with a gaze that would haunt his life to that life's end.

As he sat there the shadows crowded upon him so thick and fast that they bewildered him.

How all that happened afterward should have happened, he could not understand. How her life should have become the echo of the great love should stirred his to its depths, he could not comprehend.

His own greatness and strength, which placed him far above the average of men, made him humble as a child in the presence of his love.

Yet the miracle was worked, and a day came when she, all involuntarily, betrayed the secret that troubled her.

With a sound like a smothered groan Michael Laurie turned his head restlessly. Even then it would not have been too late to leave her. Honor, pride, love, had all told him that he, a working man, had nothing to do with her life, belonging as it did to the great and the rich. What did it matter that he, by right of mental and moral superiority, had been selected a leader in his own class, that he gloried in that same class as the one bearing the heat and the burden of the day in life's great battle. He still knew perfectly that fortune, which had so great a share in ruling men's lives whether they will or no, had set her as far apart from him as if they had been living in separate worlds. But he stayed. In spite of the parents' opposition they were married, and she left her own home to follow him to the one he had prepared for her. He had been only passing through the town when he had saved her life, and he took her back to the distant woods in which his work lay.

For the first year the only shadow upon the perfect happiness of their married life was the bitterness and grief of the father and mother, who, their wounded pride stronger than their gratitude, refused all attempts at reconciliation.

The cloud was dark enough, Micheal Laurie knowing that they had reason—at least the reason that acts as the foundation of the laws by which society governs itself—on their side, while Daisy, who had been their only child, and the very delight of their hearts, grieved intensely for the loss of their affection. But the shadow only affected the love between them in that it drew them closer together, she, depending on and clinging more to the love that now made her whole world; he, enfolding her in a great protecting tenderness, exerting himself, body and soul, to save her from the very faintest need of repentance for her rash act.

Just one year of great, perfect happiness, without a single doubt to cast a shadow.

Then, how it began he could not tell. The shadow was so faint, so intangible, that settled down upon the love of the household, that, until it culminated in that scene that afternoon, he could not have put its presence into words. He had striven hard to make himself her equal—harder, great as his ambition had been, than he had ever done in the old days before he knew her. But, after all, he was a son of the people, self-taught, self-cultivated. Little tricks of speech, of which he himself was not conscious, till the sudden, involuntary shrinking in her face; common hardships and roughness, which, with all his care, he could not altogether banish from his workaday life, and which he, accustomed to them all his life, scarcely noticed; the contact, even in this far-out-of-the-way spot, with things and people which at one time she had beheld as from another world, but which now, as belonging to the class and lot of her husband, were necessarily brought so closely into her own life.

Then the long days, without even that husband's presence to cheer and help her.

Long, weary days, when he was at his work, and she had nothing to do but sit and long for his coming, while the awe and the silent mystery of those vast woods in which she might wander for days and never see a fellow-creature's face, nor hear a human voice, began to weave its spell over her and overshadow her life, coming as she had done, straight from the pleasures, and amusements, and society that cities provide for the rich ones of the earth.

The thin edge of the wedge had been inserted, and the rift grew wider as the days went on, and neither the efforts of husband and wife could close it again; and the worst part was that each knew that the other saw and felt its dread presence, try as they both both would to ignore it. But even that veil of ignorance had been rent at last. Could it ever be closed again so perfectly as to hide completely the mistrust, and the bitterness, and the disappointment? And as the gray morning light stole into the room gradually bringing into view all the numberless devices wrought by his hand for the love of his life—the carved book-case, the quaint brackets, the very flowers, brought only yesterday from the scene of his distant work—Michael Laurie knew that it would never be.

He rose at last, staggering a little as he did so. He stood still for a second facing the window through which fell now the day light, no longer wan and pale and gray, but a glorious stream of crimson sunny light, while suddenly, instead of the shrill, joyless cry of the grasshoppers, there had burst from every tree and shrub the glad merry voices of the birds.

In the place of the chill and the silence of death, were the stir and the glory of glad passionate life.

"Yes," he said to himself, with a faint smile, though there was no echo of the earth's new gladness and hope in his eyes, "Aurora returned every morning as beautiful as when she left the earth, and she forgot that Tithonus was not of the gods, like herself, and all her love was not powerful enough to make him god-like, too. Yet I like him, must live on in her life forever."

He put up his hand as if the dazzling light hurt his eyes, then turned, and went softly into their sleeping-room.

Daisy was not awake.

She had been crying utterly before falling asleep. He could see that by the swollen eyelids and fever-flushed cheek. One little hand, with its golden circlet, was resting on the round throat, and as he bent over her, he saw that it was clasping the locket she always wore, day and night.

One day, some time after he had first met her, he had left at her house a basket full of a beautiful crimson flower, for which she had expressed her admiration. She was going to a ball and wished to wear some of the flowers in her dress. He had gone miles to get them for her, for they only grew in certain places.

One day, after they were married, she opened the locket shyly and showed him inside some faded flower-petals. She had saved them from the crimson creeper. Last night she had cried herself to sleep, holding the locket tightly in her hand.

The sight went to Michael's heart with a stab of intolerable pain.

With a look of infinite pity and tenderness, he bent down and touched her forehead with his pale lips.

"Gods should not mate with mortals," he said, "for even their love is not strong enough to conquer destiny."

Then, without waking her, he went out to his days' work, for, after all, he had her bread to win.

WHAT SHALL I GIVE HIM?

Is a puzzling question. It is easy enough to find things for the "hers," in fact the variety is embarrassing; but the selection of a present for the male sex is more difficult. We have known Ladies to present their Husbands with useful Household Articles and it is not a bad idea, but if you wish to give the man something for personal use, the list to choose from is rather short. CLOTHES are Staple—always in demand. Why not a new OVERCOAT or SUIT? A SET OF SHIRTS, some fine HOSIERY, HANDKERCHIEFS, or NECKWEAR? or, if that is not appropriate, give the Domestic Man a HOUSE COAT OR WRAPPER. While to the Gay Young Man, SHIRT STUDS, SCARF PINS, SILK TIE or SCARF. Now that you have the hint what to get, we will modestly add that a good place to get everything of this sort is right here, where we are making a Special Holiday Display of Useful and Ornamental Wearin Apparel for Men and Boys.

THE HAINES
"Upright Pianos."

A few extracts from the numerous endorsements by the leading artists of the World as to their Superiority:—

The pianoforte of your make used at my last concert is the most admirable instrument I have ever seen. Please send to my address in London one of your Upright Pianos. This, I think, is the best endorsement of your instrument I can give you.—CHRISTINE NILSSON.

Neither in Europe or America have I seen an Upright to equal yours.—ELILKE GERSIER GARDINI.

In all the qualities an artist can require your Upright Pianos surpass anything I have ever seen.—SOFIA SCALCHI.

It is superior in quality of tone and evenness of action to any instrument I know of.—CLARA LOUISE KELLOGG.

Having had an opportunity of using your New Concert Upright Piano at the concerts given by Her Majesty's Opera Company, we beg to compliment you upon your great success. You can justly claim a superiority over any piano we have hitherto seen, for concert purposes and accompanying the voice.—ITALO CAMPANINI, ANTONIO GALASSI, ANNA DE PELOCCA, EMIL AMBRA.

The successful manner in which your Upright Piano has stood the severest tests, is such as heretofore has been applied to the Grand Piano only, and it commands our unqualified endorsement.—OLE BULL, EMMA THURSBY, ALFRED H. PEASE, MAURICE STRAKOSCH.

BLOWN UP AND BURNED.

A LONDON HARDWARE HOUSE DESTROYED BY GUNPOWDER.

At ten o'clock Monday forenoon last an explosion occured in the wholesale establishment of Hobbs, Osborne & Hobbs, Richmond street, which shook the business portion of the city for 300 yards around. The cause is assigned to the ignition of about twenty pounds of gunpowder. The explosion hurled the front of the two top storys in the street, accompanied by a terrific noise which resembled the explosion of a steam boiler, and which was heard for miles around. The buildings adjoining—were badly shattered, and across the street, the entire length of the block, every vestige of glass was smashed to pieces. The firemen were quickly on hand, but their efforts were apparently misdirected, and when they did get to work a length of hose burst and retarded their exertions.

In the meantime the three employees were burning to death amoung the debris in the fourth story. Twenty minutes after the fire broke out, Ince's body was recovered, and in twenty minutes more Shaw was extricated from the debris. Both were more dead than alive. Ince's legs were burned off to about the ankle. His eyes were burnt badly, and much of the clothing from the body.

The shock produced a decided sensation throughout the city. Donald Smith, the young man who was in charge of the top flat, has been taken out dead. His hands and wrists were burned to a grisp, his body was badly burned and his legs broken. Shaw is burned and crushed with the falling bricks. His injuries are dangerous. His legs are broken in several places. The loss on stock is roughly estimated at $50,000 or $60,000. The building is valued at $15,000, the three upper flats of which are entirely wrecked. The insurance is $70,000.

Signs of Spring at Turabull's. Several boxes of New Bonnets and Hats in Satins, Straws, Leghorns, Chips and Rustics, just received.

A C.P.R. PARABLE.

It takes eighteen columns of Sir Charles Tupper's oratory to explain the advantages of the new loan of $30,000,000 to the C.P.R. A short story with a moral will make the transaction clear to those who do not care to wade through this mass of printer's ink. Some years ago a man entered a country store. The following dialogue ensued: Customer—"What is the price of your best crackers?" Merchant—"Ten cents a pound." Customer—"I guess I'll take a pound." The merchant weighs out the crackers and hands them to the customer. Customer—"Have you got any very good whiskey?" Merchant—"Yes, it is ten cents a glass." Customer—"Well, I guess I'll change my mind and give you back the crackers and take a glass of whiskey." Customer, drinking the whiskey, smacks his lips, says it is good and turns to leave the store. Merchant—"Hello, you have forgotten to pay for the whiskey." Customer—"Have I not given you the crackers?" Merchant—"But you have not paid for the crackers." Customer—"Did I not give you the crackers back?" and walks out of the store, leaving the merchant reflecting on the transaction, and wondering where his ten cents came in. Our representatives at Ottawa a few years hence will find out where the joke comes in.

A FORTUNE FROM THREAD.

Every lady in this country is acquainted with the spools of thread marked with the familiar device, "J. & P. Coats, Paisley." The business of threadmaking must have been extremely profitable, for one of the firm, Mr. Thomas Coats, died a fortnight ago, leaving an immense fortune, a part of which was £1,300,000 in cash, besides a great landed estate and valuable coal mines. A great portion of all the thread consumed in the civilized world thirty years ago was made in the Scotch village of Paisley, but latterly the business has been divided. The thread spinners in Providence named Coats, are an offshot of the old Scottish firm, who found it cheaper to spin the raw material on this side than to transport it in bulk across the ocean. It is still a great monopoly, for intricate machinery and careful management are both necessary to produce the best qualities.

THE MEMBER FOR WEST PETERBOROUGH

A gallery pressman speaks of Mr. Carnegie, M. P. P. for West Peterboro' as follows:—"After twelve years' absence he returns to political life with ripened experience and a scrap book. This interesting volume is a sort of political 'Newgate Calendar'. It is replete with harrowing instances of the moral obliquity of the unspeakable Grits of Mr. Carnegie's district, and is a notable addition to the literature of contemporaneous politics. In his maiden speech on Wednesday morning, Mr. Carnegie fell short of expectations.

Hard to Believe.

It is hard to believe that a man was cured of Kidney disease after his body was swollen as big as a barrel and he had been given up as incurable and lay at death's door. Yet such a cure was accomplished by Kidney-Wort in the person of M. M. Devereaux of Ionia, Mich., who says: "After thirteen of the best doctors in Detroit had given me up, I was cured by Kidney-Wort. I want every one to know what a boon it is.

VARIETIES.

"Lest the enough I long did know,
Many years I let to flow,
Without the use of pills or bitter,
I cured the same with Downs' Elixir.
Thousands of affidavits prove,
That it doth most ills remove,
Coughs and colds, and whooping cough
By its power soon are off." 2-tf

The life of a Kentuckian has been shortened by tobacco. A hogshead of the weed fell on him and crushed him out of symmetrical proportions. It cannot be denied that tobacco in large quantities is injurious.

Constitution broken down with fatty degeneration of the heart, liver and kidneys, from the use of alcohol; exhaustion of the vital forces, from the use of Tobacco; irritability and restlessness of the nervous system, from the effect of stryohnine; impaired nutrition and loss of energy, from the use of opium; and nervous and physical prostration, from the intemperance of any kind—can be restored by the use of DR. WHEELER'S COMPOUND ELIXIR OF PHOSPHATES AND CALISAYA, a purely physiological remedy—perfectly harmless to adult or infant—that builds up all the organs and tissues of the body in a radical and permanent manner.

Cream Raising.

A most ingenious and useful apparatus, called the Dominion Cabinet Creamery, may be seen at the store of Geo. Hutchinson, Hunter street. He stoutly maintains his innocence of the crime.

Auburn Sunday School.

A very pleasant anniversary entertainment was given in the Auburn Methodist Sunday School, on Thursday night. The weather did not prevent a good attendance. Mason, showed the school to be in a flourishing condition. Mr. W. F. Mason occupied the chair.

Clegg's Flouring Mills.

The endless quantity of flour consumed in making bread, and the great extent to which both enter into the world's daily bill of fare, make it important that the best and most wholesome article of flour should be produced. Demands for an extremely white flour, forgetful of other important points, are apt to be temporary, for the necessary qualities of good bread-producing flour are absent. We have pleasure in knowing that Mr. A. H. Clegg has made important additions to the mechanical appliances of his flouring mills, by which he is able to produce flour that competes in color with the much-lauded patent flour, without possessing the disadvantages of that product. In his flour the gluten and starch are found in the same proportions in which they exist in the wheat grain, a fact which cannot be claimed for fancy flour. The bread that is produced from Mr. Clegg's flour is sure to keep moist, sweet and palatable for a much longer time than bread made from extra refined flour, robbed by the very process of manufacture of the essential conditions that go to the composition of a first-class family flour. The flour made in Mr. Clegg's mills, under its mechanically improved condition, is meeting with such demand that the utmost resources of the mills is taxed to supply the demand. Nothing but the fact of his producing a first-class sample of family flour of uniform quality can create a demand so great and continuous. Mr. Clegg was brought up to the business, and is familiar with every feature of it, and with the requirements demanded in the article of flour. He has applied this knowledge to the improvements he has made, and the result is beyond his expectations, a larger quantity of better flour being produced than is possible under any other method. Therefore, farmers will find it to their advantage to get their grinding done where the same amount of flour is given, and of a superior quality for family use, a fact which interests also all consumers of flour.

Bridal Bells and Orange Bloom.

The Church Cements a Mutual Choice—A Fashionable Wedding at St. Peter's Cathedral—The Auspicious Union of Dr. O'Shea and Miss Mary Henry.

The Cathedral church of St. Peter was crowded to the doors on Tuesday morning, the occasion being the marriage of James Francis O'Shea, M.D., and Miss Mary Henry.

At ten o'clock, the bridegroom elect, supported by his brother, Mr. P. J. O'Shea, being in his place, the organ pealing forth the tones of the "Queen's March," by Ascher, the bride entered the church, accompanied by her bridesmaids, and escorted by her cousin, Mr. James Henry, of the firm of Dumble & Henry, barristers, and proceeded to the altar. The bride was richly dressed in a white satin, en train, and looped with orange blossoms. The traditional veil and wreath of orange blossoms completed her bridal attire. The bridesmaids were her cousins, Miss Annie Henry, who was attired in gray silk, trimmed with lace, and gray silk head dress, with garnet tips, and Miss Mary E. Henry, dressed in lavender silk, with garnet trimmings and a Langtry cap.

His Lordship Bishop Jamot, robed in full pontificals, performed the marriage ceremony, which was brief, and was followed by mass, celebrated by His Lordship, assisted by Very Rev. Father Laurant, V.G., Lindsay, and Rev. Father Conway.

During the celebration a band of Convent pupils, most of them former class companions of the bride, occupied the choir and sang, before the elevation, the hymn, "Mother Dear, O Pray for Me," after the elevation, "Sweet Sacrament Divine" and "Mary, Hear my Fervent Prayer."

At the conclusion of the Mass, the Bishop declared them man and wife, and after the episcopal benediction, the bridal party left the church to the organ tones of Jackson's "Bridal March," and, with some difficulty, made its way to the sleighs, and repaired to the residence of Mr. Thomas Henry, Sherbrook street, where a number of invited guests partook of the wedding breakfast, and admired the numerous and valuable bridal presents, testifying to the popularity of the bride, who is a most estimable young lady, deserving the high esteem in which she is held.

The happy pair left on the evening train on an extended tour, including Niagara, the Eastern States and Montreal.

We offer our most cordial congratulations to the newly wed and their friends, wishing as far as human condition may allow, a full realization of their fondest hopes of happiness and prosperity.

TOWN COUNCIL.

Summary of Proceedings.

A special meeting of the Town Council was held on Tuesday night, at which all the members were present. The demands on our space compel us to condense the report. Accounts were presented and paid, and communications referred to appropriate committees.

The Fire, Water and Gas Committee was authorized to call for tenders for street watering and other street work. The hours at which billiard rooms be closed was fixed at 7 o'clock on Saturday nights, and at 11 o'clock on other nights. A clause was added requiring the town constables to enforce the provisions of the by-law.

Preparations were made for clearing the creek of ice, and the clerk instructed to prepare a by-law to deal with transient traders. A by-law was passed completing the purchase of the bank of Toronto buildings. The 31st of March was fixed to consider a by-law to transfer part of Murray street to the William Hamilton Manufacturing Company. A motion was adopted setting forth the right of municipalities to all license fees. Mr. Griffin was heard in reference to the petition for the separation of liquors and groceries, and the matter referred to the License Committee to report to the council at its meeting to-night (Thursday.)

The Mayor was requested to urge upon the C.P.R. authorities, the claims of Peterborough to part of the necessary workshops, and to making this a refreshment station.

PERSONAL.

At the recent meeting of the Ontario Provincial Grange, Mr. Dawson Kennedy, of Otonabee, was elected Grand Lecturer.

We regret to learn that Mr. William Hamilton been has prostrated with a serious illness. We are also glad to hear that he is improving.

The Lindsay Post in its report of the St. Mary's Church Choir Concert, paid a very high compliment to the singing of Miss Begley, of this town, who with Mr. George Ball, who came in for a large share of praise, sang at the concert. Mr. T. McNaughton's Indian club swinging was accorded very high praise.

Parlour Social.

A parlour social will be held at Mrs. Melville Millar's residence, corner of McDonnel and Harvey streets, next Tuesday evening, in aid of the organ fund of St. Paul's church.

We learn from the Brooklyn Eagle of the death, in that city, of Mr. Alexander Macphail, a former citizen of Peterborough. Mr. Macphail, about thirty-five years ago, kept a drug store on George street, in the neighborhood of Messrs. McKee & Davidson's hardware store.

Watches, Clocks, Jewellry, etc., carefully repaired and warranted at Hughan's, Office lately occupied by Elias Burnham, Simcoe Street. 18-tf

EMILY.

On Sunday last, Mr. J. H. Knight, Public School Inspector, officiated in St. James' and St. John's church, Emily.

PORT HOPE.

The apron sale by the ladies of St. John's church, on Friday last, realised the handsome sum of $50.

At the annual meeting of the Dominion Rifle Association, held last week at Ottawa Col. Williams, M. P., was elected a member of the Council.

Port Hope has returned to its village status. It has only one constable. That's enough; the people don't wake up often enough to warrant paying the expenses of more constables.

COBOURG.

The Spring Assize Court, Mr. Justice Cameron, presiding, will open at Cobourg on April 10th.

The mayor has obtained a leave of absence for three months, during which time he will take a trip to a warmer clime to improve his health, which has not been very good of late. We hope he will return fully restored.

The exhibition of fancy skating, given by Capt. Miner, at Cobourg rink, on Friday evening, was, says the World, one of the finest ever witnessed in this town. Although the Capt. is between 50 and 60 years of age, (no longer a minor,) his movements are as active, and almost as graceful as those of boy.

Assistant constable Rankin, of Port Hope, has been appointed chief of police.

HASTINGS.

A captain of the Salvation Army was in town on Thursday last, and it is said made arrangements for billeting a detachment of the force, and which will be sent shortly to this place.

The marriage of Mr. Henry Day and Miss E. Murphy, daughter of Mr. T. Murphy, all of Asphodel, was announced in St. Mary's church last Sunday. The Star tenders the happy couple the congratulations usual on such interesting events.

On visiting the Roman Catholic Cemetery in Asphodel, one day last week, the Star's attention was drawn to a monument which some workmen were erecting for Mr. T. Coughlin, senr. of that village, in that "city of the dead". We were informed that the mass of limestone and granite weighed over three tons, and the height a few inches over twelve feet.

VERULAM.

Some days ago Mr. Henry Stewart, of Verulam, was offered $70 for a young mare by a man from Toronto. The bid was refused, and after some talk, the stranger asked what would he take for her per pound, and Mr. Stewart said, "eight cents." This being agreed to the animal was placed on the scale and found to weigh a little under 900 pounds, and the price paid was $71.25. This is the first time a horse has been sold by weight in this county.

The house contains nine rooms, besides pantries and closets. This property, which is a corner lot, within five minutes' walk of the Post Office, is at present rented to Melville Millar, Esq., whose tenancy thereof shall be as follows, at the option of the purchaser:—Either from year to year, commencing upon the 1st day of October, 1883, at a rental of $300 a year, or a definite term of three and one-half years from 1st April next, at a rent of $150 for the first half year, and $300 a year for the remaining three years; in any case the rent to be payable monthly or quarterly, at the purchaser's option, the landlord to pay all rates and taxes, and to be entitled to possession from the 1st April next, subject to such tenancy.

These parts together comprise the property occupied by the late David Carlisle, as a homestead. ONEMEE.

The fourteenth annual meeting of the Onemee club will be held on the race course on Thursday and Friday, March 6th and 7th. Lots of sport and good fast horses will be on the ice.

Mr. Thos. Stephenson, contractor for the construction of Brown's bridge, is making good progress, and expects to have it completed in a few days, with the exception of a short piece of the approach on the north end which, on account of the depth of the snow, cannot be turnpiked.

PORT HOPE.

The resignation by Mr. D. J. Goggin of the headmastership of Port Hope High School, has been accepted. Mr. Goggin has accepted a position in Winnipeg.

On Saturday last Mr. Marshall Thompson was made the recipient of a very fine field glass by the members of the Royal Scarlet Chapter of Hope, in recognition of the deep interest he has taken in, and his exertions on behalf of, that body.

The schooner Agnes Hope, owned by Capt. R. Clark and Mr. E. S. Vindin, of this town, was sold on Saturday last to Messrs. Rathbun & Co., Deseronto. We understand that the Ariel has also been disposed of to parties in Goderich.

CAMPBELLFORD.

Steps are being taken to cancel the liquor-grocery stores as they now exist, and make the sale of liquor and groceries separate as they have done in Toronto, and Peterborough. Mr. Gillespie, the Reeve, will call a special meeting of the Council for this purpose.

Mr. Robt. Cockburn has imported a thorough-bred heifer, two years old in the spring. The animal is said to be a dairy in appearance, and cost $450.

Mr. James Finn and other members of his family were suddenly alarmed at a late hour on Friday night last, by the discovery that their dwelling, a large brick house on the 8th. concession of Seymour, was on fire. Nothing was left of the building except a portion of its walls. It was valued at $2,000. There was an insurance on it of $1,200.

OPS.

One-half of Ops township taxes are yet uncollected.

Clover seed—alsike clover seed—seems to be a paying crop. On Tuesday Mr. E. Hopkins, deputy-reeve of Ops, received for twenty-five bushels, grown from four acres of land, the sum of $256. Mr. F. Costello for nineteen bushels, got $190. Mr. Patrick Tully, for thirty-one bushels, received nearly $350. M. John Connolly for over sixty bushels received nearly $700.

A meeting for the purpose of building a cheese factory in west Ops is to take place at Bannan's hotel on Tuesday afternoon next. The promoter, Mr. Moore, who by the way has had considerable experience in cheese making, having two or three cheese factories now, informs us that the prospects for a successful factory in Ops is very good, and in his conversation with farmers and others residing in the district every encouragement has been held out.

NORWOOD.

Another brick yard is to be established a short distance out of the village. The proprietors are Messrs. J. and M. Shea.

Mr John Baskin and family have returned to this village, believing firmly that "There is no place like—Norwood."

Mr. Wm. Sedgwick is again going into the blacksmithing business. He has rented the premises formerly occupied by the late James Metcalfe and will commence work shortly.

The brass band contest between Campbellford and Norwood bands on the Warkworth skating rink was rendered "null and void," the Campbellford band "taking a back seat."

On Monday, Feb. 4th, a meeting of the members of the Church of England was held in the Vestry of Christ's Church, Norwood, to receive the reports of those who had been appointed to raise funds for the purpose of building a parsonage for the pastor, the amount received $850, and the building will at once be proceeded with. The Rev. Mr. Jotcham, the incumbent, and Mr. Grover are the building committee.

LINDSAY.

The Spring Assize court will open in Lindsay on Monday, March 31st. The Hon. Mr. Justice Cameron will preside.

A scheme is on foot in vigorous hands having for its object the amalgamation of the boat club interests with the proposed gymnasium and bowling alley.

There were twenty-four fires in Lindsay during the past year. All of the buildings were burned to the ground with one exception—that of Robson's on Kent street.

The event of the week has been the Catholic young men's annual ball, one of the best that has yet taken place in Lindsay. It came off in Bradburn's opera house and was attended by the young people from all parts of the county, who evidently spent a most enjoyable evening.

Rev. Vicar-General Laurent of Bracebridge was on Monday last installed as Parish Priest of Lindsay, in the stead of Rev. Father Lynch, resigned.

A deputation consisting of C. L. Fortescue, A. Hudspeth, and Mayor Deacon waited on the Minister of Education Thursday of last week to ask Government aid for the continuation of a drawing class in connection with the Mechanic's Institute at Lindsay.

COBOURG.

The car works are turning out some fine passenger coaches for the Canada Pacific.

Mr. T. Hoskins took a load of clover seed to Port Hope one day last week on which he realized the handsome sum of $450. It was of the kind known as "Alsike."

One day during the week Mrs. A. Scoon of this town fell on some ice in the backyard of her residence, breaking one of her legs in two places below the knee.

A large representation from the various bodies in town of the Methodist Church was held in the ladies' parlor of the Sabbath School building on Chapel street, last Thursday evening, when the following resolution was passed with only one dissenting voice: That in the opinion of this meeting, two church buildings are ample for the accomodation of the Methodists of the town of Cobourg. This will do away with one of the present buildings.

Sheriff Burk, of Cobourg, has unfortunately been oblidged to resign through ill and Mr. Isaac Cæsar Proctor, of Brighton, has been appointed to the shrievalty of Northumberland and Durham in his stead. Mr. Burk has enjoyed his incumbency but a short time, having been appointed to his office only last summer.

HASTINGS.

At a meeting of the Directors of the East Peterborough Agricultural Society on Saturday last, a suggestion was made that a spring show of stallions, bulls, and fat cattle be held in this village about the middle of April, provided East Northumberland unite for that purpose. The suggestion was so favourably entertained that a motion was carried to grant $50 towards a prize list, provided East Northumberland grant a like amount, and Hastings contribute $100. The idea is a very good one and considerable benefit would be mutually derived from a meeting of the Agriculturists of both ridings, on neutral grounds as it were. It is to be hoped that our people will accept the proposition.

On last Thursday night or early on Friday the store of Coban Bros., was entered by burglars. What quantity of good the thieves carried off is difficult to determine, though the vacant places in the shelves prove pretty clearly that at least a dozen bottles of brandy with a like number of cans of sardines and lobsters formed at least a part of the booty. That the burglars were in no hurry about the business, was evident from the state of the counter, on which stood six empty porter bottles, empty sardine and lobster cans, half emptied pickle bottles, fragments of crackers, &c., as suggestive evidence that a hearty lunch had been partaken of.

BOBCAYGEON.

With the issue of Feb. 29th, the Independent enters on its 15th volume. It has flourished and is good; may it still flourish and become better.

A stranger came into the village the other day, and whilst in liquor was induced to part with a horse for a certain sum of money and a worthless note. The man recovered his note on application to the magistrate.

A crowded meeting was held in the town hall on Sunday afternoon, in answer to a call by Mr. Munns, a temperance advocate of Toronto. A total abstinence pledge was introduced, and over a hundred, men, women and children signed their assent. Mr. J. L. Read was elected President, and Mr. Irvine Junkin, Sec'y.

A ball in the town hall, on Tuesday night was largely attended, and passed off most successfully. Mr. G. Kimble, and Mr. P. Hartnett managed the affair with tact and good judgment, and succeeded in having every one thoroughly pleased with the night's enjoyment. North and South Verulam, Harvey, Galway, Emily, Ennismore and Somerville, all sent representatives of their youth and beauty.

A young man named Jas. Quigley, was recently killed in the woods, three miles from this place. The deceased was loading at the high skidway, and a large log rolled upon him and crushed him to death instantly, his brains having oozed out upon the snow.

COUNCIL MEETING.—Council met in Warsaw, on Feb. 16th. 1884. All the members present. Minutes of last meeting read and confirmed. Henry Hughes was allowed to commute his statute labor for five years, under Mr. Kelly, commissioner. On motion the township printing was given to J. R. Stratton, Esq., for the present year. On motion the Reeve and Clerk were authorized to sign, and place corporate seal on petition to Legislature of Ontario, praying for the adoption of Torrens, or other system of land transfer in the Province. William Miles was allowed the timber on 7th con. line, opposite lot 30. On, motion, parties who bought timber off roads previous to 31st Dec., 1883, are required to have the same removed by 1st April, 1885; in future, two years from date of purchase to be allowed for removal of timber, and all future sales to be by public auction. On motion, the Reeve and Clerk was instructed to give the treasurer a voucher for $60, as printing account of 1882, voucher for same having been mislaid, and for $6, that treasurer over charged himself with on timber sales of 1882. Circular from township clerk of Glamorgan, read and discussed, and following motion passed: That, as we have no timber limits to assess, we would have no interest in making common cause with townships having limits; yet, we believe the assessment of such limits is right and just, and, if required, we will join in memoralizing the Ontario Government to remove any doubts as to such assessments, if any doubts exist. Auditors' report of the Treasurer's accounts of 1883, received and adopted, and 200 copies ordered to be printed. Orders granted:—Peter Ferguson, keeping A. Slavin 2 weeks, $5; A. R. Kidd, attending adjourned land sale, $3; Wm. Snelgrove, auditing accounts, 1883, $6; Ed. McIlvena, auditing accounts, 1883, $6. Council adjourned to meet in Warsaw on 15th March next.

ACCIDENT.

On Wednesday of last week, Mr. Alfred Helson, son of Mr. George Helson, Ashburnham, a young man twenty-four years of age, while chopping in the woods, not far from Keene, met with a painful accident. A tree fell on him, breaking and badly bruising his leg. Dr. Massie, of Keene, in his usual skilful manner, supplied the necessary surgical attention.

CHARGE DISMISSED.

On Monday David McCoy was arraigned before the Police Magistrate, in Peterborough, charged with having stolen sheep from Bartholomew Hayes, in September last. After hearing several witnesses the Magistrate decided that there had been a failure to make out the charge, and the accused was discharged. The parties both belong to Otonabee.

OBITUARY.

On Monday last Mr. John Shearer, one of the pioneer settlers of this township, passed away at the age of 79 years. In 1830 deceased came to this country from Scotland, where he was born, in Lanark county, in 1805. He came direct to Otonabee, where he lived for two years with his brother Archibald. Subsequently he spent several years in Peterborough and vicinity. In 1834 he purchased the McKellar property in Ashburnham, which he afterwards exchanged for 100 acres of land in Otonabee, to which he added, by purchase, another hundred acres adjoining. He lived here till the day of his death. He was one of a family of fifteen or sixteen brothers and sisters. In politics he was a Conservative. He leaves behind him a widow, five sons and three daughters. The funeral took place on Wednesday, and the body was laid in the Keene cemetery.

ENNISMORE.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

February on the whole has been a mild month, the thermometer only falling to or below zero five times, the lowest being 14 degrees on the mornings of the 24th and 29th. The highest temperature gained was on the 19th, namely, 42 degrees, making the average temperature of the month 19 degrees. February of 1882 averaged 21 degrees, and February of 1883, 13 degrees. Rain fell on six days to the depth of 1 inch and 58/100th of an inch. Snow fell on 15 days to the depth of 10 inches and 9/10th of an inch. Some severe gales occurred during the month, the worst being on the 29th; owing to the piercing cold and drifting snow, it having snowed for some days previous to the depth of 8 inches, the wind found ready material to again block up our roads, making them heavy for travel.

LOW TEMPERATURE READINGS.

At sunrise on the first of March, the thermometer stood at 20 degrees below, and on the morning of the second, at 29 degrees below zero.

LAKEFIELD.

(From our Own Correspondent.)

CHURCH.

The Steamer Cruiser has lately changed owners, Mr. W. H. Casement having sold to Messrs Wright & Eden. The energy and enterprise of the purchasers will ensure the success of the Cruiser in the future. Mr. Eden being a practical man makes the success more certain, nor would we forget that the public wants have been well provided for in the past under the management of the different proprietors.

THE STORM.

The late storm caused almost a complete blockade of the roads, some meeting with upsets, others having to leave their vehicles on the road, while some had to get assistance from the farmers to enable them to continue their journey. Wire fences on the north and south roads would do away with all this inconvenience to the travelling public. Our municipalities should move in the matter. No train has arrived in Lakefield since Thursday the 28th Feb. up to present time 5th March.

THE CROSSING.

We might draw attention to the fact that at the crossing where the accident (reported fully elsewhere in this issue) took place, a clump of trees and underbrush completely obscures the view of an approaching train until within a few feet of the railway track; it also, of course, prevents the engine-driver from seeing any one approaching the track from the east, until within a few feet of the public road. This can be remedied, to a certain extent at any rate, by clearing off the brush and trees on the public highway.

RAILWAY CHANGES.

By the recent changes in the time table issued by the G.T.R., Lakefield is to have only the noon train. This is a great inconvenience to the travelling public. There is not a large passenger traffic we are aware, but there is a large amount of shipping done, as well as a great amount of freight received here. We consider ourselves entitled to better accommodations. Mr. J. Rogers has been running a daily stage to Peterborough, but unless it pays will not continue to do so.

COUNCIL.

A special meeting of the Council took place on Monday evening last. Members all present. The Reeve in the chair. The object of the meeting was to consider the proposition of Gemmel & McKee to remove their woolen and carding mill to Lakefield, on condition of receiving a bonus of $300 to assist in the expense of removal. Some of the ratepayers addressed the council on the matter; thought that some guarantee should be given for remaining some certain length of time. The council decided to settle the matter at their next regular meeting on Monday next, when probably the ratepayers will have an opportunity of expressing their views more fully. The bonus is very small, and the village would likely be the gainer in the end to give the bonus.

INQUEST.

An inquest having been ordered by the County Attorney to be held to enquire into the circumstances which led to the death of the late Miss Reid. Coroner Bell summoned and swore in the following jurymen, Messrs. Graham, Harper, Alex. Richardson, Mahood, Burgess, Northcote, McDonald, Cotton, Purser, Richmond, Nelson, and Jackman, Mr. John Dinwoodie, Foreman.

The inquest was opened at the residence of Mr. Tait, on Friday afternoon and adjourned till Tuesday the 4th inst. at 2 o'clock p. m. to meet in the council chamber. The G.T.R. officials not being present and having requested a further adjournment it was adjourned accordingly to Thursday the 6th inst. at 2 o'clock P. M. to meet in the same place.

BELMONT.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Mr. W. W. Hinckly, a former resident of Belmont, has recently settled at Devil's Lake, Dakota, where he is reported as doing well.

We notice an article published in the Norwood Register under the head of "Round House," in which it says a correspondent of the EXAMINER was greatly incensed in regard to the remarks it made about the round house at Mathison's. But if Captain Tongs would observe the correspondent more closely, he would find we were more pleased than irritated about the matter. And, why? Because we are to have a round house, and other buildings in connection with it, without spending time or money to secure it; while, on the other hand, the people of Norwood spent time and money trying to get the "dirty, smoky and greasy round house" within their grasp. Now, if the "shed," as they call it, is to be such a disagreeable nuisance, why did they go to so much trouble in trying to get it within the corporation of Norwood? In the first place, the municipal parliament of Norwood gave the navvies an oyster dinner, thinking by using their influence in that way they would induce the Railway Company to build the round house and other buildings of importance inside the corporation. This scheme failing, another was tried, in which one of the most prominent citizens of Norwood was chosen as a delegate to go to Toronto to wait on Mr. Ryan, with what success has been seen. As for Mathison's becoming a second Montreal, the like never was hinted at But we do hope, through time, it will become a place that will be the means of cutting off from Norwood a part of the monopoly which they have held for the past twenty years. And, we think it will be well, for to-day we can buy goods cheaper at Havelock than from any of the Norwood merchants. Now, they tell us of a place where the muskrat and beaver reign supreme. Well, we will draw the attention of Captain Tongs to the centre of the village of Norwood, from Mr. Buck's mill to Mr. Hendron's hotel, it looks to us very much like the home of the muskrat and beaver, the bull-frog and black snake. As regards the statement about the Norwood station being untrue, there may have been a slight mistake, but taking the figures for granted, it is quite an item less than 250 feet, as they first reported, yet we think it would take the station and all the sheds in connection with it to make 90x30 feet.

PETEBBOROUGH, MARCH 6, 1884.

TOWN COUNCIL.

The Grocery and Liquor Business Separated.

The council met pursuant to adjournment, on Thursday night, Feb. 28th.

Present—His worship the Mayor, and Messrs. Cahill, Davidson, Kelly, Green, Millar, Yelland, Douglas, Rutherford, Menzies, Kendry and Hartley.

After routine,

PETITIONS

were presented

From W. C. Nichols, asking the council for aid for Mrs. O'Neil, incurably afflicted—Referred to Charity Committee.

From James Murray, asking relief.—Charity Committee with power to act.

From Mary Callahan, asking for remission of taxes.—Court of Revision.

From 119 ratepayers praying that the council reduce the license fees on liquor, billiard tables and pool tables.

On motion of Mr. Rutherford, to refer the petition to the License Committee,

Mr. Cahill said that the evident object of Mr. Rutherford was to kill the petition, and he moved, seconded by Mr. Davidson, that the license by-law be amended by reducing the fee for tavern licenses to $180, the same as shop licenses, and that the corporate seal be attached to the resolution, and that it be signed by the Mayor and Clerk, to give it the effect of a by-law.

A motion by Mr. Kelly, seconded by Mr. Rutherford, to allow parties interested to address the council, was passed but not taken advantage of.

Mr. Yelland said Mr. Cahill was inconsistent in denouncing Mr. Rutherford's motion, since he had on Tuesday night moved that the petition for the separation of groceries and liquors be referred to the license committee to report on in two weeks, instead of to-night.

Mr. Cahill explained that he did not prefase his motion with great professions of wishing to give fair play.

The amendment was lost, and the original motion carried.

GROCERIES AND LIQUORS.

Mr. Rutherford, chairman, submitted the report of the License Committee, recommending that the petition of Rev. E. F. Torrance, and 138 others, asking the council to separate the sale of liquors from groceries, be granted, and that the by-law to be passed shall come into force on the first day of January, 1885. The report further recommended that the by-law affecting transient traders be amended by inserting the words, "by sample or otherwise."

Accordingly a by-law was introduced to provide for the separation of the sale of groceries and liquors.

The council went into committee of the whole on the second reading, Mr. Millar in the chair.

On the first clause, Mr. Kelly said the council had resolved by by-law to grant twenty shop licenses, and that, if they wanted to promote temperance the number should be reduced to ten, which would be more easily watched. He also spoke of vested interests, and held that some stocks could not be disposed of by the first of January.

Mr. Yelland said that there would be as much drinking with eight shops as with twenty. He had been told that ladies, to conceal their drinking habits from their husbands, were accustomed to get whiskey at shops and have it charged as sugar and tea. This could not be done if the shops were separated.

Mr. Cox pointed out that it would hardly be fair to grant a license for a year and then take away the power of selling at the first of January.

Mr. Rutherford said the council could meet the case by granting a rebate of the amount of the license proportionate to the unexpired time.

Mr. Cahill thought the council had no right to interfere with a traffic recognised by law. He held that the separation of groceries and liquors would not diminish drinking. If the liquor was in one store and the groceries in another, it would not prevent whiskey being ordered and charged as groceries. He thought the separation would increase disreputable shops.

Mr. Kendry said the proposed amendment to the Crooks Act provided for the separation of the trade, and we were taking a step in the right direction.

Mr. Rutherford said he had learned that the council could not give a rebate of the license fees, and he would move to amend the by-law by extending the time of its coming into effect to the 30th April, 1885.

Mr. Menzies argued in favor of giving parties concerned fair play.

Mr. Cox said the principle of separation was recognised by both the Ottawa and the Provincial governments, and he hoped this by-law would come into effect.

Mr. Rutherford's amendment was agreed to, and the first clause and the remaining clauses were adopted, and the committee rose.

On the council resuming, the by-law was, on motion of Mr. Rutherford, seconded by Mr. Hartley, read a third time, Mr. Cahill only, voting against the third reading.

TRANSIENT TRADERS.

A by-law was introduced to amend the by-law relating to transient traders, and after discussion, the consideration of it was postponed till the meeting to be held on the 31st March.

MARKET BY-LAW.

A by-law was introduced to amend the Market By-law, and after discussion it was resolved to refer the by-law back to the committee with a view of considering the whole matter of butchers' licenses and limits.

THE TOWN BABY.

A motion by Mr. Rutherford, seconded by Mr. Kendry, that the offer of Mr. Storms, to adopt the town baby without any bonus, was introduced, and after considerable infantile discussion, lost on the following division:—

YEAS—Messrs. Yelland, Rutherford, Kendry and Hartley—4.

NAYS—Messrs. Cahill, Kelly, Green and Menzies—4.

COUNCIL MEETINGS.

A motion of Mr. Kelly's to fix monthly definite dates for the meetings of the council, was allowed to stand over until the meeting of the council on March 31st.

"Delivered in the House of Commons, February 12th, 1884."

A DUCAL SCANDAL.

Mayfair, a new London society magazine, publishes the following paragraph:

"Another celebrated case will be that of the gallant Earl of Euston, who will be the next Duke of Grafton. The Earl seeks to get rid of his wife. His contention is that the lady's first husband was alive when she became Countess of Euston is now alive and can be produced. His appearance in the witness-box will be highly dramatic, for the lady has seen him and declares that she knows nothing about him. The approaching trial will rival the Tichborne case and be the sensation of the season." The facts of the matter are these: thirteen years ago Henry Fitzroy, eldest son of Lord Augustus Fitzroy, fell in love with a dubious woman known as "Kate Cook." She was handsome and stylish in person, and her matured charms were quite sufficient to captivate the youth of 23, unknown to his father, who was equerry to the Queen. He married her. Most chronicles of the peerage ignored the marriage; others described the bride as the daughter of John Walsh and widow of "Mr. Smith." In 1882 the bridegroom's social position changed. Lord Augustus Fitzroy succeeded his brother as seventh Duke of Grafton, Henry Fitzroy became Earl of Euston, the widow of "Mr. Smith" became Countess of Euston, and the future Duchess of Grafton. But troubles had already come between her and her husband. They separated by mutual agreement. No fault being proved against the Countess since her marriage the Earl sought in vain for a divorce. The mysterious "Mr. Smith" has now appeared, and the excuse is found. If the case fails Kate Cook will be Duchess of Grafton.

A Remarkable Escape.

Mrs. Mary A. Dailey, of Tunkhannock, Pa., was afflicted for six years with Asthma and Bronchitis, during which time the best physicians could give no relief. Her life was despaired of, until in last October she procured a Bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery, when immediate relief was felt, and by continuing its use for a short time she was completely cured, gaining in flesh 50 lbs. in a few months. Free Trial Bottles of this certain cure of all Throat and Lung Diseases at Taylor & McDonald's Drug Store. Large Bottles $1.00.

SOUTH MONAGHAN.

To the Editor of the EXAMINER:

I notice in a recent issue of the Times, an item sent by a South Monaghan correspondent over the soaring signature of "spread eagle." Now my opinion is that if Billy can carry any more taugle foot, or is fonder of it than "Spread Eagle," I pity him, and think he would be better in some happier clime than this world.

OUTSIDER.

A Double Benefit.

James Moore, a prominent resident of Leamington, writes that he cured himself of Dyspepsia of a year's duration by one bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters, and two bottles cured his wife who had been for years a sufferer from the same disease. He conscientiously recommends it to all suffering from similar troubles. 9-2t

NOTES FROM THE CAPITAL

Doings at Ottawa, in and out of the House.

TUESDAY.

VOTE SHIRKERS.

When the yeas and nays were called for to-day on the question of giving the Feudile Loan Bill precedence, Sir Charles Tupper again quietly stole out of his seat and shirked the vote. Mr. John Henry Pope was also absent, and possibly he, like Sir Charles and Mr. Abbott, has discovered that he has such an interest in the question that he cannot give an impartial vote. Sir Charles' conduct in speaking in Parliament as a member of the Government, and sneaking out of the House whenever a division is called for, in order to avoid voting, would not be tolerated by any other Parliament in the world. If he is an officer of the Company he should be turned out of the House as a stranger. If his position is legal, why is he afraid to vote?

RUMOURED SALE OF MR. POPE'S ROAD.

Mr. Pope, Minister of Agriculture, was absent from his place in the House during the greater part of to-day's sittings, and it is reported that he has disposed of his International Railway (50 miles) to the Canadian Pacific Railway Company for $25,000 per mile, realizing in all, $1,250,000. This road was built almost wholly by Provincial and municipal subsidies, and last summer, while Mr. Pope was acting Minister of Railways, the Dominion Government expended no less than $144,000 in laying the road with steel rails. This expenditure of course went to enhance greatly the value of the International Railway, of which Mr. Pope is the actual proprietor.

TUPPERIAN WHITEWASH.

Sir John Macdonald has given notice of a bill to amend the Independence of Parliament Act. This is no doubt the bill to whitewash Sir Charles Tupper, and indemnify him against penalties for illegally sitting and voting in Parliament during the present session.

Mr. Blake has given notice that at an early day, on the motion to go into Committee of Supply, he will call attention to the position of Sir Charles Tupper as Minister of Railways, High Commissioner of Canada, and a member of this House, and will move an amendment to the motion.

INFORMATION WITHHELD.

Sir Charles Tupper to-day asserted, notwithstanding Mr. Blake's protests, that the House was in possession of all possible information concerning the position of the Pacific Railway Company and their relations to the Government. Sir Charles seeks by audacious assertions to cover up the refusals of the Government and the Company to furnish very important information asked for by the House. For instance, no explanation has yet been offered as to why Sir Charles Tupper is afraid to record his vote in Parliament in favour of making further advances to the C. P. R. No information has yet been furnished as to the amount of money made by the Canada Pacific directors and shareholders out of the boom in their stock caused by the announcement that the Government had agreed to guarantee three per cent. dividend upon it. Neither has any statement been brought down showing the amount of money made by the Pacific Syndicate out of the operations of the Credit Mobilier Construction Company.

WEDNESDAY.

NORTHWEST TROUBLES.

Messrs Scott and Royal had an interview with Sir John Macdonald to-day, in reference to North-West troubles, brought about by his mal-administration. Sir John is very anxious about the state of that country, as he is constantly receiving telegrams reporting disturbances.

THE ORANGE BILL DROPPED.

The Provincial Grand Orange Lodge again met to-day, when on discussion the resolution urging the Government to pass the Orange Incorporation Bill was defeated by a large majority. A lengthy discussion took place as to the relation the society bore towards the two political parties in the State.

THURSDAY.

In the House of Commons to-day, Mr. Blake brought up the question of Sir Charles Tupper's eligibility to sit and vote in Parliament while holding the office of High Commissioner. After speeches by Mr. Blake, Sir John A. Macdonald, and Messrs. Cameron, of Huron, Mills, Chapleau, Casey and Woodworth, an amendment proposed by Sir John Macdonald to refer the whole question to the Committee on Privileges and Elections was carried by 122 to 57. The Pacific Railway Loan Bill was then taken up. A clause to prevent amalgamation or pooling between the Canadian Pacific and Grand Trunk Railways was added to the bill. Several amendments moved by Mr. Blake were of course voted down, and the bill was read a third time and passed.

POPE'S RAILWAY.

The arrangements by which the International Railway is to be transferred to the Pacific Railway Company are being completed. A bill was passed by the Private Bills Committee to-day to authorize the International Railway Company to issue bonds to the amount of $20,000 per mile. That railway is now about sixty-five miles in length, so that Mr. Pope, a Minister of the Crown, will now secure about $1,300,000 for his road, upon which the Government spent $144,000 last summer.

FRIDAY.

Sir Leonard Tilley's budget speech this afternoon was the tamest effort of the kind ever listened to in the House. It was really painful to watch his laboured endeavours to excite the enthusiasm of his admirers by references to the results of the National Policy. It was no go. Sir Leonard Tilley and his National Policy have both lost their charms and are no longer of any use to conjure with. By admitting that depression now prevails, the Finance Minister surrendered entirely all his claims to the power of creating and maintaing prosperity. He made many assertions which he did not prove, attempted a number of explanations which he was unable to complete, and floundered along in a most helpless manner. There was a tremendous falling off as compared with last year and the year previous. There was no spread-eagleism, and at no time during the delivery of his speech was the House more than half full. The attendance in the galleries was also slim. He sought to attribute the heavy decline in bank stocks to the "outrageous management" of the Exchange Bank. He looked around and turned pale at seeing within a few feet of him Mr. M. H. Gault, his faithful henchman, who was President of the Exchange Bank while this "outrageous management" which is alleged to have wrecked the institution was going on. Sir Leonard's remark had the effect of drawing all eyes to Mr. Gault's seat, when that gentleman was found to have hauled his head in his coat. It is nevertheless a fact that Sir Leonard was fully aware of the "outrageous mismanagement" when he loaned $350,000 of public money to the Exchange Bank upon the personal security of one of its directors. Strangely enough Mr. Gault was found applauding the man who cast such aspersions upon his commercial honesty and capacity. Sir Leonard's tariff changes are not very startling, and his estimates of revenue for current and coming years are certainly higher than appearances warrant, and his estimates of expenditure will be found altogether too low. Resuming after recess, Sir Leonard addressed a thin House and thinner galleries for an hour or so, but made no new points.

SIR RICHARD CARTWRIGHT'S

speech to-night in reply to the Finance Minister was a magnificent effort, and gave great satisfaction to his friends. Disinterested parties who heard Sir Richard to-night are not surprised that the Tories should have endeavoured by their cowardly Gerrymander Act to keep him out of Parliament. He took up and disposed of Sir Leonard Tilley's statements point by point, meeting every statement fully and effectually. Sir Richard's speech was one complete and consecutive argument from beginning to end, which was not clouded by long extracts or irrelevant matters of any kind. It was an address which should be read and studied by every taxpayer who desires to understand his position and the position of the State. Every subject bearing upon the financial condition of the country was fearlessly discussed and the manner in which he arraigned of the present administration evoked great enthusiasm.

THE POLICY AND GENERAL CONDUCT

It was generally expected that the very courageous Minister of Railways would have undertaken to reply to Sir Richard, but that gentleman seems to have devoted himself entirely to the legislative interest of the Pacific Railway Company. Mr. White, of Cardwell, rose to follow Sir Richard, but immediately moved the adjournment of the debate. The hour was comparatively early, but Mr. White will require the three days and a half which intervene between now and Tuesday to hunt up data for his speech. If Mr. White is the ablest financial defender the Government have it is a deplorable confession of weakness.

THE SUIT AGAINST SIR CHARLES.

Sir Charles Tupper was served with a writ for $5,200 to-day for having sat in the House of Commons of Canada for twenty-six days, during January and February 1884, contrary to the provisions of chapter 5 of the Statutes of Canada. The suit is taken at instance of Mr. Andrew Campbell of Ottawa City.

SIR CHARLES TUPPER'S PERQUISITES.

Mr. Blake's speech last night was a crushing reply to all the arguments advanced in support to Sir Charles Tupper's position as member of the parliament and High Commissioner. It was shown that the sole object of the Government in making Sir Charles High Commissioner was to enable him to draw $5,000 as official perquisite in addition to his salary without performing any additional duties. Sir Charles is drawing $13,000 a year.

WHAT IS A MILLION?

(Cornwall Freeholder.)

By far the greater number of those who advocate entrusting the Canada Pacific Railway Company with $30,000,000 of the people's money have no conception of the greatness of the sum they are talking about. Men who would think it a great misfortune to lose $30 "clean cash" by the bankruptcy of an unfortunate shopkeeper or the mechanic, talk like Rothschilds about lending thirty millions to a concern that is not able to pay its honest debts, and whose credit is so bad that it cannot get accommodation in the ordinary way. Let us enquire a little into what $30,000,000 mean.

The whole wheat crop of Ontario in 1881—and in that year the wheat crop was an uncommonly good one—was, we see by the census, estimated at 27,411,091 bushels. All the wheat therefore raised in Ontario for home consumption as well as for export in 1881, at $1 per bushel, would not amount to $30,000,000. If the farmers of the Dominion were asked to lend one year's wheat crop to the Syndicate without any prospect of return, they would look upon the man who made the request as fit to be put in a mad house.

Again, the export of agricultural produce from the whole Dominion last year amounted to $22,818,519. This is not much more than the proposed cash loan which the Government proposes to make to the Canadian Pacific Railway Company.

The census of 1881 tells us that there are in Ontario 473,806 horses. Value these at $60 a piece all round, and we have $28,428,360, not quite as much as the people of Canada are asked to make the Syndicate a present of.

The milch cows owned in Ontario number 782,243. These at $30 a head would be worth $23,467,290, not quite a million more than the Syndicate ask the Government to lend them in cash.

It is by calculations such as these that the intelligent electors can form something like an adequate idea of the magnitude of the sums of the people's money which the Government of the Dominion intend to throw away upon the reckless, extravagant Pacific Railway Company.

Fact Stranger than Fiction.

It is a fact that Alonza Howe, of Tweed, had a fever sore that afflicted him for thirty-five years. Six bottles of Burdock Blood Bitters cured him, which he considers almost a miracle. It was but the natural result of restoring pure blood and perfect secretion. 9-2t

Crushed by the Cars.

A little son of John Spinks, Toronto, had his foot crushed by a G. T. R. Express train some time ago. Two doctors attended him without benefit, and amputation was proposed, but Hagyard's Yellow Oil was tried, which gave prompt relief and effected a speedy cure, even removing all stiffness of the joint. 9-2t

The Tucker Spring Pad Truss

FOR HERNIA OR RUPTURE.

(This cut represents the Pad without the belt. Note the position of the ▷ shaped spring situated in the pad by which a CONSTANT but easy INWARD and UPWARD pressure is conveyed to the Hernia when the Pad is adjusted.)

This Truss, which is placed before your notice and consideration, is wholly unlike any other appliance in construction or principle. It dispenses with the ever uncomfortable Body Spring, having the means to convey a proper pressure just where it is required, that is in the Pad. The Tucker Truss is very light, single one weighing about 4 ozs., and the double one not 8 ozs., it completely and comfortably retains the Hernia under all positions and exertions of the body. A swivel attachment to the belt prevents displacement by locomotion or stooping, and its ready and complete adjustability by which each Pad is made either RIGHT or LEFT at once or lined at any desired angle commends it, and also, it is more durable than any other, as there is nothing to rust or break, all the metal work being nickel plated.

AMONG THE LAKES OF NORTHERN PETERBOROUGH.

Racy Records of a Rambling Writer.

No. 4.

Just as the rays of the setting sun were blending with the twilight upon the hills, a short distance north the appeared in the valley. My team were driven into the stables at the Eastland House, and, with the assistance of the obliging hostler, made comfortable for the night. On emerging from the door attention was directed to two large, wild black bears, in the yard. Having in early life heard numerous bear and wolf stories, but never before having come in contact with their kinship in their wild state, I was somewhat timid.

LONG SOUGHT FOR APSLEY

My first impression on seeing the brutes led me to regret the absence of my rifle, which was, unfortunately, left behind in the shop for repairs. I observed they wore large-sized standing collars, that had evidently been laundried in some blacksmith's shop. In order to keep them from slipping from their necks, they were fastened to small-sized cable chains, secured to round posts, four inches in diameter and eight feet in height, firmly set in the ground. I approached them with great caution. Having previously heard of the extreme hospitality of the people of Northern Peterborough, I little anticipated that it extended to the brute creation. They did not wait for a formal introduction, but stood erect and beckoned me to come nigh and shake hands. "Jumbo," the elder one, would weigh two hundred pounds. Observing my bashfulness, he spoke to me in an unknown tongue, and tried to convince me by gestures, smiles and grimaces that, according to the evolution theory of the late lamented Charles Darwin, we were forty-ninth cousins. I declined his embrace, not being able to see the force of his argument, except on the point of his finger-nails, which did not look very inviting. My twenty-five dollar beaver overcoat is considered a model of perfection, but I would readily have exchanged with them for the ones they wore, being jet black, the most perfect fitting garments ever beheld, woven in the great loom of nature. The elder one, in order to show his dexterity, ascended the pole, and balanced himself with perfect ease upon the extreme end, it being just four inches in diameter. After descending, he stood erect and appeared to want to pass around the hat, after the manner of an organ grinder, and wound up the exercises by delivering an exhortation, which, being interpreted by the hostler, meant "that a few cold victuals would be acceptable." While the contents of a pan of choice bits of meat and bread was being divided between them, he snatched the dish and walked off with it under his arm, sitting down and utterly refusing to divide with his sister, who made urgent appeals for an equal share. They soon after stood erect and offered to box, with gloves or bare handed, Jem Mace, Sullivan, or any other man, for any amount. Judging from the dexterity which they displayed in warding off chips thrown at them, I pronounced them champion boxers, fit subjects for the prize ring, and fully equal to most of our pugilists, physically and intellectually. I was informed this species of black bear is the only one known in Northern Peterborough, being very plentiful this season, no less than four having been killed in the vicinity of Lakefield. Not long since, in the adjoining county, entered a farm yard, during the day, and walked off on his hind feet with a 200 lbs. pig in his fore paws. On nearing a six rail fence he grabbed his lump of bacon by the neck with his teeth, climbed over and resumed his journey, while the poor pig was calling lustily for assistance. The farmer had strong objections to selling his pork on credit, in such a market, followed on with his rifle and despatched the thief, whose hide measured seven feet in length, and brought the handsome sum of twenty dollars.

ONE WEIGHING 600 LBS.

On entering

THE EASTLAND HOUSE,

Thomas Pratt, an old Torontonian, was found in charge. After being provided with a substantial repast, being weary with my journey, I retired for the night, and was soon in the land of dreams. But was awakened at early dawn by the crack of the sportsman's rifle.

Apsley, the grand centre around which the world moves in this locality, the only village north of Stony Lake, in the county, is situated in the south-east portion of the township of Anstruther, on lot 34, first concession, on the Burleigh Government Road, at the junction of the Wellington Road, leading east and south to Norwood. It derives its name from "Apsley House," the seat of the Duke of Wellington. The name was given by the Post-office Department, as a substitute for "Anster," previously suggested by some old resident. The post-office was established here at an early day, and Mr. J. C. Visard was the

FIRST POSTMASTER.

The village is bounded on the west by Eels Creek, which rises fifteen miles north, at Eels Lake (an Indian chief's name), in the township of Anstruther. The banks of the creek on the north and west are skirted with a good growth of hard and soft wood of every variety for many miles, while further west is a heavy growth of pine. East of the creek for about a quarter of a mile the land is level. The soil is a good sandy loam, through which the Government road passes, while on the north-east side the land rises in a bluff to the height of one hundred and fifty feet, it being at one time covered with a heavy growth of pine; but the lumberman's axe and the annual bush fires have made it a desolate waste, with here and there only a few blackened, dry pines, divested of their branches and foliage, the former home of the red man. Large ridges of sandstone, in many places nearly half a mile in length, are seen with their seamless, polished faces glittering in the sun. To a person unaccustomed to such scenes, they are really grand. No more picturesque country can be found in Ontario than from Stony Lake to the northern portion of the country.

THE FIRST ACTUAL SETTLER

in Apsley was William Wilson, who located, 1863. He paid $21 for the town site, consisting of one hundred acres, which he purchased from Hugh Nesbitt. The place was laid out into lots by James Bird, P.L.S., 1872, ten acres of which was owned by C. J. Visard. About 30 lots were surveyed and offered for sale. The growth of the village has been quite slow, and nothing but the presence of a railroad or an important industry can alter its fate of comparative obscurity. Stores have come and gone like spring blossoms, but not quite so numerous or so sweet. There has been a time in the history of the village when Goldsmith's lines were peculiarly appropriate—

"Sweet smiling village, loveliest of the lawn,
Thy sports are fled and all thy charms withdrawn,
Amid the bowers the tyrant hand is seen,
And desolation saddens all the green."

A few years ago the prospects of the place were as bright as a May morn, and the hearts of the citizens throbbed in anticipation of the future. Why cannot Apsley have a railroad as well as any other place? The surrounding country is teeming with wealth; the rolling hills are filled with minerals. Gold, iron and lead are to be found in great abundance, although the former metal is not secured without considerable exertion. Iron is cropping out in every direction. Eight miles east of Apsley there is being opened by the Coe Company an iron mine, to which a branch of the Ontario Central railroad is to be constructed, when completed; when completed it will bring the station within eleven miles of Apsley. Timber of every variety—pine, hemlock, tamarack, balsam, birch, beech, maple, basswood, ash, oak and elm—abound throughout the entire municipality. It seems to be a great sin to see millions of cords of the best timber rotting on the ground, while thousands of people in our crowded cities are paying exorbitant prices for coal, imported from Ohio and Pennsylvania. What a priceless boon it would be to them if they could have access to this unbroken forest of wealth! What industries might flourish here, if capitalists could be induced to invest their money, to unlock the hidden treasures of this rock-bound district? The iron horse is all that is needed to work a mighty change in the commercial atmosphere of this whole northern "gold mine."

The place now contains two hotels. The Wellington, owned by A. & G. McIlmoyle, situated at the Junction of the Burleigh and Wellington roads. It is a large, commodious white two-story frame house, with a frontage of fifty feet, with verandah and balcony extending along the entire front. The present occupants are an old U. E. Loyalist, who settled in the township of Smith at an early day. The house, under the present efficient management, is a model of comfort; at its table is served all kinds of wild game, with all the delicacies of the season. The Eastland House, only recently erected, on the west side of the Government Road, is a large, white, three-story frame building, Mr. Thos. H. Pratt being "mine host," assisted by his genial wife, who looks closely after the wants of the guests, and serves up, in elegant Delmonico style, quail on toast, venison, partridge, salmon, and a variety of game, with which the country abounds. There is a fine Town and Temperance Hall, three stores, three blacksmith and carriage shops, and five private residences. Saw and grist mills, with all modern improvements, situated a short distance north-west of the Government Road, on Eel's Creek. It is owned and conducted by Mr. James Golbourne, who was the first Reeve of the municipality, 1864. The school house is unfortunately, located two and a half miles north, which, for the credit of the inhabitants, should be moved at once to Apsley.

ONLY ONE CHURCH SPIRE,

St. George's, Church of England, stands as a monument to the piety and zeal of the inhabitants. The building is about 30x50 feet, one story high, with spire and Gothic windows. It is beautifully furnished with neat and appropriate chancel, with sittings for about two hundred persons. The erection of the edifice was begun in 1874, the handsome sum of £500 sterling was generously contributed by a devoted English Christian lady, Mrs. Hall, wife of Captain Hall, Gloucester, England, but through some unforseen circumstance only $500 was used for that purpose. The bequest being sent to her son, E. S. Hall, he confiscated the lion's share and subsequently moved to the States. This circumstance left the people in debt, and the building unfinished. Mr. James Golborne, the proprietor of the saw mill, generously contributed lumber to assist in its completion. In 1875 Mr. Phillip Harding was appointed by reader by the Right Reverend Bishop Bethune, and the following year was ordained rector. He immediately set about to raise funds to bring it to a successful completion. He made an urgent appeal to a penny monthly, The Net; Out in Many Waters, published in London, England, and soon after was generously made the recipient of $400, which brought the building to its present finished condition in 1880. Since then, through various sums contributed in England, Peterborough and Toronto; 125 acres of land have been purchased a little south of this place, and forty acres are now under a good state of cultivation. A neat, substantial, commodious cottage previously erected and used as a parsonage, has been greatly improved by the present incumbent, the Rev. Phillip Harding, formerly of Herefordshire, England, whose district embraces an area of 300 square miles. St. Stephens, a branch of this church, is a small, one-story building, located in the township of Chandos, where divine service is held every two weeks, and still another branch is now being constructed in the eastern portion of the same township, a large amount of the funds being raised among the residents of that locality.

THE CANADA PACIFC.

How the Original Stock was Disposed of.

The following statement showing how the $20,000,000 remaining of the original stock of $25,000,000 of the Canadian Pacific was taken, was laid before parliament. The sale paid, with the exception of 1001 shares was 25 per cent on the par value. It will be observed that the greater portion of this stock was taken by members of the original syndicate, who by purchasing at 25 and selling at from 50, the lowest quotation of C. P. R. stock, to 64, the highest quotations, were able to realize a handsome profit out of the transactions.

THE EXODUS.

The rapid rate at which Canada is becoming depleted of her population demands the serious and immediate attention of the government. The last official returns show that during the month of January 2,350 Canadians were driven out of the country into the United States where they might find employment. It is needless for Sir Leonard Tilley, or any other man, to say that the figures given in regard to the "Exodus" are overdrawn. If anything they are under estimated. The total number of immigrants arriving in the United States from the several countries during the months of January was as follows: From England and Wales, 1,699; Ireland, 515; Scotland, 236; Austria, 503; Bohemia, 97; Belgium, 46; Denmark, 83; France, 198; Germany, 3,271; Hungary, 962; Italy, 642; Netherlands, 62; Norway, 76; Russia, 529; Poland, 124; Sweeden, 98; Switzerland, 284; Dominion of Canada, 2,350; and from all other countries, 240. The following shows the immigration from different countries during the seven months ending 31st January, 1884, as compared with the corresponding months of 1882-83.

Few are the remedies whose beneficial qualities and real merits have made them so popular with the public, and increased from year to year their consumption, which, whilst possessing the most valuable remedial properties, are yet so simple in their compound, and so easy to take, as The Quinine Wine, prepared by Northrop & Lyman of Toronto. This article is prepared from the pure Sulphate of Quinine, combined with fine Sherry Wine, and choice aromatics, which relieves the Quinine of its bitter taste, and does not impair in the least degree the efficacy of its action upon the patient; while small doses, frequently repeated, strengthen the pulse, increase muscular force, and invigorate the tone of the nervous system and thus, by the general vigor which it imparts, creates an appetite, which gives to the stomach tone and energy, and fortifies the system against all infectious diseases. Ask for Northrop & Lyman's Quinine Wine; sold by all druggists.

PROVINCIAL RIGHTS ASSERTED BY A GREAT MASS MEETING AT BRANDON.

A large and enthusiastic meeting was held at Brandon on Wednesday under the auspices of the Farmers' Union. After the report of the delegates to Ottawa had been received, resolutions were passed endorsing the previous declaration of rights, demanding the extension of the boundaries to Hudson Bay, and a redistribution of seats in the Local Legislature. Several delegates were appointed to attend the Winnipeg convention on March 5th. The convention promises to be a great and earnest gathering.

PETERBOROUGH, MARCH 6, 1884.

The Work of the Week in Toronto.

Those who read Mr. Carnegie's paper do not need to be told that his treatment of political opponents is rude to the verge of vulgarity, and even beyond it, and they will not be surprised to learn that the style of his journal is the counterpart of his own manner in the Legislative Assembly. Such a man is sure to get sooner or latter the castigation he is working for, and never did a man of his stamp get a more deserved one than he received at the hands of the Minister of Education. He had the impertinence to insinuate in his speech on the Budget that Mr. Rosshad some improper business regulations with one of the school book publishing firms. The insinuation was an old one, and had been set at rest by a letter to the Mail, over the firm's own signature. The language applied by the justly indignant Minister to his slanderer will stick to him as long as the epithet of "Sarah," which the same gentleman fastened to him in South Renfrew. He told Mr. Carnegie that he liked to meet a courageous opponent, but that he despised the insinuations of a coward, and in this retort he defined, what all who know him will admit to be the most marked characteristic of the member for West Peterborough. He is good at insinuations, but it is very difficult to tie him down to definite charges.

After making a rambling and inconsequential speech, Mr. Carnegie moved an amendment to the motion to go into Committee of Supply, condemning the Government for authorizing two series of Readers. This attempt to condemn a Ministry for a policy already abandoned, is so absurd that disinterested observers are still at a loss to know whether the error was due to Mr. Meredith's want of tactical skill, or to his irrepressible lieutenant's bumptiousness and desire to display his powers as a strategist. The latter seems the most likely explanation of the mystery, for it is almost inconceivable that any leader of an Opposition, however wanting in astuteness, could have blundered so fatally. The result was a foregone conclusion, the Government majority being fourteen in a full House, as at present constituted. When Muskoka, South Oxford and East Grey come to be represented, the majority is likely to be increased rather than diminished.

The other Mr. Ross in the Cabinet was equally severe on the bumptious member for West Peterborough. The Treasurer has been for thirty years Treasurer of the largest county municipality in Ontario, and during most of that time he has followed the occupation of a banker. It is not at all likely that in a carefully prepared speech, like his financial statement, he was going to put forward any calculations that would not stand the test of the closest scrutiny. In his estimate of the amount payable annually under the proposed re-arrangement of the railway aid liability, he had a comparatively simple calculation to make. Simple as it was, however, Mr. Carnegie could not see through it, and the Treasurer, amidst the laughter of members on both sides of the House, offered to teach his obtuse critic a little arithmetic if he would come to him privately for his lessons. His ignorance of figures and incapacity to handle them were made equally conspicuous the other day, when he was endeavoring to to examine a witness in the Public Accounts Committee. His floundering became at last so painful, that Mr. Meredith had to take the witness in hand, and relieve his self-satisfied follower, who, to use an expressive western saying, had bitten off more than he could "chew."

The division the other night settles beyond doubt the status of the Mowat Administration. It must be borne in mind that the trial of strength was deliberately made, for though the subordinate may have blundered, the leader could easily have staved off the issue. Nor should the fact be overlooked that the trial was made after weeks of persistent effort to shake the allegiance of Government supporters by reckless charges on the floor of the House, and of equally persistent effort to seduce them by the most direct offers of pecuniary and other inducements. One member was offered a Senatorship if he would help to turn the Government out. Another was offered a portfolio if he would help the Opposition to get hold of the Treasury benches. A third was offered $2,000 in cash and a lucrative office under the Dominion Government. The catspaw made use of by Sir John Macdonald was a certain notorious henchman and wire-puller, who was constantly flitting around the lobbies and smoking room for the first part of the session, and who is never seen now about the House at all. The failure to win a single Government supporter over has been signal, complete, crushing and final. Mr. Neelon, Mr. Hart, and Mr. Gillies, who were all elected as independent Liberals, all voted against condemning the Government for a policy they had of their own accord abandoned. In the course of his very vigorous speech on Thursday last, Mr. Fraser twitted the Opposition with purposely protracting the proceedings of the House, so as to enable the arts of the seducer to be plied to advantage. Similar charges have been made in the press, and as they stand unrefuted, the Opposition in the House must be held responsible for the tool's disgraceful lobbying, of which, in justice to itself, the Assembly should take public notice. Such creatures as he should be promptly stopped in their nefarious work, and we hope to yet see him called to the bar of the House for what he has already done.

Now that the Opposition know their strength, or rather their weakness, it is to be hoped that there will be no further obstruction, and that the session will be brought to a close at furthest within three weeks. What is urgent of the proposed legislation should be passed, and what is merely useful, should be brought down, made public and held over for another year.

Independent Opinion.

The Bobcaygeon Independent is staunchly independent in politics, and such testimony as the following, to the prudence and vigilance of the Mowat Administration in watching over the financial affairs of the Province, is entitled to the full weight of an unbiased opinion. After referring to the handsome surplus, the Independent remarks:

"This is highly satisfactory. It appeals to the people with a directness which is irresistible. The Opposition may rage, and may shout, "Mowat must go," but the fact that Mowat has been so many years Premier, and has now a surplus in hand, touches the public in its most sensitive point, and ensures to the Government the support of the respectable, the thoughtful, and the wise. It is proof that the affairs of the Province have been administered with prudence and economy, and it furnishes unimpeachable evidence of a careful, pains-taking and business-like policy on the part of the Government."

This result of twelve years of Reform rule is in strong contrast to the condition of other Provinces, notably Quebec, which, under nearly seventeen years of Tory rule is on the verge of bankruptcy. Starting seventeen years ago on even terms with Ontario, Quebec has made exceedingly bad use of her advantages. Since that time Ontario has been chiefly under Reform rule, and under it she has prospered. Immense sums have been spent in making public improvements, and in the development of her resources. She has paid her way handsomely, and has at the present time not only an entire freedom from debt, but has a surplus of assets over current liabilities of between four and five millions. Quebec is plunged in debt, and is the prey of the corruption and plunder that invariably follow in the wake of the ship of state when a Tory hand is at the helm. A consideration of these facts by the people of Ontario accounts for their continued confidence in the Mowat Administration. Every influence, which the power of Ottawa could put in motion, has been used to corrupt the people of Ontario and destroy their confidence in the present Government of this Province, but in vain. The people are wide-awake enough to their own interests to estimate the efforts of designing demagogues at their real value; they are too wise to barter, at the beck of Tory politicians, thrift for thraldom; prosperity for oppression; administrative efficiency and honesty for administrative incapacity and rottenness; success for failure—in fine, the people of this Province are determined to maintain their faith in the bridge that carries them safely over the stream.

The Provinces are determined to insist on the exercise of the right, guaranteed them by the British North America Act, of controlling the license traffic in spite of Sir John's attempted usurpation. Ontario, in the enforcement of the Crooks Act, shows her determination practically. Quebec strongly objects to surrendering her rights in the premises; and, now, an Act is to be introduced into the New Brunswick Legislature in assertion of the idea that Local Legislatures have the right to deal with the question of issuing and controlling liquor licenses.

The Dominion License Act.

Sir John when in a moment of flippant vindictiveness, at Yorkville, he made the now notorious threat to show that "little tyrant, Mowat," that he could take the control of licenses from the local government, did not foresee the monstrous muddle, which has arisen from his unholy attempts to rob the Local Legislature of its legitimate functions. With arrogant confidence in his infallibility as a constitutional lawyer, he forced the McCarthy Act on the statute book. The decision of the Privy Council in the Hodge case, explicitly declared that the Ontario Legislature had exclusive jurisdiction in the matter of dealing with liquor licenses, and of course, the McCarthy Act became, in fact, a dead letter. But Sir John has no respect for the Privy Council, and he determines to attempt to enforce a law which he had no power to make.

Sir John has no respect for the rights of the licensed victuallers, either. By his determination to enforce the McCarthy Act, liquor dealers will be led to take out Dominion licenses, and if they so not also take out licenses under the Crooks Act, they will be fined as unlicensed dealers, for the Ontario Government is bound to maintain its right of dealing exclusively with the license question. If fined they know they need not appeal, for the Hodge case shows that the Privy Council will uphold the Crooks Act. But if they do not believe in the Dominion Act, and refuse, in case of an attempt to enforce it, to take out licenses under it, they will be fined by Sir John or his commissioners, and they can only escape by pursuing the expensive experiment of carrying an an appeal to the Privy Council. And speaking of fines, under the McCarthy Act, the county Judges, who are made Commissioners, will be placed in rather an unpleasant position. Under both license acts, the appeals arising from infractions of their provisions, are to be tried by county Judges. What county Judge will covet the unpleasant—to say the least of it—task of adjudicating upon an appeal in which, in his capacity as Commissioner, he has a personal interest?

A hotel keeper will be forced by Sir John to take a license out under both acts; he cannot afford to ignore the Crooks Act, for if he does he is sure to be fined under its provisions, and the Hodge case shows him there is no chance in an appeal. If he ignores the McCarthy Act, in case of Sir John's continued attempts to enforce it, he will be as surely fined, for no magistrate will take on himself to to decide as to the validity of the Act. He can only impose the fine. If the hotel keeper wants further satisfaction, he has the pleasant vista of a trip through the various courts to the foot of the throne. The unfortunate hotel keeper will be bled at every pore, financially. He has first to pay $10 to the Dominion Board of License Commissioners. The Ontario Government, as the McCarthy Act provides, having power to fix the license fees, propose to make them, for licenses under that Act, $250 for hotels in towns, making his total license assessment $260, with no authoratative decision that his license is worth a button. On the other hand, a license under the Crooks Act assures him the most absolute protection, in all his rights as a licensee, under the authoritative decree of no less a body than the Judicial Committee of the Imperial Privy Council.

The attempt to enforce the McCarthy Act will lead to untold confusion and loss to the licensed victuallers, while there will be no benefit to the cause of temperance. While there are some good points in the act, it is purely intended as a measure of spite, to embarass the Ontario Government, and little cares Sir John how much confusion, loss and mischief he gives rise to, so long as he secures the satisfaction of his personal vindictiveness, and the accomplishment of his political ends.

The Pacific "Loan."

The mischief is done, the ruin is wrought, and any lamentation over it is very much like crying over spilled milk, but it is well to know the worst, if possible; yet it is impossible in this case, at the present, at all events, to find out all the particulars of the compact between Tory politicians at Ottawa and the Syndicate, for the surrender of thirty millions of public money. It was the result, no doubt, of a bargain with well understood, if not explicitly defined terms. Sir John pointedly refused to supply the House with information which might, as Mr. Blake very properly thought, throw light on some of the many dark phases of the abominable business. The relations of a Crown Minister, Sir Charles Tupper, too, of so suspicious a character, that even he, with his pliant morality, refrained from voting on the resolutions, because he had, no doubt, a personal interest in the Syndicate, are not explained, nor their cost to the country made known. But it is known beyond doubt that the Conservative members of Quebec got something handsome in consideration of their voting for the "steal." When the price paid Quebec becomes known, it will be found that the pacification of the Tory members of our sister Province means the addition of four or five millions more to the amount of the "loan," which will never be repaid. The large majority by which the resolutions were carried shows that more than ordinary skill was used by the Government or Syndicate, or both conjointly, in reconciling members to the sacrifice of their country's money. The facts surrounding this terrible "give away" are astounding enough, but with the unknown iniquity to which a score of indications point, added, the result will be indescribably alarming. If some literary Asmodeus could uncover the lairs of the plotters and write a detailed history of the conspiracy, revealing the secret springs of action in the matter, the recital would be a reflex of the most morally hideous conspiracy ever concocted and carried to success in any civilised country.

Where the Fault Lies.

Mr. Clarke, M.P.P. for Toronto West, made a foolish attempt the other day to fix on the Ontario Government the responsibility for the evil and suffering arising from assisting paupers to immigrate into Canada. The Ontario Government does not pay one cent for this purpose. The Dominion dunder-heads at Ottawa must wear the cap, for it fits them. They are not content with taxing Canadian workmen on everything they consume, but they must import Old Country laborers and mechanics to compete with them in an already overcrowded market, using the money wrung from the oppressed workingman and mechanic to pay the passage of those who are to rob him of a job. To remove any doubt of the guilt of the Dominion Government in the matter, we may quote from Bell's Weekly Messenger, London, England, the following notice, which appeared in the issue of the 11th February, ult.:

FREE GRANTS OF LAND IN CANADA.

160 acres in Manitoba and the North West Territories; 100 to 200 acres in other Provinces.

LABOUR OF ALL KINDS IN DEMAND.

ASSISTED PASSAGES.

Special facilities for domestic servants.

Apply for pamphlets containing full information respecting the investment of capital, advantages offered to farmers, land regulations, demand for labour, rates of wages, cost of living, assisted passages, &c., to J. G. Colmer, Secretary of the Office of the High Commissioner of Canada, 9 Victoria Chambers, London, S. W.; or to John Dyke, Agent of the Canadian Government, 15 Water-street, Liverpool.

The act of enticing laborers from the Old Country into an already over-crowded labour market, with a sure prospect of their being reduced to poverty and suffering, is worse than dishonesty, it is cruelty to immigrants. The fault—if indeed it be not a crime—lies with the Dominion Government alone.

Tupperian Turpitude.

Sir Charles Tupper has never been credited with an excessive amount of political morality, but recent developments concerning him, place his effrontery of turpitude almost beyond belief. Since the beginning of the present session he has been occupping a seat in the House of Commons to which he has no more right than—Hawkins. The Independence of Parliament Act provides that no person holding or accepting any office, or performing any service for the Government of Canada at the nomination of the crown, to which any salary, fee or emolument is attached, shall be eligible for election as a member of the House, or shall sit or vote therein. Now Sir Charles Tupper, when he accepted the office of High Commissioner in London, at a salary of not more than $10,000, and $4000 perquisities, by that he forfeited his seat, and ceased, according to the act alluded to, to be a member of the House. Yet he takes his place in the House at the opening of the session, and has the brazen boldness to formulate and assist to push through the House, the infamous deed of throwing away thirty milliions of money on the Syndicate. Sir Charles did not sin ignorantly, for his conscious guilt caused him to shirk every vote on the resolutions, or amendments arising therefrom. The Pacific steal is bad enough in all conscience, it is an inexcusable outrage, but the enormity of the outrage is doubled by Sir John employing a man to push it through the House, who is not a member of the House, but actually a political criminal, liable to the pains and penalties arising from a breach of the law of the land. Another proof of Sir Charles' guilt is the fact that Sir John has the assurance to introduce a bill to white-wash Sir Charles, and relieve him of the penalty of his wrong-doing. But it is to be hoped that this white-washing attempt will be defeated. Mr. Andrew Campbell, of Ottawa, has brought suit against Sir Charles Tupper to recover the sum of $5200, the amount of the penalty of $200 per day, for twenty-six days, for which Sir Charles is liable under the Independence of Parliament Act, and Sir John will not be able to manipulate a court of justice, as he would be able to bend the servile majority in Parliament to his will. No doubt as the bill is introduced, a majority will be found to vote for it, but it is to be hoped that such infamous legislation can have no effect. It would be something like accusing a man of murder, and then passing special retroactive legislation to relieve him of the penalty of the law against the murderer. Reckless as Sir John is, and heedless as he is of all considerations of decency and propriety that stand in the way of the accomplishments of his objects, we hope for the credit and the good name of Canada, he will hesitate before burdening the country with the odium of such iniquitous legislation.

The Port Hope Times is naturally jubilant because the Dominion Estimates of 1884-5 contain appropriations of $15,000 for the post office, and $7,500 for harbour improvements, and gives Col. Williams all the glory. The gallant Colonel seems to be a good deal more successful than our own member for the West Riding. Under his influential guardianship of Peterborough's interests, the post office appropriation of 1883-4 has dwindled down to a re-vote of $7,000 for 1884-5. We shall see when Sir Leonard Tilley makes his financial statement, whether Mr. Hilliard will collar him and demand why the Government is "fooling" the town of Peterborough so extensively in the matter of the politically-promised post office and custom house.

Liquor License Resolutions.

Mr. Meredith has had the hardihood to provoke another test of strength, and is again worsted. He moved on Wednesday, in amendment to Hon. Mr. Hardy's resolutions to fix license fees on Dominion licenses, a resolution, affirming the inexpediency of fixing the fees, inasmuch as the Dominion License Act was beyond the jurisdiction of the Dominion Parliament. The motion was a direct want of confidence one, and was lost by a majority of 13. The amendment has, however, one good effect. The vote on that and the license resolutions, which were subsequently carried unanimously, committed both sides of the House to the principle of the Dominion Parliament having no right to meddle with the license question. The debate brought out another point on which the Ontario Government are determined. In answer to a member, Hon. Mr. Fraser asserted that the Government proposed to show that the Crooks Act was in force; and they proposed, also, to show that men holding licenses under the Crooks Act, were not to be prosecuted or persecuted by the Federal Government, but would be protected in their rights.

Manitoba is happy under Tory rule; the Tory organs assert that the Province is prosperous and contented, and scout the idea of the people being at all discontented. If they are not discontented with Dominion Government control of their public lands, the high tariff, disallowance of their Provincial Acts to charter local railways, the infamous nature of the land regulations and the Pacific monopoly, there does not seem to be much ground for rejoicing in their financial position, as brought about by Tory rule. The receipts of Manitoba for the year ended Dec. 31st, 1883, were $285,154, and the expenditures were $572,000, leaving a deficit of $306,846. A deficit larger than the entire revenue of a Province is something which Tory ingenuity could only bring about.

Editorial Notes.

The writ for an election in East Grey to fill the seat vacated through the death of the late Mr. A. W. Lauder has been sent to the Sheriff of East Grey. The nomination will be held March 11, and the polling, if there should be a contest, on the 18th.

The Ottawa Citizen, the Tory organ at Ottawa, was sold by the Sheriff on Saturday. If Mr. Macintosh, its proprietor, had served his paper as faithfully as he served John A. in attempting to corrupt and buy up Ontario local electors he would not have become so intimate with the Sheriff.

The fabled finger of Midas turned everything it touched to gold, and the real finger of the Dominion Government turns to political corruption everything on which they place it. Even the fisheries bounty appropriation is turned to account. During the past two sessions there have been voted $150,000 to be distributed to Canadian fishermen under certain well-defined conditions. The fishermen must be bona fide engagers in that industry. But it is well known that this money voted has been converted into a corruption fund in the interest of the Government. It is plainly charged that coasting vessels, never by any accident engaged in fishing, have received a share of the bounty, the owners, of course, being friends and supporters of the Government, and that uncommonly enthusiastic fishers—in the Government interest—had no difficulty in drawing the bounty two or three times over.

As the telling of one lie involves the telling of others to conceal the first, so the ruinously expensive and oppressive concessions of the Dominion Government to the Pacific Railway Syndicate, lead to others to conceal them. The Government refused to listen to Opposition proposals to shear the Syndicate of their monopoly in the North-West, whose oppressiveness is creating discontent and retarding the settlement of the country. No, the monopoly clauses of the charter are confirmed, and to make a show of relieving the people of the North-West, a sum of $15,000 will be placed in the Supplementary estimates to purchase a sailing steamer and fit her out for the purpose of exploring and testing the navigability of Hudson Bay. The sole object appears to be to afford an outlet by which the oppressive railway monopoly may be lessened. The matter might easily have been settled by repealing the monopoly clauses of the contract. But that wouldn't do. There must be millions spent in opening up Hudson Bay. Thus the Syndicate will for years to come be confirmed in their monopoly, and for eight months in the year for all time, and the Hudson Bay exploration scheme will open out a long line of jobs with which to reward Government supporters.

"An Incurable."

Mr. C. A. Couture, of St. Alexander, P. Q., was said by his physician to be in the last stage of consumption, and was given up as incurable. He had not a friend who would give him hopes of many days of life. When in this condition he began to take Dr. Wilson's Pulmonary Cherry Balsam, and an immediate change ensued. His cough grew looser, the phlegm gradually ceased, his appetite returned, and in a short time he was well.

T. DOLAN & CO.

From Lakefield to California.

(From a Correspondent.)

On the morning of Feb. 4th, at 6.30 a.m., we started from the village of Lakefield, and in a few moments were in Peterborough. Here we changed to another branch of the Midland, and were soon in Toronto. Now we take the Grand Trunk, which we keep until we arrive in Chicago. At Port Huron we have to unstrap our baggage, so the officer can see if we have anything that demands duty. This is an abominable custom in our opinion, as all our stuff had to be turned out, and then hurried back into place, and one is not so apt to get them so neatly packed as they were in the first place; then after being thrown from one car to another, as railroad men usually handle such things, the the consequence is half of the goods are spoiled. From Chicago, we take the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific, as far as Omaha. From Port Huron to Omaha there is very little snow, in some parts there is none at all. At Omaha, we take Union Pacific as far as Ogden, the land of the Mormons. For one hundred miles from Omaha the land is good, after this the desert of sage brush sets in, and is a land of no value that we can see. We think Uncle Sam ought to put a fence around this poor land to keep cattle from getting on it and starving to death. At Ogden we change to the Central Pacific, but this desert still continues, and we do not see any good land until we get through the Sierra Nevada Mountains. As we travel along all seem anxious for the end of the journey, and at last we are across the line that divides California from Nevada, and find ourselves in the deepest snow we have ever seen in our lives. At Truckee, almost the first station after crossing the line, the houses are low, and about all one can see is the stove pipes of the houses pointing heavenward. From the time we get into the deep snow until we reach the summit of the Sierra Nevada Mountains, our train is drawn by three heavy engines. On the way to the summit we pass through about forty miles of snow sheds, which are almost borne down with the weight of snow. In a few hours' ride from the summit, we get into the land of flowers, where the daisies are in bloom in the gardens as we pass, and the cattle and sheep are in the fields feeding on the nice green grass. Onward we pass through this land of bloom, until we reach San Francisco, and all along the way we find men out selling vegetables of all kinds grown in the open air. In a few hours ride from San Francisco, on the South Pacific Coast R.R., we are at our home in the Santa Cruz Mountains. Shortly after arriving home, we were presented with some new potatoes, which are as large as hen's eggs.

A WOMAN'S WEALTH.

FIFTEEN THOUSAND DOLLARS CONCEALED IN HER BEDS AND SEWED IN HER DRESSES.

Isabella McWean, an elderly woman living at Essex Centre for the last 30 years, has just died. It was rumored the old lady was the possessor of a large amount of money. She never associated with any of the neighbours. After her death the dwelling was searched, when the drawers of the bureau were found to contain a number of purses filled with bills. Bills were also found in a trunk, and pinned to the lining of her dresses. Hard lumps were felt in the bed, and upon cutting open the tick several bags of silver were found. When all the money was counted it was found she was worth about $15,000. Most of this fortune will go to John McWean, a cousin of the old lady, who came from Scotland about a year ago.

It has worked wonders for me, and I want another supply for my friends, &c"

The rock on which many a constitution goes to pieces is Dyspepsia. The loss of vigor which this disease involves, the maladies which accompany it, or which are aggravated by it, the mental despondency which it entails, are terribly exhaustive of vital stamina. THE WAR IN THE SOUDAN.

THE REBELS ROUTED.

The False Prophet has had fine fun, in fighting and putting to flight the cowardly soldiery of Egypt, but the minute he has to meet British troops the tide is turned. On Friday last, his troops were decimated, 1000 rebels were killed to 114 British soldiers. The battle raged all day. The rebels fought desperately and an immense number were shot down. The British fought in an oblong square and the rebels were beaten at every point. Specials to the Telegraph say the British were everywhere victorious.

CHAPTER III.

When Michael Laurie returned that afternoon he found his home deserted.

His wife had left him.

When he started in the morning he had not meant to be long away. He had hurried on the work, working harder than the man he was superintending, waiting neither for food nor rest, but, in spite of his efforts, the afternoon sun was already casting long shadows when he approached their home again.

This afternoon their wife no wife to greet him as the house came into view.

The door, too, with its framework of tangled, fragrant creepers, was closed.

As his eyes fell upon it, Michael stopped, an exclamation breaking from him.

Across the threshold lay the great English mastiff he had given her for her companion and guardian. It never left her, either in her walks or in the house, seeming to understand to the full the great trust its master reposed in it.

It looked at Michael now, with a curious wistful expression in its eyes, and then, without attempting to come and meet him, flung back its head and gave a pitiful howl.

"Daisy!" called Michael, a terrible fear sending the blood rushing back to his heart as he ran towards the house, "Daisy."

There was no answer. The house with its closed door was silent, and the only movement that broke its oppressive stillness was the flutter of the muslin curtains as the breeze swayed them to and fro in the open window.

He opened the door and crossed the threshold, the dog following him. The first wild paroxysm of fear past, a curious stillness seemed to have taken possession of Michael.

It was the passive acceptance of the inevitable. As he entered the house, it was as if all the vague presentments of evil the dull fear and dread that had lurked in his heart before, had taken visible shape, and the sight of its terror, Medusalike, had turned him to stone.

He went from room to room, though he knew all the time that she would not be there. He did not enter the sleeping-room in which he had last looked upon her face only that morning. He stood on the threshold and looked slowly around it, then he drew back and closed the door upon the dead, only the dead which left behind no hope, no waiting love, no trusting patience. Even the dog seemed to feel some of the chill despair, and crept closer to his side. By and by he found a short note from his wife's father, saying that he had come to fetch his daughter, and had taken her away with him.

How the next few days passed, Michael could never tell. He went to his work as usual, and mixed with the other men, and talked even, and ate to keep himself alive. To his fellow-work-men he seemed to be living his ordinary life, except that he did not return to his house in the woods. Once, in answer to a question of one of the men, he said his wife was dead, and there was something in his voice and eyes that made the man ask no further questions.

He did return to the house once again, It was at night.

He opened the door and went in. Then he brought all the things he had fashioned and made for himself, or that he had bought for her own particular use and fancy, and, piling them up outside, set fire to them.

He stood there till everything was burned, and there only remained such charred wood and ashes that the earth and the air could soon destroy and hide from the eyes of men.

"I could not bear to think of any one using them after her," he said to himself as he turned away, "she will never want them again."

Then he unclosed all the doors and windows of the house, leaving it open to the sun and the winds and the rain, that they might work their will as they listed.

So he went away, leaving it desolate and deserted in the pale grey of the dawn.

And thus it happened that when a messenger came from his wife's father he found no one to receive the letters he carried, nor could he hear any news of Michael Laurie, for the latter had thrown up the work upon which he had been engaged, and had gone no one knew whither.

It was a clear frosty afternoon, the last day of the old year. The pavements of the town were thronged by passers-by as they hurried from shop to shop, making their purchases of the dainty gifts to be distributed on the morrow, while the roads were hardly passable with the carriages and vehicles of every description that flowed through them in a great roaring wave of traffic.

All the town seemed to be out in the streets, which were full of the rush and voices, of busy eager faces, of the rush and the stir of life, as it pulses and throbs through all the arteries of a great city of gay shops, and sights of wealth, and luxury, and refinement.

Through it was growing late in the afternoon, and the gaslamps were already burning, the streets were still full, and a man making his way through them unaccustomed to the sights and sounds of a great town, felt bewildered and weary at the endless stops and jostlings, and as he came into a clear space, he drew a breath of relief, wondering with a vague kind of a curiosity how people ever grew used to the close air, the noise; the unrest, the reckless pursuit of pleasure, or profit, or advancement, that appeared to make up the sum of city life.

The dusky shadows had filled the whole of one of the broadest and finest streets of the town when he turned into it. He had come with a purpose, judging from the steady, unerring course he had pursued to reach this street, but as he turned into it something within him seemed to fail him. He hesitated, and then began to walk with laggard feet down its length.

Suddenly a carriage, containing a gentleman and a lady closely wrapped in furs, rolled swiftly towards him. He had only just time to step into the shadow of one of the doorways when it pulled up at the house next to him.

At the same moment the door opened and a flood of light fell from the hall to the pavement, while a man and a maid-servant came down the steps. The gentleman was already helping the lady to alight, and while the old butler gathered up her wraps, the maid assisted her mistress. The slight, delicate woman, in her rich dress of furs, seemed the centre around which the whole care and tenderness of the house clustered.

A centre of interest doomed to be the very frailest upon which human hopes were ever set, judging from the face upon which the lamplight fell as she mounted the steps. Thin, white, fragile, with a listless, hopeless look in the great dark eyes, and despairing sorrow in the curve of the mouth.

As Michael Laurie, with a start of shocked horror, bent forward to gaze into the face of the woman he had come so far to look upon once again, the other man saw him. He, too, started, but he did not say a word. He assisted his daughter into the house, and then, coming out again, pulled the door to after him. He had only been absent a few seconds, the carriage had not yet turned the end of the the street, when he stood by the side of Michael Laurie.

The latter had not moved from the spot from which he had seen his wife.

The elder man laid his hand on his arm.

"Yes, my daughter is dying," he said, in still, hard tones, "and it is you who have killed her. Why did you go away without a word?"

"Dying?" Michael repeated the word mechanically. Then some of the sense of the other's speech seemed to dawn upon him. "But she left me. She grew tired. Yet I thought I could have made her happy."

The father paid no attention to his words. All the pride and the arrogance of his nature had vanished in the pain of seeing his child failing slowly before his eyes.

"She did not leave you. If you had not distrusted her so quickly you would have an explanation. I found her that day ill—dying, I was afraid then. You do not know," he glanced up at an upper window from which a light shone, "you have not heard, and we could not let you know. I took her away that day. She was too ill to write, and I left that note. I confess I was still angry with you. I confess that there I did the wrong that has been punished so bitterly since. I did not explain that I had only persuaded her to come on the condition that you were to come too. Afterward it was too late. You had gone."

"Why should I have stayed? I thought it was of her own free will."

"It was not. And since her child—" Michael started; up till this moment he could only think of one thing; that Daisy was dying—"was born she has been gradually fading away. It seemed as if, when there was no longer any hope of finding you, she lost all desire to live. You alone can call her back, if only it be not too late."

Michael Laurie put him on one side and moved toward the house.

"No, not at once," said the other, detaining him. "The shock might kill her. I must prepare her for seeing you."

How long Michael Laurie paced up and down outside the house he did not know. It seemed an eternity, in which he lived over again all the bitterness, and the despair and the blankness that had fallen upon his life when he thought Daisy had left him forever.

He was called at last. It was his wife's mother who brought him to the room where his wife awaited him.

But he had no word for her as he followed her. It would have been as impossible to speak to any one of the interview that was to take place as in that supreme moment to notice the richest carpets and silken hangings, the hundred signs of luxury and wealth that had been given up once for love's sake. In spite of the chorus of grasshoppers, love seemed once more all-powerful all-sufficient.

Outside the door he was left alone. He opened it and went in.

Daisy had had her baby brought to her, and as he entered she rose from her chair, the child pressed close to her breast, and tried to come to meet him. But even if the trembling that had seized her had allowed her to move, there would have been no need. The next second he was at her side, and kneeling down had stretched his arms around her, resting his head against the arms that held his child and hers.

He could not have spoken that first moment in which he stood in the presence of the woman who had changed so terribly since he last saw her. She had nothing to say either, but her eyes filled slowly with tears that seemed to well up from her very heart's depths and fall softly on the sleeping child.

Michael was the first to move. The trembling of the slender figure in his arms reminded him how little she could bear of either joy or sorrow.

He rose to his feet and drew her and the child close to him, supporting them both with is own strong arms.

"You have quite forgiven me, Michael?" she asked. "If only you knew how—"

"Don't speak of it any more. I understand now, but I did not know then, and the knowledge that I could do nothing to separate your life from mine, to leave you free as I found you, was almost more than I could bear. Now—"

"Now that you will never leave me any more Michael, life seems almost too good. Even father and mother have forgiven me. Do you know what they wish? That you and I should live with them here: that you should give up your work and all the hardness and trouble of your old life, so that I may share with you the good that belongs to mine. Oh, Michael!"

Resting closely against his heart, she had felt the sudden faint tremor that had passed through him. It terrified her again.

"You will not refuse? Mother and father will not left me go away again. It will break their hearts if you take me; and I should go if you wished it. I cannot give you up. But it is so hard to displease them; they have been so good to me and to"—her pale face flushed as she looked down at the child—"our child. You will not refuse them this? It will only be accepting all things you deserve. And we shall be able to go to Europe and see the places and the pictures you talk so much of, and you will have time to read and study as you have always wished, and you can do great things for the poor and hard-working. It can't be hard to say 'yes' to all this."

There was a second's pause.

In that second there rose up before Michael Laurie all that that "yes" meant. It meant renouncing the honest independence his pride and his manliness delighted in; the daily toil that he honored as a gift from God's hand itself; the power and the influence that personal contact won over the lives of the men belonging to the class he loved better than all others, as being his own. It meant all this and still more. It meant to him the sacrifice of his whole life, with its aims and its influences—and in return what would he have?

The cramped, fettered existence of society the stifling atmosphere of luxury, the bondage and the gall of dependence. He would not even be his own master.

"Michael! It is for our sake, for our child's."

He turned his face away as the fierce struggle went on in his heart. He had forgotten his love in the question of his life. Her voice called him back to its presence.

He looked down, and at the sight of her face with its terrible delicacy, at the slender figure, that but for his support would have sunk like a broken reed to the ground, the storm was hushed. What had they said? He alone could bring her back from the gates of death. Whether for good or for evil her life had been linked with his, and nothing could separate them now; her fate was not in his keeping. A sudden cold dread seized him that even his yielding up might be too late to save her.

"I will stay," he said, and he bent and kissed her lips with a grave solemnity that made the kiss like a seal of a consecrated sacrifice.

"You are so good to me!" she whispered softly, with grateful humility. "Can my love repay you?"

But even she could not enter into the breadth and the depth of his renunciation and he knew that she could not.

Perfect happiness brought back to Daisy the health of which those who loved her had despaired. As soon as she could travel she and Michael went to Europe, spending a new honeymoon in its towns with the treasures of ages, wandering through lands every step of which had its own history of quaint Old World legend.

When they returned they went to live with Daisy's people. Their wealth and position naturally placed them in the foremost ranks of society. Little by little, though her love never failed from being the mainspring of her existence, Daisy took up her life as she had led it before she married.

Society makes claims in proportion to the returns it expects, and as Daisy Laurie belonged to the rich and powerful, its demands were necessarily great, leaving her less and less time to enter into the aims and pursuits of her husband.

Michael accompanied her often to her balls and fetes—always in the first years of their married life; Daisy wishing him to take the place she meant him to hold.

But she need not have feared his being slighted.

The fashionable world, with one of its sudden caprices would have made much of him if he had allowed it to do so. The man's own splendid strength and beauty, his natural power, mental and physicial, coupled with the wealth and position he had gained—the latter, of course, having the greatest weight—made him a hero of romance in the mind of society. But he had as little inclination to be admired or idolized as he had to live the life which fashion demanded.

The air of society stifled and oppressed him, and whenever he could free himself, he went to his books or the work he had made for himself. He had nothing in common with the people among whom he was thrown, the love of his wife being the single chain that bound him to their rich and frivolous world.

Fettered and bound as he was, he conquered his fate in that he found that everywhere work was waiting to be done.

Envied, admired, respected, possessed of one blessing above all others—a blessing that even a frivolous society could understand when it belonged to men and woman in so rich and high a position—that of a love that made his marriage proverbial for its happiness, not one suspected that, to the end of his days, Micheal Laurie could never listen to the cry of the grasshoppers without a bitter-sweet smile coming to his lips, as his thoughts would go back to a day when a certain goddess had prayed that the mortal she loved might have eternal life, but forgot to ask that his nature might become as hers. Without which he might never be contented and satisfied.—All the Year Round.

THE END.

Joseph Rusan, Percy, writes: "I was induced to try Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil for a lameness which troubled me for two or three years, and I found it the best article I ever used. It has been a great blessing to me." Frauds may imitate Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil in appearance and name, but in everything else they are dead failures.

WHAT SHALL I GIVE HIM?

Is a puzzling question. It is easy enough to find things for the "here," in fact the variety is embarrassing; but the selection of a present for the male sex is more difficult. We have known Ladies to present their Husbands with useful Household Articles and it is not a bad idea, but if you wish to give the man something for personal use, the list to choose from is rather short. CLOTHES are Staple—always in demand. Why not a new OVERCOAT or SUIT? A SET OF SHIRTS, some fine HOSIERY, HANDKERCHIEFS, or NECKWEAR? or, if that is not appropriate, give the Domestic Man a HOUSE COAT OR WRAPPER. While to the Gay Young Man, SHIRT STUDS, SCARF PINS, SILK TIE or SCARF. "Upright Pianos."

A few extracts from the numerous endorsements by the leading artists of the World as to their Superiority:—

The pianoforte of your make used at my last concert is the most admirable instrument I have ever seen. Please send to my address in London one of your Upright Pianos. This, I think, is the best endorsement of your instrument I can give you.—CHRISTINE NILSSON.

Neither in Europe or America have I seen an Upright to equal yours.—ELILEN GERSTER GARDINI.

In all the qualities an artist can require your Upright Pianos surpass anything I have ever seen.—SOFIA SCALCHI.

It is superior in quality of tone and evenness of action to any instrument I know of. CLARA LOUISE KELLOGG.

Having had an opportunity of using your New Concert Upright Piano at the concerts given by Her Majesty's Opera Company, we beg to compliment you upon your great success. You can justly claim a superiority over any piano we have hitherto seen, for concert purposes and accompanying the voice.—ITALO CAMPANINI, ANTONIO GALASSI, ANNA DE PELOCCA, EMIL AMBRA.

The successful manner in which your Upright Piano has stood the severest tests, is such as heretofore has been applied to the Grand Piano only, and it commands our unqualified endorsement.—OLE BULL, EMMA THURSBY, ALFRED H. PEASE, MAURICE STRAKOSCH.

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

Fifth Parliament—First Session.

TUESDAY, FEB. 26TH

A CAPTIOUS CRITIC.

Mr. Carnegie opposed the proposal of the Government to extend the payment of railway aid over a period of forty years. He apparently ignored the fact that the new certificates would have one and a half per cent. interest. He also appeared to misunderstand the nature of the arrangement proposed, and amid the laughter of the House stated that the average payments annually for forty years would amount to over $184,000. The plan proposed, however, involves only the payment of the sum mentioned for twenty-five years, the amount payable in the twelve preceding years rising from $12,108 by equal amounts annually.

SARAH'S CONSERVATORY.

Hon. G. W. Ross, replying to Mr. Carnegie's criticisms of the Government's policy on the school reader question, showed that the authorization of two series of school readers had not caused any serious expenditure to the people on new readers. Mr. Ross had ascertained by full inquiry that only $3,089 20 had been spent up to a few weeks ago in the purchase of new readers. As this was the case, the decision of the Government to adopt only one series would not cause any inconvenience to the public that could at all compare to the convenience of having a uniform series. Mr. Carnegie, while approving of the Government's action, had introduced a motion condemning the Government for following out his views.

WEDNESDAY, FEB. 27TH.

THE CONTRAST.

If instead of seeking to make political capital out of the Ontario Government's immigration policy, which has for years not aided or encouraged the immigration of skilled labour. Mr. Clarke, Tory, Toronto, should turn his attention to the policy of his friends at Ottawa in soliciting immigrants to come here and compete with workingmen who can not find employment, he would find ample room for reform in immigration matters. Does Mr. Clarke know that the Dominion Government is still telling the British workingmen that labour of all kinds is in demand in this country, and that assisted passages is given, while thousands of industrious workingmen in Toronto and other Canadian towns can scarcely keep their families from starving?

INCREASED LICENSE FEES.

Mr. Hardy proposed to-day that the House will consider a resolution fixing the following additions for Provincial revenue only on the license fees at present paid under the Crooks Act.

Each wholesale license	75 00
Each tavern and shop license in Cities	60 00
" " " " " towns	30 00
" " " " " villages	20 00
" " " " " townships	12 00
Each vessel license	35 00

Each wine and beer license—one half of the additional fee

The resolution, it is provided, shall not limit the right of a municipality to fix by by-law the duties or fees to the extent provided for by the Liquor License Act.

THURSDAY, FEB. 27TH.

THE SCHOOL READERS "RUMPUS."

The amendment on the School Reader Question being made on a motion to go into Committee of Supply, could not be met by an amendment to the amendment and was, therefore, intended to secure purely catch vote on a question which they had professed to desire to keep out of the domain of party politics. The result was disastrous to Mr. Meredith. The vote which was taken at one o'clock this morning in a full house resulted in the Government being sustained by a vote of 49 to 35, leaving a clear majority of 14. The vote for the amendment was a straight Conservative one.

THE SORREHEADS SQUIRMING.

Mr. Fraser's brilliant speech covered one point after another in the Opposition speeches of the day, and all were handled in a manner to put the enemy to utter discomfiture. Mr. Meredith squirmed, Mr. Creighton squirmed, Mr. Morris hung his head, and Mr. Carnegie had to rise and confusedly repudiate the utterances of his own journal. The last evidence of the traitorous conduct of the Opposition in sidling against their own Province in regard to its financial rights was scathingly brought to light. The member for North Gray looked foolish when Mr. Fraser quoted the Mail's warm eulogium of the Royal series, and asked whether, as to the charge against the Government of having favoured the publishers, they could not have seised upon that eulogium and authorized that series only, instead of authoring a series in competition with them.

"WHAT IS IT ALL ABOUT?"

In reply to the Opposition thunder on the School Reader question, Mr. Hardy pertinently wanted to know "What was all the fuss about?" There were, he rightly remarked, strong arguments in favour of authorizing more that one series of Readers, as well as in favour of authorizing but one, and he quoted the opinions of the Central Committee on Education on this phase of the subject. If the Government had made a mistake in authorizing more than one series, the Opposition should congratulate them on the change of policy, instead of that they attempted a "catch vote," which could have no practical effect on educational affairs, except to demonstrate that the Opposition would belie their professions of a desire to keep education out of the domain of party politics. Mr. Hardy contrasted the attitude of the Reform leaders on Sir John Macdonald's change of policy in regard to North-West lands. This policy had since caused a revolution, and had led to Sir Johnswelling from his portfolio. Then there was no amendment proposed and when the House of Commons was going into Committee of Supply. Hon. Mr. Meredith objected that "the House of Commons had not yet gone into supply," and amid the cheers of the House Mr. Hardy promptly responded "They have gone into supply enough for the Canadian Pacific Railway."

A SLIGHT FOUNDATION.

The talk of the Opposition about the great loss caused by the Government's policy in regard to School Readers, Mr. Hardy showed had no foundation. The School readers from which authorization had been withdrawn were authorized in other Provinces, and the stock issued for Ontario would therefore find a market. Besides, in selling to retailers the publishers had agreed to take the old stocks of Readers on hand; these would have proved a dead loss, and now, not being obliged to take them, and having a market elsewhere, the loss to the publishers would be slight indeed. The loss to schools into which new Readers had been introduced, Mr. Ross the other day showed to be very small, there having been only $3,089 worth of new Readers sold. That the Opposition should choose the Reader question as their chief subject for attack on the Government is strong testimony to the excellence of the present administration of the affairs of this Provinces.

FRIDAY, FEB. 29TH.

OPPOSITION OBSTRUCTION.

Mr. Fraser's exposure of the tactics of the Opposition in delaying the business of the House was well deserved. The Budget was brought down on Thursday of last week, and so little fault had the Opposition to find with it, that one of their number said there was not an item in the estimates to which he could object, and the main discussion was chiefly in consequential objections to methods of charging items. In order to facilitate business the Government allowed one Conservative speaker to follow another, but instead of discussing the accounts the speakers wasted the time of the house in attempting to make capital on the school book question. It was only on Thursday morning that this frivolous attack on the Government ended. There has, however, been much good work done of late in committee in advancing private and public bills, some of them of considerable importance. And there appears to be just ground for Mr. Fraser's statement that in this respect the House had not in any previous session made greater progress in the same length of time. The Attorney-General has given notice of motion for Saturday sessions, the first to be held next Saturday. It is hoped that the Parliament will be through with its labours in about three weeks.

"SARAH" AT SEA, FIGURATIVELY.

Mr. Carnegie and several of his friends appear to be floundering about in their incapacity to comprehend the simplest problems in commercial arithmetic. The Provincial Treasurer's railway aid scheme puzzles them, and they do not seem to understand the principles upon which annuities are calculated, or annual payments of interest capitalised. The Opposition is sadly in need of a financier. The present attempts at financial criticism are pitiable.

THE LITTLE BROWN JUG.

The Kahn of the Toronto World thus records the woes of the "Little Brown Jug," on account of the by-law separating groceries from liquors:

Alas for the days of the little brown jug!
Glugity glug, glugity glug.
The by-law gave it a horrible hug,
Glugity glug, glugity glug.
No more will its contents foam on the mug,
The temperance people have put in the plug!
They did it as neat as a bug in a rug,
Glugity, glugity glug.
They stuck in their toes and wrestled and dug,
Glugity glug, glugity glug.
And they hit the poor jug a thump in the mug,
Glugity glug, glugity glug.
They hammered his countenance happy and smug,
They cracked his poor sides and battered his lug,
They tambled him down and sat on his plug,
Glugity, glugity glug.

MANHOOD
HOW LOST, HOW RESTORED

We have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.
☞ Price in a sealed envelope, only 6c. or two postage stamps.
The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicines or the use of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

And Still the Sale Goes On.

Notwithstanding all the talk of dull times and bad roads, Fairweather & Co.'s great sales keep crowded every day. It is a positive boon to the town and county of Peterborough. The Immense Stock, the Enormous Reductions, the Great Bargains, the Daily Crowds, are sufficient proofs that this firm holds the confidence of the public.

A Warning to Boys.

On Tuesday a son of Mr. Clancy, of the City Hotel, on his way from the Central School, attempted to "hook" a ride from a passing sleigh, when the runner of the hind pair of bobs ran over his foot, bruising it badly. A little higher and his leg would have been crushed; a stout boot saved his foot. This will serve as a warning to boys—till the next sleigh comes along.

Selling After Hours.

On Tuesday several hotel keepers were arraigned at the Police Court on charges, preferred by the town constables, of selling liquor after 7 o'clock last Saturday night. The cases were disposed of as follows, all the parties admitting the offence: E. Brown, Little Windsor, fined, with costs, $24.30; M. Halpin, $20 and costs; Elisabeth Darcy, second offence, $40 and costs; John Wilson, Royal Oak, second offence, $40 and costs. A similar charge against W. C. Chamberlain was enlarged till Friday.

The Masquerade Carnival.

Attention is again directed to the last and grandest carnival of the season, to be held at the Skating Rink on Friday night next. The preparations for a first-class evening's amusement and entertainment are very elaborate. One of the features will be the appearance on the ice, in costume, of the P. T. B. Band, which will render its selections on the ice. The prize list is sumptuous and complete, and will attract a very large number of competitors, so that spectators will be rewarded with a very brilliant scene. The Fire Brigade Band will furnish music during the evening. Don't forget the evening—next Friday, March seventh.

The Snow Blockade.

The first days of the first spring month brought the Midland Railway the most troublesome blockades of the winter. The trouble began on Thursday, when the Grand Junction afternoon trains alone got through. But the trains on these lines were cancelled from Thursday till the following Tuesday, when the first train arrived in Peterborough at 3 o'clock. The town was without mails from Thursday noon till Sunday morning. A Grand Trunk snow plough having opened the line from Port Hope, let in a train about 11 o'clock Saturday night, with the two days and a half surplus of mails, which were delivered to the public from the post office on Sunday. After desperate work the line from town to Toronto was opened, and the trains are again running with regularity. The country roads, especially those running north and south, are in a very bad condition.

A Duplex Runaway.

A decided variation to the monotony of ordinary equine escapades took place on George street on Tuesday morning. A team belonging to Mr. Samuel Sargent, of Otonabee, became frightened at a locomotive whistle and ran away from Denne's flouring mills. Near Hamilton's foundry the runaways overtook an O. & Q. railway team, and, not turning out enough, one of them leaped on top of the sleigh and falling, could not get up before the railway team, becoming frightened, ran away also, taking along on the sleigh the prostrate animal, lying on his back with his useless heels in the air, his mate running along side of the sleigh and the railway team making good time. The horse was thus carried more than the length of a block, when the railway sleigh struck the walk at the corner of the Market building, at Faucher's restaurant. The shock threw the horse off the sleigh, on his feet, and he, with his running mate, made off across the Market Square, unhurt, while the other team ran up George street and was stopped before any damage was done. Neither horses nor driver was hurt, but the sleighs were somewhat wrecked.

China Hall.

Mr. Macfarlane Wilson, the proprietor of the China Hall, and Silver Bazaar, has won for his establishment a wide reputation for low prices, but his clearing sale that begins on March 6th, will electrify the public with astonishment at the lowness of the prices that will prevail, till his present immense stock is cleared out to make room for extensive spring importations. Now is the time for the public to secure bargans hitherto unknown in the annals of the crockery, glassware and silverware trade. Don't miss such a grand chance.

A Horse Drops Dead.

On Friday last, as the town team was drawing the steamer, on the occasion of Mr. Stratton's fire, rapidly through the heavy snow of the street, one of the animals dropped dead, it is supposed from exhaustion, at the corner of Charlotte and Park streets. The horse was a fine animal, and one of a splendid team. Mr. T. Smith, proprietor, thus loses about $175. To show the affection of horses, it was noticed that after the fire, as the surviving horse was led past the carcase of his dead mate, he neighed piteously, as though he realized his loss. No doubt Mr. Smith realizes his, and the town council might show more mistaken generosity than liberally assisting him under the circumstances.

A Beautiful Medal.

We have had the pleasure of inspecting and admiring the splendid solid silver medal made and presented by Irving, the engraver and jeweller, for competition in fancy skating at the carnival on Friday night. On one side is a five-pointed star, on a frosted background, enclosed by an ornate circle. The obverse of the medal presents an excellently executed figure of a skater, with a background of landscape, beautifully brought out by most skillful and artistic work. The clasp corresponds to the general excellence of this fine specimen of the engraver's art. It is a credit both to the clever artist, who made it, and to the masquerade committee that offers it for competition, and will be a proud possession to the fortunate skater who wins it next Friday night.

Temperance Reunion.

A most delightful reunion of the friends and members of the St. Luke's Church of England Temperance Society, was held in the school room, on Monday night, in celebration, to a certain extent, of the inauguration of "Temperance Monday" in connection with the society. The gathering consisted of members of the Society and their chosen friends; thus the social element was developed to the utmost, and a most pleasent evening was spent. A temperance choir presented, at intervals, selections prepared especially for the occasion. Refreshments were served and the president of the society, the Incumbent, gave a brief and appropriate address. About ten new members were added to the society. The entertainment was pronounced the best and most enjoyable of any attempted by the society.

The Last Time Table.

The recent time card of the Midland Division of the Grand Trunk, is one of which Peterborough merchants may justly complain, in regard to the train service, on the Grand Junction line. The train from the east arrives here so late in the morning and departs so early, that passengers from the east have only an hour or so in which to do their trading in town. Thus the whole of the eastern trade is practically cut off from Peterborough. Under the former time table the stay in town was between four and five hours, ample time to do all the business required. This is an important matter and we would suggest the advisability of the merchants and others interested, representing the state of matters to the G. T. R., authorities with a view of having the evil complained of, remedied. Peterborough as the most important contributor to the passenger and freight Traffic of the Midland, certainly has a claim to the consideration of the managers of the line.

Foresters' Entertainment.

The fifth anniversary of the Canadian Order of Foresters was celebrated in a most successful and pleasant style by the members and friends of Courts "Peterborough" and "Little John," on Wednesday night of last week. An excellent tea was laid in the hall of Court Peterboro', which was thoroughly enjoyed. After refreshments, Mr. John Braden took the chair, and showed the excellent standing of the order, which consisted of about 4,000 members, and that it was an exceedingly cheap and effective benefit society, the average annual amount required to secure an insurance of $1,000 and a weekly benefit of three dollars with free medical attendance, in case of illness, being only $13. The programme of the entertainment consisted of songs by Messrs. F. W. Mellar, D. Galletly, — Melton (Lakefield), and a trio by Messrs. Galletly, Miller and Billington; readings by Miss Ada Miller and Mr. H. Kay Coleman. Miss Hattie Johnson played the musical accompaniments. The entire affair was throughout a very pleasant and successful variation of the "state" dinner, that has hitherto signalised the anniversary celebrations of the order.

HEART-RENDING ACCIDENT.

An Ashburnham Lady Killed by a Train at a Crossing.

On Thursday afternoon last, a terrible railway accident happened at Nichols' crossing, about half a mile south of Lakefield. Miss Bessie Reid, of Ashburnham, daughter of the late John Reid, set out from the residence of Mr. R. Q. Dench, Douro, to return home, in company with two of Mr. Dench's daughters and a gentleman friend of the party. The party, besides the driver, consisted of five persons. Wishing to call at Lakefield, they had to cross the railway track. As the driver, a young man named Jory, started to cross the track, the train from Peterborough was approaching, but was concealed by a clump of timber. The train was seen too late to either recede or advance safely, and the hinder portion of the sleigh was struck by the engine, and the occupants thrown out. Miss Reid, who was sitting in the back seat with two others, received fatal injuries, her skull having been crushed, and a terrible wound made in her side. The train was at once stopped, and the injured lady put on board and conveyed to the station, whence she was taken to the residence of Mr. Tait, and Dr. Caldwell called, and a message sent to Dr. Halliday, Peterboro'. But her injuries were beyond human aid, and at nine o'clock she died. On Friday the body was removed to her late home. The lady was highly respected, and the sudden and terrible nature of her death adds intensity to the grief of her many friends.

Mr. Alex. Mims, driver of the engine says that on approaching the crossing he gave the usual whistle for the crossing, and also for Lakefield, which was only half a mile distant. The moment he saw the sleigh he whistled down brakes, and reversed his engine. He says the driver of the team hesitated for a moment, and then urged his horses on, but too late to avoid the engine.

Hostilities Begun.

The Saved Army arrived in town from Port Hope, and opened fire on Wednesday night.

Temperance Sermons.

On Sunday evening, according to the request of the Bishop of the diocese of Toronto, temperance sermons were preached in the church of England churches. In St. John's the sermon was preached by the rector, Rev. J. W. R. Beck, and in St. Luke's by the incumbent, Rev. W. C. Bradshaw. Large and attentive audiences were present at the services.

The David Carlisle Property.

Public attention is particularly directed to the sale of the David Carlisle property which takes place on Monday March 17th. The properties are composed of two lots and two fine residence buildings, well built and adapted to the accommodation of a considerable family. One is situated on the north side of McDonnell street, and the other on the Communication road. Both properties are desirable and both present excellent chances for securing a fine home or making a lucrative investment. Sale at the chambers of C. A. Weller Esq, Master in Chancery.

Explosion in a Railway Coach.

Locomotive engines sometimes "bust" their boilers, but a passenger coach stove, acting in a similar manner is a rarity. On Tuesday, however, about noon, a loud explosion occurred in a passenger coach standing on a siding at the station. The force of the explosion blew out one side of the stove, and the corner of the roof of the coach. The smoke stack was thrown about fifty yards, and a heavy fragment of iron a long distance. The stove was connected with coils of water pipes for heating the car, which having been put of use for three or days, allowed the water in the pipes to freeze; steam was thus generated, which could not escape except by means of the explosion.

Mrs. M. Millar's Social.

The social given by Mrs. Melville Millar, at her residence, McDonnel street, on Tuesday night, in aid St. Paul's church organ fund, was a most happy success. Refreshments, provided by the hostess, were partaken of, and the evening was made chiefly a musical one. Songs were given by Misses Johnston, Logan and Rush, and Miss Sophie Cameron, a young girl, but a very excellent vocalist. Messrs. Best, Sanderson and Loch, rendered their instrumental selections, and Mr. George Schneider, a very promising young pianist, made his debut in exceedingly well rendered selections. The large residence was well filled, the financial result was better than $20, and the social enjoyment combined with these, made this social one of the most delightful and successful of the series.

St. Paul's Church Concert.

The public are again reminded of the concert in aid of St. Paul's church organ fund, which takes place on Thursday evening, March 13th, in Bradburn's opera house. Mrs. Whitehead, of Port Hope, late leading soprano, in Trinity Church, Winnipeg, Mrs. Chambers, Messrs. Porteous, Elliott, Messrs. Sanderson, Best and Loch, and other musical talent will supply the programme. Mrs. Whitehead in her appearances in public in many towns and cities of Canada, has met with unbounded approval. Of her appearance at the Trinity College Conversazione, Toronto, before an audience composed of the elite of the city, the Mail speaks in high terms of praise. Of her singing in Guelph, the city papers say she was at every number enthusiastically recalled, strong testimony of the excellence of her execution; and the Orillia press testify to the enthusiasm she evoked there, as she does wherever she appears. The public may look forward to a splendid musical treat at the concert on Thursday night, March 13th. No pains will be spared to make it in every respect the best of the season.

PERSONAL.

Dr, O'Shea and wife returned home from their wedding tour on Tuesday evening.

Mr. T. Cavanagh was one of the judges at the Campbellford winter races, that took place yesterday and to-day (Thursday).

Mr. James Campbell, formely of the firm of Campbell & Foy, Peterborough, but now of Brandon, is present in town enjoying our delightful spring weather, which he says, reminds him of winter at home.

We learn from the Minneapolis Canadian-American, that Mr. J. H. Bird, formerly of Peterborough, is doing well in Pembina, Dakota. He is pronounced one of the solid men of North Dakota, and has secured the appointment of County Auditor.

DESTRUCTIVE FIRE.

The Residence of Mr. James Stratton, Collector of Customs, Completely Destroyed.

At three o'clock on Friday afternoon, the residence of Mr. James Stratton, Gilmour street, was discovered to be in flames. The fire is supposed to have originated from a defective flue in the breakfast room chimney. The fire, fanned by the high gale prevailing, made such fearfully rapid headway that the inmates escaped with only the clothing they were at the time of the discovery of the fire. The intense heat prevented any considerable success in saving any of the contents. The clothing of the family being in the upper stories was entirely destroyed. What little was saved from the first floor was greatly damaged. The destruction of the building was complete. The brigade turned out promptly but owing to the depth of snow, before the engine could be got to play, there was no hope of doing any good and no water was turned on.

There was insurance in the Royal, on the building of $2000, on the furniture and other contents, $1,250. The loss over the amount of insurance, will be fully $2000. What little furniture was saved, and the house was well furnished throughout, was greatly damaged; all the wearing apparel of the family was destroyed and Mr. Stratton's valuable library, the accumulation of a life time as well as the library of Mr. W. A. Stratton, barrister, fell a prey to the flames.

TRACT SOCIETY MEETING

The Cleaners in the Gospel Field.

The annual meeting of the Peterborough Branch of the Tract Society was held in the Baptist Church, on Monday night. There was rather a thin attendance. The pastor of the church, Rev. A. H. Munro, occupied the chair.

After devotional services, Mr. Wm. C. Nicholls, Secretary, presented the

as follows:

The Committee in meeting the friends of the Tract Society have to regret that so little has been done during the past year. The Committee have always felt that it is very important that there should be a sufficient number of workers to carry the little messengers of truth to every neighborhood in Peterborough and Ashburnham, but such has not been the case, and only a few districts are now visited.

The Committee have also to lament the decease of the late President, Col. Haultain, who was ever ready to do all in his power to advance the interests of the Tract Society. In addition to what the Peterborough Tract Society had been doing in Peterborough and vicinity, the Toronto Tract Society has sent out an agent, Rev. Thomas Bone, who has taken subscriptions for the past two years for the purpose of carrying on the work of tract distribution in Manitoba and the Northwest Territories, and among the lumber shanties, but as the Toronto Society has sent us no report, we do not know what has been done with the funds collected by Mr. Bone.

Your Committee rejoice to find that the Y. M. C. A. has become firmly established in Peterborough, and would recommend that some of the young men in connection therewith be put on the Committee of the Society the coming year.

The Treasurer's report is as follows:

Receipts.

March 7, Balance on hand	$ 84
Collected at annual meeting	6 75
" by Mr. Bone	58 35
Subscriptions	13 00
	$78 94

Disbursements.

March 7, Paid Mr. Bone	$65 10
Printing, Stationery, etc.	3 15
Balance	10 69
	$78 94

The Committee recommended the following officers for the year, 1884:—President, Robt. Kingan; Secretary-Treasurer, Henry Grundy; Committee—Dr. Fife, Dr. Bell, Matthew Cummins, Isaac Richardson, D. B. Gardner, Henry Rossiter, Wm. Aldridge and W. G. Yelland.

Rev. Thos Bone, the agent of the Society, in moving the adoption of the report, remarked that the work of tract distributing was onerous. The distributors had to work hard, to encounter many discouragements, as the speaker, from thirty years experience, could testify, and live in hope for, from the nature of things—the transitional state of the work—immediate good results could not be expected. The seed must be sown, and God trusted in for an increase. The speaker then gave an interesting sketch of his work on the main artery of the Society's work, the Welland Canal, during the past sixteen years. Last year he had made 1,150 visits to vessels. In the past the Society had been able to keep the Canal closed on Sunday, but he feared it was the intention of the Government (Dominion) to relax the vigilance hitherto exercised in respect of Sabbath observance on the Canal. He entered into interesting details of the work, and gave cheering examples of the good result of seed sown by the way-side, and of a word spoken in season. Last year, besides visiting 1,150 vessels, he had visited 775 houses, distributed 25,000 tracts, 1,360 magazines, 5,000 illuminated texts, and sold 417 testaments. He also alluded to the work done by the local workers of the society, the Y.M.C.A.

The adoption of the report was seconded by Mr. Alex. Gilespie and adopted.

Mr. Henry Rossiter gave an outline of the work on the Missing Link last summer, and the good results that had followed it. There had been distributed 1,500 books and tracts, and 6 French Testaments, 9 English and 4 Italian Bibles sold. On an average nine camps of navvies had been visited every Sunday.

A collection in aid of the funds of the Society was taken, and the meeting closed with the Doxology, and the benediction by Rev. Mr. Munro.

THE INQUEST.

The adjourned inquest to inquire into the circumstances which caused the death of the late Miss Elizabeth Reid, met in the Council Chamber, at two o'clock on the 6th instant, Coroner [illegible] Bell presiding.

Mr. Stewart, of Belleville, was present in the interests of the Grand Trunk Railway Company.

Below is a summary of the most important points in the evidence.

Miss Dench, sworn: Remembered the day of the accident; was in the sleigh, in the same seat as the late Miss Reid. The train was within a few feet of them when first seen; did not hear whistle before they were struck; did not think the train whistled; did not hear the bell ring; thought she would have heard the whistle if blown; the horses did not stop on the track; would not swear the whistle did not blow, but did not hear it.

Mr. Mellor, sworn: Remembered the day of the accident; was in the sleigh at the time; did not hear the whistle blow before they were struck; the train was nearly on them when they saw it; made a grab for the lines, did not know whether he caught them or not; the horses did not stop on the track; the off horse plunged before they were struck.

Robert Jory, sworn: Remembered the day of the accident; was driving the team when the accident occurred. Did not see or hear the train until within a few feet of them; the whistle did not blow; thought he could have heard it if blown; the whistle was blown just as the sleigh was struck; the horses generally drew his attention to an approaching train; the horses did not stop on the track; Mr. Mellor tried to catch the lines; the horses might have been slightly checked, but did not stop; the off horse plunged just before they were struck; could not swear the whistle did not blow, but did not hear it; there was no special conversation to prevent their hearing it; thought the train had passed, and was not looking for it.

Dr. Caldwell, sworn, deposed that he had been called to see the late Miss Reid. Saw her in the car at the Railway Station, and at the residence of Mr. Tait. She was comatose, or quite unconscious. Found three scalp wounds on left side of the head, penetrating to the skull; one had partly penetrated the bone; the symptoms were those of compression of the brain, probably produced by hemorrhage. There was also a deep penetrating wound on outer side of left thigh, extending to and above the hip joint, and must have been made by great force. The immediate cause of death was compression of the brain, and shock; the injury to the thigh would most probably have caused death.

Martin Coughlin, farmer, sworn, deposed that he remembered the day of the accident; his farm was a square hundred acres, and his gate was a little to the south of the centre; his house and barns are within a few rods of the track; the train sometimes whistles below his gate, but often above, towards the crossing; heard the train whistle close to the scene of the accident, as near as he could tell; should think any one coming down the road from the east towards the track could hear the whistle if blown between his gate and the crossing; did not think the trees would have prevented it being heard.

John Whibbs, sworn, deposed: Remember the day of the accident; was in Martin Coughlin's barn yard; saw the train passing Coughlin's gate; did not hear the whistle till at the crossing; saw the train stop; might have whistled and he not have heard it; did not hear the bell ring; could see the bell, as he was near enough; the train was not going as fast as he had seen it going before; the train stopped after going about the length of herself past the crossing; had heard the train whistle on other days at Coughlin's gate, after passing the gate, and also before coming to the gate.

G. J. Galvin, farmer, sworn, deposed that he heard the cars whistle south of his farm, at McCoy's crossing; thought he heard two short whistles after passing his residence, but did not hear any long whistle; was not sure about the two short whistles; had a better opportunity of hearing the whistle at the crossing where the accident took place than at McCoy's, as the wind was against him at the latter but strongly in his favor at the former; did not think the wind would prevent the whistle being heard by any one driving along the road where the accident occurred.

Mr. Mimms, engineer on the train causing the accident, sworn, said: Was about an hour behind time; was not trying to make up time; was going about ten miles an hour; was whistling for Lakefield when the vehicle came on the crossing and stopped; he at once reversed his engine when he saw them stop on the crossing; he whistled for brakes either just before or after he struck them; he saw them ahead about 180 or 200 yards before he struck them; the horses did not stop long; they were excited, and gave one bound as he struck the sleigh; rules required him to whistle about 400 yards before he came to a crossing; had a conversation with Mr. Mellor, who had been in the sleigh; Mr. Mellor said if they had not stopped on the crossing to back off they would have been all right; Mellor also said they heard the whistle; the horses came to a full stop; could not say what distance he was from the team when he first saw them; he invariably whistled before passing a crossing.

James Clegg, fireman, sworn: Remember the day of the accident; when he first saw the sleigh they were two or three telegraph poles from the crossing; the sleigh was to the right of the track, and the horses were on the track; the engineer sounded the whistle at a distance of three and a half telegraph poles from the crossing; when the engineer let go the whistle to reverse the engine, he (Clegg) rang the bell. The bell was rung before the sleigh was struck.

Mr. Horner, sworn: Was section foreman on the road; had had a conversation with Mr. Mellor the day of the accident; Mr. Mellor had said if the horses had not been stopped they would have escaped.

The jury returned the following verdict:—

"That according to the evidence taken before us, the said Elizabeth Reid, on Thursday, the 28th day of February, in the year 1884, on the boundary line between the village of Lakefield and township of Douro, at the crossing of the Midland Division of the Grand Trunk Railway, came to her death by being struck by a locomotive engine of the Grand Trunk Railway, owing to the negligence of Engineer Thomas Mimms, and Fireman James Clegg, servants of the said Railway, not sounding the whistle and ringing the bell within the proper distance of the said crossing, as prescribed by law.

In witness whereof, as well the coroner as the jurors aforesaid, have hereunto set and subscribed their hands and seals this 6th day of March, in the year first above named."

Toronto Legislative Topics.

THE TORRENS LAND SYSTEM.

Mr. Ermatinger's resolution in favour of the Torrens system of land transfer brought that famous contribution of Australia to the social economy of the world very prominently before the House. The mover presented the merits of the system very fully, and cited the particulars of many cases with which he was acquainted causing a vast amount of trouble and considerable expense in transferring real estate. Mr. White supported the resolution, and cited a case in which he had quieted a title for a client at an expense of over $500, an announcement which was received with cheers by the House and a look of envy from several of the legal fraternity. Mr. Badgerow favored the system. Mr. Meridith advised modifications and the Attorney-General, while favouring the principle of the system, to which he had for years given much attention, advised the fullest examination of the different systems of land transfer before committing the country to any particular one. He announced that he had prepared a bill with a view to quieting titles on a somewhat similar principle, and hoped to have the whole question discussed at next session of Parliament.

RAILWAY RESOLUTIONS.

Mr. Pardee gave notice of resolutions to be brought before the House on Thursday, protesting against the Dominion Parliament's assumption of control over railways in this Province, which, under the British North America Act, are clearly placed under the jurisdiction of the Province. By a deliberate wresting of the words, "railways for the general advantage of Canada," the Dominion Government has taken out of the control of the Province railways purely Provincial in their character, and aided by grants from Provincial funds to the amount of eight millions. This vigorous protest against Federal aggression will give the Opposition another opportunity to redeem their reputation.

PUSHING BUSINESS.

The House has been making rapid progress with public business for a couple of weeks past, and from present indications it appears probable that the business before the Assembly will be completed by the end of next week. Nearly all the committees are expected to finish their business to-day, and it is probable that on Thursday, morning sessions will be commenced.

"SARAH'S" POLITICAL HONESTY.

An incident transpired in the Public Accounts Committee, which well illustrates Mr. Carnegie's unfairness. It is the custom of the Crown Lands department to send supplies from Toronto to the various overseers on colonization roads, where they board the men on the work, and in the course of the examination of Mr. Cowper, a clerk in the department, it was shown that supplies had been sent from Toronto to the Shamrock road. Mr. Carnegie was at great pains to have it taken down by the short-hand writer, so as to get on the journals of the house, that tea had been bought on the work at 40c. a pound, while that sent from Toronto had cost 43 cents. The witness wanted to explain something on the same invoice, but this was not what Mr. Carnegie wanted, and he coarsely silenced the witness. Mr. Hardy now came to the rescue of Mr. Cowper, and it was judged best that he should make his explanation. It now transpired that on the same invoice from which Mr. Carnegie had selected his 40c. tea, there was an entry of half a barrel of pork, $13, while the pork sent from Toronto only cost $8.75. It is thus clear that Mr. Carnegie has more anxiety to make political capital, than to protect the people, for he wished to show the reckless expenditure of the Government in sending good tea from Toronto at 43c. a pound, while leaves could be bought on the ground at 40 cents. The fact that there was a loss on the pork transaction of $3.25, was quite immaterial to him as long as it told for his argument.

PETERBOROUGH WINTER RACES.

Testing the Steppers on the Icy Turf.

Fine Weather—Large Attendance—The Green Go—The Contest of the Cotts The County Trot—The Matched Race—The Brewery Purse Split—The Named Nags' Entertainment.

The yearly winter race meeting of the Peterborough Horse-breeders' Association was held on Little Lake ice course, beginning Thursday, March 6th. The course was in about the same place as last year. The judges' stand occupied the same position, but its stability was nothing to boast of. Its shaky condition, however, served one good purpose—there could be no dispute of the judges' decision, for no trio of judges, liable at any moment to be launched into eternity, would, for a second, be suspected of giving a decision that was not perfectly correct and conscientious. The judges were Messrs. H. Calcutt, J. Glendinning (Newcastle), and Christopher Leary, and it is seldom that a set of judges had as little "kicking" as these gentlemen. In fact their decisions secured invariable acknowledgement of their correctness, if not satisfaction—for no man is satisfied, however square the the race, if his horse doesn't win.

This meeting developed more horsey enthusiasm than usual. Almost every body that had a horse urged him through the streets at the top of his speed, and some owners of horses caught the fever so badly, that they might have been seen in the back streets in the mornings speeding their nags (that could, very likely, if pushed, develop a five minute pace), with their caps jammed down very tight on their heads, leaning very much to one side, their feet very wide apart, their arms holding the reins wide asunder and high in air, the strained steed meanwhile making the terrible time that many horses make by themselves, until the conceit is taken out of their owners on the turf, alongside genuine goers.

The attendance on the course was large, and on the second day immense, as many as three thousand spectators being present. The first duty of the bell of the starter, Mr. J. Simpson, Bobcaygeon was to call up seven steppers to score for the GREEN TROT.

The animals entered were, Ed. Brown's "Fanny B.," M. Tierney's "Harry S.," R. B. Lundy's "Uncle Jim," E. Thompson's "Indian Billy," J. Bernard's "Honest Billy," P. Grady's "Jack Hickey," and J. White's "St. Julien." In the first heat Honest Billy captured first place, Fanny B. came next, and Harry S. was assigned third place. In the second heat Indian Billy, who was away back in the first, came to the front, a position he gamely held to the finish of the race. The following is the summary of the result:—

E. Thompson's Indian Billy	0	1	1	1
J. Bernard's Honest Billy	1	3	0	2
M. Tierney's Harry S	3	0	3	3

Ed Brown's Fanny B. took second place place in the three first heats, but did not start in the fourth. In there were four entries:—M. Wilson's "Snow Flake," H. Nattrass' "Minnie Daniels," A. Moffat's "Gray Ned," and Wm. Lewis' "Minnie Hicks." There was little incident in this race, the result being as below:—

THE COLT RACE

Wm. Lewis' Minnie Hicks	1	1
M. Wilson's Snowflake	2	2
H. Nattrass' Minnie Daniels	3	3

THE OPEN TROT

did not take place. There was some misunderstanding in regard to the entry of the fourth horse, the conditions stipulating for four horses to enter. The race was declared off, and a "named" race substituted, to take place on Monday.

THE COUNTY TROT.

For this event four horses were entered—A. P. Morgan's "Little Rock," W. Hetherington's "Brown Barber," John Haggart's "Minnie H." and W. Kenneally's "Little Billy." This event provided some good sport, as in some of the heats the trotting was close. Though the track was heavy the time made was 3:12½. This is the result:—

W. Hetherington's Brown Barber	1	1	1
A. P. Morgan's Little Rock	2	2	2
John Haggart's Minnie H	3	dr

THE MATCH RACE.

A great deal of interest was taken in this race, for $100 a side, between R. B. Lundy's "Lundy Mare" and Harry Reid's "Harry B." A good "pot" of money changed hands. In this race Messrs. C. Stapleton, W. H. Rackham and J. Simpson acted as judges. In the first heat the horses got a good send off. On the first quarter Harry B. accumulated about three lengths of daylight between him and the mare, which the latter increased by breaking badly on the second half. Harry B. maintained his advantage the rest of the distance, and came under the wire several lengths ahead, in 2:57½. The rest of the heats were little variation, and the horse won easily in three straight heats.

For the

CALCUTT BREWERY PURSE

there entered, A. P. Morgan's "Little Rock," T. Pettit's "Lakefield Girl," E. Brown's "Fanny B.," and W. Kenneally's "Little Billy." The money was divided between the following horses:

E. Brown's Fanny B	1	1	1
T. Pettit's Lakefield Girl	2	2	2

FARMERS' RACE.

J. Bernard entered "Honest Billy," N. Tully, "Little Loo," D. Tully, "Missing Link," and F. Tully, "Minnie S." The record at the finish stood thus:

J. Bernard's Honest Billy	1	1	1
N. Tully's Little Loo	2	2	2
F. Tully's Minnie S	3	3	3

SPEEDING THE PUPS.

The dog race closed the regular programme, and furnished a large amount of fun. The result was first money to "Black Sam," second to "St. Julien," third to "Rover."

The members of the committee, which did everything to promote the success of the meeting, were Messrs. W. E—nnally, Wm. Chaney, Ed. Brown, treasurer, and R. McCallum, secretary.

THE RACED RACE.

On Monday the named race was trotted. Messrs H. Calcutt, James English and C. Stapleton acted as judges and Mr. Beatty W. B., as patrol judge. The contest was between J. Stuart's "Charley W," J. Coulter's "Billy B." D. N. Stuart's "Alice S." and Harry Reid's "Harry B." The latter won the purse of $100 in three straight heats 'Alice S' second and 'Billy B' third.

ACCIDENTS.

On the first day an accident happened to Mr. T. Darcy's cutter. His wife and another lady were driving round the track, and, turning out to let a trotter pass, one runner of the cutter ran on the snow bank at the inner side of the track, upsetting it and throwing the ladies out, without hurting them, for they were driving the horse around the course again when help ran up, and, their horse then went round the track, righting the cutter in its course, and opposite the grand stand it left the track and was handily stopped by a groom dropping a rail, which entangled sufficiently to stop it. This turned the horse into the deep drifts, and he was caught.

A boy, named Joseph Mitchell, was caught in the runner of a trotting sleigh and carried some distance, without any serious injury.

Orion Catlin, 49 Pearl Street, Buffalo, N.Y., says: "I tried various remedies for the piles, but found no relief until I used Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, which entirely cured me after a few applications." Since Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil has become celebrated, unprincipled persons are imitating it. Get the genuine.

Cheese Making Considered.

Prof. Brown's Facts Dealt With.

To the Editor of the EXAMINER:

DEAR SIR,—Will you kindly allow me space for a few remarks in relation to the report, which appeared in the EXAMINER recently, of the speech of Prof. Brown, at the Dairymen's Association, on the profit to the farmers of sending their milk to a cheese factory. I notice that Prof. Brown gave the results of several experiments to arrive at the most economical mode of feeding for cheese purposes, and he instanced the following, among others:

The first test was with what is called,

"ORDINARY" FOOD,

which consisted daily of 15 lbs. hay, 24 lbs. turnips, and 9 lbs. bran, and the daily product per head, was 162 lbs. of milk of a specific gravity of 102, containing 11.5 per cent of cream by bulk, and 11 2-5 lbs. per hundred by weight. From 100 lbs. of cream were produced 3⅘ lbs. butter, from 100 lbs. of milk were produced 3¼ pounds of butter, and 13 2/5 lbs. cheese curd. The cost of producing one pound of the following, meat, milk, 6 cents, cream, 3 cents, butter, 13 cents, cheese, 7 cts.

Now, summed up in brief he says the cost of feeding a cow one day is 17 cents, and for that he received 16⅔ lbs. of milk, and that it took 7 cents worth of milk to make a pound of cheese.

Now I will allow 20 lbs. of milk per day to Prof. Brown's cow. Say she gives milk for 9 months, about 279 days. This would total up to 5580 lbs of milk, which I think Prof. B. will admit to be a fairly large yield.

Now Mr. Editor, I do not exactly admit what Prof. Brown contends for to be correct. I figure up the result as follows:

Price of Cow in fall	$ 30 00
Eight months feed, at 17c. per day, Prof. Brown's figures	41 48
Four months grass, considerably less than 17c. per day	8 00
Interest on value of cow at 7 per cent	2 10
Deterioration of Cow	3 00
Wear of stables, etc	1 00
Expense of milking cow, repairs to cans, etc., 6 cents per day	16 74
Drawing 5580 lbs. of milk to factory	3 00
Making 560 lbs. cheese, 1½ cts. per lb.	8 37
Total	$113 69
Allow the produce from Mr. Brown's cow to be 556 lbs. cheese, at 11c.	61 38
	$ 52 31
Cow now worth $27.00 (deduct)	27 00
Total loss	$ 24 31

This balance, any farmer will see at a glance, is against him, unless he considers the resulting manure to be worth $24.31, which is again, if admitted, offset by the expense of feeding, help and other care of the cow during the year.

Now I wish to inquire if there is a farmer in the county of Peterborough, having any money to invest, who would invest it in cows for the purpose of devoting them to the manufacture of cheese?

Yours truly,

OTONABEE FARMER.

THE IRISH AGITATION.

The Redmond brothers arrived at Queenstown on the Cephalonia. Michael Davitt in an address of welcome said that although the government declared its last word had been uttered regarding land reform, Irishmen had not spoken their last word. John Redmond replying said their mission had been successful. There should be no compromise until landlordism was totally abolished. Crimes and outrages must cease and agitation must continue until the Irishmen were their own lawmakers.

If your children are troubled with worms, give them Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator; safe sure, and effectual. Buy a bottle and be convinced. 11-1t

Young Simpson (to the lovely Felicia, as they stand on the piazza in the moonlight): "Miss Felicia, this world looks so dreary and lonely to me. I feel as though no one loves me." Felicia (in a sympathetic tone): "Oh, Mr. Simpson, God loves you." Simpson, after a thoughtful pause, suggests that they go in, as it has grown chilly.

"I am afraid that young Featherly, who calls on you so often, is rather a fast young man," said a father to his daughter. "Oh, no, he isn't, father," replied the little brother who was present. "What do you know about Mr. Featherly?" demanded the old man. "I only know," he replied, "that I heard him ask sister for a kiss last night, and she told him he could have one if he would be quick about it. But it was the slowest kiss I ever saw."

ONTARIO LIQUOR LAWS.

Improvements to be Made on the Crooks Act.

A Bill to improve the license laws has been introduced in the Assembly by Mr. Hardy. The following is a summary of its chief provisions:

The Board of License Commissioners is authorised to limit the number of houses not required to have the full accomodations required for taverns, as follows; In cities of less than 15,000 population to not more than three; cities of between 15,000 and 30,000, not more than five; cities of over 30,000, not more than ten; towns of less than 6,000, not more than two, and over, 6,000, not more than three.

Applications for special licenses must be filed before the 1st of April.

Notices of the meetings of License Boards to grant licenses shall be advertised in the local papers at least fourteen days before the meeting. The Inspector shall publish in a paper in his district the name of every new applicant for a new license. A record of applications shall be open to inspection at the Inspector's office.

PETITIONS AGAINST LICENSES.

Ten or more electors of any polling subdivision may object by petition to the granting of any license within such subdivision for substantial reasons. Any person petitioned against may be heard by himself or agent, and a municipality may appoint a person to appear in a similar manner before the Commissioners. At least three days' notice must be given to an applicant on any charge against his character. The Board may consider an objection to an application, but shall notify the applicant, and upon his request adjourn their hearing of the application. When the decision of the Commissioners is not unanimous or where the persons concerned petition and allege new facts for consideration, the Board may re-hear the case.

LOCAL PROHIBITION.

An important clause of the Act provides: No license shall be granted to any applicant for premises not then under license if a majority of the parliamentary electors of the sub-division petition against it, on any ground. In case of dispute as to whether the number of electors who have signed such petition compose a majority of the duly qualified parliamentary electors, or in case of dispute as to whether any persons who have signed the petition are duly qualified voters, the inspector shall make inquiries, and may take evidence upon oath, and determine the question in dispute, and certify to the Board. On hearing the application the Board may summon witnesses and examine on oath. The hearing shall be public, but the Board may consider their decision with closed doors.

ABOLITION OF GROCERY LICENSES.

The gradual abolition of grocery licenses is provided for by enacting that no shop licenses shall be granted to any who is not now a holder of one. If any other commodity than tobacco, temperance drinks, taps, etc., are sold in such shop in addition to liquor the license shall be void.

MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS.

The sale of liquors is prohibited on polling days in parliamentary or municipal elections, or when the Canada Temperance Act is being voted upon.

For selling within prohibited hours, for the first offence the penalty shall be a fine of twenty to forty dollars and costs, or fifteen days' imprisonment with hard labor; for second offence, forty to eighty dollars, or twenty days; for third offence eighty to one hundred dollars, or fifty days; and for the fourth or subsequent offence, one to three months' imprisonment, with hard labor.

A conviction by a justice or police magistrate shall be without appeal except in certain cases mentioned. An appeal shall be to the Judge of the County Court without a jury. The person convicted, shall remain in custody pending the hearing of the appeal or give two securities in two hundred dollars each to appear before the County Judge, to abide by his decision and pay costs as ordered.

Provision is made for an inspector's appeal from the County Judge to the Court of Appeal, in case a magistrate's conviction has been quashed.

Section 90 of License Act is amended so that the child or master of one in the habit of drinking to excess, as well as the parent &c., may give notice or cause the Inspector to give notice to any persons licensed to sell liquor not to give or sell liquor to the person with such drinking habit. The penalty on the liquor seller who sells the drunkard liquor within 12 months thereafter is fixed at $50, and the person giving the notice can recover not less than twenty nor more than five hundred dollars for personal wrongs.

A penalty of $20 is provided against hotel keepers refusing lodging, meals, &c., without valid reason for such refusal.

Any liquor seller receiving goods in pawn, forfeits such goods, costs of prosecution, and is liable to a penalty not exceeding $20.

Permitting drunkenness or disorderly conduct on licensed premises, selling or giving intoxicating liquors to drunken persons, or permitting bad characters to meet on premises, or allowing gambling or any unlawful game to take place is punishable by a fine not exceeding $20.

Fifty dollars a day is the maximum fine for permitting internal communication between any licensed and unlicensed premises.

Allowing liquor to be supplied to any person under 16 years of age, not a resident of the premises or a guest, lodger, or traveller, shall entail a penalty not exceeding $20 for every such offence.

If a licensee takes or allows liquor to be taken off his premises to be sold for his benefit, he will be liable to the same penalties as if the liquor had been drunk on his own premises.

In case of a purchaser drinking or allowing others to drink on the premises where liquor is bought, the seller, shall be liable to a penalty of not more than $20 for the first offence, $60 for second.

The purchaser who drinks or causes any one to drink on the premises to which a shop or wholesale license is granted is liable to a penalty of $20.

A third conviction for Sunday selling operates as a forfeiture of license, and a disqualification for obtaining a license within two years thereafter.

Any unlicensed place where sign, bar, bottles, or casks are displayed in such a manner as to intimate that liquor is sold or that there is more liquor on the premises than is reasonably required by the residents, is to be regarded as a place where liquors are unlawfully sold.

Every person other than the defendant, summoned or examined as a witness in any prosecution under the Act, is bound to answer all questions pertinent to the issue, even though these should implicate himself.

A defendant in a prosecution shall be compelled to give evidence as a witness.

Caution to Dairymen.

Ask for WELLS, RICHARDSON & Co's. IMPROVED BUTTER COLOR, and take no other. Beware of all imitations, and of all other oil colors, for every other one is liable to become rancid and spoil the butter into which it is put. If you cannot get it, write to us at Burlington, Vt., to know where and how to get it without extra expense. Thousands of tests have been made, and they always prove it the best.

THE LICENSE CONFLICT.

Everything does'nt seem to be running smoothly with the McCarthy License Act. Opposition is assailing its usurpation of Provincial rights from all quarters.

Prescott hotel-keepers will raise the price of drinks to ten cents.

Only one of the four leading hotel keepers in Kingston will take out a Dominion license.

Campbellford has separated the sale of groceries and liquors.

Welland County Trades Benevolent Association has pledged itself to take out Provincial licenses only.

Quebec Conservatives are almost unanimous in favoring the repeal of the McCarthy Act. Sir John Macdonald has delayed the introduction of Mr. Houde's bill until the 13th. Lest it should be abandoned by that time Mr. Cameron (Huron) has given notice of a measure to repeal the Dominion Act.

L'Electeur, P. Q. is informed that the Attorney General of Quebec, has decided not to recognise the Federal License Act.

Two of the Dominion Commissioners in Three Rivers, Sir Hector Langevin's constituency, refuse to act.

The hotel keepers in Inspector Macdonald's Division in Centre Wellington have all applied for licenses under the Ontario Act only.

TORONTO'S SEMI CENTENNIAL

RINGING OF BELLS AND FIRING OF CANNON—QUIETER THAN EXPECTED.

The semi-centennial celebration of the incorporation of Toronto passed off last Thursday very quietly so far as the day itself was concerned. Numerous flags floated from the business houses on the most prominent thoroughfares and public buildings, and a large number of country visitors were attracted to the city, and thronged the streets the greater part of the day. The bells in the different city churches rang out a joyful peal, and the salute of fifty guns was duly fired in the Queen's Park according to the programme laid out. The most interesting part, however, was reserved for Friday night, when the Mayor in his capacity of Chief Magistrate received the citizens in the Council chamber. Of course the real celebration will take place in June, and the present one is only in honour of the actual date. There is little doubt that strangers were considerably surprised at the little interest shown by citizens in the matter.

What It Has Done

Mrs. George Simpson, Toronto, says: 'I have suffered severely with corns, and was unable to get relief from treatment of any kind until I was recommended to try Holloway's Corn Cure. After applying it for a few days I was enabled to remove the corn, root and branch—no pain whatever, and no inconvenience in using it. I can heartily recommend it to all suffering from corns.'

A PLAIN DEFINITION.

S.—"That's right, Johnny. You're a bright little boy. Now stand up on the seat so all the scholars can see you tell me—let me see— ah, yes—how does your father look when he find a button off his shirt?"

J. G.—"Oh, he looks awful mad and grinds his teeth, and says cuss words and rumples up his shirt?"

S. (astonished himself, as Johnny's father is a church trustee)— Ah? That's enough, Johnny. I'm afraid you have just wakened out of a dream."

DOMINION DOINGS.

Fifty immigrants for British Columbia left Stratford last Tuesday.

There are over thirty deserters from the United States army at Windsor.

The Sarnia Council is at a deadlock, and cannot get a quorum at meetings.

Eighteen men have been brought from Massachusetts to take the place of striking moulders at Smart's foundry, Brockville.

A woman left her child at the Ontario Hotel, London, Tuesday, while she went out shopping. The child is there yet, its mother having failed to return.

The Telfer post office, on the ninth concession of London Township, was robbed of $60 the other night. The thief then set fire to the building, which was consumed.

Saturday night W. Huntley, Winnipeg, swallowed a dose of laudanum because a young lady did not really truly love him, and the doctor had a difficult task to save his life.

H. Muma, of Drumbo, having recently withdrawn from the village council, after many years service, his friends presented him with a gold watch and chain, and entertained him at a banquet.

W. R. Moore, of Caledon township, was attacked by highway robbers one night last week. The men stabbed him in the back, and were just about to rifle his pockets when an approaching sleigh put them to flight.

The Cheapest medicine in use is Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, because so very little of it is required to effect a cure. For croup, diptheria, and diseases of the lungs and throat, whether used for bathing the chest or throat, for taking internally or inhaling, it is a matchless compound.

J. W. Langley, M.P.P. for Annapolis, has given notice in the Nova Scotia House of Assembly that on a future day he will move a resolution to the effect that in the opinion of the House a union of the Provinces of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island into one Province on a fair basis, would be advantageous to the common interests of all.

J. Barr, of Vaughan Township, while driving into Toronto, came upon a team of horses attached to an overturned sleigh which had been laden with grain. Beneath the bags of grain the dead body of the driver a young man, named James Johnson, was found. It appears that Johnson was coming to the city with a load of grain and the sleigh had been overturned in the snow bank.

The Indians around Calgarry are becoming civilised, and last week a dentist was busy extracting decayed teeth, which were unknown among the natives before the days of the white man, when they lived on buffalo meat alone. Braves who have stood inconceivable torture at the sun dance without flinching, shake and shiver when the dentist takes a grip at the decayed molar. Thus does the mighty forceps bring us all to a common level.

THAT "TOCSIN OF THE SOUL, THE DINNER BELL," as Byron calls it, suggests no pleasing reflections to the despeptic, bilious sufferer. He partakes, of course, but the subsequent torment is egregiously out of proportion to the quantity of food he eats, which lies undigested, a weight like lead in his unhappy stomach. There is a remedy, however, and its name is Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure. No case is entirely hopeless.

Turnbull's early purchases of Lace Curtains and Lambrequins are now to hand, and judging by the remarks we have heard, they must be extra good value. Call and see them.

Benjamin Beatty, of Philadelphia, attempted to chastise his 17-year old boy, Harry, when the latter drew a revolver and shot his father in the breast. Mr. Beatty is not fatally hurt, though the ball has not yet been extracted. The boy, who is a reader of dime novels, made his escape.

SEE WHAT A SUFFERER OF TEN YEARS' SAYS:

BUTTONVILLE, Co. of York, Jan. 1, 1883.

DEAR SIR,—In regard to my catarrh, I can say after about four weeks treatment that I am entirely cured, after being troubled for more than ten years with all the worst symptoms of catarrh of the head, such as noises of blood and matter, which flowed from my nose into my mouth—snuffling with choking of mucus, loss of smell, which has now returned, pain in my head, rendering me almost stupid, which left me two weeks after commencing your treatment. Hacking cough, etc. From my experience of catarrh, I consider your mode of treatment the best in existence. Hoping that all may receive the same benefit, I remain, yours, SARAH DUNN.

FREE AND PAINLESS EXAMINATIONS of the inner portions of the nose by the most improved instruments of the age.

Will be at GRAND CENTRAL HOTEL, PETERBOROUGH, from 9th to 17th of MARCH, for consultation. Persons at a distance can be treated by sending letter, describing symptoms, to DR. PINGEL, Toronto. 9-3t.

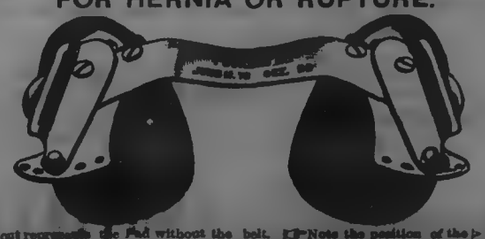
The Tucker Spring Pad Truss

FOR HERNIA OR RUPTURE.



(This cut represents the Pad without the belt. Note the position of the ▷ shaped spring situated in the pad by which a CONSTANT but easy INWARD and UPWARD pressure is conveyed to the Hernia when the Pad is adjusted.)

This Truss, which is placed before your notice and consideration, is wholly unlike any other appliance in construction or principle. It dispenses with the ever uncomfortable Body Spring, having the means to convey a proper pressure just where it is required, that is in the Pad. The Tucker Truss is very light, single one weighing about 4 ozs., and the double one not 8 ozs., it completely and comfortably retains the Hernia under all positions and exertions of the body. A swivel attachment to the belt prevents displacement by insemation or stooping, and its ready and complete adjustability by which each Pad is made either RIGHT or LEFT as once or fixed at any desired angle commends it, and also, it is more durable than any other, as there is nothing to rust or break, all the metal work being nickel plated.

For Sale at the City Pharmacy, George Street, Peterborough.

Where will be found a full stock of Drugs and Chemicals, all the leading and most popular Patent Medicines, Brushes, Shoulder Braces, Fine Toilet Goods, &c.
